URGES ACTION TO STRENGTHEN ARMY OVERSEAS

Canadian Legion President Calls on Prime Minister to Take Immediate Steps

REINFORCEMENT ISSUE

Calgary, Nov. 10—(CP) — Alex Walker, Dominion President of the Canadian Legion, in an address prepared for delivery to a service club (Rotary) today called on Prime Minister Mackenzie King to take immediate action to strengthen Canada's army overseas.

The next year, Mr. Walker said, was likely to bring "the most decisive" period in the history of the present war. "Both at home and in the method of waiting by the Canadian army overseas.

"For the present, until next spring before it is our turn to engage seriously in the grim, abnormal combat. Once the fighting in earnest commences it will mean expect continuous, large-scale operations which will not cease until the war ends.

Criticizes Statement

Mr. Walker criticized Justice Minister St. Laurent for a statement at Quebec City Nov. 1, when Mr. St. Laurent was quoted as saying conscription for overseas service was not to be imposed unless the safety of the nation forced it to be adopted "and fortunately present events tend to show that we are not faced with the situation just now."

Mr. Walker commented: "I can recall no more depressing and stupefying expression of a smug, complacent isolationism made by a member of the Dominion Government or by any parliamentary delegate last summer on the removal of Canada's troops from the United Mobilization Act."

Mr. St. Laurent's stand was contrasted by Mr. Walker with pointed remarks by Prime Minister Winston Ralston and Air Minister Power during the conscription debate in the North Hall of Parliament.

The numerical strength of the Canadian Army overseas was only about one-half that of the Canadian Corps which went there after three years and two months of the First Great War, he continued.

Stronger Reinforcements

Stronger reinforcements were needed.

"To bring to full fighting strength the divisions authorized by the government, and then fail to provide adequate additional reinforcements available for action, over there, not here in Canada, is to invite disaster," Mr. Walker said. "Worse than that it is to invite disgrace; for if that should happen, Canada would be jetting her fighting men down and that must never happen.

"If this should happen, after all the time we have had to prepare for battle, after all the examples and warnings we have seen; then, I tell you, the old fighting men of the last war would no longer be content with their existing manifestoes, as we have done heretofore, urging our government to let us fight total war with total war, or pleading with the Prime Minister to let us have decent sacrifice by giving us real selective service, including service against the enemy wherever he may have to be fought."

Oran Naval Base On Mediterranean Falls to Attack

Virtually All Vichy Resistance in Mediterranean Ends With Capture of Port

Washington, Nov. 10 — (AP) — The capture of Oran, French naval base on the Mediterranean south coast of Algeria, by British troops, supported by the British Navy and Army and Navy Air units, was announced today by the war department.

By WES GALLAGHER

U. S. Correspondent with the A.E.F. in Africa

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Nov. 10 — (AP) — Oran has fallen to an attack by American troops and the entire empire virtually all Vichy French resistance in the Mediterranean has ended, Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced late today.

The Commander-in-Chief of the United States expedition against French North Africa said Oran fell to the American army a few hours after the assault on the Algerian port began.

Council Members Hear Delegation Against Mink Farm

Another Delegation Asks for Crossing Over C. N. Tracks at Frank Street

OTHER BUSINESS

Members of the City Council, who intend running for re-election at the Municipal election to be held December 7, agreed in writing to the City Clerk, at 5 o'clock, the vote out. Each member signed on the dotted line, that if they ran for re-election they would not use cars and in this way confirm to the request of the Oil and Tire controller for the duration, to conserve these needful commodities for the total war effort. There is a possibility the vote will be light if some of the more aged and ill-do not get back to the polls by the several candidates but it will be up to them to make a choice to walk to the polls to register their franchise. From the signatures on the document it is presumed that all of the old council will be seeking re-election at the polls in December.

Delegation Appears

Charles A. Panter, K.C., appeared before the council at their regular meeting on Monday night representing petitioners from Cedar Street sector, who are objecting to the erection of a mink farm by their community. Mr. Payne stated that the farm was started with four mink and the residents have no objection to it would only be temporary, but that the farm has now increased to between 400 and 500 mink. The reason of the odor, the residents there communicated with the Provincial Board Health in Toronto, but was informed there was nothing to prevent such an establishment within the city but I am appealing to members of the council to take a lay-by prohibiting the establishment of such farms in the city and I think the Council has the right to pass legislation to that effect," Mr. Payne. The speaker also complained that a great deal of noise from the farm when the mink were whelping and this is very disturbing to the residents on Cedar Street. He also stated, that because of the odor from the farm, time especially, the residents were forced to keep their windows closed and that it was not enjoyable to sit on their verandahs because of this odor. Mayor Thompson told Mr. Payne, that the council with the City Solicitor had the matter under consideration and a decision would be given in the immediate future.

Ask For Transportation

A number of women and men, who are employed at the Trenton Ordnance Depot and living in this city, appeared before the council requesting that the Council assist them in securing adequate transportation to the Station in the early hours of the morning. It was shown that Mr. Raubun of Trenton, holds a contract for this part of the road, but because of other obligations he is unable to provide a bus running from Belleville to the Air Field station without losing another bus which he feels he is unable to do at the present time. Mr. Bush then asked the leading men to the station and implied the council to assist in some way to take the women but pressure was being brought to bear on the council to act as a common carrier. The Mayor told the delegation to interview Mr. Bush and with him was take the matter up with the Transit Commissioner in Toronto. A woman also appeared before the council and a similar request was given in the matter of building material for repairs to property in the City and it was decided to have the husband appear before the council to state his requirements in the class of house to be built and the matter will be considered.

Cedar Crossing

Petitioners from Frank Street west of West Moira Street appeared before the council requesting that a bus be put in that will enable them to get across the C.N.R. tracks to the station for arrivals and other trucks to serve them. It is impossible at the present time for trucks to reach the area and Mayor Thompson told the delegation via North Front Street and College Street. The matter will be taken up with the Railway Board in Toronto. An explanation was given by Mayor Thompson that the Utilities Commission respecting the increased rate for power in the city was satisfactory to the Council and Ald. Armstrong suggested that the Council communicate with the Utilities the twenty-five per cent discount be continued. It is understood that the matter be taken up with the Utilities Commission on his recent trip to a convention in Toronto. The report was received.

The Chamber of Commerce requested the Council's communication that a united appeal be made for the Community Provincial campaigns. The letter was in favor of a Community Chest plan which would bring down the expenses and at the same time save considerable labor and organizing effort. The Hume Arena will operate the same as last year with respect to free skating hours for the school children in return for a grant from the City. The city does not have to operate open air rinks. The Council Chamber will be used by the Cavalry Veterans Horse Maintenance Association for the holding of the several addresses that will be given at the meeting in Belleville on Tuesday, November 17th. The Council acted the City Clerk to give an opinion respecting the legality of the Public Utilities Commission on February the water charges for November and December without the permission of the City Council. Mr. Lemmon, Ex-Mayor Jamieson Bone addressed the Council in connection with this matter and is herewith given—

Belleville, Ont.,
Nov. 9, 1943.

To Mayor O. E. Thompson and Aldermen
Dear Sirs,
Re-Public Utilities.

I noticed the above commission have again declared a bonus. Approximately $6,000 for the benefit of profit and this is being distributed to the water consumers which I think is quite wrong. Belleville is only one of many in this country if we must continue to pay with all sorts of holidays indefinitely. Are there no suggestions of liberty and justice left? It would not appear so bad to me, except that I have heard several strongly worded protests by me—gave the Utilities Commission the rehabilitation of the Gas Utility. When there is a loss two per year but when there is a profit we don't get it. If there is a law to the effect that when the income profits then that law must be repealed, like a number of other wartime measures that throw another $1,000. after the war. Perhaps representations could be made to the Utilities Commission and another injunction on the Utilities Commission to stop this distribution of surplus, until the matter is decided by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Yours very truly,
Jamieson Bone.

Several by-laws were passed one dealing with a question to be put to the respective electors at the position of the council and another for the holding of the municipal election while others dealt with the transfer of property. One by-law was passed by-law by-law respecting the erection of signs.

570 Enemy Subs Sunk, Damaged Or Captured

London, Nov. 10 (CP)—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, announced in the House of Commons today that the number of enemy submarines sunk, damaged or captured had increased to 570.

In disclosing the increased damage to the U-boat fleet, Alexander said "the enemy quite failed to appreciate that we had sufficient shipping tonnage available to carry out the operations for the Allied victory" during landing of a strong American Expeditionary Force in North Africa.

NOGUES HEADQUARTERS IN CASABLANCA

Tangier, Nov. 9 — (Delayed) (AP) — Radio Morocco said tonight that Gen. Auguste Nogues, commander of Vichy's Moroccan forces, had moved his headquarters from Rabat to the interior.

Civilian Administrative authorities are at least for the moment still at the capital, the radio reported.

It said that debarkation of American troops continued at Mogador, Safi, Casablanca and Port Lyautey.

WALL ST.

New York, Nov. 10 — (AP) — Selling piled up in war stocks but profit-cashing in the recently buoyant issues was favorite tonight as generally lower trends in today's market.

The list was ragged from the start and declines of fractions to a point or so predominated.

Stocks in arrears included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, N. Y. Central, Youngstown Sheet, Southern Pacific, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Westinghouse, Anaconda, Freeport Texas, General Electric, Texas Co., Standard Oil (NJ), Chrysler and Int. Harv. and J. C. Penney. Occasional resistance was shown by General Motors, Consolidated, Chrysler, Douglas, Service of N. J., American Can and Corn Products. U. S. Rubber made a new high for the year.

Canadian stocks were easy. Canadian Pacific, Noranda, Mines, Hudson Bay Mining, Mitchell, Simpsons and Lake Shore declined fractions to the bond market Canada & raised 1-8.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Moderate volumes of profit-taking on the recent advance gave gold shares today a setback of a point in the Kirkland Lake and the base metal stocks also were moderately weak.

Gains of minimum fractions showed for B. A. Oil and Imperial Bell Telephone, Union Gas, Dominion Foundries and Fanny Farmer advanced fractionally.

Bralorne, Pickle Crow, San Antonio, Sherritville, Teck Hughes, Cockshutt, East Malartic and Preston were among the soft spots in the gold list. Noranda dropped half a point and Normetal, Ontario Nickel and International Nickel, point minor losses.

Mail From Home More Welcome Than Pay Day, Says Dieppe Heroes

Ottawa, November 10 — You can take it from the boys who fought at Dieppe, there is nothing more important to a soldier overseas than mail from home — not even payday!

I met the 17 Dieppe heroes headed by Lt.-Col. Dollard Menard, D.S.O., of Quebec City, officer commanding Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, and Capt. William Osler, Winnipeg, of the Queens Own Cameron Highlanders of Canada, and to a man they were most emphatic on this question.

"Receiving mail and parcels is more important to us than payday," was the testimony of Lance Corporal C. W. J. Helmer, M.M., Alexo, Alta., of the Calgary Tank Regiment.

Col. Menard stated it graphically when he said: "Letters from home to fighting troops are like ammunition to weapons — the more they get, the quicker the Hun will be destroyed."

Their comrades in the Dieppe party backed up these sentiments to a man. "Mail Day overseas is a happy day when there is mail but it is a glum occasion, when no letters or parcels arrive," the men report.

Here are their comments, best evidence available, that we on the home front must keep cheery letters and parcels flowing to our soldiers in a steady, unending stream:

C.S.M. MURPHY, M.M. of the Royal Regiment of Canada, 155 Coxwell Ave., Toronto:

"The foremost thought in a soldier's mind is welfare of his family. His heart is always at ease when mail arrives regularly. When it does not, the strangest thoughts occur to him overseas. Life is more carefree and brighter when we get mail from home. Mail from home does more to keep up morale than anything else."

Most Important Day

CPL. J. A. GREGORY, M.M., of the South Saskatchewan Regiment, 38 De Waal Apts., 4th St., N.E., Calgary:

"Mail day overseas is about the most important day to the boys. Lots of cheerful letters keep the spirits high, lets them know the folks at home are behind them and are pulling for them."

C.S.M. GEORGE GOUK, D.C.M., Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Canada, 344 Ingersoll St., Winnipeg:

"It is certainly most important that men overseas receive mail from home. When mail arrives you should see the happy looks on the faces of men who receive it; disappointment on those who receive none. Letters must be cheery and show how their friends at home are right behind them."

L/CPL. WILLIAM H. J. PARR, Royal Canadian Engineers, 410 Wharncliffe Road, London, Ont.:

"Boys overseas are mostly interested in the health of their wives and families, living expenses, changes in their home towns, treatment given wives by the public, what wives and families do in spare time, and if the government money is enough to keep things going. The morale of boys who receive no mail from home is very low. I would suggest faster delivery of mail to boys overseas. Constant mail keeps morale at its very best."

GNR. HENRY J. ROWE, M.M., British Columbia Coastal Brigade, R.C.A., 1420 Camosun Ave., Victoria, B.C.

"Mail is the most important thing to a soldier overseas. When mail is received close contact is always held between the family. Lack of mail disheartens every soldier while a single letter greatly bolsters his morale. The message from soldiers overseas is: 'Send us mail and lots of it'."

Good for Discipline

MAJOR J. ARMAND SABOURIN, chaplain of Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, of 3721 Henri Julien, Montreal:

"It is of vital importance for men serving overseas to receive mail from their homes. Mail is important for good discipline and morale. Personal experience proves that men not receiving mail are depressed and not as efficient soldiers as those receiving mail."

PTE. A. S. CHISHOLM, M. M., of the Scottish Regiment, 183 Close Ave., Toronto, Ont.:

"To see mail from home being handed out to the boys overseas is to realize its importance in their lives. There is not a happier moment in army life than when soldiers exchange bits of news from each others' letters. So you, whom they leave behind in their homes, whose memories they cherish, owe to them those moments of happiness which your letters bring."

CAPT. RONALD B. MURRAY, Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, of Markdale and Kingston:

"I feel it is impossible to overemphasize the importance of regular mail overseas.

"News that Canadian mail has arrived, especially letters, is cause for the greatest excitement. I would say there is no greater stimulant to morale of troops than the knowledge that people at home are thinking of them, writing, and that their letters are being safely and quickly delivered."

Forlorn When Forgotten

CORPORAL JOHN HOPE, Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, 478 Hughson St. North, Hamilton:

"It cannot possibly be overstressed how important it is for relatives and friends of the men overseas sending lots of letters and parcels. A number of the fellows receive these regularly, but there is a great number whose friends and relatives seem to have forgotten them, and they feel very forlorn when they see their pals being remembered. Too much press and radio publicity cannot be given to this point."

CAPTAIN DENNIS FRANCIS, of 492 Mountain Ave. Westmount, liaison officer ashore in the Dieppe engagement:

"Mail is vital for men overseas as it is the only link with their families. Without this link, they are liable to have thoughts, habits and life grow apart. This tends towards divorce and collapse of morale. Men overseas are fighting for their homes and decent living. Letters keep this inspiration and incentive in the foreground and informs men of support from the home front, reduces the time of separation, and paves the way to regathering the reins of normal home life after the war, so assisting rehabilitation."

"Men do not fight well if they feel they are forgotten. Snapshots are also important. Small troubles explained by mail reassure a soldier of his family's dependance upon him. Happy letters to a critical hospital case may save his life. Letters are the life blood of morale."

PTE. TOM BIBBY, M.M., of the Field Ambulance, R.C.A.M.C., 29 Bay Street, Woodstock, Ont.:

"Speaking as one who has been overseas for 26 months and in active service with the Canadian Army since September, 1939, may I impress to the fullest extent of my ability the great uplifting effect on the morale of army personnel of the receipt by the soldier of mail and lots of it.

"It is difficult for those of us who have always lived at home, or close to home, to appreciate the homesickness that at times comes over the men even though they may be enjoying the fullest comradeship of their fellows in arms."

Long for Loved Ones

A soldier's buddies do much to fill his life in the army, but there is always that longing for the loved ones of his family, the old friends he had to leave behind.

"Parcels of course are always a welcome addition to a soldier's comforts, but more than that, a few lines from those he knows prove of the greatest value in keeping up his spirits."

"Mails are sometimes uncertain but usually the mail eventually gets through, sometimes in bunches. But the news of home and loved ones is there and "Mail Call" is one of the big day-to-day events in the life of a soldier overseas. Having experienced all this over an extended period; may I say as sincerely as I can, that regular sending of mail to the men overseas is a distinct contribution in its way to the war effort, and a source of great comfort and uplift to the men receiving the mail."

That is the evidence of the men of Dieppe about the real need for letters to our boys overseas, Have YOU written lately?.

WHY SOLDIERS LIKE LETTERS FROM LOVED ONES AT HOME

Christmas Message Sent With Cigarettes To Boys Overseas

When Belleville boys serving overseas receive this week's shipment of 300 cigarettes sent to forty through the Kinsmen "Fag Fund" the recipient will also get a cheery Christmas message from home. As a matter of fact 430 such Christmas messages were sent overseas to Belleville boys now receiving smokes through the Kinsmen "Fag Fund."

Voluntary contributions to swell the fund coffers and assure its continuance were announced by Chairman Matt Currie, especially of note last week being donations from the Recreation Alleys bowling leagues and $20.00 from the St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E.

Thirty-five replies from boys overseas thanking the Kinsmen for cigarettes recently received and urging the continuance of the fund were received last week among which were such appeals from Kin. Bill Holway, P. Van Dusen, W. E. Smith, J. B. Leslie, W. D. Mondeville, J. Miller, W. T. Hiddleston, P. Logue and others.

The names of the Belleville boys shipped parcels of 300 cigarettes this week include R. W. Armitage, J. Bly, A. C. Broad, E. J. Clarke, R. W. Clarke, R. Cook, C. R. Crosby, W. F. Diminie, Jack Dracup, J. F. Finkle, G. D. Fraser, Douglas L. Galpin, R. J. Gilmour, A. G. Greenwood, N. B. Hunt, W. N. Hurst, R. Huycke, Orley Johnson, Howard Kelleher, Eric Law, G. S. Morris, A. ## Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating supper, being frickasee chicken without dumplings, and ma said to pop, I found the proverbial perfect hostess this afternoon.

Do you mean the hostess who spills coffee all over her own gown to save her clumsy guest from feeling too embarrassed?? pop said, and ma said, Exactly the same principal precisely, only we didn't happen to be at the table, or at least we did, but it was the bridge table. The game was at Blantche Hipple's house, which automatically made Blantche the hostess, natrually, and her partner was a certain Mrs. Booster, who is a notorious wool gatherer and just as likely to be up in the clouds as down to earth at any given bridge moment, and sure enough just as you might expect, this Mrs. Booster reaches deliberately out and trumps Blantche Hipple's good ace. Well my dear, you could of heard an invisible pin drop, and Mrs. Booster's face turned all colors of red, and that's —when Blantche Hipple let out a ringing cheery laugh and exclaimed, "Well that's a good one, that's a pure case of poetic justice, because I played the same trick on my partner only yesterday." Imagine, William, Blantche Hipple of all people, who would rather be found dead than trumping the wrong ace, wasn't that lovely of her? ma said.

Well G, ma, I bet you'd do the same thing if you had a good chance, I said, and ma said, Thank Thank you for the compliment, I hope so, I'm sure.

Well then here's your chance, ma, I said. I made a big beet stain on the new tablecloth, so why dont you make an even bigger one? I said, and ma said, What's that, now please dont make any untimely jokes.

I'm not, ma, here it is, I said. Which it was, under my bread and butter plate, the result being ma gave me a fierce lecture on carelessness and almost made me go without desert.

Proving it's probably a mistake for a member of the family to expect to be treated like company.

Food, the Changing of Shifts, and the War Worker

A few yeras ago I wrote about the experiment of Drs. Haggard and Greenberg, Yale University, giving five meals a day to industrial workers instead of the regular three meals now in general use. These research workers showed that by giving the same amount of foods in five meals instead of three workers produced 15 per cent more work and felt stronger at the end of the day.

The arrangement for the five meals a day was simple; the workers ate some of their noon lunch at 10.30 a.m., and some of the food they would be eating at the evening meal at 4 p.m.

Dr. William Sawyer, Rochester, N.Y., in the Medical Clinics of North America says:

"No doubt we have all experienced the 'let down' feeling that occurs in the middle of the morning and afternoon which is relieved by a soft drink and a snack of food. "All out production" in industry is taking its toll in taut and tired nerves, weary muscles, aching brows and fatigue. Industry can prevent this by having a cart taken around the factory of assorted hot and cold beverages, tomato juice, bottled milk, fruit juices and biscuits or snacks of food. One of the difficult problems of industry in these days is what is called the swing shifts wherein the workers change from a night shift to a day shift and vice versa". "Changing hours of work every few weeks means disturbance to hours of sleep and regularity of meal times".

This does not upset same workers but for many it brings on early fatigue, nervousness, loss of appetite, indigestion, and loss of weight.

"The general observation seems to be that they sleep less while on the day shift but eat more, and sleep more when on the night shift but eat less".

How can this disturbance to health—fatigue, indigestion, nervousness or jumpiness, loss of appetite and loss of weight— be avoided in those who have to undergo changes in shifts?

Dr. Sawyer states that these disturbances can be avoided by regularity, by following strictly an eattime schedule similar to the usual meals of day workers, with care as to selection and quantities of food.

As there are now millions of war workers and change in shifts is in general use, the eating of plenty of nourishing food at "regular" hours should prevent the symptoms mentioned above.

The Dead

These hearts were woven of human joys and cares,
Washed marvellously with sorrow,
swift to mirth.
The years had given them kindness.
Dawn was theirs,
And sunset, and the colours of the earth.

These had seen movement, and heard music; known
Slumber and waking; loved; gone
proudly friended;
Felt the quick stir of wonder, sat alone;
Touched flowers and furs and cheeks.
All this is ended.

There are waters blown by changing winds to laughter
And lit by the rich skies, all day.
And after,
Frost, with a gesture, stays the waves that dance
And wandering loveliness. He leaves a white
Unbroken glory, a gathered radiance,
A width, a shining peace, under the night.

TWO YOUNG MEN with faith in themselves

BEFORE the war, two young graduates in chemistry faced the future with no assets but technical training and unbounded faith in themselves. They planned to capitalize on their years in college by manufacturing a certain chemical product. "But we'll need some money to get started," they said. "Let's put it up to the bank."

Their banker decided that their faith was well founded in character, ability, energy. "We'll finance you to start in a small way," he said. "Make a test on the local market first."

Presently the product was being sold all over Canada and exported to the United States and overseas. Now it fills a wartime demand. The enterprise employs a large number of people.

This actual example illustrates how this country's Chartered Banks help credit-worthy people to benefit themselves, their fellows and their country under the democratic system of free enterprise.

Banks, like any other business, exist because they provide service which a community needs and is willing to pay for at a rate which will yield a reasonable profit. Chartered Bank profits average less than one-half of one per cent a year on total assets. Few, if any, other businesses operate on as small a margin.

NAZIS OCCUPY VICHY FRANCE

Toulon Obvious Destination Port For Major Forces

Italians to Occupy That Part of France Left to Vichy By 1940 Armistice

HITLER GIVES ORDER

By ROBERT BUNNELLE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—German armies rolled across historic demarcation lines occupied France toward the Mediterranean no-man's land today as Hitler tore up his armistice with Marshal Petain and his tricolored France's future in the war into an explosive question mark.

Even as grey-clad Nazi columns raced toward the ports of Toulon and Marseille, other Axis troops were reported to have landed by parachute and transport plane in Tunisia, to form a link with speedily-consolidated Anglo-American forces in Algeria and Morocco, 1,000 miles nearest to the junction of French North Africa, with the exception of Tunisia, was revealed.

Reports from Vichy declared that the aged Marshal had said that the German action invalidated the 1940 armistice (which could return unchanged defiance to a technical state of war with the Axis) and that he would make no move to interfere with whatever resistance the French could put up.

If those were his words, they might be the last barrier to that personal loyalty to him which had kept Vichy fighting forces in the Africa and naval squadrons in the Mediterranean from swinging back to the Allied cause. Vichy broadcasts said the French fleet was still at Toulon.

Stand Not Made Clear

Petain's exact stand was unclear. Vichy broadcasts said he remained in his ancient capital at Vichy "at the 2 p.m." conferring with his lieutenants and with Pierre Laval, his chief of government, who returned to Vichy presumably from a reported conference with Hitler and Mussolini.

The German radio was reported by Reuters news agency to have said five armies of German troops had set up their staffs at Hotel Du Parc, Petain's capital at Vichy.

Other reports reaching the French frontier suggested that Marshal Petain had left Vichy, taking with him Gen. Maxime Weygand, French African commander long regarded as an Allied sympathizer and devoted man he had chosen to stay where he was—a virtual prisoner of state in the same province that King Leopold of the Belgians is in his country.

German broadcasts said Petain was still in German power, but there or not that friend of the Berlin radio said that he remained in Vichy and that his objection to the German move south was only a "circumstance"—not a "formal" protest.

The German government has known for 36 hours that plans of these operations (in North Africa) provide that the next attack will be made against Corsica, in order to occupy that island, and against the south coast of France," he said.

As German troops swept past Vichy and Italians moved in along the Riviera coast, Marseille was ordered under a night curfew.

Italy showed her mounting alarm by concentrating most of her Ligurian nescourt from Genoa to La Spezia (port).

Allied Offensives Discussed Fortnight After Pearl Harbor Roosevelt Says

DETAILS MAPPED OUT

By DOUGLAS R. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer
Washington, Nov. 11 — (AP) —

The Axis powers had a warning from President Roosevelt today that the American campaign in North Africa is no bar to future offensives elsewhere.

Where or when they might come, he naturally did not disclose. But he told a press conference late yesterday that the limiting factors for a big offensive no longer are in operation.

These factors, as Mr. Roosevelt outlined them, centred in the problems of large-scale production of weapons, the training of adequate military forces, and the transportation of men and equipment to fighting fronts.

Chronologically, the chief executive explained how plans for the African campaign developed, how the points of attack were decided last July, and the separation by days set last August. There was no thought of the operation at the time, he said in reply to a question.

Allied Discussions

The inception of the first major American operation of the war goes back to the time, a fortnight after Pearl Harbor, when the President asked Prime Minister Churchill of Britain to come to Washington with some of his war staff. They discussed there the possibility of various offensives.

A large frontal attack on the German-controlled coasts of Belgium and France, which capital at the time 2 p.m., conferring with his lieutenants and with Pierre Laval, his chief of government, who returned to Vichy presumably from a reported conference with Hitler and Mussolini.

German Air-borne Troops and Italian Marines Reported In Tunisia

STRENGTH NOT KNOWN

(By E. C. DANIEL)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 11 (AP) —Collapse of organized resistance to Anglo-American occupation forces in Northwest French Africa appeared to be all but complete today as Hitler rushed forces into Tunisia in forestall an extension of the Allied coup to the Central Mediterranean.

The Vichy commander at Casablanca sued for an armistice at that vital Atlantic port of entry for expeditionary forces, and dispatches from Allied headquarters in North Africa declared that American troops were in firm occupation of Rabat, the Moroccan capital.

An Allied spokesman said some of Hitler's air-borne troops and elegrant had landed in Tunisia, and British radio reports added that Italian marines had taken possession of the Tunisian naval base of Bizerte in order to maintain their control of the narrow straits of Sicily.

Adversaries whom the French African coast comes within 130 miles of Sicily.

Allied spokesmen said they had no knowledge of any American or British troops reaching Tunisia when they might dispute the German movement, although the Berlin radio claimed that American troops were landing outside Tunis, the capital, since this morning.

No Enemy Resistance Reported

The Vichy radio declared that Rabat had been taken by Allied forces east of Algiers and that they were no Allied military casualties as yet in Constantine, the area of East Algeria.

Vichy radio reports continued to emphasize the arrival of American and British troops in the Mediterranean area, and quoted observers here as La Lines, Spain, as saying several thousand British, American and Canadian troops were seen in the Gibraltar. There was no confirmation of the report that any Canadian troops had left Britain.

Two cruisers, four destroyers and a large transport entered Gibraltar harbor early this morning, joining a British naval force consisting of four cruisers, 11 destroyers and five transports already in the bay, the Vichy broadcasts said. Among the transports was the French ship Casabee.

Preparation Proceeding On Immense Scale But Requires Time

London, Nov. 11 — (CP) — A second front in Europe was promised by Prime Minister Churchill today, addressing the House of Commons as the Germans overran all of France.

"An attack will be made in due course across the Channel or the North Sea," he declared.

Of the epochal events changing the whole military and political complexion of the war on two continents," even as he spoke, Mr. Churchill declared:

"Today navy reaches us that Hitler has decided to overrun all of France, thus breaking the Armistice to which the Vichy government had kept such pitiful and perverted fidelity at the horrible cost even of sacrificing their ships and sailors in fleeing American rescue ships.

"They have been struck down by their German task masters . . .

"Here is the moment when all Frenchmen should sink personal views and rivalries and think, as of Gen. De Gaulle is thinking, only of the liberation of their native land."

Reported on War's Progress

Mr. Churchill periodically gave reports of the progress of the war in North Africa. He told Commons the news of Casablanca's capitulation had come just as he entered the chamber — and made this prediction:

"This House may be sure that many things are going to happen in the next few days and I should be merely presuming if I attempted to give a digested opinion on the situations which will develop in North Africa, in France or in Italy, except that we shall shortly hear the guns of the cities for bombing Italy."

"The Prime Minister's report contained many highlights, among them:—

His assurance that the Russians have borne the disappointment of the second front "and now they have reached a winter successfully."

His grim prediction that Italy will come to a much fuller and bitter realization of the realities and horrors of war.

His disclosure that Nazi Field

ROMMEL DRIVEN FROM SIDI BARRANI BY EIGHTH ARMY

Axis Delaying Force At Buqbuq 25 Miles West Also Engaged By British

NAZI CRUISER HIT

Cairo, Nov. 11—(AP)—The British 8th Army drove the rear guard of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel from Sidi Barrani yesterday and engaged another Axis delaying force at Buqbuq, 25 miles farther west and only about 30 miles from La Lloun Lowry, a joint British Headquarters- R.A.F. communique said today.

Allied aircraft intercepted "enemy naval units" in the Central Mediterranean and reported two hits on a cruiser, the communique said.

Heavy and medium Allied bombers attacked transport vehicles of the retreating Axis army in the Egyptian-Libyan border area, of Italian and German fighter patrolled the air over eastern Libya.

These fighters were engaged in an air battle over the German-occupied port of Tobruk and two enemy planes were shot down, the communique said.

Naval Units Engaged

The attack on the enemy naval units in the Mediterranean on the made Monday night and the same night bombers raided the Italian airdrome on the island of Sardinia.

Four British aircraft were reported lost in these operations.

Dispatches from the front said the greatest problem of the last few days was providing fighter plane bases in pace with the advancing army.

The tremendous task of collecting the thousands of prisoners left behind by Rommel on his headlong flight was progressing and clean-up squads were gathering up abandoned equipment from the field of battle.

For his triumph over Rommel the King promoted Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the 8th army, to rank of general and made him a Knight Commander of th Order of the Bath.

Sir Bernard's superior officer, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Middle east commander in chief, was promoted to the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath.

VIOLENT BATTLE NOW IN PROGRESS AROUND NALCHIK

Sinister Quiet, Which Has Enveloped Front For Past Three Days, Broken

VOLGA RIVER FROZEN

Moscow, Nov. 11 — (AP) — The sinister quiet which enveloped the long Russian front for three days was broken yesterday southeast of Nalchik where, the Soviet midday communique said, violent fighting was in progress throughout the day and 300 Germans were killed.

German infantry, part of the Nazi force in the Caucasus which has been stalled in its drive toward Ordzhonikidze, northern terminus of the Georgian Military Highway, attacked the Russian positions with tank support, the communique said. Twelve enemy tanks were reported disabled and nine others set on fire.

At Stalingrad, site of tremendous fighting and destruction in the last two months, the action was confined to artillery duels and light skirmishes within the city. In one sector inside the city a German infantry company tried to reach the Russian defence positions but was driven back with the loss of two platoons, the communique said.

Germans Soon Mopped Up

Northeast of Tuapse, where the Russians have built up the German advance toward this Black Sea naval base, groups of Germans penetrated Russian positions but were mopped up in the fighting which continued, the report.

The communique spoke of rifle and artillery fire on the western front in which 250 Germans were killed, but the action was not local.

The banks of the Volga river were frozen today and cakes and chunks of ice in the middle of the stream threatened to clog traffic which would greatly aid the defenders of Stalingrad.

The Stalingrad garrison has been supplied by a fleet of small boats operating during the night but when the Volga freezes over great loads of material can be carried across for the city.

Dispatches from the front said the German Air Force had turned its attention to the Soviet rear and was conducting bombing small villages and hamlets.

Allied Expedition Sweeps East Toward Germans in Tunisia

(BY WES GALLAGHER)

United States Correspondent with the A.E.F. in North Africa Allied Headquarters, North Africa, Nov. 11 — (AP)— All French North Africa, including Morocco, capitulated to the American expedition at 7 a.m. (2 a.m. E.D.T.) today.

The United States and British expedition was driving eastward at top speed from Algiers toward the Germans now in Tunisia.

American and British forces reached and occupied Bougie, 110 miles east of Algiers, early today.

(The capitulation does not include Tunisia and all indications were that there would be a clash there.)

Cessation of hostilities in Morocco and five days of the campaign meant the fall of Casablanca. Gen. Eisenhower had already disclosed that American troops were in Rabat, the Moroccan capital.

FIGHTING FRENCH GOV'T UNDER GIRAUD FORECAST

Selection for Leadership Due to His Fine Military Career

GREATLY LOVED

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Nov. 11 — (AP) — Appointment of Gen. Henri Honore Giraud as leader of the anti-Axis French in North Africa was regarded in authoritative quarters here today as foreshadowing potentially great political and diplomatic as well as military consequences.

It was considered possible, although much depends on the demeanor of the general, that Giraud is able to rally, that the creation of a new provisional government in which the United States would give formal recognition might be one of the ultimate results.

The primary reason for Giraud's

By WES GALLAGHER
U. S. Correspondent with the A. E. F. in North Africa.

Allied Headquarters in French North Africa, Nov. 11—(AP)—Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied Commander-in-Chief in North Africa, declared today that Rabat, the French capital of Morocco, is in American hands.

The declaration was made when Gen. Eisenhower ordered Maj.-Gen. George S. Patton, the American field commander on the Moroccan front, to place a wreath on the tomb of Marshal Lyautey, late founder of the French Empire, at Rabat.

Commemorating the 1918 Armistice Anniversary, the Allied commander offered a "solemn assurance that Morocco will remain French."

Japanese Hope of Nazi Assistance Dwindles With U.S. Landings in Africa

James D. White, who returned to the United States recently after a decade of reporting in the Far East, comments in this article on the difficult Japanese position in Asia in the light of the United Nations campaign to retake Burma by air, land and sea.

Barring possible thrusts in the form of protective holding operations, Japan now must concentrate on consolidating and holding what she has.

As Japan's defence of her vast new empire is tested, she may be expected to take more steps comparable to the seizure of the Andaman Islands. These might include attacks on Ceylon or the British-held Seychelle Islands in the Western Indian Ocean.

Similarly, the Japanese may institute air blitzes, especially if they think Russia is going to permit American planes and other forces to operate from there.

France Free to Defend Herself Since Armistice of 1940 is Broken

On the French Frontier, Nov. 11—(AP)—Marshal Petain declared today the French-German Armistice of 1940 broken by the entrance of German troops into the former unoccupied zone and, according to information from Vichy, that the said Chief of State left France free to defend herself.

Petain himself would remain in France, Vichy reports said, feeling that he had performed his task of guiding the nation so long as the armistice lasted.

He would not, however, interfere in any way with resistance by the French to the Germans.

Weygand has been quiescent since the Allied landing across the Barbary Coast, but he is known to be sympathetic to the Allied cause. His active aid of the United Nations now would carry tremendous weight.

Pierre Laval, heretofore strongly pro-Axis was reported by Vichy dispatches to have set events in motion in France by, at last, refusing a demand from Hitler — for an outright military tie-up with the Axis.

Petain had apparently become absolutely clear in his declaration that the occupation of all France was "incompatible" with the armistice convention, under which he had built his program of collaboration with Germany in the war after her 1940 defeat.

Information from Vichy said that the 66-year-old Marshal now simply withdrew from France, presumably to become a prisoner of the state, and let events take their course.

Statement among the French people, as relayed across the border, was that all France now is Germany.

Vichy had another report, given by an unconfirmed source, that French Alpine troops had fought with the Italians at the frontier.

German troops spreading over all France, and were reached Vichy this morning, but did not immediately enter the city.

Hitler's decision to occupy all of France, Vichy accounts said, followed the latter's refusal to

BRIGADE GIVEN TWO SHORT RUNS

The Belleville Fire Department was called out on two alarms within ten minutes of the other shortly before the surprise hour on Tuesday evening, both being for minor calls, as with little damage reported, in either case. The first call was for a chimney fire at 110 West Dundas Street, while the second alarm five minutes later from 203 Charles Street, where bedding was reported smouldering in a residence at that address. Firemen did not answer the second of the three alarms sounded in advance of the firemen's parade, as the fire was extinguished before any material damage resulted.

EARLY MAILING IS REQUESTED BY POST OFFICE

With a great volume of Christmas greeting cards and parcels now expected to be pouring into the public, the Post Office is again approaching the busiest season of the year, and postal authorities state the need for "Early Mailing" will be greater than ever before.

It is pointed out to business firms and to the general mailing public that it is to their mutual advantage that mailing should be well in advance of the rush period. It is suggested that merchants mail their Christmas advertising material early to enable customers to make their selections well in advance of the Christmas season.

Splendid co-operation was shown in the "Early Mailing" campaign for mail for the Overseas Armed Forces and every effort will be made to secure similar co-operation so that the domestic rush can be handled with the same satisfaction.

SOLDIERS PRESENTED WITH WRIST WATCHES

Two cousin members of the Canadian armed forces, Jack Frost and Douglas Hornbuckle, formerly of the Bonarlaw district, were distinctly honored recently when friends and neighbors presented them with wrist watches and purses as tokens of the high esteem with which they are held in the community.

Friends of the two boys, Clarence Wellman, Lloyd Bonter, Jack Eastwood and Carl Heath, presented the gifts with purses to the boys' wives they were home on leave from their training stations. Douglas Hornbuckle is taking basic training as a member of the R.C.N.V.R., Wellington, while Jack Frost is training as a despatch rider at Camp Borden.

EMPLOYEES HONORED BY CEMENT COMPANY

Tribute to twenty-five years' uninterrupted service with the Canada Cement Company was paid to two Point Anne residents on Monday evening when they were presented with gold watches on behalf of the company. The two men to receive the handsome watches were Mr. Fred Whitehead and Mr. "Nick" Maniak, the presentation being made in conjunction with the dinner held in the local safety Council Presidents medal to Mr. Stanley Bailey for lifesaving.

The presentation of the watches was made by Mr. J. H. G. Dempster, director of safety for the Canada Cement Company, who made the presentation on behalf of the presidents of the company.

ALL LEGAL OFFICES IN CITY OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY

Today being Armistice Day all local legal offices observed the holiday and were closed. Other Government offices in the Court House as well as elsewhere also were closed for the day. City banks remained open during the morning business period, but closed in the afternoon recognizing the conventional Wednesday half holiday.

COURT OF REVISION FOR VOTERS' LIST

The court of revision for the voters' list of the City of Belleville convened before His Honor, Judge Madden at Napanee here today. With the municipal elections scheduled to be held on the first Monday in December, voters seeking a civic franchise had to appear and state their qualifications at the City Hall today. J. Wilfred Holmes, city clerk, announced the list of applicants seeking to be placed on the municipal voters' list was the smallest in many years.

POLICE CIRCLES QUIET

Activity in and around city police circles was quiet and serene during the past 24 hours, no arrests being necessary. City authorities did investigate an attempt to break and enter the Trianon Ballroom late Tuesday afternoon when it was discovered that both holding the outer door had been pried open, but failed to force the door leading into the ballroom proper, despite the efforts of the would-be thieves.

Christ Church Men's Club Elects Officers

A most successful and enthusiastic "Early Mailing" campaign for mail for the Overseas Armed Forces and every effort will be made to secure similar co-operation so that the domestic rush can be handled with the same satisfaction.

At a meeting of the Christ Church Men's Club was held in the Parish Hall last evening, the first of the Fall series. Election of officers took place and various committees were formed.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

President—W. Kempston.
Vice President—E. Pidwell.
Secretary—A. Bubbs.
Treasurer—W. Wilder.

Mr. Kempston in a brief address spoke of plans for the coming year.

The guest speaker at the opening meeting augurs well for the success that it is to their mutual advantage that mailing should be well in advance of the rush period. It is suggested that merchants mail their Christmas advertising material early to enable customers to make their selections well in advance of the Christmas season.

Splendid co-operation was shown in the "Early Mailing" campaign for mail for the Overseas Armed Forces and every effort will be made to secure similar co-operation so that the domestic rush can be handled with the same satisfaction.

Municipal Band Heads Progress Reports Of Year's Activities

Closing one of the most successful years in its history, the Belleville Municipal Band Tuesday night listened to reports of the year and heard great reports and pay honor to several of its members.

Featuring the informal meeting and the band's regular Tuesday night rehearsal, was the presentation of a handsome silver gift to Bandsman Bill Church, who is one of the band's most recent bridge-players to receive promotion, the gift by E. Reg. Hinchey with a brief address of appreciation and best wishes of the entire organization. Bandsman Lynch, rather red of face, modestly stated that for once "I can say nothing but thanks."

Manager Hinchey presided and read the band and reviewed a year of "co-operation" and "success." He urged upon the members the importance of attendance at rehearsals and stressed the efforts and achievement made during the year by the interest in the band shown by its members.

The band was unanimous in a decision to secure an engraved Roll of Honor upon which will be placed the names of some thirty-five members who are now in the uniform of their country.

Brief addresses were given by Bandmaster Harry Insley, E. Reg. Hinchey, Bandmaster Fred Jobson, Lee Hugo, Bert Ayling and other members of the band. During the evening it was announced that the band will play a series of nine concerts during the coming winter season at the Capitol Theatre.

Following the meeting sandwiches, pickles, doughnuts and coffee were served by members of the board of directors.

Cumulative Total For Victory Loan Is $971,837,900

Ottawa, Nov. 11 —(CP)— The cumulative total of subscriptions to Canada's Third Victory Loan today reached $971,837,900 or more than $820,000,000 in excess of the minimum objective of the campaign — it was announced by National Loan Headquarters.

Today's figure was roughly $20,000,000 higher than the last previous cumulative total announced Sunday night, and returns are not yet complete.

It is unlikely that the final and proved total will be known before mid-December, today's statement from Loan Headquarters said.

"Returns have been received in from the armed forces overseas, and many more are coming in, but are yet to review their present figures in the light of delayed local reports of deposits and qualifications at the banks.

The total number of subscribers to the loan up to today was 1,826,-425.

The Third Victory Loan campaign for a total war savings objective of $750,000,000. The drive opened Oct 19 and closed last Saturday, Nov. 7, but the total was left open for the Wednesday following closing of the campaign.

At that time in the Second Victory Loan last February, total subscriptions were $827,969,100 from 1,506,611 subscribers. But there were conversions of more than $150,000,000 last time and there were none in the Third Victory Loan.

THOMAS VINCENT BARRY (Quesnboro)

Madoc, Nov. 11—(Special)—The funeral of Thomas Vincent Barry took place from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barry Barry, at Queensboro, on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 4th, to St. Paul's Church, Queensboro, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father F. D. Hyland, who also said the committal prayers at the Catholic section of Queensboro Cemetery, Queensboro.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Michael Barry, Francis Barry, James Barry, Richard Barry, Leo Barry, all of whom are brothers of the deceased, and Joseph Barry, a cousin.

The late Thomas Vincent Barry died on Monday, Nov. 9th, after an illness of two months' duration at the age of twenty-three years, nine months and five days. He was born in Queensboro, and all his life was passed in that village. He was held in high regard by many friends in the village and district and to them his death was received with much regret. He was engaged in farming with his father. He took part in sports and at one time played baseball in the Queensboro junior team. In religion he was a devout member of St. Henry's Church, Queensboro. Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barry Barry, Queensboro, he is survived by four brothers, Michael, Francis, James Barry, Peterboro; Francis Barry, Queensboro; Bernard Barry, Queensboro; and Kevin Barry, Queensboro.

LATE HENRY W. DONNELLY

The funeral of Henry William Donnelly took place from his late residence, 194 Pinnacle Street, on Tuesday afternoon. The service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. J. A. Ellis, minister of Bridge Street United Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Douglas Hall, Ernest Hall, Percy Thompson, Harry Green, Fred Mossington and B. McMurray.

JOHN KEOGH (Black Creek)

Picton, Nov. 11—(Special)—The death occurred suddenly at his home at Black Creek, P.E.C., on Sunday evening, Nov. 8th, of John Keogh in his 84th year. The deceased had been ill for a week in P.E.G. Hospital. He was brought to his home on that day. He was born by the shores of Lake Ontario and the late Michael Keogh and his wife, Ally Keogh, who had spent his entire life here. He is survived by two brothers, George at Woodlawn and Eugene at Black Creek. He was a member of St. Gregory's Church where Requiem Mass will be sung by Rev. Father J. A. Mc-Hugh, P.P., after which there will be interment in the family plot in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

LATE RICHARD VIVIAN

Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 10th, the funeral of Richard Vivian took place from his late residence, 159 Foster Avenue. The service in the home was conducted by Rev. Dr. James Semple, minister of Bridge Street United Church.

Interment was in Shannonville Cemetery and the service at the graveside was conducted by Rev. Rev. A. W. Lochead, minister of the Shannonville United Church.

The late Mr. Vivian was a member of the Belleville Lodge A.F. & A. M. No. 123 and the last rites of the Order were conducted at the graveside by Bro. H. J. Clarke, assisted by Wor. Bros. J. W. Cook.

The bearers were members of the Masonic Order and were as follows: Bros. Fred Fletcher, Bro. John Exley and Bro. M. Parry.

"Play Values" Theme of Talk By Ed. Shortt

The monthly meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Club held Tuesday evening in the school auditorium was enjoyable and instructive, Mrs. Mitchell presided, and the meeting was opened with "O Canada" followed by the minutes and reports of several committee the attendance per cent. Mrs. Mitchell was taken and Miss Lockhart's room won. Miss Ethel Smith, accompanied the singing, and "A White Christmas," and also an encore composed by herself. The address of the evening was delivered by Ed. Shortt of the Y.M.C.A. on "play values." Mr. Shortt emphasized the value of supervised play as a supplement to school work to develop skill, rapid decisions, alertness and a sportsmanlike spirit as well as providing healthful exercise and mental relaxation. He finds injurious results from lack of play, resulting in many movies. After the meeting closed with the National Anthem the school safety group games led by Mr. Shortt and everyone had a good time. The mothers of Miss Lockhart's pupils provided hot cocoa.

Calls on French To Join Forces Of Fighting French

London, Nov. 11—(CP)—Gen. Charles De Gaulle called on the French people today to join the fighting French forces.

"Within the few hours which still are left to you to come, it is your duty to take your place by the side of the Allies," the fighting French leader said in a broadcast over BBC.

"Refuse the humiliations, officers, soldiers, airmen, with your colors, your ships, your army, hasten to join the Free French forces. Do not leave your arms in the hands of the enemy. Victory is certain. Come and join in it."

RemembranceDay At Kiwanis Club Fittingly Honored

Members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, at their regular weekly luncheon on Tuesday, paid tribute to fallen heroes of the First Great War, and also those who have made the supreme sacrifice in the present conflict, as they observed two minutes' silence in observance of Remembrance Day.

Guest speaker for the luncheon was Arthur Wesley, local head of the Sea Cadet Corps, who spoke briefly to the Kiwanians on "Canada's Navy and Canada's Merchant Navy League." At the close of his address Mr. Wesley left Kiwanians to assistance in carrying on the work of the Navy League and also told of plans for the Sea Cadets in local sea cadets.

Mr. Wesley told that the Navy League was founded shortly after the battle of Trafalgar. It extended to Canada in 1903, where the patron is always the Governor General, the hold of the Navy League is the work the Navy League is doing in providing comforts for the men in the navy and members of the merchant marine.

"The present war began finding Canada very poor many months unprepared," Mr. Wesley. "Then Canada had only four destroyers and a comparatively small personnel. Today we have a navy permanent force of 10,000 officers and ranks of members of the merchant marine."

Hostels Open to All

Expansion of navy personnel made it necessary for an equitable expansion of the navy league, the organization now operating 16 hostels in Canadian seaports and serving 1,500,000 men per year. These hostels are open to all navy and airforce men stationed in their particular district, and are also open to all proceeding overseas.

Administration costs of the Navy League are borne by the Canadian government, but this represents only a small portion of the total expenditure. Approximately 85 per cent of the Navy League's funds come from contributions, according to Mr. Wesley.

The speaker paid splendid tribute to the work done by the various women's auxiliaries of the organization, ditty bags for sailors and then of the merchant navy. Belleville's quota was 900 ditty bags, he stated, with 300 of these being already shipped.

Every Man Deserving

"Every man in the navy or in the merchant marine is deserving of a ditty bag for his personal needs," Mr. Wesley, "In braving the piercing cold and ice of the Atlantic in winter time, he is entitled to extra clothing and comforts." He said special thought for the men of the merchant marine, stating they were under no obligation to sail with their boats or go out on the next voyage. "They can quit any time," he said, "but they don't and do not quit."

Mr. Wesley referred briefly to the local unit of Sea Cadets and spoke of the splendid training given. He claimed the boys were taught to think quickly and to act quickly and are also trained in citizenship. "It's the proud boast of the Navy League, that no cadet has ever been in a criminal court," he said.

An appeal was made by Kiwanians to assist in an administrative capacity in the training of the local unit. The unit's commanding officer Rev. R. R. Foreman is shortly to leave Belleville and more officers are needed. "England expects every man to do his duty," quoted Mr. Wesley in conclusion. "Let us not fail."

Committee Reports

In the report of the Agricultural Committee headed by Ivan Thompson, it was revealed that the club's poultry project had realized 1,622 pounds of chicken, which has all been sold at prices ranging from 28 cents per lb. to 32 cents per lb. the proceeds being $361.77.

President J. Trueman paid artistic to the members of the club who had assisted in putting the local Victory Loan drive "over the top", making special mention of Mr. James Barclay, general chairman. Guest speaker, Mr. Wesley was introduced by Fred Lewis, with the Kiwanian appreciation being expressed by George Lee. Harold Carruthers acted as song leader, with Leo Riggs at the piano. A. B. Collins acted as organization chairman.

Remembrance Day 1942

The fourth Remembrance Day of this war is observed with less ceremony than previous Remembrance Days. At 11 o'clock today wheels kept on turning, and there was no break in the flow of arms from the assembly lines. And it is right that we should observe this day as a people at work.

This time many Canadians are thinking more deeply than before. They may recall the losses of the last war, but realize the world they gave their lives for—a world which is in the hands of the very citizen to build. In building depends in the last resort not on the declarations of statesmen and the programs of economists, but on the spirit of the ordinary citizen today and work-bench, office, farm or home. Then alone total victory must be won, no less than on the firing line, over every force that divides or weakens the nation. The way he pulls together with his boss, his subordinates, the man who works with him, or his wife and children, on which depends how nation will pull together with nation in prosperity.

Nations have gone down because their people practised the theoretical lip observance or the platitudes, but who were not without the foundations for them in their own daily lives. This observance of the two minutes of silence today, our determination should be spurred by the sobering thought that we have already had one chance to build a new world—bought with the sacrifice of a million lives. As each of us accepts this responsibility as his own — then will we be accepting the true spirit of Remembrance Day.

THE WAR TODAY

By GLENN BABB
Associated Press Staff Writer

It was not to be expected that Hitler would take the move into North Africa lying down. His counter-attack was enough that he would set with lightning speed, utter ruthlessness and military disregard for any covenants that might stand in his way. With Rommel's tanks and the British and American armies moving rapidly toward occupation of the entire northern coast, with the danger to the enslaved Europe ever growing.

So today, when the United Nations celebrate the fourth anniversary of the first armistice of Compiegne Forest, the Nazi Fuehrer tears up the second armistice dictated in that tragic, historic woodland and sends his legions swarming toward the Mediterranean.

His empires will receive this triply-Hitlerian stroke without either surprise or indignation. The world has long since ceased to be indignation over anything Hitler can do.

And the High Command which prepared with such foresight and preparation and such magnificence the campaign now moving toward landing on France's northern shores, success in North Africa undoubtedly have foreseen the Nazi seizure of the rest of continental France and made plans to meet it.

The pretext the Fuehrer offers in his proclamation for that attack—that he knew the Allies were preparing to move next against Corsica and perhaps France — probably was his own invention, but Allied leaders knew that the fact that the North African campaign is merely the prelude to campaigns to achieve the liberation of France and all Europe.

The significance of the march to Marseille is too vast to be grasped fully in the first few hours. But a few facts stand out.

This time it is not Hitler that has moved first. The strategic initiative lies with the increasingly-formidable combination which is setting about his destruction.

The campaign of North Africa become immediately the campaign for the whole Mediterranean. Hitler will fight desperately for that key to victory.

One consequence of this is that there has been opened a second front that should satisfy Joseph Stalin as completely as any Allied front has done.

PO. G. Beurling Given Respite From Receptions

Verdun, Que., Nov. 11—(CP)—After two hectic days since his return to Canada, P.O. George Beurling is getting a little rest today with his family. Beurling, winner of the D.F.C. and Bar, D.F.M. and D.F. M. and Bar, is home on furlough from his station in Malta.

Verdun, in Canada was climaxed by a monster parade and demonstration, yesterday during which the lean, blond youngster squirmed and twisted in his seat as his fellow citizens paid him tribute. When it was over, the 20-year-old flying ace rose to his feet and stammered out a shaky "thank you."

Beurling arrived in Ottawa Monday night by air from London, and after a welcome by Prime Minister King he came on to Montreal and his home in Verdun yesterday.

Large crowds milled along the route of the parade leading from the city square to Montreal Montreal to the auditorium, a distance of 3 1-2 miles. Deep-throated cheers filled the air as the cars passed through the streets.

At the auditorium, more than 8,000 were out to view the demonstration and add their plaudits to those already paid Beurling. Leaders, sailors and airmen joined in the show, while bands offered their musical salute to the airmen hero.

Twenty-nine roses—one for each one of the kills claimed to his credit—were given to him by an equal number of comely girls from the Verdun High School. When this part of the ceremony was finished he shifted over to his mother who was standing nearby and gave her the flowers.

Addresses of welcome were made by Edward Wilson, Verdun's mayor; Air Commodore Robert De Niverville, Officer Commanding No. 9 training Command, and Lt.-Colonel Quebec Chairman of the War Finance Committee and Hon. E. L. Bourassie, a member of the committee.

Mediterranean Map Reveals Great Allied Offensive To Knock The Axis Out Of Africa

'STRICTLY FUN' SAYS BEURLING OF AIR BATTLES

Likes to Knock Them Down So That Pilots Cannot Bail Out

NO HANGING AROUND

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, Nov. 11 (CP) — Malta's confident one-man counter-blitz from Verdun, Pte. George Beurling, coolly handed out recipes for sudden death, to his home town newsmen here Tuesday, while a tailor, waiting to fit him out, stood in the background.

Dressed in Royal Air Force action dress and looking out of icy blue eyes used to spotting enemy planes before they sight him, the much-decorated Royal Air Force ace said he grew little fear of the death which spat from his vicious guns.

"It's strictly fun for me," he said. "There seemed to be more action available in Malta so I volunteered for there, I like to knock them down and the only question that ever flashes across my mind is whether they'll be blown or fried." He explained this phrase-ology meant whether the enemy plane would be blown up or burned. He added that only two of his 26 1-3 score had got away by parachute.

He didn't feel any sympathy for the pilots he shot down. He had seen the destruction they had wrought in British and Malta. The last was the action of dipping in salute of a crippled enemy is apparently out. "If you hang around you get it in the neck yourself," he said briefly.

On the way back from Malta to take part in Canada's Victory Loan drive, his transport crashed at Gibraltar. He escaped with only minor injuries but 15 fellow passengers were killed. His left leg is encased because of a heel injury suffered in the only time he was shot down at Malta.

Tuesday night, after landing at Ottawa, he was greeted by Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Tuesday he took back to Montreal and Verdun where as a boy of 13 he read of pilots of the First Great War butil model planes and decided that some day I would become a fighter pilot."

Flier Prettier Up

With the city fathers of his native Verdun feting him in a parade and reception it was decided the hero, who is far from clothes conscious, should be properly togged up.

While George blanked under the glare of flash bulbs and in a close-clipped, decisive way answered questions, a little tailor, wreathed with a long measuring tape, stood in the background.

When George, disappointed at being turned down for the R. C. A. F. set out on a cattle boat 2 1-2 years ago to join the R. A. F. he weighed 175 pounds. Lithe and with his cheekbone showing, he now weighs but 150. Mother may be worried about my loss of weight but I keep telling her I'm in fighting trim and I have to watch my diet if I want to continue doing a good job."

Most of his action at Malta is in the morning and he usually goes aloft with but a small glass of orange juice as his breakfast. "If you want to be a successful pilot you got to train down fine and stay that way."

George deliberately doesn't make close friends. He had acquaintances at Malta "but no one who was a close friend. I don't keep to myself, although the books on flying I've been writing took up a lot of my time, but I try not to get too close to the guys. I figure if you lose a close friend in battle it may affect you and you may lose your efficiency. I don't want to become less efficient."

What was he going to do after the war? The answer came quickly. "I'm going to dig up another war." Well-supposed this was settled everything. But there was a general peace? "I'd like to get in transport, you know the life suit, say from Natival here to London, or something like that." He doesn't like bombers, refers to them as "heavy trucks" and no fun" but he'd be "tempted" to pilot one of a transport "if no more was showing."

Girls? No Bones

During the interview he snapped back his answers at the 50 newsmen without a flicker of the eye-lid. And only once did he smile and that was when someone said: "Well, George suppose you're kind of glad to get home."

A broad grin spread across his face and he answered: "I'm so darn glad to be home, more glad than I can say." Then he paused and added quickly, "but of course I want to get back as soon as I can. I hate to think of missing the action."

This 21-year-old son, his chest laden with the D. S. O., D. F. C. and D. F. M. and Bar said Italian foes were as good if not better than Germans in combat. Perhaps this was because they had confidence in as good as Spitfires, perhaps it was because of confidence in their stunting ability. Or maybe they show dash and courage that I've seen lacking in many German fliers," he added.

He said the German in his Messerschmitt 109 was dangerous when he was in strength. "They are very crafty and cunning; they dive in for the kill when the odds are all in their favor; they never take chances and you have to watch them closely."

Which were the most dangerous foes. George smiled again and then shrugged again and then said simply: "They both go up nicely."

The black-haired pilot said he always took a glance at the available barges before shooting the one he wanted to shoot down. "I can tell by the way the enemy planes in being handled whether the pilot is good, bad or indifferent." He didn't say which target he chose.

Gulf of Tunisia Prize at Stake In N. Africa

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Speedy expansion eastward of American foothold in French North Africa seems essential to the success of Allied grand strategy that the Mediterranean. Therefore reports from Vichy Yesterday that the march on Algiers was already in progress were credible even before confirmation was available from London or Washington.

A delay for any reason which permitted Axis intervention between the American and British forces in Africa could prove costly. It cannot be doubted, therefore, that General Eisenhower's major concern at the moment is to reach communicating points on the shores of the Gulf of Tunis without a moment's delay.

That broad and deep indentation in the African coast, embraced by Cape Blanco on the west and Cape Bon on the east, is of critical importance. The short route to it is down the coastal highway from Algiers to Bizerta, a distance of some 400 miles. An alternative route via the Casablanca-Tunis Trunk Railway lies an average distance of fifty to seventy-five miles inshore.

Critical Dash Likely

Bizerta is the French naval base in Tunisia. It lies far southeastward of Cape Bon at the western portal of the Gulf of Tunis, approximately 120 miles from the western tip of Sicily and about the same distance south of the big Italian island of Sardinia. Bombers of the British Cairo Command have already been striking at Cagliari on the south coast of Sardinia in operations synchronized with American operations in Algiers.

There seems no doubt that any Axis counter move in the Western Mediterranean aimed at preventing a British-American junction in Africa must be pointed at Bizerta and the Gulf of Tunis. Cape Bon, eastern portal of the gulf, is less than 100 miles from the Sicilian coast. If an Axis attempt to throw troops ashore in Tunisia to help the Allied design is in progress or impending, as a reported Hitler-Mussolini-Laval conference at Rome suggests, a critical clash is likely to come to a head swiftly in Northern Tunisia. Control of the Gulf of Tunis must be the prize sought.

For that reason, one must take with a grain of salt the reports from Vichy that American troops are already surging southeastward from Algiers in an effort to bypass Tunisia, to reach Italian Libya and the capital, Tripoli, and thus to menace Rommel's retreating army in Eastern Libya from the rear. They well may be pushing in that direction toward Sou Saada, 130 miles inland from captured Algiers, but control and use of the Algiers-Tunis Trunk Line French North African Trunk Line probable objective. It would give Eisenhower an interior route, paralleling the coastal highway, along which to speed his forces swiftly eastward into Tunisia.

It appears possible that further American landing operations on the Mediterranean coast at Philippeville, half-way between Algiers and Bizerte, are in progress. With air power based on Algiers, and with British-American naval forces sheltering any coastal advance from Axis air or sea attack, it would seem to be possible to extend the American thrust eastward to the Tunisian hump at a rapid pace. Air speed is vitally essential.

An accompanying Eastern Algeria ward drive along the Algiers-Tunis Railway to cut Vichy French defenders of coastal positions off from the rear would enhance the prospects of seizing the Tunisian hump quickly. Once that bridgehead across the narrow Mediterranean waistline was secured against enemy use, the business of moving on from Tunisia into Western Libya to meet the advancing British, and completing the entrapment and destruction of Axis forces in Africa could proceed.

That is a distant objective, however, while quick seizure of the Northern Tunisian promontory to protect his flank would appear to be an immediate necessity for General Eisenhower. Slow quickly it can be accomplished must depend very largely upon the degree of French resistance encountered in the coastal advance. French warcraft and coastal defenses have presented the most serious opposition to the American occupation. However, with Admiral Darlan in American "custody" in North Africa, it seems possible that the backbone of French naval resistance will soon be broken.

Capable of supporting a weight of half a ton although it weighs only 160 pounds, a raft asserted to be stark proof and unsinkable has been developed in Queensland from coir.

Equipped with a flashlight battery and bulb and being adjustable to focus, a microscope has been devised for inspection of photomicrograph record grooves for quality and depth.

Wardroom Gossip

(By ALAN RANDAL)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A Port in Northern Ireland, Nov. 11 (CP) Wardroom gossip in the Royal Canadian navy:

Like Canadian airmen, men of the Royal Canadian Navy are coming up with colorful insignia for their ships. One of the best is up on the gunshield of the Corvette commanded by Lieut. Tony Griffin of Hamilton and Toronto—a Grim-Lumber-Jjet. Soon to go on is the name of the baby daughter of Lieut. Gordon Southam of Ottawa and Vancouver. She was christened in the bay. Southam is gunnery officer aboard. One of his jobs when the ship is in port here is to conduct night lookout classes.

That means putting the boys in a dark room and showing them dim outlines of ships to see how well they can recognize them. The usual during periods in port for officers is to conduct classes of instruction.

Lieut. Henry Winnett, engineer officer on a destroyer, has been a navy man for 24 years. He comes from London, Ont., and served eight years with the R.C.N. Now his craft, carriers and battleships. Chief doctor is Surgeon Lieut. John Cameron of Toronto, soon to have a beard as bushy as any of them.

You find old hands on these Canadian destroyers. PO. Edward Hall of Victoria, semi-lost the navy at Esquimalt from school sight years ago. Now, as chief seaman, he looks after the men under the direction of the ship's first lieutenant. PO. Herb Cameron of Halifax, captain of the Fox'le, has 12 years in the Canadian navy and bosses about twenty hands while PO. Lionel Grenke, Halifax, carrying the stripes of thirteen years service, does all the buying of food ashore for officers.

Remembrance Day

Remembrance Day has returned with its thoughts of the service and the sacrifice of those who served in the world struggle of a quarter of a century ago and have served in this second war against aggression and tyranny. The war that was won by the end of 1918 did not bring an enduring peace and the battle has had to be taken up again as the aggressors have challenged the rights of nations and races to live and threatened to destroy civilization.

Events of the past two weeks have given indications that the tide has turned and that those who have put on the armor of their country to save the world and humanity and the principles of law and order and justice are carrying the conflict the way that is leading to victory. With powerful armaments, with resolution and determination the democratic world fights to make the next armistice when it comes carry a peace that will last and be the abiding memorial of all the effort, suffering and sacrifice which have come and are still to come as a result of this most global of all wars, the one most marked in history in that the enemy has championed everything that is evil and come as a destroyer of organized society and institutions while to the freedom-loving democratic peoples has come the task of crushing this monstrous Axis evil.

Thinking of the sacrifices and of the sorrows of these two struggles the people of the United Nations are called to reconsecration. The torch is still carried. The new and women of 1942 cannot fail to achieve for victory and for the peace that will endure.

"Mrs. Miniver"

Life of a family in rural England has been given unique portrayal in "Mrs. Miniver," one of the greatest of pictures. It does not depict war as it is usually presented, but it gets at the experience of the present struggle through the souls of this Miniver family of a mother, father, a young son who joins the R.A.F., and two younger children, another group "to the manor born," the romance of a young couple, and the people of the community. It avoids the sensational and purely melodramatic to depict the ages of life and life in relation to the characters. It accordingly goes beyond mere entertainment. It is powerful in its grip upon the imagination through the characters. It is in these that the interest lies rather than in war scenes, though there are war scenes, which are felt not only through the eye but through the soul. This picture shows personality caught in the sweep of war but triumphant over war and its tragedies. So noble is the conception of human life it depicts.

Mrs. Miniver stands for the motherhood and home life of Britain. Around her are gathered the intense emotions which give this picture so powerful an appeal and lesson. It is a great tribute to the civilian warriors of England, to their heroism and courage.

One of the great scenes is set in the shelter in which the whole family with the mother and father as they watch their two small children as bombs fall and white and explosions rock the shelter, spilling packages from shelves, while the cat placidly licks its paws and the children cry and then the little boy says, "they almost killed us that time eh, Mommie."

Another scene is placed in the wreckage of the little church, the minister saying from the temporary pulpit in the ruined chancel, "This is not only a war of soldiers in uniform, it is a war of the people, and it must be fought, not only on the battlefield, but in the cities and in the villages, in the factories and on the farms, in the home and in the hearts of every man, woman and child that loves freedom! . . . This is the people's war! It is our war! We are the fighters! Fight it then! Fight it with all that is in us! And may God defend the right!"

The picture heartens and strengthens that there are such noble people as fill these scenes. It contains sweat, tears, tragedy, but also dauntless courage and fortitude. Its scenes are rich in beauty, the acting is flawless, the actors seeming the very expression of the life of the Miniver and their neighbors.

MARCH OF FREEDOM

Forward, valiant Freemen,
Marching in God's might,
Bearing banner blazoned:
"Liberty and Light."
Men of every nation,
Welded into one,
Brothers marching onward,
Till our work is done.

Truth our only weapon,
God our only guide;
We are His crusaders
Marching side by side.
Justice for our helmet,
Honor for our shield,
Clad in truth's own armor
None can make us yield.

Onward, valiant Freemen,
Girded with God's might,
We are now enlisted
Warriors for the right,
We will labor daily,
Never will we cease
Till all men are banded
In universal peace.

—Grenville Kleiser.

CHRISTMAS CARDS IN ENGLAND

Impressive testimony on the value of the greeting card in war-time comes from Great Britain where Christmas cards came in vogue a hundred years ago.

Paper in the British Isles is strictly rationed, however the Ministry of Supply has allowed stocks of paper in publishers' hands to be used for the manufacture of cards for 1942, and in addition, has allowed the use of a new type of paper for the making of greeting cards.

Sir Andrew Duncan, head of the Ministry of Supply, in making the announcement stated: "Greeting cards are essential to the war effort. People are living under a great strain, and many of them are unable to collect their thoughts and express their feelings in a letter, but in a tray of greeting cards, with sentiments already printed on them they find words which exactly express what they feel in their hearts."

THE WINE OF REIMS MOUNTAINS

Bad news comes from the Mountain of Reims and from Epernay and Chaons, says an American writer.

There is mildew in the vineyards which produce champagne grapes. We can guess the reason for the mildew. How could good vines grow in the presence of what has come across the Rhine? How could the soul of the revered Dom Perignon, who died two centuries ago, know the wines of Champagne could be made to keep their sparkle, be at ease in Paradise? The evil that his cows over the land he loved would distress him when there. He would return the wine became it stood for sunshine, for the happiness of a skilled and hard-working people, and for freedom. Does the sun shine over the Mountain of Reims today? How could it shine the needed hundred days in any season?

Fifteen million bottles are this year's output—half the estabished normal. Though much more fierce what the vineyards produced after the Germans had been beaten back twenty-four years ago. Germany, says a Vichy dispatch "has become the world's largest champagne-drinking country." It may be fittingly so. Let the Nazis drink to forget the Russian front. Let them drink to forget that though the mildew of God grind slowly they grind exceedingly small.

Let them drink champagne while they can. If they were to win they would not have it long, for they are too gross to produce it themselves and would be helpless to maintain the needed taste and delicacy in their slaves. If they lose they will not have champagne, either, but another and a bitterer drink.

ARMISTICE DAY — 1918

We shouted: "It is over! Done
the anguish and the pain,
Done the killing and the dying!
War will never strike again!
And we turned to celebration, danced and sang the hours
away,
But again the cannons thunder and once more for peace we pray.

We who cheered can still remember we were promised war would cease,
They would find with pacts and pledges ways to give us lasting peace,

But old hatreds still continued.
Scarce our cheers had died
away
Ere they'd started plotting, planning for the war we face today.

Will it be again, I wonder? Will the same old hates remain?
Will another generation have to go to war again
When this ghastly strife is ended and the world is free at last made
Mankind be free from terror or forever be afraid.

Co-operation With Private Enterprise In Housing Plan

Ottawa, Nov. 10 (CP)—Representatives of a group of industrial and municipal associations today had an informal discussion with officials of Mows that private interprise will play a large part in carrying out his department in a planned housing programme.

The Minister told the delegation yesterday that it was not the desire of his government to take over or bring if private enterprise could meet the situation.

Priorities for small housing projects to meet needs of war workers could be facilitated by private enterprise clubbing together or incorporating companies for construction of housing units.

J. M. Macdonnell, Toronto, was spokesman for the delegation and pointed out that the only way was the extension of wartime housing to the permanent housing field was unreasonable and unintended.

Heme Owners' Associations

Representatives of associations of Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa urged that the Government be considering to provide houses if given priority concessions similar to those given to war industries.

It was also suggested that the finance department should extend the 50-per-cent loan preference unless they were next to impossible. He also suggested that a $2,500 instead of $3,000 limit be placed on N.H.A. loans.

Clark, Deputy Finance Minister, who attended the conference said he would discuss the suggestion with Finance Minister Ilsley.

Difficult for Japs To Put Reinforcements On Guadalcanal

Washington, Nov. 10 —(AP)— LL-Gen. Thomas Holcomb, United States Marine Commandant, reported today that "things are shaping up" so that it will be increasingly difficult for Japanese to put reinforcements on Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons.

Gen. Holcomb, just returned from a visit to the battle zone in the South Pacific, said the original objective Guadalcanal and the rest of the Solomons to begin the first offensive of the war, is still on fresh-down duty there.

Holcomb said the Japanese had been pouring reinforcements into Guadalcanal at the rate of 900 every other day but that things are now shaping up so that there will be more interruptions to these reinforcements.

He put the number of enemy troops shot down in the air combat on Guadalcanal by Oct. 23, when he left there after a visit, at 320, a ratio of nearly five to one in comparison to American losses.

The End of the Beginning

New York, Nov. 11 — "It is not the end, nor even the beginning of the end, but the end of the beginning." Winston Churchill, Nov. 10.

In the last few days the whole political and military picture has changed.

Since the coup in North Africa was carried out with brilliant speed, skill and daring, and astonishing collaboration between Britain and the United States land, sea and air forces, we may assume that we shall soon have occupied the whole of Northern Africa.

By that the military outlook is fundamentally different from what it was a week ago.

Until the event speculation on a second front largely centred around the Channel ports, and, if enlarged, still confined between Norway and the Bay of Biscay.

Against this speculation two arguments were advanced: First, that we did not have sufficient shipping, and, second, that the coastal defences of the Germans were too strong.

Concerning the matter of shipping the situation has been clarified. We did have enough shipping and we shall now have much more, because we are greatly shortening our communication lines. We shall no longer need to sail around the Cape of Good Hope to the Near East, and that saves some 10,000 miles. By the shorter way from the United Kingdom, now open to us, we may save some 14,000,000 tons of shipping for other purposes.

Outlook is Changed

The argument about the strength of German coastal defences still holds good. But the outlook has been changed. For from now on speculation about the invasion of Europe will range between the shores of the Gulf of Biscay, and, additionally, the southern frontiers of Italy and the Balkans. And the Southern European coastal defences are very weak.

So our North African victory forces Hitler to divide his already sizable number of troops, along all the length of the European coast. He has the choice either to weaken his forces assembled at the Channel coast or to weaken those in the south of France.

Priorities for small housing projects to meet needs of war workers could be facilitated by private enterprise clubbing together or incorporating companies for construction of housing units.

J. M. Macdonnell, Toronto, was spokesman for the delegation and pointed out that the only way was the extension of wartime housing to the permanent housing field was unreasonable and unintended.

Havana, Nov. 10 (AP). — Heinz August Luning, described at the time of his arrest last February as one of the most important German spies in America, was executed today for sending radio and code letter reports on the movement of allied ships.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

The question may be raised: Are we not scattering our forces in occupying so large a territory as North-ern Africa? But that contrary is true. By destroying the Rommel army the Britain have freed their Eighth Army in Africa for other purposes. And with the occupation of French North Africa is finished it seems as if General Giraud will be able to build up a new French army, added to our forces instead of using them for occupation purposes.

And, of course, the political consequences are enormous. The German people must be recalling the old prophecies of the last war: That the American can't swim; that they are not a soldierly nation; that they are unprepared; that they will come too late—all of which slogans have been completely upset by the facts.

As a consequence, the whole New Order of Hitler in Europe totters. The disintegration of his New Order in France is tremendous. We have not yet learned in detail of Italy, though we do not know how he intends to get from France to Africa. We do now know what Darlan is up to in the custody of Britain and America. Darlan is doing that was based on Toulon? It has not yet escaped battle. As for Laval, he is finished, whatever he does—and what Frenchman wishes to emulate Mussolini?—whatever Crisis Will Spread.

The political crisis will spread—for instance, to the Balkans. Some of the leaders of Sweden like Turkish President, Inonu, made a sensational speech stating that the Germans had lost the war in Russia. And he said it with an accent against Hitler, not against the Allies.

As for Italy, the Rome radio cannot suppress reports of political perturbation, while the people remain in a state of confusion at the desertion of the Italian forces by the German in the retreat.

Hitler said (in a speech today), "I never will flee." So he is at least thinking about it. Just where would he flee to? one asks. Holland, like Old Kaiser? Germany, like Hitler? Stay right where you are. It will take quite a time yet, but the cops are coming.

EXTRATERRITORIALITY

The United States has at last made a voluntary move to give up extra-territorial rights in China.

Extraterritoriality, also called consular jurisdiction, is the arrangement by which a foreign country is allowed by a system whereby its subjects living or travelling in another are exempted from the jurisdiction of local courts and persons, and are tried in their own courts.

At the time the United States had extraterritorial rights in Japan, Thailand and other countries as well as in China.

Europeans, too, had these extraterritorial rights in the Orient because of ineffective national governments, different laws and diverse social, moral and religious standards.

Extraterritoriality was really originally an application of the old practice of granting diplomats certain legal privileges in the countries where they happened to be stationed.

With the development of nationalism, Oriental nations began to resent the existence of extra-territorial rights of Europeans and to agitate for their abolition on the ground that such exemptions and privileges were a limitation on sovereignty.

The Western powers gave up their special privileges in Japan about 1892 and in Thailand thereafter.

When China entered the first World War she revoked the extra-territorial rights of Germany and Austria-Hungary, and Russia at that time voluntarily abandoned her special privileges in China.

In 1901-1903 the United States, Britain, Japan and the European powers drew up their extraterritorial rights in China as soon as they considered that all extra-territorial rights in China be abolished on condition that China should make certain reforms in her courts.

The present negotiations are expected to result in the complete abolition of extraterritoriality in China so far as the United Nations now have the power to do so. This action, however, is a step taken late enough for the nation that has for years been the most consistent and resisted Japan and whose leader is commander-in-chief of the United Nations' forces in the Orient.

ARMISTICE DAY PASSES QUIETLY

Gov't. Requested That No Large Services be Held

London, Nov. 11. (CP)—Britons generally let Armistice Day pass unobserved, but for the Fighting French it was a day of new pain and new grief.

The King cancelled the usual services at the cenotaph but went in person, accompanied by the Queen, to lay a wreath of poppies at the cenotaph. He observed the two minutes of silence. At his business office at Buckingham Palace, The King personally requested that no large services be held.

Short services were being held at St. Paul's Cathedral and the Unknown Soldier's Tomb in Westminster Abbey.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. William Temple, ended a broadcast last night that all who could should observe at 11 a.m. and "remember and resolve". The customary two-minute pause, however, was not being signalled.

The Fighting French organization in London had asked the people of the homeland to share the day with a hush and a prayer. Frenchmen who then numbered 1,000 had been asked to avoid provoking the gestapo and the police, but to do honor to the dead of that First Great War at various memorials.

No Unescaped Zone

Today there was no unoccupied zone. The German army was moving into the provinces of that part of France called free.

The Moscow radio reported that pro-Allied demonstrations had broken out yesterday at Toulon, the home of what is left of the Vichy French fleet. Partisans, it was reported, were shouting "Down with the Hitlerites" as the news of the Anglo-American landings in French North Africa raised new hopes of liberation.

In London, the Fighting French planned to hold a rally in the big Albert Hall with Gen. Charles De Gaulle their leader, as the principal speaker. They also planned a Fighting French troops and Frenchmen from throughout the French Empire planned to attend.

No General Observance Of Armistice Day Here

There was no school holiday in the city and county today but pupil s and teachers observed Remembrance Day with appropriate programs at eleven o'clock in the morning.

Twenty-four years after the signing of the armistice that ended the last war, saw a city throbbing with another wartime activity. Factories producing the sinews of war did not pause in their production activities. Business went on as usual with the exception of some few of the last war under the auspices of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Belleville Branch, will pay tribute to their comrades of the last war who lie in foreign fields, and those of the present war who have paid the supreme sacrifice at the Cenotaph service at the Cenotaph at 7.30 tonight.

F.D.R. Forecasts Nazis and Japs Face Destruction

Washington, Nov. 11. (AP)—President Roosevelt, honoring the dead of past wars on this Armistice Day, declared at Arlington National Cemetery today that the United States and its "appropriate associates, the Japanese" face "inevitable, final defeat."

"The forces of liberation are advancing", the President declared, "and the time will come when the agency and justice have passed their stern judgment."

Mr. Roosevelt made this forecast of ultimate victory after placing a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier of the First Great War. Looking on was the United States 93-year-old leader-hero of that conflict, Gen. John J. Pershing.

In speaking at the Cemetery, which is the burial place of thousands of dead of past wars, the President followed a routine of more peaceful years.

Referring to recent war developments, Mr. Roosevelt said the United Nations are being directed by "large numbers of the fighting men of our traditional ally, France".

"On this day, of all days, it is heartening for us to know that all the Frenchmen are not forward with the United Nations".

"Vichy Government", he said in his address, "are giving their lives in defense of its continents and on all the seas in order that the dream of the French soldier may at last come true. All the heroism and all the unconquerable devotion that free men and women are showing in this war shall make certain the survival and advancement of civilization".

Allen Craig, Ont., Nov. 11.—(CP) Shot through both legs and through the right elbow at Dieppe, Pte. W. W. (Jim) Dodds of Allen Craig, writes from a German prison hospital that the action was "all too short."

In a letter to his wife of Stratford, he said today he was getting good care. "The doctors and orderlies are English, and they have been grand to us."

Pte. Dodds left in the Dieppe raid as a member of the demolition squad of the Royal Canadian Engineers.

BOUGIE OCCUPIED BY ALLIES

London, Nov. 11.—Prime Minister Churchill announced today that Bougie, about 120 miles east of Algiers on the Mediterranean coast, had been occupied by Allied troops.

PREPARATIONS

Marshal Rommel's army has suffered a "mortal blow" in Egypt, with the loss of at least 30,000 of its men, 500 of its tanks and 1,000 of its guns of all types.

Of an invasion of Northern Europe, he said:

"Such an attack requires an immense degree of preparation, vast numbers of special landing craft and a great army trained division by division in amphibious warfare. All this is proceeding, but it takes time."

However, said the Prime Minister, "should the enemy become demoralized at any moment, the same careful preparations would not be needed."

"Plans would be run on a large scale," he declared, "but this certainly is not the case at the present time."

The Prime Minister said that the German army in France is "as large apart from the (British) Homeguard as ours in Britain . . . it is not as well equipped as the British and American troops but contains many veterans."

Invasion preparations "have been greatly advanced," he said and;

"Enormous installations have been made in the ports and docks to assist at all our suitable ports.

"But no one must have been justified nor would it have been physically possible to have made a defensive invasion of the continent during the summer or autumn months of 1942."

Mr. Churchill said he had "instructed the chiefs of staff to disregard public clamor" in planning future operations.

Right to Decide Enemy

"I have thought fit why did you allow false hopes to be raised in Russian breasts?" he said, to agree with the United States and Russia to a commonique which was spoke of a second front in Europe in 1943?

"I must say quite frankly that I hold a perfectly justifiable right to receive the enemy even if, at the same time, our own people are for a time misled . . .

"But there is one thing, however, which you must never do — that is, to mislead our Allies. You must never mislead the enemy as to your true purpose. I hope that we shall show that we have lived up to that standard."

The Prime Minister declared that he informed Stalin on his recent visit of the difficulties of a Channel landing and the decision to intervene in North Africa.

Must Fix Them to Sea

"Only in this way," he went on, "could we draw the largest number of Germans and Italians to Calais and the coast of France and the Low Countries.

"We have drawn and kept at least 10 German divisions in the west and a third of the German fighter air force is there, also strong units and a large proportion of the bomber force is not being used to attack us. Very much remains to be built up for this very landing it is contemplated on the beaches.

"We ourselves also are engaging, during the Middle East Battle of Malta, more than half of the whole fighter strength of Germany.

"In addition, there are 24 German divisions in Norway.

"The main part of the German fleet has been there for some months, and is to the northern flank.

Very Costly to Maintain

"There are about 200 of their best aircraft in the far north to impede our convoys to Russia. Here is another route we have found very costly to maintain. . .

"Of the 24 convoys we have sent to Russia, every one has been an important fleet action because because the enemy's main fleet was close at hand.

"The latest one required 77 ships of war apart altogether from the supply ships."

Mr. Churchill referred to the "immense quantities" of munitions have sent to Russia when we were being rightly reproached for the comparative ill-equipment of our own troops."

He added that "the efforts of this country in industry and in naval and military matters in 1943 should be a source of pride and thanksgiving not only to all in these islands but to our Allies both in the east and west."

Considered Front as One

On his first visit to Washington, the Prime Minister said, President Roosevelt favored the idea that French North Africa "was specially suitable for American intervention."

"We had to consider also a plan of descent upon France," he said. "Both plans were considered, either alternatively or simultaneously. Personally, I have always considered the western front as one . . .

"At the same time, we make this wide encircling movement of the Mediterranean to regain control of that sea and the exposure of the under belly of the Axis, especially Italy, to heavy attack.

"On my second visit here of Gen. Marshall (U.S. Army Chief of Staff) it was decided to hold the enemy on the French shore and to strike at its southern front through North Africa.

Mr. Churchill emphasized the complete harmony of the United Nations allies—the "complete understanding" between him and Stalin and the unity between the British and American staffs of whom "many scores have been employed night and day on the task" and "have worked together like a band of brothers."

Gave Order to Fight

Before he left Cairo, Mr. Churchill said, he directed Gen. Harold Alexander, Commander in Chief Middle East, "to take or destroy at the earliest opportunity the German-Italian army together with all its supplies and establishments in Egypt and Libya."

Up to last night, he said, Gen. Alexander reported that 59,000 of the enemy—34,000 Germans and 25,000 Italians—had been killed, captured or wounded in the African battle. "Of these, 9,000 Italians may be wandering about the desert."

The casualties were 13,000 of whom 8,000 were troops of the "Desert Rats" Kingsley Wood, Prime Minister reported.

Mr. Churchill said he did not know whether the enemy would decide to defend Libya or withdraw to Tripoli, but that was prepared . . . Came in as a means of retrieving a failure."

This was a reference to Rommel's break through in Libya which swept the enemy to the El Alamein line, where Britain's resurgence began.

To his critics, he replied he was "not one of those who need to be prodded. . . . My difficulties rather lie in finding patience and self-restraint to wait through many anxious weeks for a result to be achieved."

Effect Against Russia

Mr. Churchill said that the Axis' losses "have been very heavy" in all the Egyptian fighting and that Hitler "could not have found a worse place to lose a battle," and that the consequences were consequences.

The Nazi air effort against Russia is "was definitely affected in all three fronts" by operations.

"Great activity in the Mediterranean "have been considerably reduced."

One in every three of the Axis's ships with their accompanying escorts have gone to the bottom of the sea and the resources of German and Italian industry are most severely strained."

The African campaign was "the most effective means we have yet had of drawing a portion of the enemy's strength and wrath away from Russia upon ourselves."

KingGeorgeOpens Eighth Session

British People Will Fight On to Complete Victory

London, Nov. 11. (CP) The King today opened the new session of Parliament, reading the speech from the throne in which it was stated that "the brilliant victory in the western desert and the great operation forestalling the attack of the German and French territories of North Africa are notable steps toward Victory".

Conclusion of the new session—the eighth of the present parliament—was marked by assurance that the previous session had been prorogued yesterday with the ritual summation of the year's activities. On that occasion the Lord Chancellor, Viscount Simon, read the speech from the Throne. Today the King appeared in person before the assembled peers and commoners.

"In this fourth year of the war, my people look forward with unshakeable courage", today's speech declared, "to the continuance of the fight on to complete victory with no thought of parley".

"Whatever the future may hold I know they will respond wholeheartedly to every call and every made on them".

The speech declared that the governments of the United Nations are in consultation "as circumstances and urgent needs which arise when the victims of oppression begin their liberation".

The desire of the United Kingdom government is to "assist the Allied cause by every possible means and improve the conditions of my peoples in the meantime, while also playing their full part in the united war effort", was noted in the speech.

Legislation forecast included assistance concerning war damage suffered by public utilities, old age pensions, education, health and housing.

The monarchy reasons the fact preparation took place yesterday was not announced until today.

The Red Cross met recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Sills, with a large attendance. Twenty boxes were packed for the boys overseas and quilts were also completed by the ladies. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Geo. Avery and vocal solo "The King" was sung at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Roger Rogers entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of her mother, Mrs. Lila Hall for Miss Eileen Rastford, on Thursday evening. Many lovely gifts were received and a very delightful evening enjoyed.

Several from the community enjoyed the splendid concert put on by Air Force, at the Collegiate Auditorium, Tuesday evening.

selection for North African leadership unquestionably was with Vichy approval.

The 63-year-old warrior, an able soldier, an organizer on Navy's side and the hero of six escapes from German prison camps, is very well known and greatly loved among French soldiers and people alike.

The reason why the Allied High Command is reported to have felt that Giraud could not form such a cohesive force the numerous anti-Vichy groups and individuals in North Africa, which, it is understood, have given their fullest support to De Gaulle's National Committee headed by Gen. Charles De Gaulle in London.

The result of a successful conclusion for Giraud's efforts — and unofficial reports from the conditions in North Africa predict he will be entirely successful — is that the Prime Minister's declaration that it is the firm, unchangeable purpose of Britain and her Allies to carry the war into enemy territory in order "to liberate as speedily as lies within our power the countries now under the Axis' "hateful domination".

The Speech from the Throne also expressed hope that "other governments" of occupied Indies people on the issue of participation in the war.

Steel Ship Building Above Construction During Last War

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—(CP)—The Munitions Department said today in a statement that Canada's steel cargo shipbuilding program "exceeds that of the last war by a wide margin, both in the number of steel deadweight tonnage of ships delivered and in the speed of construction."

During the year Canada has delivered more than 80 steel cargo ships totalling 574,000 tons deadweight, and with 45 ships totalling 380,140 deadweight tons under the program now delivered, the last was completed in 1920, the Department said.

One of the large-ton ships built this year was delivered 88 days after the keel was laid, the fastest recorded time in the last war was 91 days for an 8,800-ton ship. Both records were made by Pacific Coast shipyards.

Freighter 70 P. C. Complete in 2 Days

Richmond, Calif., Nov. 11 — (AP) — The hull of the Liberty ship Robert E. Peary was 70 per cent complete within forty-eight hours after the keel was laid and a number of workers in setting a record is so great that they have been asked to stay away from the site until their shifts begin. The ship probably will be launched within a week after the start of putting it together, the Permanente Metals Corp., where the craft is being built, announced today.

For They are Jolly Good Fellows was sung and the evening was closed wishing them every happiness in their home at Frankford.

Roll Your Own in Latest Style

Rationing has taken its toll of a good many "old favorite"... cookie recipes, but it is by no means necessary to forget the cookie jar for the duration. Here are wartime cookies tested in the Experimental Kitchen of the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture which are easy on the sugar ration and yet top many of the pre-war deliciousness.

When time is at a premium and a batch of cookies must be turned out in a hurry, this modern method of shaping cookies saves the time formerly required for chilling and rolling the dough. The dough is first shaped into a roll about one inch in diameter, then cut into inch lengths; the pieces of dough are placed in a greased cookie sheet, and pressed into shape with the bottom of a tumbler, covered with a floured cloth.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECHMAN

Housewarming Party

Dear Mrs. Beechman,

My husband and I have just bought a home here and we would like to give a housewarming party next month. Will you please answer several questions that are bothering us?

A—We are wondering about the best time to give the housewarming. Is it better to have it on a Sunday afternoon, since our house is not very easy to get to from the first trip, and so we thought a day-time party would be more convenient. Would this be a proper time?

S.—Also what kind of invitations should we need? Should they be written, cards or must they be printed ones?

J.—If we should receive any housewarming gifts, should we put them out for guests to see?

4.—For the menu, I am planning to serve cold cuts relishes and salads with hot and cold drinks, mint candies and nuts. Do you approve of this menu?

5.—We are also planning to have a fifth anniversary cake. Is this also proper?

C. H.

1.—The usual time chosen for a housewarming is Sunday afternoon, since this is convenient to the majority of people, both men and women.

2.—Since I judge that your party is to be informal invitations are inappropriate to send printed invitations. Printed invitations don't ever prove for a party to be a page, out of the magazine.

Cheese Service Men's Gifts With Eye to Appetizeiness

Cheese expert Neptune: this column has urged friends of men in the Armed Forces to be prompt with mailing Christmas gifts to men overseas. There should be kept in mind the simple rules that govern the sending of packaged foods to our boys in service.

Cakes and cookies become stale and reduce to crumbs on the long voyages. Please don't send them. The same is true of fruit, which gradually loses flavor and juice. If you've doing something cute if you slip in a tiny bottle of the lad's favorite cordial or brandy. That won't do at all.

Bear in mind the climate of the country to which he is being sent. If he's going to the tropics, don't send wool-lr slippers or woollen socks or warm underwear.

The boys wan things they can really use in an eye just conducted among servicemen, suggests that pipes, tobacco, cigaret paper, cigarette holders, pen and pencil sets, and wrist-watches are always welcome. So are windproof cigarette lighters.

Snapshots of home, family, sweetheart, neighbors and the local dog are tremendously appreciated, but the scenic stuff is rather expensive.

Letters are always appreciated. Be sure to write often and don't neglect the boy's service number. Write and address your letters in ink.

Bargain Hunter Becomes Memory In Old Britain

By SCOTT YOUNG
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 1—(CP) — The average Canadian woman would go weak-kneed at the sight of such Britain's grocers, greengrocers and butchers. It would not be because the men and women working in these stores—they age just as coolly as they do in the world. But a British food ration book can be a formidable thing.

In the pattern of present-day shopping in Britain there may be an indication of what is to come for Canadian women. If it does, they will look back on the meat famine of 1942 and periodic shortages of rationed goods as the palmy days.

The system is simple, because there can be no flitting from one shop to another looking for bargains. A housewife registers her ration books with a certain shopkeeper, and this registration may not be changed unless for an exceptional reason such as moving from that district. There really would be no point in changing one grocer to another, because staple goods have pegged prices.

These prices are posted in long lists in every shop window. Certain organizations of Canadian women have wanted ever since the establishment of the "Canadian price" ceiling in 1941.

Not Mush Variety

But Canadian women would miss the variety of the duches they have now. Sheer ingenuity is necessary in Britain to keep one meal different from another, or occasionally to keep different courses at one. The ration of one egg per person per week allows practically no baking.

So the system in an average London shopping expedition is this —a call at the butcher's for bread and rolls, which are unrationed, then on to the grocers. You discuss with the grocer how many points you wish to spend (the points system, always fluctuating depending on the supply, discourages and encourages buying of certain goods), then decide upon what you wish to spend the points. Sometimes the goods are sold under the points system. You buy the full ration of staples — butter and margarine, sugar, cheese and tea. Coffee is unrationed, but rare.

Meats and Vegetables

Then on to the butcher, where you buy your full ration of meat, an amount approximately equal to what an average Canadian family would eat in one day. On the way home there is a stop at the greengrocer to buy brussels sprouts at sixpence (about 12 cents) a pound, English apples at one shilling tuppence (about 26 cents) a pound, onions at five pence a pound. Vegetables and fruits are quite expensive, and most of them are available only seasonally.

Striking to the Canadian is the absence of such advertising as: "Buy Here and Save," and so on. This is replaced in most shops by a small notice reading: "Make No Mistake This Time — Register Here."

HEALTH CHATS

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN
President, Chicago Board of Health.

Certain Congenital Heart Defects No Bar to Long, Active Life

Some children are born with defective hearts. The condition, called congenital heart disease, is a result of disordered development of the heart during pregnancy. A large variety of defects may occur.

In an occasional instance, intervention may be performed to relieve the defect surgically. Skilled surgeon who has given special study to the problem has been able to make an operation of this type on the heart. Some of the congenital heart defects may interfere very little with the child's health and a long and active life is not improbable in such cases. In the more severe types of defects there is a great deal of shortness of breath, the skin has a bluish tinge and activities must be limited. Under ordinary conditions, with protection of activities, lakes care of itself because the child grows up with his handicap and there is usually little just how much activity he can carry on without discomfort.

For children with congenital heart disease it is important to avoid infections. Any illness, such pneumonia or whooping cough, which makes extra work for the heart, is more likely to be fatal than in a normal child. An infection of the heart valves and lining of the heart, known as bacterial endocarditis, is a serious complication and may develop following acute infections of the nose or throat or after the contagious diseases. Infections in the teeth, tonsils or sinuses must be cleared up as quickly as possible and if operations are necessary to get rid of these infections it is suggested that antihalmiasis in the proper dose be given before the work is done to help keep any infection from spreading.

Drugs do not have a great deal of value in treating the heart conditions in itself. During attacks in which the child may have difficulty in breathing oxygen may be administered. The drug known as epinephrine may also prove helpful. In some cases digitalis in the proper dose may help to overcome heart failure.

It usually isn't difficult to make a diagnosis of congenital heart disease. Once a child is found to have this condition care thoroughout his life may serve to prolong the life span and permit useful activity.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

A New Treatment for Asthma

For many years the regular or routine treatment for epilepsy was the use of the bromides as a quieting drug. More recently phenobarbital or what are known as the barbiturate drugs have given excellent results. The latest drug to be used is Dilantin Sodium. As a severe reaction occurs sometimes, this drug was not used much for a short time but it is again in use by many physicians.

As bronchial asthma has been traced to nervousness or emotional disturbance in some cases, research workers in this type of asthmatic personality—tried Dilantin Sodium in severe cases of severe bronchial asthma. Excellent results in these cases are reported by Dr. Maurice H. Dinkman, Dept. of Medicine, New England Journal of Medicine. Open cases were sensitive or allergic to many different substances. The ages ranged from 3 to 54 years. Dilantin Sodium was given in capsules varying from 4 months to 1 gram. The dose for children was carefully measured for each individual case and ranged from 1-3 to 2 grains daily in divided doses. No toxic effects were noted.

What were the results of the use of Sodium Dilantin in these seven cases in which asthma was present? Read on and see.

On Dilantin treatment, 6 patients remained consistently free from attacks of bronchial asthma. Two patients reported slight and partial attacks consisting of a tightness in the chest and difficult breathing. In the cases afflicted with allergy, the Dilantin treatment did not prevent the attacks until the hay fever season was over.

Further, with other forms of treatment cutting down on starch food and liquid foods and eliminating fat foods is necessary to get results. Dr. Dinkman finds that Dilantin Sodium no change in diet was necessary. Also, when Dilantin was discontinued colds were present, not only in the nose but also throughout the treatment with Dilantin Sodium. All these patients were encouraged to engage in social and athletic activities which usually brought on attacks, but they occurred during treatment with Dilantin Sodium.

It is gratifying to know that the physician has now another method of controlling and preventing attacks of asthma.

This drug must not be used first by the patient because of the reaction that may occur. When the proper dosage has been found, self treatment may be permitted.

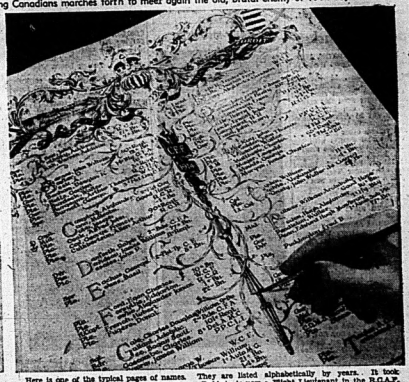
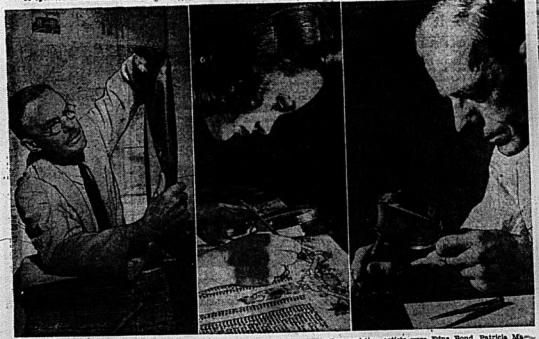
"Book of Remembrance" Honoring Nation's Dead Will Rest In Peace Tower

Canada Pays Homage to Fighting Sons Who First Halted German Hordes



Twenty-four years ago the people of Canada rejoiced to the news that Germany had signed an armistice, that the Great War was ended. For nearly twenty-one years Canadians lived in peace, purchased with the lives of 66,500 heroic sons. Their names are now inscribed in a "Book of Remembrance" which today was placed within the Peace Tower in the Capital of the Nation. Meanwhile, another generation of fighting Canadians marches forth to meet again the old, brutal enemy of 1914-18.



Shown here is the title page of the magnificent "Book of Remembrance." Lieut. Alan Beddoe, R.C.N.V.R., was the artist responsible for the designs and their execution. Col. A. F. Duguid co-operated in selection and arrangement of material.

Here is one of the typical pages of names. They are listed alphabetically by years. It took W. H. Baldwin five years to letter them. Baldwin is now a Flight Lieutenant in the R.C.A.F. A distinguished airman, he recently won the D.F.C.

The Book now rests under glass in a special altar in the Peace Tower. One page will be turned each day of the year. Photostat copy is provided for the public.

Prime Minister King examines the book. Shown with him are Miss Bury and Col. H. C. Osborne, chairman of special committee which had charge of the book's preparation.

New York Rangers Move Into Tie for Second Place in N.H.L. By Beating Hawks in Overtime

Line of Patrick, Heatall and Watson Score Seven Points,

HAWKS NOW FIFTH

(By The Canadian Press)

Time apparently has done little to impair the scoring effectiveness of Lynn Patrick, Bryan Hextall and Phil Watson.

Teaming as New York Rangers big line line, the trio counted 40 per cent of Rangers' goals last season. Last night the big blue line came smashing back for seven scoring points as Rangers, fashioning their second overtime victory on home ice, took a 5-3 verdict from Chicago Black Hawks.

Hextall, 20-year-old Grenfell, Sask., combo, fired the shot which jolted black Hawks at 1:09 of the overtime period while Chicago's Joe Matta still served a third-period penalty. Patrick, who had put Rangers ahead 2-1 in the second period, added the final tally three minutes before the end of extra time.

Cord Davidson and Lin Bend, a couple of rookies plucked from western Canada amateur ranks, contributed the other Rangers' goals in the victory which moved the Blueshirts into a second-place tie with Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs. Hawks, suffering their season's first defeat, dropped to fifth place one point behind Rangers.

Doug Bentley scored two Chicago's goals with the third going to Robert (Red) Hamill. A crowd of 5,459 watched the game.

DYNAMIC ACTION FEATURES GAME

Air Force Defeats Army Daggers 5-3 In Opening Senior O.H.A. Season

Toronto, Nov. 11.—(CP)—Full-blooded, dynamic action featured the 5-3 victory of Air Force over Army Daggers at the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" Toronto group swung into the 1942-43 season here last night.

Both clubs, with strong contingents of former National Hockey League stars now in the services in their lineups, proved they could give as well as take in the contest that saw 15 penalties meted out.

Eddie Bush, former Detroit Red Wing, playing on the Air Force defence, was the villan of the piece drawing four of the penalties, one when he tapped Ross Knipfel, army defenceman, on the cheekbone with his stick. Harry Dick, also an army defenceman, suffered a cut ankle and did not appear in the third period.

Air Force were ahead 1-1 at the end of the first period, led 3-0 at the end of the second and scored twice in the final session. All three Dagger goals were in the third period.

D. Willson pulled the hat trick for the airmen, scoring twice in the second period and adding a goal and an assist in the third. Johnny McCreedy, former Toronto Maple Leaf, and N. Tustin bagged the other two. Jack Neveldine scored twice for army and "Fink" Finkelsteer got the third.

Crosetti was fined $250 and suspended for 30 1942 season; Gordon was fined $200, suspended for 10 days. Both clashes occurred in the third game of the series with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Toronto, Nov. 11 (CP)—"It may be just the simmering of a revolt in hockey," commented Jim Coleman, Sun Journal) McConnell, "but there seems to be a movement under way in eastern and western Canada to stop the tourist trade in hockey players. The general idea seems to be that the C.A.H.A. should straighten out the present alleged chaotic conditions by refusing transfers... There is only one thing overlooked. If all of the teams in Canada started from scratch and adopted the idea, all well and good. But five sponsors will take a chance on a Montreal Canadiens ... if you have a poor club it can't make the players and you lose money ... that is what started the tourist trade. The C.A.H.A. merely fell in line because it likes plenty of competition, good teams and the resulting financial gain to its clubs."

The Expert Says:

Bill (Salt Reporter) Herbert, reporting that coach Al Murray of Brantford's junior hockey Lions has a promising goalie in Sandy Shantz, wrote, "It appears young Shantz has a heavy crop of hair and every time he goes into some fast action he finishes up by tossing his head back to clear the hair from his face. The coach was worried for fear the youngster would get clipped while playing hockey, but ordered the club management to give the kid half a buck so he could get his hair cut."

Incidentally:

Frank Calder, the hockey czar, plays two or three games of handball daily ... Paul Schaefert, former Winnipegger who won a boxing game in England, is with the R.C.A.F. at Lachine, Que.... Bill (Vancouver Province) Ford, reporting at a strange eagle by Dawey Dale on the 12th hole at Vancouver Lakeshore golf course: Dale's drive hit a tree 10 yards off the tee and dropped right there. The ball is brassie, then holed a full two iron.... Fur years at a time of Boston Bruins and Leaf Patrick or New York Rangers had their teams wind up in the National Hockey League. Now Bruins and Rangers are battling in the cellar and coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens comments: "We shall see how these two great master minds take what we've had to take for a few years around here."

GOOD CONTESTS

Ottawa, Nov. 11. (CP)—R.C.A.F. trimmed Hull Volants 6-4 in the first half of a double-header program which opened the City Senior hockey league schedule here last night.

Canadiens defeated Canadian Postal Corps 4l in the second game.

In the opener Yard scored twice for the airmen. Other counters were tallied by Tuttin, Gusso, Robins and Zinno. Seguin, Armstrong, Bastien and Mentzel were Hull's scorers.

The second was all even, 1-1, at the end of the first frame. Air force notched two goals without reply in the second and another in the third before Hull replied with two counters in the game. The airmen scored two more before Mentzel tallied Hull's fourth counter.

Kenny Kilrea personally conducted Gens Department's attack in the first 4-1 victory over the Postal Corps. Kilrea tallied Canadiens' third goal and Kilrea's counter came with only a minute to play. The lone Postal Corps goal was scored by Kyle.

Deadlock for First Place Can Be Broken

By The Canadian Press

There's a good chance that the deadlock for first place in the Eastern division of the American Hockey League will be broken in the three games which are to be played tonight.

Providence Reds, who play at Indianapolis, and Hershey Bears who remain at home to engage Washington Lions, are tied for second place with six points each. The other game is between New Haven Eagles and Pittsburgh Hornets. The Eagles have lost three and tied two and will be playing at home.

Should Washington beat Hershey and Providence lose to Indianapolis the Eastern half would see three clubs tied for first. This position since the Lions are third with four points.

The idle Buffalo Bisons, leading the Western half of the circuit by eight points, still will be there tomorrow because the second-place Cleveland Barons also will remain idle tonight.

Cleveland's berth is in jeopardy however, for the Barons will be seeded from the second rung by third-place Indianapolis or that from the fourth-place Hornets. All the Wasps and Caps must do is win.

FOR WEEKS PAST THEY'VE been "singing the blues" for the benefit of the Central Ontario region and for why no one seems to know. There's always been good hockey in Central Ontario and because of unforseen circumstances such will continue to be the case. Yesterday Archie Major shook the dust of Belleville from his heels to accept a job at the DeHavilland Aeroplane plant in Downsview. Johnnie Hamilton has been employed there for some time and a few weeks ago veteran Billy Taylor, also of Belleville and play senior "B" hockey here this winter. He would be a welcomed addition to the local squad.

NOTHING HAS BEEN HEARD of Tobe White of late, but Gene LaDouce, chief fish bassman for the Reliance softball nine, is remaining in Belleville for the winter and will give the local sextette additional scoring strength at left wing, a weak position last winter. LaDouce played hockey for Carleton Technical School last winter and senior hockey in Cornwall two years ago. Ben Cook has been approached to take over the business management of the Reliance team this winter and reports have it he is considering the offer favorably immediately. Some encouraging news came out of Ottawa this week, when it was announced that a senior "B" club, would be sponsored in the Nation's Capital. While Wilby will drop from the picture. This news should be encouraging to Peterboro and no doubt prove sufficient incentive to see the opening of the Brock Street Arena another winter. With Belleville, Oshawa and Peterboro in the fold no doubt the O.H.A. would find a fourth club to round out the perfect group.

COMMENTING ON THE WHITby-Oshawa combination hockey union recently, Oshawa Sports Scribe Sports Editor Jack Wilson, the following information to pass along. He said in part: "There'll be a Senior "B" hockey team from Oshawa in County this winter, to be known as the Whitby-Oshawa Combines and they'll play their home games at the Oshawa Arena. Following a cooperative discussion between the interested parties, the Whitby and Oshawa hockey men have decided to operate a 'Combine' club and it is felt that a strong, contending club can be rounded out to compete against Peterboro, Belleville, Trenton and other such opponents. The games will be played at the Oshawa Arena, in order to assure the team of hard ice for every home game, regardless of weather conditions. Now that they've decided to go ahead with it, they're not going to stand around waiting any longer, either. The first practice is to be held this Wednesday night at the Oshawa Arena at 8 o'clock and all hockey players who wish to try out for a place on the Senior "B" entry will be made welcome. Present indications are that at least four or five experienced players from Whitby will be available and the remainder will be selected from Oshawa and district."

ALTHOUGH IT IS QUITE natural Manager Walt Gerow welcomes increased crowds at the Hume Arena in regard to the performance, however, Manager Walter is faced with a new problem today. The advance sale of tickets for Thursday night's all-star raisin' show has been the greatest yet, even in the days of Maurice Tillet or Wild Bill Longson, worthy champions. Although Arena workmen have dismantled the dance band shell at the Arena and have installed the ring and mat on the platform, as the B.H.O. sign has it, "Let's get down to programs today the paying public demand and receive, otherwise promoters go to the wall. When Skipper Gerow completes the Thursday night's raisin' show for the Hume Arena he provided an all-time best from the corner to the main scrap, that brings wrestling No. 1 to the coliseum here to Belleville ... "The Swedish Angel," Jerry Sandor at the prelims, they speak for themselves.

REMEMBER WHEN Charley Belanger, veteran of Canada's hard-fought boxers, was knocked out for the first time in his 300-odd battles at the Hume Arena seven years ago tonight? Ritz Seeley blasted Belanger in the first round in the fourth round of a scheduled 12-round bout.

THIS AND THAT — Toronto won the O. A. S. A. titles this year, the senior "A" and "B" crowns as well as the junior ... Oshawa captured the intermediate "A" title, Dundas the Intermediate "B" and Aberfoyle the Junior ... "Ty" Badeley commenced his life as a whistler-cop in the Kingston Van Horne series last night ... if Mister Bedley doesn't put as much oomph in his refereeing as he did in his hockey playing he'll do in more ways than one ... War uncertainties made the Provincial Golfers' Association end its two-day conference without deciding whether or not the 1943 championship would be played ... Clarkson Tech., where Gene LaDouce starred in school, ventured forth to play Syracuse in football on 15 occasions and has yet to win a decision ... Right out of the cradle into the N. H. L. these days! Yesterday in the person of signed Jack McLean, a University of Toronto student, who will start in the Leafs' line-up this Thursday ... Don Gallinger, with the Brulns, is only 18 years of age and played juvenile hockey with Port Colborne only two years ago ... Bert Olmstead is leading the drums for his return bout between Kelan and McCready to-morrow ... Right out of the when Bunny Dunlop and Whipper Watson clash .... By the way.

Nick Metz Suffers Broken Collarbone

Victoria, Nov. 11—(CP)—Hospital authorities reported today that Pte. Nick Metz, who suffered a broken collarbone in a hockey game here last Friday, was "resting comfortably."

Metz, former member of Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League, playing with Victoria Army, against Victoria Machinery Depot team, was injured during a fight on front of the nets.

Metz was playing his first game. He is expected to remain on the sidelines for at least two months.

The terms of the Compiegne Forest armistice were violated by Hitler's order for a sweep by Nazi troops through unoccupied France and Marshal Petain protested quickly to German Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd Von Rundstedt. A Vichy radio broadcast appealed to the French people to rally behind the aged Petain.

France May Re-Enter War

Quick collapse of all remaining resistance in French North Africa and re-entry of a re-born France into the war against the Axis were regarded in London as possible results.

Hitler said, "We have known for 24 hours that landing operations against Corsica and Southern France were planned by the Allies, who have won Algiers and Oran and are hammering at Casablanca in a multi-headed occupational coup."

Fighting French quarters expressed belief that not only the entire colonial army but the Vichy French fleet and a great array of political leaders as well might come into the Allied fold as the culmination of swift-moving events of the last 72 hours.

The latest unofficial word in London was that main units of the Vichy French fleet, which includes three battleships, seven cruisers and 25 destroyers, were still at Toulon this morning as motorized German divisions pushed southward.

One arm of the German forces headed directly toward Marseille, France's major Mediterranean port, and Toulon, her major naval base, by way of Lyon.

Italy said she is in full agreement with Germany on the necessity for this action on the 24th anniversary of the First Great War armistice, and Fascist forces moved into France.

For Italy, the occupation probably will mean even greater domination by the senior Axis partner, London diplomatic sources said. Communication lines of the French Riviera, however, will aid the Axis military movements.

A British military source said there had been no evidence lately of any reinforcement of the Nazi army in Northern France and that this indicated all troops engaged in the new action would be drained out of the section occupied in 1940.

Allied announcers capitalized on the Nazi thrust.

BBC spokesmen appealed to French merchant seamen in the Mediterranean to sail to Algiers or Gibraltar or to scuttle their vessels. Instructions were once broadcast asking that the French people demonstrate, but this was countermanded later by a fighting French authority, who advised them to just attend Armistice Day church services.

Recognition Vanishes

Virtually the last obstacles to British-American recognition of the refugee French cabinet vanished. Canada cancelled recognition of it Monday.

There was no longer the necessity, as described by State Secretary Cordell Hull, to maintain the pretense of recognizing Vichy.

Defection of the French Gen. Henri Honore Giraud and possibly other eminent soldiers and statesmen, some already in North Africa, would provide the broad basis which some quarters maintain Gen. Charles De Gaulle has lacked for a French government in London.

"This is a most significant Armistice Day," a British source said.

"It must be remembered that 24 years ago on this date another German army was marching—marching back home because it had suffered a great defeat."

"Today we have another German army on the march — because it has suffered defeat. It augurs well for the Allied cause."

Italy was represented as in full agreement and the implication was that Fascist forces also would move into the small part of France that was left to Vichy by the Compiegne Forest Armistice of June 22, 1940.

Axis radio broadcasts announced the developments on this 24th anniversary of the First Great War Armistice.

By railway coaches and motor trucks, grey-uniformed units of the Nazi army of the west sped southward across the Demarcation line. Contingents moved from near Chalon-Sur-Saone toward Lyon, the Rhone Valley and Marseille.

An obvious port of destination for a major German force was Toulon, the Vichy French naval base which is 450 miles across the Mediterranean from Allied-occupied Algiers.

Berthed there are the remnants of the fleet which Hitler has so long wanted to control—three battleships, four heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, a seaplane carrier, 25 destroyers, 27 submarines and sloops.

Hitler set forth the Axis position in two parallel communications.

One was addressed to "Frenchmen, officers and men of the French Army". The other was directed to Marshal Petain, the aged Chief of State, who has picked up the command of Vichy's armed forces in succession to Admiral Jean Darlan, a captive at Algiers.

Hitler said the weakness of the Vichy forces in the Mediterranean area would make it easier ground than the German-held zone for Allied invasion.

"The German government has known for 24 hours that plans of these operations provide that the next attack will be made against Corsica, in order to occupy that island, and against the South Coast of France", he said.

"In these circumstances I felt compelled to order the German army immediately to march through the unoccupied zone—and this is now being done—and to march to the point aimed at by the Anglo-American landing troops".

Again and again he insisted that as far as the French were concerned, it was a friendly manoeuvre.

"It has a single aim—to repel, together with its Allies, any landing attempt by the Anglo-American forces", he said.

Immediate withdrawal of the troops across the line was pledged "as soon as the situation in the Mediterranean is improved to the point that it is no longer imperilling the interests of the Reich in Maritime France".

"The Vichy Government is dead and we are going back to June, 1940," a fighting French spokesman said. "The only vestige of Vichy left will be some French officials in Versailles carrying out German orders."

Hitler said the Petain Government "will be free to move without limitation in the whole of France" and announced that previous objections to a transfer to Versailles, near Paris, were lifted.

The fighting French spokesman said the most important result of the Nazi movement "will be the uniting of France and waking up of the people of the Vichy zone, who have been living in a fools paradise for two years. . . .Except for French Indo-China, the French Empire is all back in the war".

An Allied government source said Petain "probably will protest and resign".

(The Vichy radio said Petain had protested to Von Rundstedt, the German military commander in France.)

"But it won't matter whether he resigns or not if the government is headed by Pierre Laval, Jacques Doriot or Marcel Deat". he added. "It would be the merest puppet".

Laval was reported earlier to have left Vichy, presumably summoned by Hitler to receive an ultimatum on account of the capitulation of Algiers and the precarious situation of the remainder of French North Africa.

Some Allied military men, who cannot be quoted by name, said the Nazi leader had to make some gesture in reply to the Allies' successes and that his new move was dictated also by genuine military necessity.

Giraud Blamed

The necessity for moving into the unoccupied zone was largely blamed upon Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, the veteran French officer who escaped from Nazi imprisonment and is establishing a French North African army with United States aid to fight alongside the Allies.

Hitler assailed Gen. Giraud bitterly in his message to Petain as a French general who "during his captivity simulated illness" in order to escape and had decided "not only to fight from now on against Germany in the services of the Anglo-Saxon nations, the authors of the aggression, but also against his own country."

Despite Hitler's protestations that the occupation was to be temporary and was not to interfere with Petain's government, Allied sources in London forecast that he was fastening a hold that could be broken only by defeat.

Repeated exhortations by Petain to Vichy leaders in North Africa to maintain resistance were interpreted here as a desperate effort to stave off complete occupation.

15 Divisions Tied Down

They estimated the occupation would tie down an additional 15 divisions of German troops when they were badly needed on the Russian front and in the remainder of Occupied Europe. But, one said, "he dared not leave the French Mediterranean coast unguarded with the Allies in possession of the French North African coast".

The first word of the action came in a broadcast by the Nazi-controlled Paris radio on which a Nazi military spokesman read Hitler's announcement to "Frenchmen, officers and men of the French army." The letter to Marshal Petain also was broadcast. Subsequently details were added from stations in Vichy, Berlin and Rome.

Nazi armored cars were reported to have passed through Limoges and Lyon at 10 a.m. and uniformed Germans appeared in Vichy's suburbs.

Marshal Petain protested to German Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt against the German breach of the armistice terms.

The Announcement

Hitler's announcement began:—

"Frenchmen, officers and men of the French army:—

"On Sept. 3, 1939, the British Government without cause or reason declared war upon Germany.

"Those responsible for this war unfortunately succeeded at that time in instigating the French Government to join the declaration of war.

"For Germany this constituted an unbearable provocation. The German Government had never made any claims on her which might have caused her offence.

"The German people who then had to face this aggression while sacrificing the blood of its sons never felt any hatred for France.

"Nevertheless, this war started in this fashion and involved a great many families of the two countries in grief and sorrow.

Precautions to be Taken

"After the crumbling of the Anglo-French front which, after the flight of the British to Dunkirk, developed into a catastrophe, France asked Germany for an armistice.

"Under the armistice Germany asked nothing which might be incompatible with the honor of the French army.

"Precautions, however, had to be taken—in order to prevent the fight from being started again in the interests of British warmongers by means of paid agents.

"Germany had no intention whatsoever of humiliating France or of infringing on the integrity of the French Empire.

"She hoped by a subsequent reasonable peace to achieve an atmosphere of mutual understanding in Europe.

"Since that time Great Britain and now also the United States have sought to set foot again on French soil in order to continue the war, as suits their interests, on French territory.

"After several attempts had come to a lamentable end, the Anglo-American attack was launched against the colonies of north and west Africa.

Known Long Ago

"Having regard to the weakness of the French forces in those parts," it went on, "the enemy would find it an easier ground for operations than in the west where the country is protected by Germany.

"The German government has known for 24 hours that plans of these operations provide that the next attack will be made against Corsica in order to occupy that island and against the south coast of France.

"In these circumstances I felt compelled to order the German army immediately to march through the unoccupied zone—and this is now being done—and to march to the point aimed at by the Anglo-American landing troops.

"The German army does not come as an enemy of the French people nor of its soldiers nor does it intend to govern these territories.

"It has a single aim—to repel together with its allies any landing attempt by the Anglo-American forces.

"Marshal Petain and his government are entirely free and are in the position to fulfill their duty as in the past.

Not to be Inconvenienced

"From now on nothing stands in the way of realization of their requests, made earlier, to come to Versailles to govern France from there.

"The German forces have been ordered to see to it that the French people are inconvenienced as little as possible.

"The French people must, however, bear in mind that by the attitude of their government in 1939 the German people were thrown into a grievous war which threw hundreds of thousands of families into peril and grief.

"The German government no less than its soldiers had every wish within bounds of what is possible not only to protect the frontiers of France jointly with the French army but also before all to assist in preserving in the future the African possessions of European nations against acts of brigandage.

"Only where blind fanaticism or agents in the pay of Britain oppose the advance of our troops will the decision be left to the force of arms.

Signed by Hitler

"Numerous Frenchman will, on the other hand, show an understandable desire to be delivered from occupation but they should all know that the German soldiers too would prefer to live and work peacefully in his own country by the side of his wife and his children in his paternal home.

"The sooner this power which in the past so often has plundered France and which in this moment is again trying to rob her will be annihilated, the sooner the wishes of Frenchmen of the occupied zone and of the German soldiers will find together their realization.

"All particular questions are regulated and will find their solution in agreement with French authorities.

"11th November, 1942. Signed. Adolf Hitler."

A Fighting French source said Hitler has "torn off the mask."

"The blackmail which he has been exerting over Vichy has fallen like a house of cards," he said.

He said the Fighting French always believed such action was bound to happen "sooner or later" and that in a way it was something they had been hoping would happen for more than two years.

"Not that we wish the people of France to suffer further," he said.

"They have been suffering more than enough but the new action will openly bring the whole body of the French people to the side of the Allies."

The Vichy radio said that Admiral Micheller, commander of the Moroccan port of Casablanca, had been compelled to ask an armistice because "after three days of fierce fighting all means of resistance are exhausted."

Collapse of the fight there followed the surrender of Algiers Sunday and the entrance of American troops into Oran yesterday. These were the three chief centres of resistance in Algeria and Morocco.

It was not known whether any British or American forces had yet succeeded in reaching Tunisia, said the Allied spokesman who announced the arrival of German forces there.

He said the German movement had "been going on for some little time," but that the Nazi strength there was not known.

(At the same time the BBC, heard in New York, said Vichy had broadcast an announcement that Italian marines had occupied the Tunisian naval base of Bizerte.)

Bizerte Best Naval Base

Bizerte in Tunisia is the best and largest naval base in French North Africa and is about 40 miles from Tunis, the capital. The Tunisian coast is about 130 miles from Sicily, the shortest distance between French North Africa and Italy.

There was no official information here as to the movements of the Vichy fleet but a dispatch datelined "at the French frontier" said that advices from Vichy declared unconfirmed reports were circulating there that the fleet had left Toulon and was believed to be somewhere off Corsica en route to join forces with the United Nations.

The German radio broadcast that American troops began an attack upon Tunis this morning, but this possibly was part of the German effort to justify the Axis move into the French protectorate.

It was announced that Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson is commanding British troops, the vanguard of the several divisions sent to North Africa to reinforce the Americans, and that Air Marshal Sir William Welsh is commanding the R.A.F. in that area.

Naval Forces Wiped Out

French naval forces which had comprised the backbone of resistance at Casablanca were practically wiped out before the commander there sought an armistice, and British observers believed that an armistice for the entire area of Morocco and Algeria would follow speedily.

Hitler's move into Tunisia, aimed as a counterstroke to the American and British North African occupations, placed the Germans in momentary command of the narrowest point of the Mediterranean. A large German-Italian air centre is at Sicily.

The landing also drove a thin wedge between Lt.-Gen. Eisenhower's forces and Marshal Erwin Rommel's defeated Axis army in Libya.

Fighting Frenchmen also were optimistic. "It is felt that resistance may well collapse altogether at a much earlier stage than was at first thought possible", a spokesman said.

Overnight reports indicated a steady expansion of the holdings of Anglo-American forces.

Vichy French light naval units which attempted to interfere with seizure of the Oran naval base were destroyed by a supporting Royal Naval squadron, a British correspondent wrote from the field.

The Allied Command announced the Allied naval-air forces had "overcome to a large degree the resistance of French naval units along the coast in the Casablanca area".

The 35,000-ton battleship Jean Bart, bomb-battered centre of this resistance, was reported aflame off the harbor and supporting light forces of the Vichy fleet were wiped out.

800 Prisoners Taken

Field dispatches from Algeria told of the capture of 800 prisoners without resistance by an armored column which struck at an airdrome Sunday.

Four Vichy French Dewoitine planes hovering high over the field swooped to attack and shot down one United States fighter, but three of them were shot down. The field was taken over by the United States pilots flying British Spitfires.

Civilians and Arabs alike were described as friendly. American troops shared their cigarets.

American contingents evidently were well on their way toward Libya, the last territory of Italy's African Empire, Vichy and Berlin accounts of continuing operations in Algeria were without immediate confirmation.

These included reports of fighting at Orleansville, midway between Oran and Algiers, and at Blida, 25 miles inland from the Libyan-Tunisia frontier.

A Rome radio broadcast said strong formation of Italian bombers and torpedo planes continued operations against British-American naval forces off Algeria. Defensive fire was described as "extremely fierce."

Blackouts were reported enforced both at Algeria and at Tunis, capital of Tunisia, across which President Roosevelt has sought free troop passage.

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 11—(CP)—A hard-to-waken thief broke into Simmons' hardware store in downtown Kingston and stole an alarm clock from a showcase.

AT THE BELLE

Brilliant screen newcomers, Teresa Wright and Richard Ney are romantically teamed in M.G.M.'s "Mrs. Miniver," featuring Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon, now on the Belle Theatre screen.

AT THE McCARTHY

Rosalind Russell and Janet Blair get talked into "A Dream of an Apartment" by eccentric George Tobias in this comedy scene from the screen's biggest laugh hit, "My Sister Eileen," now at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL

It's no picnic being the marshal of the toughest town in the old West, as Jim Kimbrough finds out in the exciting new 20th. Century-Fox Western, "Sundown Jim." But the film coming next to the Capitol Theatre has its share of compensations in the form of Virginia Gilmore and Arleen Whelan (right). The added special attraction "Confirm or Deny" features Don Ameche and Joan Bennett.

AT THE BELLE

"Mrs. Miniver"

A story of high courage, devotion and abiding faith is M-G-M's "Mrs. Miniver" screen adaptation of Jan Struther's novel, in which Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon are teamed to repeat their successes in "Blossoms in the Dust." It is the story of an English woman of the middle classes and her family, facing the terrors of war on the home front and carrying on life with valor in the face of air raids, attacks, grief and peril.

Story of English Village

The story is laid in an English village. Miss Garson and Pidgeon are husband and wife, with a son in college. He joins the R.A.F. Pidgeon with other older men help at the rescue at Dunkirk. There are raid alarms, touching human episodes, finally a raid that wrecks the village, but the villagers, in their wrecked church, listen to the words of their vicar, and continue to carry on with faith in the future.

Spirit in War

Miss Garson has a role that is inspiring and poignant, and Pidgeon typifies the sturdy spirit of the average Britisher. The story points out the growth of a democratic spirit under war trials. The young romance is in the hands of Teresa Wright, who is beautiful as well as a clever actress, and Richard Ney. Village characters are portrayed by Reginald Owen, Henry Travers and Christopher Severn, and Dame May Whitty is a dominant figure as the noblewoman who sees the power of democracy through the struggle. Henry Wilcoxon plays the vicar.

Direction by William Wyler was skillful and sympathetic, and Joseph Ruttenberg's artistic photography does much to stimulate the drama, as does an inspiring musical score by Herbert Stothart.

"Mrs. Miniver" is now on the Belle theatre screen.

AT THE McCARTHY

"My Sister Eileen"

"My Sister Eileen" is today the Columbia comedy considered by Hollywood as "unbeatable" a film which will never be matched for exuberance, light-hearted gaiety and romantic appeal. The film, now at the McCarthy Theatre, stars Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne and Janet Blair.

The Misses Russell and Blair are delightfully seen in the new comedy as Ohio's Ruth and Eileen Sherwood respectively. Ruth is reasonably level-headed and she wants to be a writer. Eileen is phenomenal, a blonde bombshell of personality and she wants to be an actress. As the editor of New York's most sophisticated magazine, Aherne helps both girls achieve their ambitions, but not until they have involved themselves and him in a series of delirious complications. You certainly should make a date to see "My Sister Eileen."

AT THE CAPITOL

"Confirm or Deny"

Played against a background of bomb-wracked London in September, 1940, "Confirm or Deny," coming next to the Capitol, is the thrill-packed story of a newspaperman who gives up the scoop of a lifetime for love of a girl.

Don Ameche is starred as the Yankee news scribe, representing a large American syndicate in London. Playing opposite him is Joan Bennett in the role of a courageous and lovely English girl whose loyalty to her country surpasses her love for the Yank.

Top Notch Cast

A top notch supporting cast includes Roddy McDowell, as the plucky English lad who scoops the world; John Loder as the British censor fighting the war's strangest battle 300 feet underground, and a host of others including Eric Blore, Raymond Walburn and Arthur Shields contribute an exciting performance.

"Confirm or Deny" was directed by Archie Mayo and produced by Len Hammond. The story was written by Henry Wales, internationally noted foreign correspondent, and Samuel Fuller. It is 20th Century-Fox's salute to America's heroes of "front line" news!

"Sundown Jim"

Johnny Kimbrough, the ex-All American football star from Texas A. & M. makes his second starring appearance in the movies in 20th Century-Fox's "Sundown Jim" which arrives at the Capitol Theatre next. Featured with the star are Virginia Gilmore, Arleen Whelan, Joseph Sawyer, Paul Hurst and Moroni Olsen. James Tinling directing.

A colored cartoon and the first chapter of the new thrilling serial, "The Perils of Nyoka," which features the new serial queen, Kay Aldridge, complete the bill.

At one point, the chief executive indicated that the raid on Dieppe, as well as other actions throughout the world, had a bearing on the plans for the American attack in Africa. He did not explain how they fitted into the picture, however.

Weigh Offensive Problems

When Mr. Churchill came to Washington again late in May, the President said, they weighed a large-scale offensive for 1943 against a smaller one for 1942 which would present fewer difficulties as regards men, munitions and ships.

By the end of June there was general agreement on the African venture, and by late July certain fundamentals had been decided on, such as points to hit, the numbers of men needed, and the quantities of manufacturing and shipping required. Late in August, the chief executive disclosed, the approximate date was picked.

Meanwhile, although a second front actually had been mapped out, Mr. Roosevelt said he and Mr. Churchill had had to sit back and smile or take it on the chin when people began to demand a second front.

Molotov's Visit

Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov's visit to Washington apparently coincided with completion of the advance preparations for the North African campaign. After Molotov returned to Russia, he and Mr. Roosevelt issued a joint statement saying they were in agreement on the factors involved in opening a second front.

It can be assumed, the President said, that our fighting Allies were consulted before anything was done. He said, too, that details had been mapped out before Mr. Churchill went to Moscow to confer with Joseph Stalin.

It was three weeks or a month ago, Mr. Roosevelt said, that he signed messages in which he assured the heads of countries clustered around the western reaches of the Mediterranean that they had no reason to fear the United Nations effort and that he believed they would wish to continue to be neutral. These were delivered when the offensive got under way Saturday night.

Two or three days, after signing the messages, the President said, he recorded the French-language address, broadcast Saturday, in which he assured the French people that America's ultimate aim was to liberate them from Axis clutches.

Mr. Roosevelt said he learned a year ago that neither he nor Mr. Churchill could walk down the street, enter a department store, buy a second front and walk out with it.

It had to be tailor made and custom built, he explained, and this took at least four months.

He laughed boisterously when a reporter inquired whether he was considering a "new suit of spring clothes for Mussolini."

CHAPTER 12
Hush Money

"Now, I must ask a direct question," Captain Raynor said. "Was there any episode in the life of Mrs. McCleod, before you married her, that might cause any trouble afterward? Serious trouble, I mean?"

Hugh McCleod looked at him, then turned to Chadwick, saying:

"This is what I feared. You told him, will you?"

"Yes," was the reply. "It has to do with Mrs. McCleod when she was a young girl. She was, because of her innocence, outwitted into a mock marriage with a handsome scoundrel. Mrs. McCleod's father took up the matter and the affair was hushed up. A year or so ago the man came to Mr. McCleod and explained with him. I was consulted, and we arranged that Mr. McCleod should pay him a certain sum at certain dates, on condition of his silence. It is in a way blackmail, but we prefer it to having the man arrested and imprisoned, which would cause unpleasant publicity. Mrs. McCleod never knew of this and so far as we know the man has kept his promise of secrecy. I should be obliged if you would tell me how you learned of it."

"The matter was mentioned to me by Miss Emmy McCleod, and after what you have told me, I think we need not refer to it again," said Raynor. "I must learn of this man's whereabouts on the night of the tragedy. But that will be done with the utmost discretion and I have no idea that he is responsible for the crime. He cannot now continue his claims. He threatened only publicity, I take it."

"Yes," Hugh said, "he declared he would stain my wife's name by a recital of her past, in which, as I know, she was far more sinned against than sinning. I have not paid him exorbitant sums. He is a broken man and I am sorry for him. If he makes any further trouble, we may ask your help. Otherwise, I trust you will forget it."

"I am glad you have cleared it up," Raynor told him. "Now, I believe the murderer to have been one of those three or four young men who were in what they called Mrs. McCleod's event."

"I hate to think it is possibility. I know his boy friend is very fond of Murray, I know nothing against them."

"If one of them did the awful thing," Chadwick said, "it must have been in a frenzy of jealousy, either of love or hate. Which of them is most emotional?"

"None of them seems so," Hugh replied. "Young men of today are cool, cynical and superior. I can't imagine any one of them giving way to uncontrollable emotion. Yet it may have been—"

"It must have been!" exclaimed Raynor. "There is no other solution left to consider. But it is so indefinite I consider the only ones we can name are young Harvey Herrick, Ogden Murray, and that Johnny Look-in-the-Air, Martin Delevan. Mr. Herrick, I am surprised at his name, but he is a strange being, and I always suspect a vague, uncertain personality."

"I don't know that man as well as the others," Hugh said musingly. "But he surely hasn't the manly air that the others have."

"When to a crime a prime consonnel, manliness goes by the board, as a rule," Chadwick said. "To my mind, it all hinges on the order in which those men went through the coat room. Mrs. McCleod must have been there between the two. Whoever went through last is the one we want to consider."

"I suppose I was the first," Hugh said, thoughtfully. "I went on my way up to father's place; as I left the room, I heard Delevan coming in at the other door, but I've no idea who it was."

"Then that's of no help," Raynor sighed. We know about what time Mrs. McCleod was in that room. We know that about the same time Harvey, Herrick, Murray and Delevan were also in the room, but we don't know in what order they entered or left, or whether some of them were there at the same time, I believe it was one of those four men, because the circumstances point to it. Now, those four were in the room at or near the time we are talking about—"

"What time was it?" asked Hugh. "Between three and four, but probably about half-past three. Yes, you were both with your father?"

"Yes, Emmy will vouch for that."

"She has. Well, it was soon after that the other callers came. Perhaps for their coats, perhaps to chat with Mrs. McCleod. Perhaps they saw one another there, perhaps not. They remember only in a vague way, who was there and who wasn't. But to us Mrs. McCleod's presence that held them, we may be sure."

"Yes, I know," Hugh sighed. "My wife was very charming, and the young men adored her. I never was jealous, because I loved and trusted Alma, and she wanted and needed young society. I was, with her there, just before I went up to father's place, and she told me she wished the people would all go home so we could be alone. My wife loved me, and she had no interest in the youngsters as such, they amused her. Her heart was all mine."

"Yes, I'm sure of it. I wish you'd tell me more of her mock marriage."

"Oh, that. Well it amounted to nothing. There was a gay and mischievous crowd and they pretended that one of them was a minister and he pretended to marry Alma and Jim Kalshied the Gem—CFRB

"Good morning, again, Miss Emmy," Raynor said, as she came in. "Good morning, sir. You want to see me?"

"Yes; I'm just hoping you are able to tell me something that your brother came up to your apartment, shortly before the attack on Mrs. McCleod."

"I doubt that I can tell you exactly what you ask."

"As nearly as possible, then. Can't you tell me the times you had to give medicine to your patient, or something of that sort."

"Yes, I gave my father his drops at three o'clock, and Hugh came up right after that. It must have been about five, or five minutes after three. Will that help you?"

"Very much—if you are sure."

"Yes, I'm sure. Just how here, I am afraid I did my sister-in-law an injustice. I didn't like her, but I don't want to misjudge her. If you had only never gave her that little old coin. I believed that she told it to him. But Hugh tells me he did give it to her, so I must think it was true. You see, Hugh was so mad about her, he would have given her the half of the Kingdom and then the other half."

"She was very beautiful."

"She was more than that—she had charm, the sirens charm."

"Do you know which of the young men she liked best?"

"Oh, 'Mr. Herrick, I think; and I'll tell you why. Just because she couldn't bring him to her feet! He admired her, of course, but it was in a respectful, courteous way."

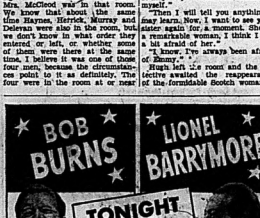
"She must have liked that."

"Not she! She wanted him to make love to her, as the others did or tried to do."

"Now who do you think gave her that new bracelet she was wearing. Would it be Herrick or Murray?"

"Oh, no. He is not a rich man, and that was a beautiful bangle. And, too, Mr. Herrick has his own ideas of what is proper. I don't believe he would give jewelry to any man's wife. Hugh gave me that bracelet. I am very glad to have it."

"Was Mr. McCleod up here a long time that night, before Dickson came for him?"



"Oh, yes, nearly an hour I'd say. Father was very ill, you know. We thought he'd slip away that time. It's a constant strain, you see, not knowing how long he can live."

Deep Public Interest Seen As People Check On War Rumors

Swiftly moving events of the past few days in the North African theatre of war have found a commensurate response in gradually increasing interest on the part of many local residents.

The sensational news today of German occupation of the remainder of France, and varying despatches via radio and cable, apparently proved to be the foundation of a rumor that was strongly prevalent in the city this morning to the effect that France had declared war on Germany, and the French fleet had gone over to the side of the United Nations.

Up to one o'clock today, Canadian Press wires to the editorial rooms of the Ontario Intelligencer had carried no such news.

Telephones in the editorial rooms this morning buzzed with calls from residents asking confirmation of an alleged report that the Vichy French navy had sailed to join the naval units of the Allies.

The only cables received here and which might have some bearing on the above were those emanating from Vichy, and which stated that General Petain had protested against the breach of the Franco-German armistice. The cables stated that the French war vessels were still in dock at Toulon. These stories are of Vichy origin and lack confirmation.

B.C.I. Pays Tribute To Great War Dead

Tribute to the memory of heroes who fought and died on the battle fields of France during the last Great War was appropriately paid by the pupils of Belleville Collegiate this morning during a special Remembrance Day assembly program.

A flood-lit stage setting depicting the Canadian Memorial at Vimy Ridge stood out in the dim of the auditorium as the pupils stood with bowed heads in observance of the conventional two minutes' silence. Two soldiers stood on guard with reversed rifles as the bugle notes of the Last Post and Reveille softly echoed through the assembly room. A choral number, "Souls of the Righteous," sung by the Glee Club, added a touching note to the brief ceremony.

Flight Lieutenant Hadley, of the Chaplain service of the Trenton R.C.A.F. spoke briefly to the assembly stressing the value of primary education. He stated that although ten millions of men sacrificed their lives in the last Great War, they gave their lives in vain.

"The last Great War closed on a note of hate," continued Flt. Lieut. Hadley. "We cannot hope to have a world of peace, if we instill hatred."

The speaker briefly outlined events leading up to the adoption of totalitarianism in Germany, but stressed that instead of individuals being a slave to the state, the state should work for the promotion of the good of the greatest number of people.

"Students have a job to do, and it makes a difference how that job is done," concluded the speaker.

In unison the collegiate student body read the Reconsecration Pledge, while the collegiate band rendered appropriate numbers in keeping with the solemnity of the ceremony.

HON. J. E. MICHAUD IN HOSPITAL FOR COMPLETE CHECK-UP

Toronto, Nov. 11 (CP)—Hon. J. E. Michaud, Federal Minister of Transport, is in hospital here for a complete check-up, it was disclosed here today.

"Mr. Michaud is not seriously ill and he expects to be back at work in 10 days," his physician, Dr. Smirle Lawson, said.

THEY DROP FROM THE SKIES

This determined looking guy is a British paratrooper, the first man to land of a squad that dropped from a big air transport, at the school where they are training. This fellow's job is to hold a beachhead, until his colleagues arrive, and collect the arms and equipment dropped by 'chute in other containers. That weapon he is holding is a Sten gun.

DEDICATES BOOK OF REMEMBRANCE 1914-1918 DEAD

Impressive Scene in Memorial Tower at Ottawa—Governor - General Officiates

Ottawa, Nov. 11. (CP) —Official Canada turned aside from momentous war developments today to dedicate a work of art designed to remind men, through generations of peace, of those who died in another war.

In the Memorial Chamber on Parliament Hill the Governor-General accompanied by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and in the presence of Cabinet Ministers and others, pronounced the dedication of the Book of Remembrance which contains the names of 66,651 Canadian who died in the First Great War.

The Book, described by Mr. King as "an object of art of surpassing beauty and interest" and the "most sacred memorial in the keeping of our nation", has been under preparation for years, as artists painstakingly inscribed the names and decorated the pages.

The ceremony preceded the usual Remembrance Day service at the National War Memorial.

Book on Altar

Mr. King recalled that the altar, in which the Book was placed and which is the central feature of the Memorial Chamber, is the gift of the people of the British Isles. The altar had been dedicated by the then Prince of Wales in 1927 and designed to hold the Book which has since been completed. He invited the Governor-General, who was in uniform and accompanied by Princess Alice, to perform the dedication of the Book.

His Excellency began by reading the Latin inscription at the front of the Book: "In memory of our kinsmen who, serving in the Armed Forces in that most memorable of all wars which broke out far from Canada, freely gave their lives".

In Perpetual Memory

"In the name of the people of Canada, I dedicate this beautiful book", said the Governor-General, "to commemorate the loyal service and sacrifice of all Canadians in the Great War, 1914-1918, and that those whose names are written therein may be held in perpetual memory".

The book was then raised, and placed in the space prepared for it, by four representatives of the fighting services who served in the last war, as a trumpeter sounded the Last Post.

In the altar the book, bound in red, will rest open under glass. The pages will be turned from time to time.

Photostatic Copies of Book

For the benefit of persons who wish to look up particular names, photostatic copies of the whole book are being prepared and will be placed at the entrance to the memorial chamber.

The ceremony of laying wreaths on the National War Memorial which followed the dedication of the Book of Remembrance was brief. A crowd of several hundred, smaller than in other years because today was not a Civil Service holiday, stood in silence for two minutes, marked by the booming of a gun at nearby Nepean Point.

The Governor-General placed the first wreath and he was followed by Mrs. F. L. Lamplough of Ottawa, representing the mothers of Canada and Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Representatives of various organizations and individuals followed. Lady Byng placed a wreath for the Unknown Soldier.

May Mean Change In Position of French Minister

Ottawa, Nov. 11 —(CP)—Informed sources said today it appears that developments in France may mean a new change in the position of Rene Ristelhueber, French Minister to Canada who lost his diplomatic status here on Monday.

Reports from the French frontier said today Marshal Petain, head of the French state, had declared the armistice terms granted France by Germany in 1940 had been broken by the entry of German troops into Unoccupied France. These dispatches said that Marshal Petain had left the French people free to defend themselves.

This development, if it is confirmed, tended to place France again at the side of the United Kingdom and the other United Nations, Ottawa observers said. In that event, Mr. Ristelhueber, who represented France in Canada before the Vichy Government came into power, might well remain as Minister of his country to Canada.

Canada broke off relations with Vichy following the United States landings in North Africa, which were opposed by Vichy French military forces. Mr .Ristelhueber has not left Canada and there has been no indication he intends to do so immediately.

Some sources said it was possible that a statement on the changed situation in France might come from the government during the day. Voluminous dispatches were being studied and the picture was not clear as yet.

Veteran Ottawa observers said the activity of the day reminded them of a similar November day exactly 24 years ago, when government offices hummed with suppressed excitment as the hour of the First Great War Armistice drew near.

Mr. King went from his office in the East Block—and his study of reports on the European and North African situation—to a solemn ceremony in the Peace Tower where the Book of Remembrance bearing the names of Canada's First Great War dead was placed in its shrine.

Wallbridge

Wallbridge — Some of our hunters have returned from the hunting grounds. Some were successful in securing deer and some were not.

Mr. and Mrs. Omar Chisholm, Ross' Corners, also Mrs. Jack Hendricks and daughters were Tuesday visitors of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Chisholm.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Phillips were guests at Mr. Nobes' on Sunday.

Mrs. S. Hubble, 3rd of Sidney, spent last Tuesday with her daughter, Mrs. B. C. Hinchliffe.

The L. A. and W. M. S. meetings were held at the home of Mrs. H. Ketcheson on Wednesday last.

At the regular Sunday morning service, Rev. L. W. Scott gave a splendid address in the interests of the W. M. S. He stressed the great openings for Missionary work and that the zeal of the church depends on its missionary efforts. The choir gave most appropriate music.

MIGHTY AIR BATTLE OPENS

Japanese Slammed Hard By Allies In South Pacific

Allies Consolidate Bases Secured In North Africa

Amid Welter of Reports Whereabouts Of French Fleet Still Remains a Mystery

PROTESTS WANE

By ROBERT BUNNELLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 12 — (AP) — The air battle for Tunisia was under way today, with Allied bombers getting in the first blows, while German and Italian forces rushed to battle positions in Southern France and Corsica in desperate fear of an Anglo-American invasion of Europe from the south.

Thus were the battle lines drawn in the Western Mediterranean:—

1. Vichy naval chiefs pledged their Toulon battleship squadron to "resist all aggression" and their move according to German-inspired reports kept the Toulon naval base out of Hitler's hands — for the time being at least.

2. Twin-engined bombers of the R. A. F., striking from Egypt, fired 19 planes and damaged as many more in a raid on an airdrome near Tunis where an Allied spokesman declared Axis forces were marshalling despite their denials.

3. The British 1st Army and United States troops were reported sweeping close to Tunisia from the west for a test with the Axis, and they were expected at the Tunisian border today. It was disclosed in London that Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson, Commander of the 1st Army, is in command of this thrust, with Maj.-Gen. Charles Ryder of the American Expeditionary Force working with him.

4. The Italians announced the occupation of Corsica, French Mediterranean Island which Rome has long coveted, and said their troops had passed Nice and reached the Rhone in their part of the occupation of Southern France.

BANDIT TRUSSES EMPLOYEES, ROBS BANK OF $15,000

Dominion Bank Branch, Toronto, Scene of Holdup by Armed Man

NOT CAPTURED

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP)—An armed man held up a branch of the Dominion Bank of Canada in Northwest Toronto today and escaped with from $15,000 to $20,000.

The bandit gained entry to the bank by way of the skylight before the staff arrived for work. He forced members of the staff to open the safe and then trussed them up—the manager, the teller and three girl employees.

They remained tied up for more than an hour before discovery.

The robbery occurred about nine a.m.

The bank is situated at Dovercourt and Davenport Roads.

RUSSIANS REPORT FRESH SUCCESSES AT STALINGRAD

German Attacks Are Weaker as Winter Tightens Grip On Volga City

SNIPERS ACTIVE

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Moscow, Nov. 12 (AP)—A sharp reduction in German air activity over the Stalingrad front was reported today in Soviet military dispatches, which noted that the Nazis were using outdated planes and dropping only small bombs. (This might indicate a shifting of first-line air units to other fronts, perhaps southern Europe.)

During the last 24 hours, barely 200 flights over the lines were observed, the newspaper Pravda said, by comparison with a previous daily average of 1,500 to 2,000 daily.

The German raids were aimed at Russian communication lines. Damage inflicted on towns and villages on the east bank of the Volga was small, and no deaths were caused, the dispatches said.

Nazis Afraid of Grenades

German garrisons, clinging to precarious footholds on the outskirts of Stalingrad, were reported placing metal nets over the windows of occupied houses for protection against Russian hand grenades.

'North African Victory May Yet Become Prelude to End'—Smuts

"Soon Whole of North Africa From Nile to Atlantic Will be in Allied Hands" — Sees Hitler Building Last Hope for Victory on U-Boat

Plymouth, Nov. 12 (CP)—Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, Prime Minister of South Africa, today called the Anglo-American pincers movements in North Africa, "the most amazing transformation in the shortest possible time" and declared, that "if this offensive policy is resolutely followed the African victory may yet become the prelude to the end."

The veteran statesman and soldier made the statement in a speech at a meeting at which Lord Astor, Mayor of Plymouth, conferred the freedom of the city upon him.

Gen. Smuts said confidently that a sa result of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's race west and Lt.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's drive east "soon the whole of North Africa from the Nile to the Atlantic will be in Allied hands."

He warned that so far "we have merely deprived the enemy of valuable bases but they must now become bases for us from which to operate and continue the offensive."

"It is clear from Hitler's last Munich speech," Smuts said, "that he builds his hopes for victory on the U-boat. The enemy U-boat campaign is still on the increase. It is evidently the last hope of Germany."

He suggested creation of an "authoritative, special, supreme staff to supervise this special and deadly campaign" against submarines.

TUNIS AIRDROME, TOBRUK HEAVILY ATTACKED BY RAF

19 Axis Planes Set Afire, as Many Damaged—23 Shot Down In Desert

ROMMEL NEAR RAMBUT

By PAUL KERN LEE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Cairo, Nov. 12 (AP)—Long-range two-engined R.A.F. fighters attacked the El Aouina airfield at Tunis, capital of the French protectorate of Tunisia, setting afire 19 planes definitely identified as German and damaging 19 others, British headquarters announced today.

Scuttling Axis pretensions that German and Italian air forces were not in Tunisia, the R.A.F. reported that the planes known to have been destroyed were all Nazi models—11 Junkers 87's, five Junkers 52s, two Focke-Wulf 200's, and one Fieseler Storch.

The attack, which a communique said was carried out yesterday, presumably was launched from the island of Malta, Britain's "unsinkable aircraft carrier" in the mid-Mediterranean. It is 200 miles off the Tunisian coast. Tunis is out of fighter range of Egyptian airfields, some 1,200 miles away.

While this attack was in progress ground forces were pursuing Field Marshal Rommel's broken African corps into Libya.

The planes hit at Tunis were in addition to 23 Axis aircraft shot down in battles over the desert as the Allied air superiority was thrown against what is left of Rommel's air power in Libya. Six of these planes were large transport carriers apparently being used either to bring reinforcements to Rommel or to speed up his headlong retreat.

The R.A.F. smash at the Tunis Airdrome was made as United States troops were speeding toward the Tunisian border from the west, determined to crush any Axis attempt to take over the French Protectorate, and at the same time be in a position to intercept Rommel's retreat.

The British Command announced that the mass of Rommel's tattered army had reached a point between Bardia and Rambut, well within Libya, yesterday, and that his transport was being attacked on the coastal road by Allied fighters and fighter-bombers.

The British communique said that ten Allied aircraft failed to return from the operations in Libya and Tunisia.

British bombers continued to smash at Tobruk where a sizeable garrison of Rommel's troops is waiting the arrival of the Axis desert army, and other formations continued to bomb the airdromes on the Italian Island of Sardinia, jumping-off places for Axis planes operating against Allied troops in Algeria.

Enemy Land Forces Driven Back in New Guinea, Solomons

At Oivi, Near Buni, Japs Forced To Evacuate Strong Positions

STRONG OFFENSIVES

By HAMILTON W. FARON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Nov. 12 — (AP) — On ground and in the air American and Allied troops are slamming hard at the Japanese in the South Pacific, inflicting heavy damage on equipment and driving back enemy land forces on New Guinea and Guadalcanal.

On the ground, reports indicate the action is a strong offensive, pushing back the Japanese attempting to recapture Henderson airfield on Guadalcanal and encircling enemy positions on the northeast coast of New Guinea.

At Oivi on New Guinea, Allied headquarters reported the enemy had been forced from his main positions with heavy losses.

A flanking movement there by Australian troops has cut off the Japanese retreat and "he is endeavoring to cut his way through to the rear," the Allied High Command communique reported.

But American troops are on hand to prevent that manoeuvre, flown by aerial transport to the vicinity of Buna, 55 miles north-east of the Oivi battleground in the Owen Stanley mountain area.

Simultaneously on New Guinea another force of Allied jungle fighters wiped out enemy troops surrounded south of Gorari. No details were given, nor was there any indication of the number of enemy casualties.

Air Battle at Aleutians

The aerial warfare again reached beyond the South Pacific to the far north Aleutians and resulted in the shooting down or destruction of 16 enemy planes, and possible damage to warships, cargo vessels and shore installations.

At Kiska, there has been virtually no action for several weeks, army bombers attacked and damaged two Japanese cargo vessels. One plane was damaged by an anti-aircraft fire but returned to its base.

Army planes also roared down on Holtz Bay on Attu Island near the end of the Aleutians Archipelago and destroyed seven float-equipped Japanese fighting planes. They encountered no opposition.

(Canadian airmen have been active in the Aleutians area but it is not known whether they participated in the latest action.)

PRAISES 2 NAVIES FOR ESCORTING OF U. S. EXPEDITION

War Secretary Knox Says Though Enemy Subs Infested Area, They Were Almost Impotent

INFANTRY'S PLACE

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—War Secretary Henry Stimson said today that despite efforts to keep the North African expedition a secret, the enemy apparently suspected an attack and is believed to have concentrated an extremely large force of submarines in that area.

"The army," he told his press conference, "is deeply grateful to the navy and to the British navy for the magnificent service they rendered in escorting our troops through waters which we know were infested with submarines."

Stimson said that despite the secrecy of the operations it would have been foolish to underestimate the enemy's intelligence to the extent of assuming the Axis knew nothing of the proposed attack on French North Africa.

But, he added, "so vigilant were our naval units that the enemy submarines were almost impotent."

One troop ship was disabled by enemy torpedoes, Stimson said, but the troops aboard launched their landing boats and went ashore.

Stimson said the entire North African operation was not only an outstanding example of efficient ed an attack and is believed to planning and unified command but it proved that the infantry, now as always, has a leading part in warfare, and has not been replaced by more recently developed arms.

NAZIS WILL NOT OCCUPY TOULON SO THEY SAY

Vichy Commanders Pledge Selves to Resist "All Aggressors"

SHIPS 'SAFEGUARDED'

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 12—(AP)—A cautiously-worded broadcast from Vichy today said the Germans—by decision of Hitler himself—would not occupy Toulon, the home of the French fleet in the Mediterranean, because the Vichy Navy commanders there had pledged themselves to resist "all aggressors."

Although this indicated the Germans were satisfied the Vichy French would take care of Toulon themselves if the Allies attacked the base, the report could also be interpreted to mean the sailors were determined to fight the Germans if they attempted to enter.

(A Berlin broadcast said Toulon had been proclaimed a "Camp Retranche" — an area set apart and by-passed.)

Only developments would tell whether the Vichy commanders now at Toulon had entered into an understanding with the Germans or were standing off.

But at any rate it seemed to confirm reports that at least a considerable portion of the fleet was at Toulon.

The broadcast communique said, "At Toulon the chiefs of our Marine, having made an engagement to defend themselves against all aggressors, the German authorities have decided that the fortified port of Toulon will not be occupied and our ships will be safe-guarded."

350 SHIPS OF WAR USED TO MOVE 500 IN CONVOY

'Greatest Amphibious Operation in History' Says Lyttelton

NO DETAILS GIVEN

New York, Nov. 12 — (AP) — Although unable to supply details of the United Nations invasion of French North Africa, Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, British Minister of Production, says "The armadas of history would sink into insignificance if compared with the mighty forces employed."

In an address to the Association of National Advertisers last night, Capt. Lyttelton said the invasion was "the greatest amphibious operation in history."

The number of vessels in the convoy was well over 500, in addition to more than 350 ships of war, he added.

"I think the most encouraging thing for us and the most disheartening to the enemy is the clear evidence which is now shown of unanimity over a broad strategical plan," he declared.

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the United States War Production Board, cautioned against over-optimism over war developments and warned that "what is happening in Africa is only a beginning, not an end . . . the German military organization is immensely powerful; it has lost heavily in Russia, but it will still take a lot of licking."

"And on the other side of the world," he added, "we have only made the barest beginning in the reconquest of the immense and wealthy territories seized by Japan."

Thanksgiving, New Year's Days Of Prayer in U.S.

President Issues Proclamation Beginning "It is a Good Thing to Give Thanks Unto the Lord"

Washington, Nov. 12—(AP)—In an unusual proclamation, President Roosevelt called upon the American people today to observe both Thanksgiving and New Year's as days of prayer.

Devoid of the "whereases" of customary presidential proclamations, this one started with a quotation from the 92nd psalm: "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord."

After reciting the 23rd psalm, Mr. Roosevelt said in his proclamation:

"Inspired with faith and courage by these words, let us turn again to the work that confronts us in this time of national emergency; in the armed services and the merchant marine; in factories and offices; on farms and in the mines; on highways, railways and airways; in other places of public service to the nation; and in our homes."

The proclamation of two national days of prayer followed numerous requests from religious organizations and church leaders throughout the United States asking that this step be taken. The last day of prayer proclaimed by Mr. Roosevelt was last New Year's Day.

BEVAN ASSAILS ADMIRAL DARLAN

Tells British House Darlan "is Bad Man From Any Point of View"

London, Nov. 12. (CP Cable)—Aneurin Bevan, Labor Member of the House of Commons for Ebb Vale and a constant government critic, warned in the House today against playing "too clever a game in treatment of quislings lest Britain lose her friends".

"Darlan is a bad man from any point of view", he said. "Don't try to put these traitorous quislings—these rats now leaving a sinking ship—in place of men who stood staunchly by our side in our most difficult days".

Bevan said the government's decision to ring church bells next Sunday to celebrate the 8th Army's victory in Egypt is "a very silly thing to do".

"You're creating the impression throughout the country that the worst of the job is over", he said. "It's a puritanian set of values you have adopted towards the war".

Hitler, Mussolini Reach Agreement On Command

Moscow, Nov. 12 (AP) — A Tass dispatch from Geneva, Switzerland, today said that Hitler and Mussolini at a meeting in southern Germany had agreed upon establishment of a single command of Axis armed forces in the Mediterranean under a German general.

According to reports from the German frontier, the dispatch said, they also decided that districts of France newly occupied by German and Italian troops would be administered by the Germans. Leading army officers of both countries attended the conference, it was said.

(Vichy broadcasts yesterday reported a meeting of Hitler and Pierre Laval from Monday until Wednesday at Munich which was attended by the German and Italian foreign ministers, Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Count Ciano. This report did not mention Mussolini.)

U.S. Officers Made Daring Survey Of African Situation Before Attack

By C. R. CUNNINGHAM
U. S. Correspondent with the A.E.F. in Africa
(Distributed by The Canadian Press)

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, Nov. 12 — Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower revealed today that his Deputy Commander, Maj.-Gen. Mark W. Clark, made a daring first-hand survey of the French African situation before the American offensive was launched.

Clark and a party of seven officers, Eisenhower revealed, made a 15,000-mile round-trip utilizing almost every conceivable means of transportation to observe personally the temper of the French populace and the possibilities of effective American action.

"Quite a while back," Eisenhower revealed, "the Anglo-American High Command was cognizant that the majority of sentiment in North Africa favored the throwing off of Axis influence and were anxious for American and Allied co-operation in event of an Axis invasion."

Eisenhower said that immediate preparations to give French Africa this aid were launched.

"It was obviously necessary," he said, "to send a professional group to get the reaction of the North Africans because we would be crazy to proceed in the dark.

"As you know, we in America have the tradition of the United States message to Garcia which has now been revived.

"Clark was selected with his group and was told to go and do this job."

Secret Negotiations Held

London — (CP) — Allied Headquarters discussed today that American and British officers had negotiated with pro-Allied French leaders for weeks before the A. E. F. landed in French North Africa.

This confirmed reports heard long ago in London, but held back until now for security reasons, that the Allies had been doing effective undercover work in North Africa.

Hard to Find Enough Ringers

London, Nov. 12 —(CP)— The secretary of the Council of Church Bellringers, G. W. Fletcher, is worried.

He expressed fear today the council is going to fall down on its first big job since the start of the war, the chiming of bells Sunday to celebrate the Egyptian victory.

"We are trying to find bellringers," he said, "but the majority are in the armed forces and there has been no opportunity to train women. There will not be nearly enough for the Sunday occasion."

LOVED HIS BIKE

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 12 (AP)—A Negro and his bicycle were brought into court as part of the evidence in a theft case. The bike had four large headlights, three horns, two bushy fox tails and hanging from the handlebars, three batteries for operating horns and lights, a dozen red reflectors and other gadgets, including a metal devil thumbing his nose. Asked where he got them all, he said: "I's on relief. I don't have to worry about no place to stay or nothing to eat so everything I gets I just spends on my bicycle."

Turkish, Russian Leaders Exchange Friendly Messages

Moscow, Nov. 12 (AP) — The publication of an exchange of messages between the leaders of Turkey and the Soviet Union in connection with the 19th. anniversary of the creation of the Turkish Republic was seen here today as a sign of improved relations between the two nations.

Premier Joseph Stalin sent to Prime Minister Sukru Saracoglu his congratulations and best wishes for a flourishing Turkey and received a reply expressing gratitude and friendly feelings.

The messages represented a marked improvement in Soviet-Turkish relations following difficulties over the Ankara trial of two Russians in connection with a plot to bomb Franz Von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey. An appeal has been granted them.

Africa-Bound Forces Attacked Final Day in Mediterranean Sea

(By WILLIAM B. KING)
(U.S. Correspondent with the A.E.F. in North Africa)

Aboard a Transport with a U.S. Amphibious Battle Force in the Mediterranean. Nov. 7 (Delayed) (AP)—The explosive crash of a torpedo striking the ship just behind us ushered in the eventful final day of our convoy voyage carrying British and United States troops to a point from which landing operations could be carried out against Algeria.

A piercing alarm signal meaning immediate danger for our ship followed immediately.

The ship was smoking heavily and began falling behind as the convoy pushed through the Mediterranean in the grey light of predawn.

Two seamen and a fire control officer described how an enemy plane believed to be Italian glided swiftly in, loosed two torpedoes and disappeared.

Our ship flicked out a query on the signal lamps and after a moment the stricken sister ship replied: "Hit."

Casualties were light.

Two more alarms sounded before lunch time and as sunset approached Axis planes made a determined effort to attack again, but fire from escorting warships kept them so high they appeared only as specks in the sky.

Firing Sporadic

Firing within the convoy was sporadic, but on the horizon a heavy supporting force of British battleships and large carriers could be seen putting up a virtual barrage.

As the day grew darker cannon flashes lighted the horizon and tracer shells cut the sky in lurid flashes.

While anti-aircraft guns were firing, escorting destroyers dropped depth charges.

The day of excitement capped a trip to the Strait of Gibraltar without a single serious threat from U-boat or bomber.

As the day and hour for landing on the beach just east of Algiers grew nearer the men cleaned

Germans Claim Liner Queen Elizabeth Torpedoed in Atlantic

Berlin, (From German Broadcasts), Nov. 12 (AP)—The German High Command claimed today the 85,000-ton British passenger ship Queen Elizabeth, sister ship of the Queen Mary, had been torpedoed in the North Atlantic. (The report lacked any confirmation.)

(The German High Command did not claim the ship had been sunk.)

It was the Liner Queen Elizabeth which was torpedoed, the High Command claimed, instead of the Battleship Queen Elizabeth as reported in a communique yesterday.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

SMALL MARKET

Despite the season's initial fall of snow and ice-covered highways, several vendors of farm produce appeared on today's local market after playing their wares. For the greater part the produce offered for sale included apples and vegetables, with no change in prices from the last day's showing. At eleven o'clock this morning there were five market gardeners busily engaged in waiting customers.

TRANSPORT STALLS ON HILL IN CITY

The result of icy pavements, following today's early-morning snowfall, a large Toronto motor transport stalled on the West Bridge St. hill when the wheels failed to obtain traction on the ice-covered hill. The machine backslid into the curb without any degree of damage. It was the first motor hazard of the season as the result of snow and ice. Later and was procured and traction obtained to allow the large, bulky vehicle to proceed westerly.

ANOTHER QUIET DAY IN POLICE CIRCLES

For the second day in succession activities in and around city and district police circles proved tranquil. While patrolling early this last night police found a basement window in the Bell Telephone building shattered. Investigations proved the culprit had evidently kicked the window in and beat a hasty retreat. Other than this no ads were obtained and they will report at the Chief Constable's office after hours this evening.

Kingston police reported the theft of a 26" model Dunsmuir bicycle bearing licence plates number 34-97-97 last night.

TWO-INCH FALL OF SNOW IN CITY

Snow shovels and sand pails made their initial appearance on Belleville streets and sidewalks this morning as a two-inch fall of snow during the night had been transformed into ice by the passage of traffic wheels. The city sander was out early with both street intersections and sidewalks in the centre of the city receiving a liberal coating of sand to facilitate the passage of traffic and to relieve the possibility of accidents through slippery pavements.

Calls from the residential districts to the city hall for sand were made from the municipal bins, but a bright sun indicated the snow and ice on sidewalks and streets would soon disappear as slush. Snow shovelling was the order of the day soon after breakfast, however, with snow removal equipment being dragged out of the municipal garage to cope with the season's first fall of snow.

HUNTING PARTY SECURES QUOTA

The most successful deer hunting season in a lifetime of hunting experience is the report of Mr. Fred Sharpe of Bellevile, who with nine other district men has returned to their homes after a month of Milltridge. For the first time since the party have been hunting in the Milltridge district this was the first year, that the full quota of deer for each man had been brought out of the bush.

Included in the party were Jim Hanna and Ivor Hanna, two members of the staff of the Belleville Trail Company, at their balsam being men from the district.

P.-O. G. Hartman Was Member Of Oakville Crew

Trenton (Special)—Trenton is busily engaged in the construction of H.M.C.S. "Oakville" which was so successful in destroying a German submarine in the Atlantic. The entire crew recently spoke on community night in the Capitol theatre. The Oakville's crew was one of Trenton's own sons, Petty Officer Gordon Hartman, only son of Mr. and Mrs. V. Hartman, Sundas St. West. Gordon joined the navy at the age of 18 and has steadily worked himself to his rank.

At the opening day of Canada's Third Victory Loan, Petty Officer Gordon Hartman through his mother was the first citizen to buy a Victory Bond. Chairman Hall in telling a fine example for all the people in the broad forest Gordon at the time had been spending a leave at his home and that he had left only before returned to his ship leaving his mother with his smokin' with instructions to buy a bond for him.

Memorial Service Held

Trenton (Special)—The Memorial Day service held in Trenton on Wednesday morning was attended by a large congregation under bitterly cold weather. The parade was led by the band marching to the floor ever to lead a parade in Trenton, the officers, Lt.-Col. F. B. McGill of the R. C. A. F. The veterans were led by Comrade F. B. Joyce, but were followed by a detachment of the R.C.A.F. The impressive reason lacked the fact that many have rejoined His Majesty's Forces and others are in the R.C.A.F. overseas, and since last year have passed to their last reward. The guard of honor was composed of the Canadian Legion Women's Auxiliary, and a detachment of the R. C. A. F. led by the popular Commander.

Wreaths were laid at the Cenotaph in Governor Simcoe Park was conducted by Rev. Canon Curtis, M.C., Rector, Minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, assisted by other Trenton clergymen.

The Last Post was sounded by an R.C.A.F. bugler, after which two minutes silence was observed in memory of those who had fallen then "Reveille", "Abide with Me" and "God Save the King."

Wreaths were laid by various organization, as well as one by Mrs. Bowerman, Mrs. Ross Bowerman, grand old ladies, who lost a son in the Great War.

Rotary Meets

Reverend Father Darley of St. Frank's Church, Trenton, was guest speaker at the regular weekly meeting of the Rotary Club on Monday evening, and took as his subject "Friendship."

Father Darley pointed out that all must have ideals, from the smallest kid in their class at school to the great leaders of the nation. Everyone should be interested in government and naturally every child has different ideals, and as childhood develops into youth and manhood ideals are vastly changed but the greatness in life is the ideals of adults we must have but one ideal in common, "Trust", said Father Darley, "is borne out in the four freedoms of the Atlantic Charter; Freedom of Want, Freedom from Fear, Freedom of Religion and Freedom of Speech. "If we are to encourage each of Hitler and others who tend to destroy these four freedoms, we must be willing to our higher ideal," said the speaker.

A letter of appreciation of a dinner and tour given to visitors of 6 A. R. D. was read from Group-Captain Keddy, Officer Commanding 6 A. R. D., also a letter from Mr. Jack Willard, of the Adanac Club, Frankford, thanking Rotary for a flag which had been presented to that club.

Visitors at Monday evening's meeting were eight LAC.'s from 6 R. D.: George Graham, Oak Lake, Man.; Fred Dow, Drumheller, Alta.; Norman Bishop, Toronto; Leonard Delaney, Toronto; Edmund O'Keefe, Guelph; Clarence Patterson, Windsor; and Lawrence Lang, Oakville; also Mr. Robert Elgie, Toronto and Ed. # Bases on Entire N. Coast of Africa Would Reopen Mediterranean to Allies

(By DON WHITEHEAD)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cairo, Nov. 10 (Delayed) — Given bases along the entire coast of North Africa, United Nations land forces could control the Mediterranean, cause incalculable damage to Axis shipping, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder, commander-in-chief of the R.A.F. Middle East command, said today.

The new type fighting which has made air superiority vital, could throw a protective umbrella over shipping along the entire Mediterranean once bases were secured, he said.

And that day, it was indicated, may not be far distant.

Sir Arthur said "American bombers have an improved batting average. I told them they would when they were more experienced."

He disclosed that the Allies did not have air superiority when the battle of Egypt reopened but gained it with paralyzing blows beginning on Sept. 3, Tedder said, as Marshal Rommel's air force never recovered.

"The enemy was knocked off his perch the very beginning," Sir Arthur declared, adding that this was a major factor in the 8th Army's victory over Rommel's battle-really depended on air superiority."

Of the first Allied air assaults, he said, included "a new development and a rather good one," in which Boston bombers carpeted target areas with a pattern of bombs 50 yards apart.

The bombardiers were so proficient, he said, that the Germans soon showered destruction on the battlefield and enemy airdromes.

Devastating Attacks

"Since Benghazi the enemy were more devastating than anything ever seen before," Tedder continued. "They were so methodical, ruthless and impersonal that the enemy was paralyzed under them. They had been given no chance."

Rommel was not given a chance to recover, although apparently he made a desperate effort to strengthen his forces by ferrying planes from Russia. At one point Hitler's Fuehrer Conference Palace which had markings showing it to be headquarters on September 15, after the Allied air drive began.

Whenever enemy air activity increased, Sir Arthur said, Allied fighters returned aloft to protect the Axis planes. The Allied bombers were then free until the air was cleared and then they roared out again to continue their bombing.

The Allied air forces also played an important role in smashing Rommel's supply convoys on sea and land with the bombing down enemy shipping in Italian, Greek and North African ports.

"What really mattered," Tedder declared, "was the supply of the enemy's life blood and stopping his ability to live."

Indications were that the Germans left many planes on their fields when they fled, since there was no other apparent reason for abandoning them.

Sir Arthur said that battered Malta, despite almost daily attacks by Axis air raiders, had been out offensively at enemy shipping.

The same Malta did not escape bombardment, however, flying to his advanced aps.

FROM ONE SIDE TO THE OTHER!

An excellent study of Admiral Jean Darlan, commander of all land, sea and air forces of France, who has now fallen into American hands in North Africa and is now a prisoner of war.

Veterans of Last War Pay Tribute to Fallen Comrades In Ceremony at the Cenotaph

Tribute to fallen comrades of the last Great War was paid by the members of the Army and Navy Veterans, No. 201, and the Canadian National Veterans when on Wednesday evening they marched to the Cenotaph on Station Street to lay wreaths as part of Remembrance Day ceremony.

Approximately 100 veterans of the Great War, together with members of the local Canadian Women's Auxiliary, marched from the Bellevile Armouries along King Bridge, Front and Station streets to the Cenotaph where wreaths were laid in honor of their fallen comrades. The ceremony at the Cenotaph included a short address by Adjutant Smith of the Salvation Army Band and the Last Post and Reveille sounded over the party. The Salvation Army Band and the Argyll and Sutherland accompanied the veterans to the Cenotaph, the former leading during the singing of "Abide With Me" at the close of the ceremony. The Argyll Band the same route of march the veterans dispersed in the Armouries.

Wreaths placed at the Cenotaph in honor of fallen heroes included those of the Canadian Legion Women's Auxiliary, Belleville; Argyll Light Infantry; 21st Battalion and 18th Battalion.

Bells to Ring In Australia

Melbourne, Nov. 13 — (CP) — Archbishop Mannix Curtis stated today that all churches throughout Australia will ring their bells next day in thanksgiving for victory in North Africa.

Prime Minister Churchill announced yesterday that church bells in Britain, silenced since invasion threatened in June, 1940, will ring out Sunday morning to celebrate the African victory.

Then they will be silenced again for the duration, except as heard in line of their appointed wartime task—to notify the people that the enemy has invaded Britain.

POLICE COURT

Russell Phillips, 17-year-old Gunnar youth, was given a two years' suspended sentence by Magistrate J. L. # 17 Jap Bombers Shot Down By U. S. Fighters

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Destruction of 17 Japanese bombers and fighters which tried to attack American positions on Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands was announced today by the United States navy.

Seven United States fighters were lost.

In addition to the planes definitely destroyed the American fighter planes intercepted two enemy five bombing formations over Guadalcanal on Wednesday (Guadalcanal time), five Japanese bombers and fighters were shot down and probably destroyed.

Those definitely shot down raised the total of Japanese planes listed in two communiques as having been shot down or otherwise destroyed to 866 in the Solomons campaign.

A navy communique said the first attack on Wednesday was made by 10 enemy dive bombers and 12 fighters.

American interceptors — Grumman Wildcats — shot down 5 bombers and 5 fighters.

The day's second attack, also by fifty-bomber formation, was broken by 26 bombers and five fighters. This time the Wildcats bagged six bombers.

Three additional enemy bombers and two fighters were reported "as probably destroyed during the encounters," the navy said.

No details of the loss of seven United States fighters was given.

KING GEORGE VI COLONEL-IN-CHIEF OF ARMY CADETS

His Majesty Approves Name of "Royal Canadian Army Cadets"

Ottawa, Nov. 12 —(CP)— Royal recognition in the Canadian Army Cadet Movement in Canada today was announced. Department announcement that King George has graciously become honorary colonel-in-chief of the cadets and approved the name "Royal Canadian Army Cadets."

The announcement follows completion of plans to expand the cadet movement, whereby the training received by army cadets and associate them more closely with the Reserve Army.

Under these plans C. C. O. M. Grier, Headmaster of Bishop's College School at Lennoxville, Que., recently appointed Director of Cadets at National Defence Headquarters.

Today's announcement disclosed that a French-speaking officer will be appointed shortly as Assistant Director, that a revised syllabus of training has been prepared and that new cadet uniforms are being designed.

Uniforms Supplied

The uniforms will be supplied through the Cadet Department at a cost of not more than $18. Or the Department will pay half, with the cadet corps or the individual cadet paying the balance of the total amount.

IN SYMPATHY WITH U.S.

C. Wannamaker, Frankford, Lost in Woods in Cashel Twp.

Bancroft, (Special) — Missing from his hunting lodge in Cashel township since Wednesday, Charles Wannamaker, aged Frankford resident, is believed to be in the woods, according to word received here.

Wannamaker left his camp with two hunting companions, Walter Wyrd and Ernest Carter of Stockdale, when he became separated from the party. He failed to return to the hunting camp on Wednesday night and early this morning a searching party led by Chief Fire Ranger Milton Brought set out to the Gunter district to search for the missing hunter.

Although freezing temperatures were prevalent on Wednesday night there was a slight trace of snow in the woods and this might aid in tracking the missing man and assisting him being found it is thought. Considerable anxiety is being felt for Wannamaker's safety, however, owing to his advanced age.

Toronto Man Lost Earlier

Earlier in the week C. C. Johnson, 131 Danforth Ave., Toronto, spent overnight in the woods seven miles south-west in the woods, Peter after being lost in the woods while hunting in the Nerry district.

A searching party led by Fire Ranger William Stringer conducted a search for the missing Johnson. Provincial Constable Allan Pulatski, employee of D. K. Card, lumber operator in the Mink Lake district, found Johnson who was found on the shore of Mink Lake Saturday afternoon.

According to Johnson the night he spent in the woods was the most terrible experienced during his life. He had no food and a steady rain soaked his clothes. The temperature was below freezing. Fortunately Johnson did not attempt to find his way out of the woods and was brought in apparently the same locality in which he was reported missing.

Italy Seeks Justification By Unconfirmed Claims

New York, Nov. 12. (AP)—The Rome radio in a frenzied attempt to advance greater justification for the movement of Axis forces into France and Corsica asserted today that Americans had debarked on Martinique and Guadeloupe in the French Guiana, French possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

There has been no Allied report of any such landings. Less than a month ago it was announced in Washington that negotiations designed to clarify the status of the French Colonial possessions in the Caribbean were nearly completed after being carried on for some months.

EASIER TO RAISE A DUCK

Indianapolis, Nov. 12 (AP) — An unidentified many reported to police headquarters that his pet duck was missing. He was asked to report his message to the radio dispatcher who in turn advised him that it was "easier to raise a duck." That was enough for the exasperated duck owner who broke in: "I'll be on 711 raise another duck."

Two-Front War Already a Grim Reality for Hitler

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

A few months ago rumors, obscure, the war scene in Europe, but not sufficiently to hide one outstanding fact:

Virtually overnight, Allied initiative in Africa has changed a static battle of attrition to one of comparable military fluidity.

France, all of France, continental as well as colonial, is again in the war theatre. The vicious Franco-Axis armistice is at an end, scrapped by the Nazis. The Vichy regime in conquered France, born of the unrealized Laval-Petain expectation that Britain's days were ruled to Hitlerism, is dead or dying. The spectre of a reborn fighting France is arising to haunt Nazi dreams.

For the first time in the war Hitler is on the defensive on all fronts, even in Russia. He has been outgeneraled in strategy and outmatched at his favorite propaganda game. Two-front warfare, not of his own making, is already a grim reality for the Axis. A three- or four-front Allied attack may be upon him soon; and another Russian winter. The whole continent he overran but failed to master is seething with unrest that bodes him no good.

The jaws of a vast Anglo-American trap are closing in upon Rommel's army in Libya and aiming also for a knockout blow at what Winston Churchill calls the vulnerable "under-belly" of the Nazi-Fascist conspiracy—Italy.

What share France is to have in this swift and astounding change of scene on the war screen none can yet say. But the cheers of the people applaud Allied initiative even if it makes all France again a battle-ground, as well as saying. "On armistice day 1943, French men and women, wherever, loyal to the gospel of liberty, fraternity and equality, knew their truth real hope of escape from bitter memories of that other shameful armistice scene in Compiegne forest when France was surrendered to her ancient foe.

Much now depends upon French reaction to the Nazi re-invasion, both at home and in such isolated colonial points as Dakar, Morocco and Algeria have yielded to the American occupation forces. Whether Dakar, unattacked, will turn against the Axis remains to be seen, offer an important new Allied sea base remains to be seen.

Hitler based his violation of the French armistice on military necessity. The Anglo-American armies were about to invade Southern France and Corsica, he said. It does not sound plausible. Italy, not France, is the prime Allied target once an Axis defeat in Africa is completed. It must be to avert such a route across the Mediterranean that Hitler risked French reentry into the war against him.

Air-borne Nazi troops were reported to be in French Tunisia in violation of the armistice terms. But move in France was made. Italian marines were said to be in Bizerte. American troops had advanced at least 120 miles eastward from Algiers and, at Bougie, were 100 miles from the Tunisian border. Now that French resistance in Algeria has collapsed they should reach Tunisia in force quickly to come to grips with Axis troops in the crucial struggle of the campaign. Shaping up there.

All things considered, Hitler is in thin ice. There are signs of spread weakness of a Russian winter offensive impending on the Russian front. It would be folly for Hitler pulls air power or troops out of Russia for action in the Mediterranean.

Churchill told Parliament that both the Channel and North Sea coasts of the Continent would see Allied offensives "in due course." And Europe spared daleblows in Norway, Hitler dare not leave them unmanned.

Churchill also said that any indications of "enemy evacuation" would be instantly expedited attacks in the west. And there is no other source than the Russian front from which Hitler could get planes and troops for his widened necessities in France.

London, (CP)—N.Z. V.C." in the Birmingham Evening Dispatch is submitted as the world record for the shortest headline of the war.

Rebekahs Observe 22nd Birthday

Stirling, Nov. 12 (Special)—An eventful history of the past twenty-two years was observed at a special meeting arranged at a dance of the Stirling Lauret Rebekah Lodge No. 311 on Tuesday evening, Nov. 10th. This lodge was instituted on Nov. 11th, 1920. Each Past Noble Grand was introduced to the gathering and responded to the roll call of the first meeting by wardens and conductor where a solemn and impressive recitation ceremony was performed. After the ceremony each honored guest was presented with a lovely corsage by N.G. Sis. Ethel Duffin. At the conclusion of the regular lodge, a well arranged program by the program committee headed by Bro. MacIntosh was thoroughly enjoyed by the large gathering which included many visitors and friends.

Fine Program

Under the direction of Sis. Isobel MacIntosh the program opened with community singing of a brief programme of harmony in keeping with Memorial Day was observed. This was followed by a two minute silent period and the singing of "We'll Never Let You Down Old Flag Pals", D.D.G.M. Sis. Gena Spry then offered prayer. The remaining portion of the program was varied and entertaining in every respect and included vocal duets by Marjorie Saunders and Arlene Tummon, readings by Sis. Ethel Dimond and Aletha Murray and a group of games directed by Sister Cyril and Sis. Tinman. A dainty luncheon was served and the cutting and serving of a large birthday cake added an interesting evening, that closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Conserving Power Is Important Wartime Job

Electric power has been frowned in the cities of Toronto and Quebec residents since September 30 when the Department of Munitions and Supply order on power saving went into effect.

By this time every person in and around Belleville, Trenton and Quinte, the machines powered with electricity to produce war weapons could tell you! Keep to production schedules unless the householders in these districts conserve greater power consumption by at least 20 per cent.

To help meet this difficulty, lights in shop windows and electric signs were blacked out. In some cities and towns the bulbs in street lamps were changed to bulbs with smaller wattage, and so on all the way down the line. To make this drive really effective, every single householder in the two provinces must continue to help.

These suggestions for conserving power are made by Consumer Information Service.

Rearrange furniture so that the number of lamps required in any one room will be reduced. One lamp can serve the whole room, and if the light is properly directed will not interfere with reading. Do not decorative lamps, or lights in wall brackets. They should be "out" for the duration.

Householders must get out of the habit of leaving lights switched on one front door, or leaving a hall lamp on.

Except in rooms which are prepared for blackout, heavy curtains and draperies should be avoided. These cut down on the light entering the room in the daytime, and sometimes make it necessary to turn on lights earlier in the day than is absolutely necessary.

Remember to do as much cooking, washing, or ironing during non-peak load hours. Peak loads, those periods during which the greatest amount of electricity is being used by industry, occur between 11.30 a.m. and 2.30 p.m., and around 5 and 6 o'clock when the lights go on in the offices, factories and war plants.

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw, Ont., Nov. 12—The regular meeting of St. Mark's Young People's Society was held in the Sunday school rooms on Tuesday of last week, Carl Heath presiding, and a good attendance.

After the business portion of the meeting an interesting program of contests, games, etc., was given with Bob Cosley and Marion Richardson in charge. Fifteen dollars was voted into the association funds for church purposes.

On Tuesday evening last Dr. Hammond, consultant of the Department of Agriculture gave an interesting and instructive talk in the Sunday school rooms of St. Mark's church. His subject was "White Grube" and was illustrated with lantern slides.

The program was under the auspices of the Springbrook Women's Institute. Pte. Pearson, R.C.A.F. Baker thanked Dr. Hammond for his splendid address. At this meeting also the draw was made for the blanket on which the ladies had booked. Miss Ruth Bateman being the winner.

6th Tyendinaga

6th Tyendinaga — The Y.P.U. met at Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Treverton's Friday night with an attendance of 22. The president, Mrs. J. Lawrenson opened the meeting with hymn 255, and the Lord's prayer in unison. Roll Call was answered with a passage of Scripture with the word "Faith". Mrs. C. Goodman took over the meeting. Hymn 230 was sung. Rev. McKenzie led in prayer. The Scripture lesson was read by Marjorie Lancaster followed by short poems by Donna Lancaster and Joy McKenzie. Mrs. Lawrenson, Carmelita and Madeline Ashby and Douglas Wannamaker sang the duet "Rugged Cross" which was enjoyed by all.

It being literary night, Mrs. McKenzie in her usual capable manner gave a talk on a visit to Loyal fellows study and recited a poem, "The Song of the Silt." Douglas Wannamaker then favored with instrumental music. Mrs. Charlie Treverton gave a reading from one of Hawthorne's writings. Collection was 90c. Closing hymn 259; and the Mizpah Benediction. All enjoyed two contests and lunch was served.

Some from this line-attended anniversary service at Plainfield and Long Island Sunday morning.

Douglas Shaw spent Sunday with Alton Goodman.

Wreath Stolen From National Memorial

Ottawa, Nov. 12 —(CP)— A wreath deposited at the foot of the National War Memorial by Mrs. Rachael Hawn of Ottawa, was stolen shortly after she had placed it there. The wreath was in memory of her son, Leading Seaman David Hawn, killed on the Jervis Bay, Nov. 5, 1940. The Ottawa branch of the Canadian Legion placed Mrs. Hawn's gift with another wreath soon after she discovered the original one was missing.

Frankford

Mr. Churchill's Review

Prime Minister Churchill said yesterday that "the House may be sure many events are going to happen in the next few days" and somewhat later in the day came the dispatch that all French North Africa, including Morocco, had capitulated to the American expedition on Wednesday morning. The surrender does not include the French protectorate of Tunisia where Germans have arrived and toward which the British-American expedition is proceeding to meet the Germans.

Events are moving rapidly that it is difficult to keep abreast of them as dispatch crowds other dispatches on the new developments. The German scrapping of the armistice with France is looked upon as one of the very important developments for France as well as for the trend of events along the inland Sea.

Somewhere in the future another great event awaits, the new front with the attack in due time across the Channel or the North Sea against Germany. Of this attack in Northern Europe Mr. Churchill said "such attacks require an enormous degree of preparation, vast numbers of special landing craft and a great army trained division by division in amphibious warfare." Then he added, "All this is proceeding, but it takes time," and then he said, "should the enemy become demoralized at any moment, the same careful preparations would not be needed."

Mr. Churchill's periodical reviews are always enlightening and especially in these momentous days when the whole complexion of the situation is changed with the British and American operations in the Mediterranean and French North African colonies. He explained how Russia had been aided by Britain who engaged more than half of the enemy fighter forces with the inclusion of Malta and the Middle East, how thirty-three Nazi divisions were held in the west while a third of the enemy fighter strength is there not to mention the large share of the enemy bomber strength waiting in the event of an attempted invasion on the beaches. In the north German forces were kept occupied. Such large shipping operations had been sent to Russia as to bring reproach for the comparatively ill-equipment of Britain's own troops. Premier Stalin was consulted in the invasion problems and Russia and the other Nations he said were in complete understanding on the Mediterranean operations. British efforts in production of war materials and the efforts in the army and navy should be a source of pride and thanksgiving to British as well as to the Allies.

The offer by the brother with candour and open-heartedness Mr. Churchill had given full credit to President Roosevelt "as the author" of the mighty undertaking of the United States in Northwest Africa, saying "in all of it I have been his active and ardent lieutenant."

Master of Oratory

The poet and master of diction and phrase and concrete expression which Mr. Churchill is, was shown in his speech at the Lord Mayor's banquet Tuesday, when he painted one of the great word pictures which people of this age will not forget. Of the victory of the Battle of Egypt he said that "the bright gleam has caught the helmets of our soldiers and warmed and cheered all our hearts." It means that the rising sun of victory is shining.

What a sympathetic portrayer in imagery he is when he says of France that "we have no wish but to see France free with her Empire gathered around her and with Alsace and Lorraine restored."

Always he sees in mood when he drew a forecast of German prisoners coming in droves "just as they did the last time."

Mr. Churchill is one of the most intriguing of men in his many gifts. He is one of the keenest wits and humorists, possesses one of the greatest minds analytical and constructive, his is the mind of practical statesmanship, the mind well-attuned in history and political science. He possesses the qualities of the poet and orator, he is historian, master of repartee, he is a great observer of life and is fearless and strong. Such a myriad-minded personality has stood the free world in good stead for he towers among men like an Atlas bearing more than a great share of the burden of humanity.

THAT MOSQUITO AGAIN

"Dear Boss:

While you were out entertaining over the weekend, I slipped out of the family dugout in the lower right hand drawer of your desk and trotted over to the City Hall for the annual tete-a-tete with Philandering Philomena, that blonde mosquito hussy who sponges off the city fathers for ten months of the year.

The other two months she hangs around the Wharf Street Debating Club snatching information as to what the boys are going to do for the potential city fathers when they gather there for the annual bun-feed and dry-cleaning.

Philly, I call her that because she has a face like a horse, was as gloomy as an undertaker in a depression. It seems there is as much interest around the City Hall corridors in the forthcoming election as an old maid shows in a fifteen-year-old coming-out party.

The only change thus far, Philly said, happened the other night when the boys said they would agree not to drive folks to the polls in automobiles to vote. She also said that a couple of the boys that rule the city roost were casting curious eyes at a couple of ex-army horses and broken down wagons. It mebbe a hay-ride election, after all.

Philly, she also said that election day was just another 24 hours in the smooth tenor of life at the City Hall. There won't be room for any of the good old crowds who used to come in the boys, before and after the polls, tell what they'd do for dear old Belleville. There just ain't room. Which, after all, you will agree won't make much difference, for the only functions the boys and girls who sign on the ballot dotted line, turned out in numbers like fur coat salesmen at a nudist convention.

Which is a matter of fact, Philly said, if one more voter had turned up, that gang in front of the stage would have had a fourth for bridge.

But, Boss, we'll have some fun after all. We'll have a fight for the boss' place and the thirteen advisers have thrown their hats in the ring, or have indicated they will.

Large shock of the Wharf Street Debating Club laddies should have a good party. It's two years now since the city poppas went on the block for the sins they've committed or should've committed and it should be interesting when the "verbal dry-cleaners" go to work. It's all good clean fun, and the hot dogs are usually good."

Yours affectionately,

"W'unnie," the office mosquito.

P.S.: "Oh, Boss, I nearly forgot. You should check up on your army dress regulations. That good-looking blonde in the blue tailored suit who was down here last night while we sound asleep I dreamed I was at a church service, and when I awoke I found I was at a church service. . . . Front Street chiseller is the potential victim: "Hey, buddy, gimme 47c for a hot dog, willya?" "Forty-seven cents for a hot dog?" queried the P. V. "What for?" The F.S.C. smiled. "Can I help it if I want to eat it in a hurry . . ." Slight-ly. . . . This department store which is so patriotic it always keeps its chintz up . . . And Dick Harrison, of the Windsor Star remarked after reading a heading "A Little Starvation Good in Wartime" . . . "Praise the Lord, and Pass the Malnutrition" . . . "Heard near the bulletin boards . . . "If the Moroccan army armed to the teeth with us it will be the African Riffs against the European riff-raff . . . A word to the wise. Don't believe street rumors you hear about the swift-moving events of the day. Check your newspaper or authentic radio broadcasts. Let's not be "carried away" by reports of arm-chair strategists or sidewalk generals.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

NOV. 12th., 1922.

Mr. Robert D. Macaulay, son of Judge C. D. Macaulay, spent yesterday here with relatives.

Mr. Robert Graham and Mr. Gordon Robertson, Belleville boys now attending Toronto University, took in the Varsity-Queens rugby game in Kingston yesterday and are here to spend Sunday.

The teachers and students at the Belleville High School were photographed at the school campus this morning.

On Wednesday evening next a meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. for the purpose of organizing an indoor baseball team to enter the league. Mr. Fred Cushing, who is organizer of the league, trusts that there will be a large turnout.

30 YEARS AGO

NOVEMBER 13th., 1912.

Mrs. John Lake has been elected President of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in fill the vacancy caused by the removal of Mrs. C. H. Adams from the city.

Messrs. W. J. Diamond, S. J. Weddon, S. A. Gardner, J. N. Harker, J. Harris and F. Harte, members of the Belleville World-Beaters hockey, are attending the Flower Show in Toronto.

Mr. F. Grayden of Picton was in town today.

Mr. P. R. Thompson of Boston, Mass., is renewing acquaintances in town.

40 YEARS AGO

NOVEMBER 13th., 1902.

Mr. Butchinson Crobers of Northport is spending a week in the city renewing acquaintances. He first became a citizen here in 1856 when a lad. He was connected with the first Belleville Rifles Corps in 1866 until his removal to Kingston and served at Ambherstburgh in 1866-68 and at Aultsville in 1866. Many friends are pleased to see him.

Mr. John Wipchester of Toronto, who was the star goal tender of the Belleville hockey team come time ago, is renewing acquaintances in town, and is a guest at the home of Mr. Curtis Bogart, Bridge Street east.

The Rev. Dr. Crothers, pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church, will preach in Kingston on Sunday.

50 YEARS AGO

NOVEMBER 13th., 1892.

The recent changes in the staff of the C. P. R. have necessitated the removal of Mr. W. N. Moseley to the head office at Montreal where his rapid rise is anticipated by many Belleville friends who know his ability and sterling qualities. Before leaving the city Capt. Moseley expressed in an address the regret of the officers of the 15th. Battalion, C. A. T. I. at losing so efficient and energetic member of the corps as Lieut. Macauley and presented him with a handsome field glass. The address was signed by Capt. Ponton, Lieut. Charles Clapp, Lieut. H. D. Hulme and the following committee: Georges Stenton, T. W. R. McRae, D. A. Gilmour, Archie McFee, H. McCall, J. J. Thompson, H. C. Thompson and E. F. Rous.

QUATRAINS

As Shakespeare Said

As everywhere the Danes with dread
The crime of Adolf Hitler men mark
It's surely true, as Shakespeare said,
There's something rotten now in Denmark.

Don't Talk

No friend will ask you to disclose
What would be helpful to our foes,
Who seeks what can't be told to all
Is surely working for the foe.

Our Soldiers

Not strangers these who fight our foes
But boys that someone loves and knows
Fine lads — before Pearl Harbor
Who on our daughters used to call.

Service

To walk the mile which once we rode,
To bear a little heavier load,
To work and serve the long war through,
That's all that we are asked to do.

LOSS DUE TO SUBS IN ATLANTIC CUT TO LOWEST LEVEL

Only Eleven Merchantmen Sunk During Month of October

(By JERRY TALE)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 12 (AP) — Enemy submarines which numbered 111 Allied and neutral merchantmen in the Atlantic during June, the highest monthly total since 1918, in October, 1942, found the lowest kill in that area, recorded announcements showed today.

But the battle of the Atlantic entered a new phase with opening of the French North Africa front presaging heavier United Nations supply ship traffic through submarine-infested North and South Atlantic waters.

Navy Secretary Frank Knox foresaw "an ocean of subs" awaiting supply ships bound for Europe and Africa.

The British Air Ministry reported two months ago the majority of U-boats spotted were in the Bay of Biscay, where they could operate en route to and from hunting grounds in the Atlantic, with the British Isles and air patrol gauntlet. American Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Canadian Navy chief the Rt. Hon. Angus L. Macdonald, also have in new round-the-clock offensive against the U-boat menace.

Convoy System Lauded

Prime Minister Churchill, who lauded the convoy system of Atlantic warfare, said recently that losses to submarines still were heavy.

Although enemy submarines cut deep into the Allied merchant marine during October, 609,000 tons as listed by the First Lord of the Admiralty in the Commons, compared to 870 the number destroyed, damaged or captured.

At least 830 merchantmen have been announced sunk in the west-ern Atlantic since the United States entered the war, Associated Press compilations showed, including 301 American vessels, 92 British, 49 Norwegian and 38 Panamanian.

Fourteen ship captains are known to have been taken prisoner aboard Axis U-boats and raiders. Others have lost four shippers, the United States Army, Navy, Britain and Panama, Latvia, Greece, Uruguay and Poland one each.

According to government surveys Canada has at least 107 peat bogs, Ontario having 45 with an estimated 2nd total area of 1,000,000 acres, and Quebec 27 with 76,178,000 tons.

Small enough to be carried in a pocket, a Geiger counter has been invented by a Chicago man which can detect radium, cancer tumors and amounts of gasoline and oil.

Spanish and French aviation interests are planning an exchange of facilities for the operation of Spanish-owned Atlantic airports at Dakar and between Madrid and the Canary Islands.

An inflated rubber ball covered with chalina has been invented by a resident of Connecticut for cleaning the inside of pipe lines, being inflated to fill a pipe after insertion.

The Swedish government is aiding manufacturers in experiments in the production of a form of synthetic rubber that can be used for furnishing and for insulation.

A platform to be carried on a can be hooked to rungs at any desired height, invented by an Illinois inventor's ladder that is mounted on a tip proof tripod.

The Australian National Railways are using but one locomotive to haul trains between Montreal and Halifax, a distance of 841 miles, the longest single locomotive run in existence.

A sliding rule invented by a New York state man to measure the barrels of oil contained in tanks is shaped with a table showing the average number of barrels per inch for given girth at different gages.

A Philadelphian has invented a lamp using a candle as a source of light, a glass chimney that always remains vertical irrespective of the inclination of the candle, which can be used to hang it on a wall.

Four soil conservation experts from the agricultural department of Agriculture are assisting the Ontario government with the planning conservation of that country's soil and water resources.

For water sports a Youngstown, Ohio, man has invented a boat shaped like a duck, floating covered with rubberized canvas that can be inflated with a bicycle pump and which an outboard motor can be attached.

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 12 (CP) — Malcolm Macdonald, Britain's High Commissioner to Canada, thrilled an audience of British newsmen for 45 minutes with a picturesque description of his visit across the Northwest Territories, the Yukon and Alaska.

Deviating from the usual routine of detailing statistics of Canada's war contribution, the High Commissioner, who has returned home to Ottawa, told of the 1,500-mile Alaska Highway, of the mountains and rivers through primeval forests in which huge bulldozers pushed the right-of-way.

He pictured the romantic country through which the highway passes as the habitat of bears, wolves, and other wild animals. He described how this wilderness was awakened from its sleep by the tramp of marching men and the drone of great squadrons of airplanes," and told how he lay at night in his sleeping bag, listening to the clatter of bulldozer machines on a great airfield.

He described a giant transport plane settling down on this field and two jeeps rolling from its commodious belly and giving birth to twins."

Political leaders learned with interest that Ill-Basil Complexity will keep John Burns, cabinet minister in the 1914-1918 period, informed permanently. One of the great figures of his day, Lloyd George and John Burns with a cabinet colleague of Winston Churchill more than 30 years ago.

Burns still takes a lively interest in events as he has for a century at home.

Persons who know their London and Burns, take delight in pointing out that Burns is a keen student of painting. Many British artists used him as their model. "Vulcan," in the centre crossing Charing Cross between the House Office and the Northumberland Hotel, Sir Edwin Paul Mountford modelled him in the nude. Burns sat as St. Michael in the Mosaics around the dome at St. Paul's, and in the Hall of Carved Angels over the west door of the cathedral he will be found among the congregation of St. Paul at Athens.

Sir Stafford Cripps' "austerity" in wearing a dinner jacket in the House of Commons made news in Britain, but Lord Castlerosh, Sunday Rome radio commentator; had this to say: "It is a fact that the prospects for real austerity during the next winter are anything but bright in our country. We are aware that a hard winter is expected. But, in spite of it all, we think we are entitled to have a little laugh about the hard times we are suffering and will continue to suffer in the House of Commons."

Leonard Brockington, Minister of Information, has received word from the Canadian Government, that will tell the people of Australia and New Zealand about Canada when he visits there on his return commissions for the British Government.

One of Brendan Bracken's right-hand men, the Winnipeg lawyer is expected to arrive in the United States where he expects to remain a month or two before going to Australia.

"I expect to stay in Australia and New Zealand about three months," he said, "it will be doing much the same sort of work I have been doing here. I want to tell the people there about Canada, and about the Dominion's war effort as well as about Britain's war."

Since coming to Britain nearly eight months ago, Brockington has appeared in scores of broadcasts ranging from Sunday night poetry periods to serious talks and quiz programs. He accompanied Princess Alice on an intensive tour of Scotland. He had a 45-minute argument with the Queen. He flew over the Bay of Biscay with an American bomber squadron.

This will be Brockington's first visit to the Antipodes. "In fact," he declared, "I never did any travelling before 1939—and I haven't stopped since."

The man responsible for looking after Canadian and British prisoners captured at Dieppe and elsewhere in the German zone of operations is M. Feldscher, chief of the protecting power department in Berlin where he holds the diplomatic rank of minister.

Under international law the Swiss government is entitled to visit prison camps, speak to prisoners and make reports to the German Government if he thinks conditions are not good, although he has no power to ensure that these suggestions are put into effect.

Feldscher's opposite number in London is Marcel Peterinen, who has access to German and Italian prisoners of war camps and other departments responsible for administering them.

Political circles are interested in the report that the People's Entertainment Society, a co-operative organization, has plans to go into show business in a big way, Formed about two years ago, the P.E.S. became active last February when it took over the Unity Theatre, with a limit of 200 to a person, were available to individual members and organizations.

Moving spirit behind the P.E.S. is Ivor Montagu, Labor-Left member of parliament. He said the society hopes to produce plays with cultural significance within reach of the pocketbook. Every they are what is theatrically termed commercial or not." — V.E.B. Jones offers now.

Ceiling Set On Potato Prices

Ottawa, Nov. 12 (CP)—Effective today, maximum wholesale and retail prices for potatoes in all parts of Canada will be the highest charged by dealers for that variety sold during the period Nov. 1-10, 1942, the Board of Trade announced.

The Board's statement said the order was necessary because of certain "abnormal increases" in potato prices.

Producers of potatoes by a primary producer thereof to a processor, or by a producer, processor or other dealer, are exempt from the price ceiling but the price on sales to consumer is not to be higher than he charged in the Nov. 1-10 period, the order said.

Seed potato prices are not affected by the new order.

OUR DOCTORS

Experts say there should be at least one physician for every 1,500 people.

The total number of physicians in the United States is estimated at 175,000, of whom about 150,000 are active practitioners, the others retired from practice or in civilian life.

The membership of the American Medical Association is about 121,000.

During the last decade the average number of graduates from American medical colleges has been around 5,000 a year.

Of these, between 300 and 300 have been women.

Elizabeth Blackwell, who received the degree of doctor of medicine at Geneva, New York, in 1849, was the first woman to become a doctor in the United States.

The number of new practising physicians in the United States is about 7,500.

In recent years the American doctor bill has averaged about $13 a year for each man, woman and child in the country.

Imhotep, who lived in Egypt about 3,000 years B.C. was the earliest physician of whom there is record. He was also an architect and pyramid builder.

The Egyptian hieroglyphic for a doctor was a duck. There is nothing new about chloroform in medical practice. Of the Egyptians of the time, Herodotus wrote about 2,400 years ago:

"Medicine is practiced among them on a plan of separation, each physician treats a single disease and no more. Hence the country swarms with medical practitioners, some undertaking to cure diseases of the eye, others of the head, others again of the teeth, others of the intestines, and some of those which are not local."

In Assyria, however, the situation was quite different from Babylonians.

"There have no physicians, but when a man is ill, they lay him in the public street and those passers-by come up to him, and if they have ever had his disease themselves or here known of any one who has had it from it, they give him advice, recommending him to do whatever they found to have cured them, or that in the case known to them; and no one is allowed to pass by in silence without asking the cause of his ailment."

George Bernard Shaw advocated preventive medicine and the abolition of most of his plays he suggested that doctors should be paid only while they kept their clients ill. It has often been said, but incorrectly I believe, that doctors bury their paying doctors' mistakes in China.

Dr. Mary Walker, who died in 1919, was arrested by physicians and surgeons and is never supposed to have practised medicine. Dr. Walker, who died leaving behind the age of 87 years, practised medicine as a doctor at Bethel, Ohio, for eighty years.

THE WAR TODAY

(By GLENN BABB)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

The focal point of this global lightning war shifts hundreds of miles in a single day. Yesterday it was in Morocco and Algeria. Today it is Tunisia. The indications grow that a race for that key to the Mediterranean is developing between the formidable air fleets and the newly-launched Anglo-American combination of mechanized land forces and air and sea power.

The war thus moves to one of history's most sanguinary and decisive battlefields. Tunis was built near the site of ancient Carthage and along that shore was fought out the last bitter-end struggle of the Punic wars. Then, as now, two forces contending for mastery of the known world clashed. One was destroyed with a completeness that has few parallels.

Adolf Hitler four days ago took occasion to rekindle that two worlds are locked now in a struggle which only one can survive. There would be historic justice therefore if the site of Carthage should witness one of the final chapters of this struggle. The United Nations are pledged to the destruction of the Nazi world order—as distinguished from the misguided human masses that live under its direction—and Carthage was that which Scipio Africanus visited on Carthage after his fall in 146 B.C. The ruins were dedicated to the infernal gods, salt was spread above the rubble, human habitation on the whole area was forbidden.

Hitler apparently has reached the Tunisian battlefield first, dropping a few hundred or few thousand air borne troops on its chief air bases while marines of his Italian allies have sought to cross the big naval base at Bizerte. This double lease is only the vanguard of the forces the Fuehrer will seek to throw into Tunisia before the American armored columns plunge across the Algerian frontier or the British fleet is able to bring overpowering strength against Bizerte. The American infantry at work along the roads through eastern Algeria, although up to this moment there was no definite word of their presence farther east than Bougie, 300 miles from the frontier and 200 from Bizerte.

Some quarters suggest that Hitler, compelled to fall back on his air power alone he can not contest Allied command of the seas, will mobilize to the full his Luftwaffe, first to seize the air fields, then land infantry and perhaps light armored units, then seek mastery of the skies against the big fleets of bombers and fighters the Americans and British are moving eastward and westward along the African shore toward a mighty convergence in Tunisia.

There is one suggestion that Hitler may throw as many as 3,000 planes into the battle for the central Mediterranean. This may be beyond his means, but the chances of seeing one of the greatest aerial battles of the war, perhaps the greatest, are good.

Hitler's drive to France's Mediterranean coast clearly shows he realizes that a decisive new phase of the war is opening, one that he can not afford to let go by default. At any rate the fighters above the narrow waters—it is less than a 100 miles from Cape Bon in Tunisia to Sicily—are sure to be dark with the air fleets.

Mass Disturbances Break Out at Lyon

Moscow, Nov. 13—(AP) — Mass disturbances broke out at Lyon yesterday when 10,000 persons marched through in their occupation of the rest of France, and covered demoted "down with Laval" and "long live Free France," Tass, Soviet news agency, reported today in a dispatch datelined Lausanne, Switzerland.

The report said strikes occurred in several factories and a state of emergency was introduced in the city when the police, attempting to arrest demonstrators, were overwhelmed.

Port of Akyab Heavily Bombed, Jap Ships Hit

New Delhi, Nov. 13 (CP) — British Blenheim bombers were reported officially today to have damaged two newly-arrived Japanese supply ships and set fires among the docks in a series of heavy attacks on the port of Akyab on the west coast of Burma.

Strong resistance was encountered from enemy fighters, at least two of which were shot down while many others were damaged, a communique said.

Five British craft were reported missing.

The raids were carried out Monday night and in daylight Tuesday, the bulletin said. The bombers were escorted by fighters on one of the attacks.

The communique also said it had been ascertained that the Japanese had suffered much heavier losses than first reported in attempts to bomb and knock out Allied airfields in Assam Province in India during the latter part of October.

United States fighters definitely destroyed four enemy fighters. Two bombers and one reconnaissance aircraft while damaging others," the bulletin declared. "British and American anti-aircraft fire shot down a further four fighters and three bombers."

At least 18 enemy planes were reported damaged by anti-aircraft fire, the communique added.

Storage Tanks To Be Built By Oil Company

Following the lead of several other oil companies operating in Belleville, the Goodrich Oil Company, next spring, at Port Credit, will shortly construct a modern marine terminal storage, it was announced in Belleville yesterday. The announcement was revealed by City Engineer Charles Mott this morning.

Application to the governmental building restriction departments has been made by the oil company and permission to build storage tanks with a total capacity of approximately 250,000 granted. The general plan is set out will be submitted to the city engineer and to Fire Chief William Lynch, as deputy fire marshal, for approval.

Locals decided upon by the Goodrich Oil Company for their new storage tanks is immediately south of the Cities Service Oil Company storage tanks. The necessary land upon which to build has now been purchased from the Harbor Commission, it is reported.

Decision of the oil company to remove their storage tanks from their present Dundas Street locale and to build on the waterfront was precipitated by the decision of the city council to grant permission for placement of additional harbor facilities at the present terminal. The company was not asked to remove their storage tanks from their present location.

The new storage facilities will include the necessary tanks, together with office and garage accommodation and will permit the firm to bring in supplies by water.

Hitler Caught Off Balance By Allied Thrust

By FRANK O'BRIEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 12 — (AP) — As a result of the new Anglo-American offensive in French North Africa Hitler was reported today to be withdrawing some of the Russian front and moving them hastily westward to protect his flank against a possible Allied thrust across the Mediterranean.

According to two well-informed source, preparations are being made by the Germans to billet 40 divisions from the Russian front in Hungary and Yugoslavia, — or approximately one-quarter of the entire Nazi forces now battling the Red Army.

Such a withdrawal, if carried out, might enable the Russians to launch a winter offensive with good chances of success, it was stated.

Advices from Istanbul last night said Rumanian and Hungarian railroads were crowded with German troops moving westward in the general direction of Greece and Italy.

Movement Entirely Defensive

The movements appeared to be entirely defensive and there seemed no reason to believe they constituted a possible threat to Turkey, it was stated here.

(The German-controlled Paris radio, however, in a broadcast heard in London today, said all Turkish soldiers, sailors and airmen had been ordered to rejoin their units at once.)

Observers said it seemed obvious that Hitler had been caught off balance by the sudden Allied thrust along the North African shore toward Tunisia. — logical springboard for any move against Sicily and southern Italy.

In his efforts to meet this threat it was considered likely he would turn Italy into a completely-domineered land, little better in status than conquered France.

Mr. John Sandis son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Sandis, has enlisted in the R.C.A.F. and is stationed at Toronto.

After the morning service in Christ Church, Athens, Sunday last, one of his oldest members was presented by the congregation in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Janos Rev. G. and Mrs. Dills, Jim-mie Avenue.

Mr. A. E. (Gidley) Dunberry and Mrs. Dunberry of Flint, Mich., who have been visiting in the city, are guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Wilson Bird, Bleecker Ave.

wives of the church wardens, Mrs. Ogle Webster and Mrs. Lawrence Taylor.

Rev. H. R. Foreman, who has been of Emmanuel Church for a number of years, and Mrs. Foreman, have been the recipients of many presentations and good wishes from their friends previous to their leaving the city. On Thursday last the Young Women's Group of Emmanuel Church held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry Holland, 31 Foundry Street. After the business of the meeting was over the members assembled in the underarm bag and Mr. Foreman was presented with a purse of money. The feature of the afternoon was the drawing on a quilt home by Mrs. W. Mrs. P. Gymer, 311 Bleecker Avenue. The Young School girls assisted a gift to each of Mr. Foreman's children. Yesterday the Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Stanley Pomeroy, College St., for the regular meeting. After business was over they presented Mrs. Foreman with a gift and good wishes for their happiness and success in their new home in Ajax, where Mr. Foreman is taking over duties.

Capt. George Knowling of the Royal Welch Fusiliers, who is on leave in Canada, spent a few hours in the city yesterday and called on Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Moore, Porto Rico. Mr. Knowling has been on active service in Ethiopia and on the west coast of Africa. About fifteen years ago Capt. Knowling came here from Newfoundland to attend the Albert College. Later he went to England, where he remained till the outbreak of war. He will rejoin his regiment in Africa soon.

WEDDINGS

LYNCH—WICKWARE

A pretty wedding took place, Tuesday morning, at ten o'clock, St. Francis Xavier Church, Brockville, when Miss Jean Anastasia Wickware, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wickware, Brockville, became the bride of Francis Bernard Lynch, Mountain View Airport, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Lynch, Brockville. The ceremony was performed by Very Rev. Dean L. J. Gilday.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a blue tweed suit with black hat and matching accessories. She wore a corsage of mauve orchids.

The maid-of-honor, Miss Phyllis Higgins, wore a gold wool dress, brown hat and accessories, with holiday furs. Her flowers were a corsage of Talisman roses.

Bentley of Talisman roses. Bentley of Talisman roses. Bentley was the groomsman.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, where Mrs. G. Wickware, received a gown dress with black accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. Assisted in receiving by the groom's mother, Mrs. T. F. Lynch, who wore a green dress with matching hat and accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. A buffet luncheon was served.

The young couple left by train to visit Quebec city, the bride travelling in her wedding gown and returning. Mrs. Lynch will reside in Belleville, while her husband, who is a Sergeant Pilot in the R.C.A.F., is stationed at Mountain View Airport.

REID—SINE

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening, Nov. 11, at the home of Rev. E. Parr worth, 134 Bleecker Avenue, when Dorothy Grace Sine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sylvester Sine, Shannonville, became the bride of Cecil Francis Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Reid, Thurlow Township.

The bride looked charming in floor length gown of white chiffon and wore a necklace and bracelet of pearls and corsage of American Beauty roses. Miss Evelyn Wesse, Belleville, as bridesmaid wore a becoming floor length gown of American Beauty taffeta with corsage of white carnations. George Maxwell Clarke, R.C.A.F., Ingersoll, was groomsman.

The happy young couple will reside in Belleville.

KLEINSTEUBER—GRIER

At Bridge Street United Church at three o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, the marriage took place of Mabel Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Grier, Grierdoors, Man., and Cecil Carl Kleinsteuber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kleinsteuber, West Lake. Rev. Dr. James Semple officiated.

The young couple were attended by Lena Hicks and Allen Weatherhead. They will reside on the groom's farm, West Lake.

PRICE—WOOD

An interesting wedding took place in Bridge Street United Church at four o'clock yesterday afternoon when Eleanor Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wood became the bride of Thomas David Price, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Price, Winnipeg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. James Semple.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was charming in her floor length gown of shell pink chiffon with picket quilted in gold. She wore a garland of flowers in her hair and carried pink roses. Miss Helen Louise Wood, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore pink taffeta with corsage of roses. Mr. Ray B. Wood, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 93 College Street West. Mrs. Wood received wearing a floor length gown of sea blue chiffon with corsage of roses.

The bride and groom left later on their honeymoon after which they will reside in Belleville.

GRANT—SMITH

Bridge Street United Church was the scene of a lovely wedding yesterday afternoon at 3.30 when Miss Rose Viola, daughter of Mr and Mrs. W. H. Smith, became the bride of Maxwell Ellis, son of Mrs. Harriet Orkes and the late William Orkes.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride entered the church to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, played by Mr. Ernest Bowen. Her gown of white net appliqued with lace over satin, was fashioned on torso lines with full skirt, sweetheart neckline and long sleeves forming lily points over the wrists. Her veil was a chapel veil, coronet style with lace edging and she carried a bouquet of Better Time roses and fern.

Mrs. Fred Mansfield was her sister's matron of honor. Her gown of turquoise moire taffeta was fashioned on long full lines with girdle of satin and ruffled back, she wore a headdress of turquoise net with ruffled tiara and shoulder length veil.

Miss Joan Reeder, Toronto, was bridesmaid. Her gown of dusky blue moire taffeta was fashioned on torso lines with Peter Pan collar and lace appliqued bodice.

Miss Ethel Winch was also bridesmaid. Her gown was pink chiffon with gold and silver lace embroidered bodice. Both bridesmaids were headdresses of French doll hats with shoulder length veils.

All the attendants carried nosegays of roses, snapdragons and baby mums.

Mr. Richard Grant was his brother's best man. Mr. Fred Mansfield and Mr. Jerry Way were ushers.

During the signing of the register, Miss Elsa M. Bell sang "Because".

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, R.R. No. 7, Belleville. Mrs. Smith, mother of the bride, received in turquoise crepe with black accessories. Mrs. Grant, mother of the groom, received in wine sheer with lace insertions. Both wore corsages of pink carnations.

A buffet luncheon was served after which dancing and cards were enjoyed.

Out of town guests included Mr. Clifford Grant, Mrs. Joseph Carroll, sister of the groom, Mr. Delbert Grant, MacArthur Mills; Mr. and Mrs. John Sandy, Mrs. Grant, Miss Stella Grant, Wellington; Mrs. Carman Bushell, Port Hope.

Advice to the Love Lorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Husband Makes Protestations of "Love Yet Begrudges Her Any Pleasure

A correspondent asks what's the matter with her husband. He has ideals far beyond the average, he is scrupulously honest and has a good income, yet he begrudges her a penny to spend on her clothes or one dime to keep in her pocketbook.

He makes many sweet speeches about keeping his wife contented, but has high hopes for lovely children, when they can afford them. Apparently he fails to realize that leisure, in its worst form, motivates this condition. How he worships what heart is full of bitterness and resentment over her husband's treatment can be the mother of children who will love and respect their father is a riddle to which this husband has given scant attention. Here's part of the letter:

Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My husband is young and true to me and his ideals are definitely above the average. He is doing his share by saving but he has a queer way of showing it.

"He enjoys buying things for our car and our home, but when I need clothes of any description, that's a different matter, I lived in the same three dresses for the past three years. He makes good money, yet we have two children to keep together in my pocket-book.

"When I ask him for the groceries or with me and there's an argument if I select anything which means a penny more than he thinks it should.

This has never been given any reason to doubt my fidelity but when he talks about the lovely children we are to have I wonder. Does a wife who is kept down to the extent I am ever have them. Apparently he will love and revere their father?

"Mrs. Scrimped."

As those lovely children, who are going to love and revere their parsimonious father who takes this mean way of showing his fondness, have not yet arrived, why not get a job?

It seems to me that when a man's miserliness and jealousy go hand-in-hand, he will not prove a satisfactory husband to the mother of his children — and it haven't given all of it — that the only self-respecting thing a woman can do is to earn her own money. Jobs are waiting for clerks and clerk-stenographers and typists are at a premium and factories are clamoring for women helpers.

HEALTH CHATS

DR. HERMAN M. BUNDESEN
President, Chicago Board of Health.

Sacro-The Injury Causes Chiefly in the Spine

After you have been bending over some work or over the baby's crib for a while, you may suddenly feel the pain that comes when you have a backache. That is due to the strain on the muscles in the lower part of the back.

Pain in the back often becomes chronic. One of the most common causes of pain is a group of conditions of the sacro-iliac joint, which is a joint between the hip and the lower part of the spine. For a sprain of any joint to occur, there must be sudden, violent movement.

Usually the symptoms come gradually. The patient may recall some pain which occurred after a period of unaccustomed movement of the back. The pain may pass to the front of the thigh and occasionally down the back of the leg. The symptoms usually are worse after the patient has been sitting down for a while. When the hip is bent with the knee straight, there is pain over the sacro-iliac joint. If the bending of the hip joint is forced the pain tends to increase.

Before treatment for the condition is carried out, an X-ray of the spine and sacro-iliac joint should be taken to make sure that the pain is not due to a broken bone or to some disease which has affected the spine.

During the early stage of the sprain, when there is a great deal of tenderness and pain, relief may often be obtained by injecting a local anesthetic in and around the painful area. These injections should be given slowly. After an injection, the patient should recline. Some hours later pain may occur but this soon passes away. One injection may be sufficient to cure the trouble, but two or more may be needed.

The patient is encouraged to be up and about and exercises are given to improve the vigor of the muscles and the posture. If the injections do not give relief manipulation of manipul of the sacro-iliac joint is used. Following the manipulation, gymnastic and massage are started and continued for three or four weeks.

In many instances none of these treatments brings permanent relief. Pain and discomfort may continue for many months. In many of these cases the wearing of a well-fitting belt is very helpful. For an occasional case, an operation may be performed to overcome the deformity.

WALLBRIDGE L.A.

The November meeting of Wallbridge Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Hudson Ketcheson with six attendants, of fifteen.

It was opened by the President, Mrs. J. Clark.

Mrs. L. McKee sent a "Thank You" card for a gift sent her while in the Hospital.

The Treasurer's report was given. The sum of $21.05 was given by the members instead of holding a food supper. It was decided to go standing for starting free in the Gummy furnace. Collection $6.00. Meeting closed with Hymn 313 and Mizpah Benediction.

The W.M.S. meeting immediately followed opened by hymn 93 and the repeating of the Apostle's Creed" and a prayer of "General Thanksgiving". Theme for the month was reading from Matthew XXV. A reading on this subject was given by the President, Mrs. Mifflin. This was followed by a collection taken up the less fit, each member giving her news on the subject.

Psalm 72 was read responsively. Meeting closed by singing and recitation of "The Lords Prayer".

Fighting Off Facial Lines

Anne Baxter has a lovely, smooth complexion

By HELEN FOLLETT

LET'S CALL 'em's brass tacks on the subject of facial furrows, the late forties. Frowns, forehead tracks, sun rays around the eyes, parenthesis lines from nostrils to lip ends. They're all baleful. One should fight them before they get a foothold.

The skin is composed of several layers of epithelial cells. Beneath the skin are tissues that bind the skin to the muscles. Cells form the connective tissue is collagen; its purpose is to round out the contour of the face and to provide a reserve for nourishment.

Stimulate Circulation

In case of ill health or undernourishment, the cells consume the collagen reserves that are present. The firm padding softens; and, as the skin is too loose, it fails into tiny, crepelike creases. Then the thing to do is to put on a bit more weight, if the body can stand it, adding more cream and butter to the diet. Stimulating the circulation by means of tapping and slapping will have a rejuvenating effect. One must not overlook the value of cold water, which contracts the skin and tones underlying fibres.

Use White of Egg

Some beauty shops put faith in the white of egg applied as a coating to the complexion. Let it dry on (it should be beaten to a stiff froth to be handled) then make a second application. One is soon aware of the tightening up of the sagging skin.

The best wrinkle insurance is a calm, unruffled nature. The petulant woman, the complaining one, she who gives to small annoyances, is likely to pull her eyebrows together, drag down mouth corners, forming lines that become established.

The cheerful woman assimilates food more normally than the fretful one, and that is important, as every cell of the body is dependent upon nourishment.

When wrinkles form, more water should be taken each day. A hearty cream should be patted into the flesh, every night.

St. Peter's Church, Madoc, Observes Anniversary

Madoc — St. Peter's Presbyterian congregation held their anniversary services on Sunday, Nov. 8. The newly inducted minister, Rev. Mr. Larson conducted both morning and evening services.

During the service the choir under the direction of Mrs. Blanche Alexander rendered two numbers: Anthem, with Mrs. K. Nicol and Stanley Hawthorne taking the duet. Messrs. Douglas Blue and Stanley Hawthorne rendered a duet.

During the evening service Mrs. Alexander rendered a solo "Lead Thou Me On", and an anthem by the choir "In the Evergreen Pastures of God" the quartet taken by Mrs. Nicol and Barbara Jean Nicol, solo by G. Hawthorne. The church was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums and ferns given by the Young Women's Club of St. Peters. In the evening the congregation of Trinity United Church joined with them in their special service.

Trinkets Are Source Of Metal For Bullets

Tons of metal, a lot of it precious tin, that formerly went into costume jewelry and trinkets, is now feeding the war machine. There are tons more that could be reclaimed lying in bureau drawers and boxes in practically every home in Canada.

An old metal button is material for a bullet, Consumer Information Service points out. Broken gold metal necklaces and stacks of metal bracelets, rings, school pins, cigaret cases, earrings, shoe and belt buckles are not to be overlooked in the search for salvage metals. Tarnished compacts and lipstick containers, discarded trimmings, metal monograms and handbags frames, lapel gadgets, these are still potential aids to victory.

Why SOME ITEMS are OCCASIONALLY MISSING from the LOBLAW SHELVES

PORK & BEANS

• Because Our main source of Tin Plate — the Malaya Peninsula is temporarily under Japanese domination. Meantime, available tin is under Government allotment and control.

The Administrator of Metal Containers has ordered that the canning of Pork and Beans be discontinued, for the time being, in order to conserve the present tin supply for the canning of only essential perishable foods.

Pork and Beans in the familiar cans will now be replaced with "home made" Pork and Beans by the resourceful homemaker, because she will buy Ontario White Beans and cook to her favourite recipe.

PINEAPPLE JUICE

• Because This favourite fruit juice largely comes from Australia and the Hawaiian Islands—all in the Pacific War "Zone." Importations from Hawaii are "out" in order to conserve Canadian dollars. Shipments from Australia and the Hawaiian Islands would necessitate boat space needed for essential war supplies, so it will be on rare occasions only that we may get Pineapple Juice from these places.

ALPINE CLUB DRINKS

• Because The manufacturer of the famous Alpine Club Ginger Ale and Lime Rickey is subject to the Government order in council restricting the use of sugar to 70% of the quantity they used in the same period last year . . . and, have definitely refused to include sugar substitutes in their manufacturing as a means to preserve the sugar restrictions, preferring rather to stay with the some standard of quality that our customers have enjoyed for many years, which accounts for our being "out of stock" occasionally.

5c CANS TOMATO JUICE

• Because The tin conservation program also shoulders the responsibility for the discontinuance of the 10-oz. size can, and we surely all agree that this curtailment will not cause any particular hardship. The 20-oz. size can is now the smallest sized can permissible, and for small families, the contents of the larger sized can, transferred to a suitable glass container after the first serving, will retain its flavour and freshness for a reasonable length of time if kept in a reasonably cool place.

Marshall, U.S. chief-of-staff of the U.S. army, exchange greetings shortly before sitting down to the weekly joint U.S. chief-of-staff luncheon in the presentation room of the combined chiefs of staff building in Washington, D.C.

Latta

Latta — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilder spent Monday in Bellville.

Rev. G. McKenzie and Mrs. McKenzie accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilder motored to Kent and Mrs. Carl Clark's at Bethel and enjoyed a pot luck supper given by the Bethel family. Rev. Mr. McKenzie was chairman for the program which followed. Mrs. G. McKenzie gave a reading. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilder rendered a duet "Mother" accompanied with guitar by the latter, and second number was made with guitar and mouth organ by Mr. R. Wilder, "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Over the Waves". Mrs. Earl Sayers and Mrs. McKenzie pot on contests. Games were played and all enjoyed the pleasant evening.

SAVE YOUR CLOTHES IN WARTIME!

Wash the Safer New OXYDOL Way

New OXYDOL, so much richer in washing power, gets your clothes sparking clean and white. You avoid needless washday wear and tear!

IF YOU want your family's clothes to last longer in wartime—don't risk harsh bleaches when washing—and avoid hard rubbing...

Use new OXYDOL . . . the modern soap-that lifts the dirt out of the clothes . . . soak it loose—quickly and gently! Gives you a wash that's so gloriously white—it's hard to believe you don't use a bleach!

Just rich, safe washing action alone does it. Those livelier, more active "Hustle-Bubble" suds are richer in washing power. In fact—every ounce of new Oxydol now goes more dirt.

You get a gorgeously white wash without hard rubbing . . . without extra washday drudgery. How it's made without bleaching—except for stains, of course, or unusual pieces.

And yet for all its wartime washing efficiency, new Oxydol is safety itself for colored washables and dainty washable rayons! So discover now . . . as millions are doing . . . how the richer OXYDOL way saves your clothes in wartime!

Parents Visit K. G. School On Remembrance Day

Combining their program for Education Week with that of Remembrance Day, the staff and pupils of King George School held open house at the school all day yesterday with a short program in the morning and another in the afternoon. In the afternoon parents were invited to visit the classrooms and everything was done to show them what is done in the week "Know Your School." The staff and scholars were gratified to observe at the end of the day, it was discovered, that parents had attended one hundred per cent. This shows the keen and practical interest taken by parents of students in King George School in the projects of their children and their desire to co-operate fully with the aims of the teachers.

"Nothing Matters But Victory"

In his address on Remembrance Day at the morning parade, Mr. C. A. Brown, principal said:—

"Their sacrifice—and our honored dead, March bravely now and daughters of the Canadian Corps they undertook is not yet finished. Heroic and sacrifice, men and women of this fair land, for nothing matters now but Victory.

As I look over the many young students this morning I am reminded of the fact that you know nothing of the last great conflict. Even the oldest of you, in the back row now saw not the light of day till several years after and it is difficult if not impossible for you to span that space of time. For the youngest of you it is a thing in the distant film past, that you know not a blur of. But in this fair dominion of ours today is a day on which she pays tribute to those who "sleep in Flanders' fields." (At this point a pupil recited "In Flanders Fields").

"Lest, then, we forget" tribute to those Canadians who, in times past, faced the foeman, fought valiantly and gained victory. Let us also commemorate those who, in more recent days, signified their lives in battle for our safe and passed out of sight of men by the path of duty. This is a day of commemoration. This is Remembrance Day."

The Program

The program was carried out as follows:

1.30 a.m.

Bible reading, (morning exercises are a corporate activity in which the pupils take part) Reading, by pupil; Penny Bank Report, (report prepared and read by pupil explaining 75 percent for the week); "What is Remembrance Day?" School Chorus, "O God of Love, O King of Peace"; Recitation, On Remembrance Day, two pupils of Grade 1; School Chorus, Land of Our Birth; Reading, Remembrance Day, Murray Duffin; Radio Play, The Furies and of the Sea-Sands race, pupils of Grade 8; Two-minute silence at 11:00. (Parents visiting the Class room);

1.30 p.m. Closing

Choral Reading, Indian Lullaby, pupils Grade 2; Reading, Our Pioneer Cousin, Judith Ann Carswell; Choral Reading, Recessional; An Appropriate Talk, Rev. C. V. Pierce-Goult; Closing prayer by Mr. Freeman.

Canada's Overseas Army To Be Spearhead Says Gillis Purcell

Hamilton, Nov. 12.—(CP)—Canada's overseas army is destined to be the spearhead of the European front," Gillis Purcell, general manager of the Canadian Press said last night in an address to Hamilton section of the Canadian Medical Association.

"To Canadians the new offensive in North Africa has a special significance," Mr. Purcell, who was Press Relations Officer for the Canadian Corps until limited enmasseuvres in England late last year, "It means that the Canadian army is definitely nominated to be the dagger that strikes into Berlin."

Through the period when British expected invasion the Canadians had been held in reserve as a mobile striking force to be launched in counter attack. Throughout that time and since, they had trained tirelessly, built up unrivalled attacking power, added to their equipment and made the Canadian army of five divisions, two of them armoured—and one tank brigades is the most powerful fully-trained and complete army in the United Nations roster."

The Canadians could have been selected for the African push; there was no question they were considered, the fact that they were not nominated meant they were reserved for the "second channel drive"—and that attack is not many months away."

Mr. Purcell termed control of North Africa as "a tremendous victory to this second front attack, bringing it one step nearer, since it would be impossible to drive into western Europe with the Mediterranean an open flank."

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Kidney Stones

A patient consulted a physician for a pain in the region of the appendix. An appendix was duly removed, the physician told the patient that the pain was due to bands or adhesions following the appendix operation. However, in the surprise of the physical Xrays showed a large stone in the kidney and that kidney was painful.

It was because the pain was in the appendix region and there was no pain in the back or pain following the course of the tube carrying urine from kidney to bladder, that caused the physician to attribute the pain to bands or adhesions. Thanks to the Xrays the removal of the kidney stone relieved the patient from pain.

The above, however, is an "exceptional" case as most cases of kidney stone do not cause symptoms to be recognized.

Dr. Charles Pierre-Mathe, San Francisco, formerly of the Department of Urology, St. Mary's Hospital, in Clinical Medicine, says:—

"A sudden, severe pain in the small of back or abdomen which radiates to the groin should be looked on with suspicion by the attending physician. All patients suffering from kidney stones have red blood cells in the urine which can be detected by making a microscopic examination. I have never seen a patient suffering with kidney stones whose urine did not show red blood cells under the microscope. In many patients, crystals, usually of the variety found in the stone present, are encountered. "Properly made X-ray films will show more than 90 per cent of kidney stones".

While the family physician with the aid of Xrays, microscopic examination of urine, use of dyes, can locate the position and composition of the stone or stones, Dr. Mathe advises, and most physicians will agree, that a genito-urinary specialist—urologist—should be called into consultation in these cases. The urologist will carry out a complete examination including cystoscopy—instrument with lamps and mirror—use of a catheter up into ureters (the tubes carrying urine from kidneys to bladder), study of the amount of urine coming from each kidney, and a complete study of the urines collected from kidneys and bladder.

After removal of stone or stones, they are examined to find composition and nature of organisms present so that the proper drug and antiseptics can be used to try to prevent the formation of more stones.

Housewives Experiment With Untried Varieties Of Fresh Frozen Fish

Brightest news on the current fish food situation is that due to labor shortage, fresh fish is getting to the retail market more quickly than formerly, and therefore of better flavor. This also holds good for most frozen fish.

With the improvement in quality there is a greater tendency on the part of housewives to experiment with formerly untried varieties. Early shopping pays these days where fish is concerned. If the particular variety asked for is not available, it is then possible to get a substitute that is likely to prove quite as tasty and altogether satisfactory.

Driven by a one and one-half horsepower motor powered by six batteries, an electric tricycle has been developed in Sweden that can travel 36 miles on one charge at a speed of 25 miles an hour.

Pack Soap to Prevent Odor Permeating Contents Ditty Bags

In packing ditty bags some Meaford women have included soap without packing it in boxes or using paper. Result—Odors from soap have permeating the entire contents, especially in the case of food. This fact was brought to the attention of a member today when he was informed that unpacked soap in bags is not meant that the bags are to be expanded, with the soap so boxed that it would not affect the food. Only when the presence of the unpacked soap is specifically detected by its characteristic odor.

The best way in which to pack soap in a bag is to put it in a tin box with cover, or if this is not available to place it in a tight heavy cardboard box, closely wrapped the reporter was informed.

The contents of the ditty bag will be greatly appreciated by those in the services and the proper packing of any soap included will remove the possibility of the odor extending to the food contents of the bag.

Plan Special Training For M. D.'s in Forces

Ottawa, Nov. 13—(CP)—Brig. J. C. Meakins, Deputy Director-General of Army Services, said here last night plans are being made to provide special training for doctors who join the armed forces and prove certain candidates for courses in particular phases of medical science.

Brig. Meakins, on leave of absence from his post as dean of the faculty of medicine at McGill University, Montreal, said arrangements are being made also to maintain strong teaching groups in Canada's medical schools.

Assurance to those who are new to army life is part of the plan for Army Medical Services, and it is coupled with the assistance being given to those who have special aspirations and ability as medical men.

Brig. Meakins would not enlarge upon the form this assistance would take, but he said the government would help army medical men financially to find their places in civilian life after the war. He hoped that civilian training for these men would be established when the war was over.

Egg Production 'Over the Hump'

Ottawa, Nov. 13—(CP)—Food supply officials said yesterday that while egg supplies may be limited in some areas it is believed Canada is "over the hump" as far as the effects of the benefits of enlarged production soon will be evident.

"An increase in production of from 30 to 35 per cent over 1941 is expected in the coming winter months," one official said. "That should provide for any increase in exports resulting from the Atlantic Conference and export requirements with the United Kingdom are signs that the set attention generally is improving, and it would not need much of an increase in shipments to bring conditions back to normal."

The authority said large increases in Canadian flocks indicated it will be possible to meet United Kingdom requirements of 450,000,000 dozen eggs during the present year and supply domestic markets as well.

TAMWORTH W.M.S.

The November meeting of Tamworth W.M.S. was held in the church parlors on Tuesday, despite the inclement weather was very well attended.

The President, Mrs. Frosts, opened the meeting by the singing of a hymn after which she led in prayer.

Is YOUR JOB all rush and no exercise?

Here's how to keep on your toes

Lack of exercise may make you feel heavy, depressed, "too tired to care." Often the cause is incomplete elimination. Don't resort to harsh cathartics—to get well, see your doctor. But to get well, watch your habits. Get plenty of "bulk" in your diet . . . keep food wastes moving promptly. Treat yourself to a bowl of crisp, nutty-flavoured Kellogg's Bran Flakes for breakfast every morning. You'll say they're the most satisfying cereal you've ever eaten . . . grand for tired appetites! Gently laxative, Kellogg's Bran Flakes With Other Parts Of Wheat help supply valuable minerals and proteins, too.

You'll want to eat them every day! Better start tomorrow. Order the golden-yellow package from your grocer. In restaurants, ask for the individual package with the inner, WAXTITE, sealed bag. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

COMES IN TWO CONVENIENT SIZES

KEEP FIT WITH KELLOGG'S BRAN FLAKES every day in the year!

"HIGH SPEED MUNITIONS WORK is tiring, but no exercise. Yet I keep fit. Do as I do! Avoid nasty doses . . . eat a heaping bowl of crunchy Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning."

"AIRMEN'S LIVES depend on my work—so I can't afford dull, headachy, 'don't care' days. I keep fit this way: No nasty doses! I get 'bulk' into my diet by eating crisp, delicious Kellogg's Bran Flakes every day!"

"SITTING BEHIND a steering wheel burns nervous energy, but it's not real exercise. Yet I keep fit. Here's my simple system: a big, satisfying dish of Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning, so I can be at my best every day."

No. 5 I.T.S. Hoopsters Move Into Sole Possession of First Place in Service Cage League

Trenton Air Station Beaten in Hard, Fast Contest by 33-22 Score

MOUNTAIN VIEW WINS

PO. Alec Munro's No. 5 I.T.S. hoopsters moved into sole possession of the Bay of Quinte R.C.A.F. basketball league by virtue of a 33 to 22 win over the Trenton Air Station quintette at Trenton last night. It was the second consecutive win for the local "Airmen" in as many starts. While all of that was going on, PO. Ray Barrett's Mountain View "Bombers" advanced a peg in that loop standing by defeating No. 6 Repair Depot by 18 to 16 on their home court. The "Bombers" moved into the top second place loop position by virtue of last night's rallying victory over the "repair quintette.

Gale Early Lead

Paced by Cpl. Chauvin, of Windsor, the No. 5 I.T.S. cagers raced to a 21 to 9 halftime advantage over Air Station riv-vals at Trenton to solidify the league leadership with a 33 to 22 win over the Trenton "Flyers." Cpl. Chauvin, many times star for the local airmen was the leading scorer for the winners with 12 points, as Chauvin carried the scoring punch in the initial half and thoroughly blished the chore in the last stanza. McGrolil and Moondaih were the chief scoring threats for FO. "Burr" Horton's hoopsters. The pastime had its moments and verged upon strong rugged play according to rumblings before the officials finally took matters over and curbed the players' feelings with timely penalties. Each quintette lost one player through personal fouls, as the fray were called against Trenton and an even dozen gratis fouls. S I.T.S.

Bombers Rally

At Mountain View Skipper Ray Barrett's "Bombers" were forced to come from behind with a one point and half rally to win 20 to 18 over No. 6 Repair Depot, as the ultimate winners were trailing by an 11 to 8 count at the halfway mark.

The game was fast and clean, with only three penalties being chalked up against each squad. Parfitt, a product of Victoria, B.C. basketball courts, was the main stay for the losers, getting 12 points in the initial half. However Coach Reid elected to have his fleet-footed forward, Farrell, check Parfitt in the last stanza and Farrell kicked in with a perfect defensive effort to halt Parfitt's scoring threat.

After being benched for the greater part of the initial half, Trudlon was turned loose in the "Bombers" late in the game and scored 12 points in the last six minutes of play to assure a Mountain View win. Pte. Kenneth Smith rallied to halt Parfitt and out-scored the "repair lads" 32 to 18 in the last 20 minutes. Close checking kept the score in consistently low figures.

The line-ups:

Mountain View—Harper, Carp. 4; Parks, 2; Farrell, 4; Cooper, Horsley, 4; McAdam, Hudson, 13; Kay, 4, and Caplan.

No. 6 Repair Depot—McBride; Brownridge; Scott; Claire, 1; Deborra; Mathson, 4; Proctor, 1; Parfit, 12; Bell and Foster.

Referee Partridge; Umpire, Smith.

DOMINION FINAL FOR FOOTBALL HONORS UNLIKELY

O.R.F.U. Will Complete Series and Declare Champions on Nov. 28

WEST WON'T PLAY

(By The Canadian Press)

Possibility of a Dominion championship Football final was further removed today, following an Ottawa ruling that no Royal Canadian Air Force teams may take part in football games after Dec. 1 and a decision by the Ontario Rugby Football Union to adhere to current schedule and playoff commitments.

The All-Canada chaslie had been set by the Canadian Rugby Union this week for Dec. 5 with Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers qualifying as Western representatives, but a series of developments yesterday swiftly altered the picture.

In Ottawa, an Air Force spokesman said that because of the rapidly approaching deadline for requirements in football by the R.C.A.F. participation in football after Dec. 1. Late last night, the O.R.F.U. voted to carry out the present schedule, which ends Nov. 21, and plans to complete the championship series between the Union's two leading teams.

Other original plans for the East-West final, the O.R.F.U. winner was to meet the Ottawa City League titists in an East-West final with the winner to go in that playoff opposing Winnipeg the following week for the Grey Cup. With the Air Force ban on football after Dec. 1 will prevent the Winnipeg team from competing east, since 15 members of the Club are in the R.C.A.F.

199 Teams Attected

Two other top-flight teams still in the running are affected—the R.C.A.F. Flyers of the Ontario R.C.A.F. and the R.C.A.F. Flyers of the Ottawa City League. Both were rallied to halt Parfitt and out-scored the "repair lads" 32 to 18 in the last 20 minutes. Close checking kept the score in consistently low figures.

The line-ups:

Mountain View—Harper, Carp. 4; Parks, 2; Farrell, 4; Cooper, Horsley, 4; McAdam, Hudson, 13; Kay, 4, and Caplan.

No. 6 Repair Depot—McBride; Brownridge; Scott; Claire, 1; Deborra; Mathson, 4; Proctor, 1; Parfit, 12; Bell and Foster.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP)—Canadian Y.M.C.A. War Services sent the troops in England sponsored the hockey season with 180 army and 26 air force teams entered for the 1942-43 season. The armed forces championships.....The games has taken unusually high among the overseas troops since the 1939-40 season when only 10 teams participated.....The Y.M.C.A. War Services provide equipment and pay rental for four rinks.

Inadvisability

Vancouver Island's anti-aircraft battery has a junior basketball team. Gunners Ritchie Nicol, Art Chapman and Norm Baker of the Canadian champions, the new Islanded Victoria Dominoes.....Eddie O'Neil, star with Niagara Falls Cataracts last season, has been working in Ottawa, but may return to hockey with Victoria or Nanaimo, B.C.....Art Coulter, New York Rangers' centre ice man, has been named captain of the United States coast guard hockey team at Curtis Bay, Md.....Edmonton curlers scattered to the four corners of Edmonton and Thistle rinks were taken over by the militia.

The Expert Says:

Twenty-two years ago Pearl Sutherland pitched Winnipeg Falcons onto Canada's first Olympic hockey title. Few I.A.A.U. fans know he is coaching St. Catharines senior team and Clayton Dixon of the Ellis Kitts Standard comments, "Few, if any, St. Catharines folk ever saw Pearl Sutherland play hockey but they likely saw evidences of the latter in the success he experienced through Frank Frederickson's coaching here. It's almost dead ringer for the story of "pearl's nerve" and the story of "pearl that puck" from this year's senior Salmia jockeys. The Fredericksons can certainly do whip that rubber round.

Bless the Jenkins:

Training secretary of the Canadian Figure Skating Association to continue national junior champion ships and senior championships and competition. Myrtle (Montreal Star) Cook asked that Mary Rose Thacker Sr Bear will not have to defend senior title this year. Miss Thacker is day of proud skating distinction. The cancellation does not hit her at hard as it does the skaters who have been knocking on the door of the senior throne—girls like Barbara Ann Scott, Ottawa, or the new champion, Margaret Morrison, Winnipeg. Once having won the junior, she can not go back into that division.

Jim (Globe and Mail) Coleman breaks into the present uncertain football picture with a series of questions but makes it clear no criticism is levelled at Air Marshal Breadner's order for the R.C.A.F. to abandon football after Dec. 1. The question posed:

"Why did the air force wait until the season was almost over that Dec. 1 was the football deadline for its teams? Why did it not make the same announcement two months ago when it was known that those who could read a newspaper knew that the O.R.F.U. playoffs would not be finished by Dec. 1? Why did the air force permit the Ottawa R.C.A.F. to play Hamilton in the O.R.F.U. winners when it was apparent, before the game was played, he played before Dec. 5. Why didn't the R.C.A.F. say something then about the deadline which includes eight air force players—accepted as the championship game to be played at Toronto on Dec. 12?"

Round-up On Branch Rickey

From the start until he was named president of the Brooklyn Dodgers recently, the career of Branch Rickey has been a story of dramatic contrasts. Obstacles together with an ability that today has carried him far. As a lawyer Rickey did not even have enough money to go to high school, yet he schooled himself to the extent that he was admitted to college. Later, he became baseball coach. As a means of obtaining funds to enter law school, then used his ability to give to affluence on the executive side of the game. Here is a rundown of his life:

Born on farm near Lucasville, O., December 20, 1881.

1896—Country school teacher at $65 a month.

1896—Entered Ohio Wesleyan; played summer baseball and pro football on side to help out.

1902—Taught at Allegheny College and Ohio Wesleyan College.

1903—Joined Lamar, Wyo., team as catcher.

1904—Met with Dallas, Texas League; Cincinnati.

1905—With St. Louis A. L. and Dallas.

1909—Graduated University of Michigan to study law.

1909—Law student and baseball coach, University of Michigan. Finished three-year law course in two years and continued as baseball coach through 1911.

1910—Opened law office at Boise, Ind. Business bad.

1911—Joined St. Louis Browns as aide to Robert Lee Hedges, became manager of Browns late season.

1914-15—Manager of Browns.

1916—Vice-president and business manager of Cardinals.

1917-18—President of Cardinals; conceived farm idea in 1917.

New York, Nov. 12 — (AP) — Here's a new one for the cult—Mention boxing "style" to one of the football fan and he may have a vague idea what you're talking about but mention it to a fight fan and he'll "orthodox" and another isn't—a good southpaw, for hear, is one who can pop opposing styles to make a good fight, and a crowd can teach his fighter a style that will cause trouble for his opponent. For instance, after Max Schmeling flattened Joe Louis in the fourth round, one explained cel: "I couldn't hit him; he fought me sideways." ... Later Al Weill, manager of that Arturo Godoy could get along against Louis by "fighting almost to the floor" and it worked.

All in fun

Employees at a Pittsburgh hotel are telling one about a blown-in-the-bottle fan who turned up last Saturday, waving an Ohio State banner and asked the way to the Pitt stadium .... Informed that the Pitt-Ohio State tussle was to take place Saturday, he merely grinned and said, "Oh well, let's have a good time anyhow." ... Anyone he had the right to say at that, considering how much fun there is in 59-19.

HARVEY JACKSON SCORES 212 GOALS IN 13 SEASONS

Former Leaf Player With Boston Has Best Consecutive Total

PLAY TORONTO

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Harvey Jackson, who scored 31 and his hockey days are numbered, tried, but failed, to get into home uniform. In 13 National League seasons, the Rusher has accounted for scoring record not be present-day player can equal.

Jackson, playing first for Boston Bruins, scored 212th goal in N. H. L. competition against Montreal Canadiens. He holds the league's all-time record for defenceman now and just part-time at that. Veteran Cliff Goldham, with 211 goals, is third in line among modern players, has scored 170.

Jackson, a native of Toronto, broke into professional ranks with the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs and was a member of the trio still in competition.

Both Leafs and Bruins will present player changes tonight. The Leafs will start Bob Davidson, 19-year-old University of Toronto freshman, and Bill Cowley, 21-year-old right wing on a new Toronto centre of wing Gordon Drillon and Bill line with Gaye Stewart. Lorne Duncan, Flying Dutch Thompson, formerly of Springfield Indians of the American League, when scrubbed at 155th man. Bruins, who have scored only three goals in two starts, will make their first season, hope to derive added scoring sting from Jackson's presence in the line with Bep) Guidolin of Oshawa, Ont.

Chicago Black Hawks and Canadiens of Montreal in the other Thursday game. Either Canadiens will start Elmer Lach, spectacular leadership by a victory, while Chicago coach Paul Thompson will place tie with Red Wings.

CASUAL COMMENT
by K.J.C.

WHAT MUST A PLAYER DO to earn the most valuable player award in the major leagues? For the last three years Ted Williams has been asking this question as he batted and fielded his way into the ranks of baseball's immortals. Three years ago Fenway Park was pitching in the cow pastures of Northern Ontario and to be placed on the first ten most valuable players in the American League four years later is nothing short of a baseball miracle. When he broke with the Toronto Leafs in the spring of 1939 he was the biggest "rookie" who ever broke into the big time and was as wild as a boot owl on a dark night. He was farmed back to Canada all the way from Toronto to Concord, N.H., to complete his education in the minor leagues. Today he is in the R.C.A.F.

FROM BUSHER TO STAR IN three years is quite a record in baseball circles but that's exactly what Ted Williams has done with the Boston Red Sox. They were even commencing to compare him with Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee Clipper, a lot of other diamond celebrities. He won 17 games for them in 1941 and would have been a cinch to repeat in 1942 if he had been with a first division club and yet he was placed ninth in the voting for most valuable player last year. They tell a story about Marchildon, who took the long train ride from Toronto to Boston through the pandemonium of Saturday night, told Marchildon he should carry his glove around with him at all times and practice holding the ball in front of him and thus be ready to conceal his grip from the prying eyes of the opposition. Apparently he took the advice that he appeared in the hotel dining room with his glove and ball and while the head waiter was finding a table for him, Marchildon noticed there was a runner on first base. He went through the pantomime of pretending to deliver the ball, took a peek at the left handed batter at the imaginary runner on first, and then went through the motions of throwing to second. The manoeuvre brought down the house.

LEO (THE LIP) DUROCHER will not be back as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers next season. This is the decision of Joe Williams, columnist of the New York World-Telegram. Only a week ago Branch Rickey would be the next manager of the Brooklyn "Flatbushers." Even in the face of denial Williams says that Durocher has been told that he will not be back. He will not be back against the interests of baseball. He was going into the service, which came just before the baseball season, and is authentic. At that time, Durocher thought that he would be commissioned in the Navy. It developed he failed to pass. But at the same time the wide publicity was given to the fact that he has no family or financial obligations. There seemingly is no alternative left Durocher but to go in—and in his book he's the kind of guy who can't keep out.

Now the first thing you want to know is who will the Dodgers keep in mind is their next manager, along with a new general director, is Rickey going to be a factor? Is he going to be a Rickey man. Burt Shotton has already got into the picture. Durocher is the last man Rickey would have in mind to manage a ball club, and when we say this we don't mean to belittle Durocher for the fact is Rickey admires him. But—well, he just isn't Rickey's type and Shotton is"

NO MATTER HOW ONE MIGHT try, you can't overlook the "Swedish Angel's" ugly look. He has a terrific, long gruesome head, with heavy sugar-loaf formation, scarcely any hair on his noggin and short, stubby muscles on the back of his neck that resemble an accordion. Yes, this ring personality has what every ... really" promoter dreams of ugly looks and wrestling ability combined. Patrons at the Hume Arena tonight won't only see the Swede No. 1 box office attraction, a freak of the first water, but a wrestler in his own right when the "Swedish Angel" meets Jerry Monahan. Promoter Frank Tunney hasn't spared the horses for tonight's all-star show here as every one of the bouts listed is a top-notcher and could well be a headliner in any rasslin' show. Take a gander.

REMEMBER WHEN the University of Western Ontario Mustangs were the class of football circles? Not only one championship season by whipping Queens 13 to 8 and administering the first two football crown three years ago today? In the last season of intercollegiate football for the duration, the Mustangs were the only Canadian team to survive united and undefeated. On that famed squad was Wally Hilton, former Belleville Collegiate grid star whose backfield play was a tower of strength with the Mustangs.

PO. ALEC MUNRO'S NO. 5 I.T.S. hoopsters are perched high and mighty atop the Quinte R.C. A.F. basketball loop today. The local "Flyers" downed Trenton Air Station last night by a close second win in as many games, while PO. Ray Barrett's Mountain View "Bombers" were beating No. 6 Repair Depot on the home floor by a single point on the second place with the Trenton quintette. Indeed the No. 5 I.T.S. squad boast of a couple of "Yanks in the R.C.A.F." who are quite the thing as cagers. Their names are Huntingdon and Tregerthan, both products of Chicago respectively. However, they can't get ahead of PO. Archie Chauvin, who has a home in Windsor. Chauvin, a fellow-townman from Windsor.

Score 5-3 Win Over Washington While Reds Are Beaten by Capitals

BISONS READY

(By The Canadian Press)
Hershey stood alone at the top of the Eastern Division standings to the American Hockey League today on thanks to its 5-3 victory over Washington Lions last night while Providence Reds, tied with Hershey before last night's games, were whipped 5-0 by Indianapolis.

To complete the picture, New Haven Eagles defeated Pittsburgh 3-1 for their first victory of the campaign.

The Lions took an early lead over Hershey, but Danny Sullivan deadlocked the count before the first period bell, and he and Scotty Bell added two more markers to end the second period before Fred Gauthier scored what proved the winning goal in the third period, and Joe Benoit added another for good measure before Washington's Jim Conway.

Providences looked anything but Eastern Division leaders in bowing to Indianapolis. The Capitals had the Reds on the run from the way, Providence's only goal coming in the scoring column until White-Sox Bill Talbot scored in the first period.

Wilkes Smith early in the third period broke the tie which gave New Haven its initial victory. It was the only goal of the game scored when both teams were at full strength.

Only one league match is scheduled tonight, Cleveland at the Western Division, taking on Pryor dence.

London, Nov. 12—(CP)—The best racing season for 21 years, colors since the days of King Edward VII is just over and the public is flocking to place his shillings on His Majesty's entries, is happy about the whole thing.

The King's aggregate of stake money for 10 winning victories is over all outstanding amounts for war-time racing, while his total of 14 victories in British public benefits because an unstated amount of the Royal winnings will be distributed at 52nd which was presented to the people of Sandringham by the First Great War.

The King leased three of his winners from the National Stud, including Sun Chariot and Big Game, which accounted for four of the season's five classics. The other is Sunblind, a filly who did not get out the gate season with a shattering victory at Windsor after disappointing in an earlier race. Sunblind will run next season as a three-year-old but Sun Chariot and Big Game have been retired to stud.

Time out was called several times in the game spectators to calm down a bit, but eventually a team of Canadian flight fighter fans emerged as volleyball champions of R. C. A. F. squadrons in Britain.

The fighters, from a squadron led by Wing Cmdr. Paul Davoud of Kingston, Ont., ousted a bomber unit when Commander is Wing Cmdr. Len Fraser of Vancouver in a three-game final. Scores were 15-3, 15-3, 15-6. Seven squadrons took part in the playdowns.

Reddie Dawood, an all-round athlete who took a prominent part in the volleying, was one of the winning team included Pvt. Lie Tiny Smith of Winnipeg and Jimmy Steele of Vancouver and W/O. R. Brooks of Montreal. Prominent in the cause of the losing finalists were the Merrifield brothers, LAC's R.S. and G. R., of Wolseley Sask., and Cpl. C. J. Hutcheon and LAC. N. Rutse, both of Toronto.

In the small space allotted to sport, British newspaper space is plenty of prominence to Joe Louis' announcement that he has "retired as world's heavyweight boxing champion, but at least one sports writer didn't believe it.

Hermann Hurst of the London Daily Sketch came right out with this:

"I wish to place on record that I will give £50 (approximately $200) to any charity that Louis cares to nominate if, before the next two years, the Brown Bomber has not changed his mind.

'WHIRLY' LOOKS LIKE HORSE OF THE YEAR

This Will be the Second Year the Whizz-Bang Has Held the Honor

ALSAB CLOSE SECOND

By SID FEDER,
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Nov. 12 — (AP) — It is somewhat superstitious, the habit of "naming" a lamb chop, to hand Whirlaway any more honors than he already has with the Triple Crown and Horse of the Year titles in his kitty. That is the "Horse of the year" again for 1942.

There will no doubt be more than a million loyal members of the Alsab cheering and shoulder pounding that's going to be the case when both teams were at full strength.

Only one league match is scheduled tonight, Cleveland at the Western Division, taking on Providence.

Alsab picked up $227,715 for 1942, compared with Whirlaway's $194,-600. However, he had the benefit of 10 purses from $2,000 to $75,000 to do it, Mr. Long Tall had a crack at only one of more than $25,000, and only two of more than $10,000. The latter had a lot of big money-handling opportunities, like the Derby and the Belmont, while the war has caused Along to rob Whirly of his one shot at the heavy sugar — the Santa Anita Handicap.

Whirly the cold numbers, Alsab is the hero in the hearts of 277 days — an average of about once every 10 days. He ran 10 times, eight starts and was out of the money in four. Whirly, beginning his campaign later, had 20 trips to the post in 216 days — about once every 10 days. Whirly had 15 jobs, Whirlaway had 130 or more on his back and his earnings from seven furlongs to 2 1-4 miles with it, while sporting his rivalry up to 30 pounds apiece. He gave Alsab seven pounds the day he whipped the Chicago Chance.

Twice Whirlaway set track records, once at Suffolk Downs the day he broke the Rissuli's money-winning mark by taking the mile and an eight Massachusetts Handicap in 1:48 1-5.

Gen. Giraud Uses Governor's Plane To Reach Africa

London, Nov. 12 (CP)—A plane waiting at Marignane airport at Marseilles last Friday to pass Gen. Henri Giraud, former Governor-General of Algeria, back to his post was the aircraft in which he actually hopped off at Gibraltar, it was learned today from the unimpeachable source of the London Daily Mail reporter in Lisbon.

"It is this correspondent's account of what happened in Gibraltar," it said.

The airport received a telephone call purporting to come from the military Governor's office at Marseilles, ordering that a plane be warmed up for a special military mission already laid on.

A group of officers in full uniform arrived by car and the plane took off for Algiers. The leader of the "military mission" was Gen. Henri Giraud, who is organizing a French army in North Africa to fight with the Allies. He was accompanied by his trusted staff officers.

Though carefully watched at all times by Germans, Giraud managed to leave secretly for Marseilles and escape from France.

small arms and loaded clips and machine-gun ammunition. The bolds soldiers in greasy fatigues were given drinking rations of rum by their tank leaders, many guns and numerous rounds of ammunition. Each tank battle "combat loaded" so that men and supplies could be landed in the right order in the shortest time, under fire if necessary.

In the words of the commodore who was in command, the convoy was "quite without incident."

Only Part of Force

The convoy, which was only part of the force bearing down on the African coast, had transports and cargo ships and other auxiliary vessels.

The troops were well on the way to their goal by the time reports of fires they learned their mission. Battalion and company officers were assembled in the wardroom of one of the battle units and given the information on the part of the attacking forces.

Maps issued to the main objectives of the fires on the map and said "our duty is to put out the fires and see that there is nothing is going to burn. Your orders are to proceed regardless of what happens."

Correspondents were not told what their part of entertainment would be. They knew only they were going on an offensive operation. The rest was a mystery.

As was sitting on my seat between my typewriter on a chair with my typewriter on a chair in my cabin, the voice of the Colonel came over the loud-speaker system.

"In just a few hours we are going over the side of the ship and it is a record we said.

He warned the men to respect native customs. Be friendly to the natives, he said, but to shoot unless the situation demands it." Then he ended:

"Go out and do your job like soldiers and God bless you."

RUSSIANS REPORT

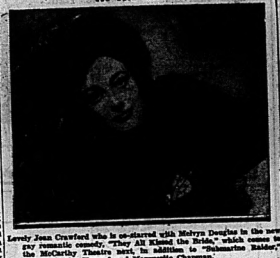
Winter tightened its grip on the front. The Volga was frozen and the ice was piled whipped by bitter winds in sub-zero temperatures. No major developments were reported from the other sectors. Dispatches said that, in relatively light engagements, the initiative passed back and forth several times in the Nalchik area, an attack by two German battalions was repulsed while the Germans drove home counter-assaults in the Tuapse sector.

Two companies of Nazi infantry were completely decimated by gunfire at one point within the city. At another a group of enemy troops of a corps lost in an attempt to penetrate Soviet defences and in a third a Red army unit surrounded a block of buildings and killed 150 Germans and took grenades the mid-day communique said.

Fighting in the Caucasus sector "Northwest of Stalingrad," the bulletin added, Soviet artillery and mortars pulled the Germans, killing 400 of them. Soviet infantry penetrated into enemy trenches held by Rumanians and killed 80 of them.

In the Caucasus, the Russians said their troops had repulsed a tank-supported attack by two battalions of German infantry southeast of Nalchik, killing 200 of the enemy.



On the bitterly-cold central front west of Moscow Soviet troops were reported to have killed 400 Germans in sharp encounters in which they destroyed three enemy guns, seven blockhouses and machine-gun by artillery fire.

Fighting on this front killed 1,947 Germans in one month," the communique added.

"Sundown Jim"

A rip-roaring thriller of old frontier days, torn from the pages of American history, is "Sundown Jim", the feature starring film for Jarvis' John Kimbrough, which opens at the Capitol Theatre today. This is the first picture completed. It is now at the Capitol Theatre.

Telling the story of a federal marshal appointed to quell lawlessness in an Oklahoma territorial township, the film moves through a wealth of action-packed incidents.

Adding the proper touch of romance is Virginia Gilmore as Virginia Gilmore and Arlene Whelan, two Hollywood glamour girls keep John in a turmoil.

Director Lesley Selander, one of Hollywood's ace handlers of western films, keeps the action of the story at a fast clip. Also featured in the cast of "Sundown Jim" are Joseph Sawyer, Paul Hurst and Morant Olsen, in addition to a number of other well known Hollywood players.

"Don Ameche"

Audiences that see 20th Century Fox's spectacular "Confirm or Deny", the second feature to be shown, starring Don Ameche and Joan Bennett, will be the first pictures of an ace reporter in bombshelled London.

Night bombardment of the British capital is the highlight of the film and an entire street is destroyed for the camera.

"Confirm or Deny" also features Roddy McDowall, John Loder, Ragland Walbert, Chic Biere and Arthur Shields.

On the short program the added treats are a colored cartoon and the new serial "Perils of Nyoka" starring Kay Aldridge, the new serial Queen.

AT THE BELLE

"Mrs. Miniver"

Director William Wyler, who does it's surprise easily, admits candidly that "Hollywood has a fair of glamour girls." he said. "It has some fine actresses' too. But Greer? Why Greer is an actress with glamour."

Wyler pondered his brief description of the actress for a moment. It was evident that he wanted to embellish his statement, Cross footsey.

Little Benny's Note Book

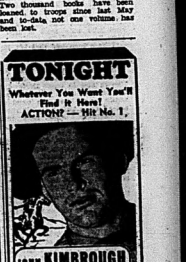
Ma was in her room taking things out of one draw and putting them in another, and I said, Ma, what's that for?

What is it, I'm very busy, ma said, and I said, This is Nora's day off, I know that only too well, ma said, I should be down in that kitchen right now preparing dinner for pa, if your father didn't have to get out to eat in a restaurant, I could spend this whole afternoon getting an attractive thing any number of little things, she said, and still, Will anyways, A. Pelovsky in the kitchen now, and it's been an awful long while since I've made my candy.

Now I thought I told you never to ask to make candy again, after that last shemales you made of the kitchen, ma said, and I said, I didn't actually no, ma, I just kind of mentioned it. And anyways, ma that was molasses candy that got everything so much up and sugary in, I made it if it had of been anything might of been different, I said.

Yes, it might of been worse, ma said, and I said, ma, do you mean rood rather your home it is molasses candy instead of fudge?

I've rather you'd not to pursue the subject, ma said. You're not going to make candy of any quality kind or description, is that clear? she said, and I said, sure, ma, only I guess if you come down and found the kitchen in just a bad enough of a state so you didn't feel like cooking in it, why then you'd have a perfect reason to ask pop to go out to a restaurant, and I'd take all the blame.



Now that's very noble of you, but I wouldn't dream of excepting such a sacrifice, ma said. Now you'd better make yourself scarce before I find some errands for you to do she said.

The result being I went over to Puts Simkins's probably feeling better than if I hadn't even tried.

CHAPTER 16

"Sammy's Fiance ?

"Miss McCleod, do you know of any of those young men who broke up your sister's crowd?" Raynor asked Emmy.

"My brother-in-law, please. Why, yes, I have met them all. I always insist on knowing my sister's friends that come to the house. Which ones do you mean?"

"Do you know Martin Delevan?"

"He's the bad one. I think that man is the only really bad man I have ever met."

"What do you mean—by bad?"

"Wicked, vicious, wrong-headed, wrong-hearted, wrong-conduct—"

"You must know him well, to judge him so thoroughly!"

"I do not know him well. I judge from his face. I am a reader of physiognomy. I know a bad face when I see it."

"Do you know anything of his character except what you read in his face?"

"Only what Alma has told me. She thought him a dilettante, and a mere do well man."

"Do you think him capable of having killed her?"

"Capable, yes. But he had no motive. He was not in love with Alma, he rather despised her."

"No where do you know that?"

"I saw them, together a few times. I am a seeing woman. Call me Rain Raynor."

"I believe you. What of the others? Are they all capable of murder? Haynes, Murray, Herrick?"

"Every human being is capable of murder, given sufficient reason and chance."

"These young men all had the chance, but did they have a reason?"

"Passionate or violent love is motive enough for any young person."

"Tell me whom you think most likely."

"Not the Delevan man and not the Murray one. Though he is bad, he is not in a sordid way. I believe he gets money from Alma on false promises."

"Then Herrick and Haynes are left."

"Yes, it was one of them. I don't know which, of course."

"Why are you so sure?"

"Elimination. And they are the ones that were most devoted to Alma."

"I have been told that Mr. Herrick was not so devoted as the others."

"Nadine Glenn told you that, then. She cares a lot for Richard Herrick and so does Doris Day. You must know I classed Alma's vanity so low she could cut all those girls with her superior charms. I have a dog, to write under it. She was a Circe."

"You don't like her?"

"I can't say that. She made my brother very happy, and she was true to him in heart, word and deed. Alma was a coquette, but she never said a word that Hugh might not have listened to."

"How can you know this so positively? To my mind our whole search is for her lover."

"Then you're on the wrong track, Alma never had a lover. She liked the men because their flattery pleased her vanity, but in all ways as she was capable of love it was all for Hugh. If Alma had been untrue to Hugh in the slightest particular I should have known it."

"And would you have told him?"

"Most assuredly."

"Then why was your sister-in-law killed?"

"She was killed by some man who was deeply in love with her, and who had no intention of such a thing, but who smothered her in a mad wave of passion to which she could not or would not, I suppose."

The dour face of the spinster looked shrilling. Raynor was deeply impressed with what was surely insight if nothing more subtle.

"I think you must be right," said Raynor, slowly. "Indeed, I think there can be no other rational conclusion. No other sensible theory. Do you suppose Mr. McCleod would agree to that?"

"I don't advise mentioning it to him. If it is correct and you can prove it and can find the man who did it, then it will be time enough to tell Hugh. You ought to get all your suspects together and explain them all to them, as they went into that room."

"I think it there'd know. They seem to be devoid of knowledge and memory when one begins to question them."

"You must make them tell. Don't let up until they do. Of course they remember! That forgetting is all pretence. Make them tell."

"Shall I collect the lot, and bring them here for questioning?"

"If you do. And let me be present. I can help you and I promise I will not interfere."

"I think I'll get them here—but I'm not sure I'll want you to be present. Of course I shall be there. And with be."

"I'll make Hugh stay up with father. He mustn't be with us."

Emmy McCleod was enjoying herself. She had told her brother that she would look over Alma's belongings and decide what to do with the clothing and all the riffraff that cluttered the bedroom and dressing-room.

"You know, Hugh," she said, "you would be perfectly helpless in this matter. I shall use my superior wisdom and judgement and I will give away the things which they will do the most good. There is practically nothing that I can use myself, and very few garments that are appropriate for Linda or Netta. The jewelry, of course, is yours. I like the bangle you gave me, but the others are far too elaborate for my use. You'd better sell them. You're too old to marry again, and I hope to heaven you won't flirt around with loose women. I shall take care of you, and—"

"Oh, Emmy, let me alone! Dispose of Alma's wardrobe as you see fit, but don't try to manage my life for me!"

Hugh seldom spoke sharply to his sister, but when he did Emmy recognized the situation and accepted it.

Moreover, she took his irritation to mean that he would do as he pleased about his lady friends, and with the quick suspicion of a spinster whose ignorance made her imaginative, she visioned her brother in retrel dissipations to distract his mind from his sorrow.

Yes after his sudden angry speech she dared not annoy him further and she had of other things. But with all her generalship Emmy found her task of looking over Alma's things more arduous than she expected. There were so many gowns and cloaks and hats, so much lingerie and such quantities of accessories, many of which she didn't even know the use of, that she was glad to call Linda Hall for aid and advice.

Hugh himself, had cannily taken all the contents of Alma's desk and any other letters or papers that either he or Linda could find, but to his great satisfaction, he found no incriminating screeds and he discovered no secret interests in Alma's life.

Hugh had loved the beautiful woman with a single-hearted devotion that was sometimes dumb before her fascinating charm. He was like a big adoring dog to whom his master is all the world. His had never chided her for her flirtations, feeling that she wanted and needed young friends, and he was certain that whatever she did was right.

Linda knew and understood his attitude perfectly, and though flirtation was a mild word for her affairs, she had never been moved to real love for any man, least of all her husband. Her only happiness lay in her children whom she had an innocent sort, or something less admirable. And her natural cleverness and her innate cleverness protected her from criticism.

So Hugh found no letters or other proofs of Alma's meeting with other men, though many had occurred. And what Linda knew she had no intention of telling.

Hugh had asked the maid to stay until Alma's things had been looked after and Linda had sense enough to mention Miss McCleod with sanity.

The maid, retained in what looked like enough clothing to last the girl for the rest of her natural life, beside a lot of valuable articles which the astute Linda could dispose of profitably.

Hugh, himself, was in a dark quandary. He could not face daily life with his sister, for though he loved her she was most trying to him. Yet he could not go away and leave her and that dying father alone.

He treated the detectives with courtesy and patience and expressed a willingness to help but they observed that the horror of Alma's death was eclipsed by his own despairing grief.

Twenty-four hours sufficed Captain Raynor for arranging what he called, to Sergeant Colby, his round-up, and then, Hugh was informed, the session would be held in the room where the murder took place.

The two detectives would be present and the two friends, for Emmy insisted on her rights.

The persons who were under suspicion would be closely questioned and their responses, together with some facts the police had ferreted out, would, Raynor hoped, discover the murderer.

"That's good work," Hugh said, when they told him. "If it gets me, licking around couldn't get Harry anywhere."

"But they gathered up some evidence," she said. "You'll see."

"Any of the servants in on this?" he asked.

"Captain Raynor said to have Dickson and Linda in readiness, and Cook and the two women made." I don't like that girl."

"It won't be long, much of importance."

"Yes, she can. She was in and out of the room all evening. And she's a sneak anyway. But if she knows anything, she would have told it before this."

Very likely.

Hugh had long since found that the easiest way to answer Emmy's insistence was to agree with her. And he hadn't noticed the girl, Netta, if indeed he had seen her at all.

He didn't like the idea of having the inquiry take place in the room where Alma had died, and he told Emmy so.

But she said, placably, "It will have to be, Hugh, because Captain Raynor said so. I'm not sure, but I think he has an idea that confronted by the scene of the crime, the murderer will confess."

"Oh, Emmy, I don't want to be present at a scene like that! Can't you get me out of this?"

"Don't be silly! Of course you must be there."

"But if one of those chaps really Emmy, I couldn't keep my hands from choking him to death right off him! I would tear him to pieces! You know I would!"

"Hugh, control yourself! For forty-five years that look had never failed in its effect.

"You would want to," she said, calmly, "but you wouldn't do it."

Hugh said no more, except that he still thought the inquiry should not take place in that room.

FORESEES CLOSING MOST BRANCHES

Bankers' Head Says Banks Will Have to Share in Restriction of Civilian Activity

Montreal, Nov. 12 — (CP) — Canadian banks will have to share in the restriction of wartime civilian activity by closing more branches and eliminating other non-essential services over the next few months, it was forecast today by Charles Sweeny, President of the Canadian Bankers' Association, at its annual meeting.

Despite the tremendously increased demand for banking services in serve the armed forces, industry and the public, the elimination of "non-essential staff is extended "in keeping with the great concentration necessary for victory," Mr. Sweeny declared.

Mr. Sweeny predicts the views of the authorities at Ottawa and must be taken by banks as part of their program for the curtailment of normal activities being experienced by businessmen generally.

The number of banking offices in Canada, he said, already been reduced by 143 since the end of 1939, Mr. St. Pierre reported. There had been an increase in the number of sub-agencies, which partly reflected the opening of banking offices to serve men in military camps and conversion of branches into part-time offices, he explained to Bank.

Mr. St. Pierre said that the number of men employed by Canadian chartered banks had been decreased by 1,600 since the start of the war and the proportion of women employed had jumped from less than 25 per cent to more than 52 per cent.

Mr. St. Pierre announced that in the year ended last Sept. 30 bank deposits of dominion and provincial securities within two years had increased by $441,000,000 to $1,272,-000,000.

This increase must have been accumulated over the past month and not had been due, Mr. St. Pierre said, to bank borrowings but to the investment on the six-month deposit receipts developed specially as security for such short-term bank loans.

"It is to be hoped that this means of financing will be limited to absolute necessity." Mr. St. Pierre commented.

Since the start of the war total bank deposits had climbed from $3,-641,000,000 to the present level of $4,974,000,000, Mr. St. Pierre announced. Meanwhile $873,000,000 had been accompanied by a net increase of only $179,000,000 in current loans, from which the banks derive much of their revenue. Heavily invested in government bonds, interest rates on which are at the lowest level in the history of Canada, the banks have suffered a drastic reduction in the rates of bank dividends.

Will Distribute A.R.P. Equipment

Distribution of available air raid precaution equipment in Belleville will take place next Tuesday evening in all members of the Belleville Civilian Defence Corps, it was announced by Mr. Harold Seldon at Wednesday night's meeting of the local unit when Mr. D. L. Davidson of the local Collegiate addressed the meeting on the distribution of the food supplies against war gases.

Mr. Seldon explained the structure, which saw a good attendance of A.R.P. workers, by Mr. Davidson's views of gestures on war gases and explained the chemical action of each of the many types of war gases. The lecture was very interesting and most informative.

Air raid wardens were allotted to many of the sectors into which the city is divided. Approximately one half of the twenty-four sectors in the city are supplied with air raid wardens but some sectors are not represented in the list. A full staff or membership in the defence committees and the boundaries of these sectors will be published with the view of obtaining wardens to fill them in the case of emergency.

It was also revealed at last night's meeting that more wardens are required for Front Street, and efforts will be made to enlist the services of persons residing in this area to assume responsibility in their capacity.

All members of the local A.R.P. set-up are reminded that the first practice of the fire station on Tuesday night between 7.30 and 9.30 when upon presentation of identification cards signifying their membership in the local defence committee they will be given steel helmets, handy service flashlights and any other equipment, which is available.

Next Wednesday officials of the local defence unit will go to Picton to witness a similar meeting being sponsored by the Peterboro Civilian Defence Committee.

Herbie Keegan Given 3 Months

Pleaded Guilty to the Theft of Two Chickens on November 5th

Herbie Keegan, 30, of this city, was sentenced to serve three months in the common jail by Magistrate J. R. Bell, K.C., when he accused appeared for sentence here today. Keegan had pleaded guilty to the theft of two chickens in last week's proceedings. Lorne Rainford, 19, of Belleville, also alleged accomplice of Keegan's, was found not guilty on the same charge dismissed against him after Keegan testified he was alone on night of Nov. 5th, when two chickens were stolen from the pens of Max Peoples of Cannifton Road.

"Aggrieved persons in the matter of chicken stealing are vulnerable to assault and I am asking for the maximum sentence," Crown Attorney R. D. Donovan K. urged after Keegan had been convicted on a prosecution wisely and openly conducted and had been with him on the night of the chickens disappeared.

"I object to this. There is absolutely no evidence adduced here today to show that Mr. Sanford was with Keegan," strenuously objected Mr. Sanford, Belleville local barrister appearing for Sanford.

"When Keegan said he was alone he assumed the full responsibility," remarked Magistrate Lloyd as he dismissed the charge against Sanford and sentenced Keegan to jail.

Max Peoples, the aggrieved person, testified he caught Keegan in his yard on the night of the robbery and recovered his chickens. Sanford, he said, "was a good boy, got away." testified Peoples. Provincial Constables Kelley and Donovan investigated the matter.

ROOSEVELT NAMES MAJ.-GEN. CLARK FOR PROMOTION

General Went Secretly by Submarine to Have Negotiations With Gen. Giraud

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP) — The army disclosed today that Major-General Mark W. Clark, deputy supreme commander of the Allied forces in French North Africa, had gone secretly by submarine to confer with them before the North African attack started and opened negotiations with representatives of the French General, Henri Giraud.

The disclosure came in an announcement that President Roosevelt has nominated Clark for promotion to Lieutenant General in recognition of his brilliant service during the preparations for the North African invasion, and during the attack itself.

Clark was the representative of the United Nations in the conduct of diplomatic negotiations of great delicacy and courage, the department said in a statement.

Prior to the beginning of current operations, Gen. Clark with a few trusted assistants, proceeded secretly by submarine to enemy-dominated territory, where he had a conference with representatives of Gen. Henri Giraud. In this conference Gen. Clark opened negotiations which brought about the close collaboration of Gen. Giraud with the United Nations.

"After the occupation of Algiers by United States troops, Gen. Clark set up advanced headquarters in Algiers and, working with Admiral Jean Darlan. As a result of this conference, a truce was arranged, thus effecting that all forces under his command in French North Africa should cease hostilities against American and British forces."

Expect Complaint May be Laid

Ottawa, Nov. 12 — (CP) — It was learned on good authority here today that a complaint under section 16 of the Defence of Canada Regulations is to be laid against the person believed responsible for sending to the United States information on the sinking of the Canadian hospital ship Lady Nelson.

Officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were expected to serve the complaint on the accused man, an American-born Ontario district correspondent for a Toronto newspaper, in connection with sending of information available here at noon.

Section 16 of the Defence of Canada Regulations contains general provisions for the dissemination of information and, under amendments recently promulgated, covers a wide range of activities which might embarrass the war effort or prejudice the safety of the state.

The action arises from a news story in which the author, describing alleged disorders in the internments camps in Ontario, stated that 10 when prisoners of war violently resisted a fettering order and that Lieut.-Col. Orman, camp manager of Canadian prisoners of war camp, was injured.

News of the difficulties encountered by the administration of discipline was withheld from publication by the censor under compulsion. Actions with a view to preventing any possibility that a distorted story might get back to Germany could lead to further action against Canadian prisoners.

After publication of the story in Three Rivers, Ralston declared said it contained "falsehoods" and "misleading and damaging inaccuracies."

He issued an official statement on the prisoners. It was substantially different from the Time article which had mentioned the use of gas and machine guns in subduing the prisoners.

Col. Ralston said representations had been made to the United States government through the protecting power to provide the enemy with material used by the German authorities as an excuse for further mistreatment of Canadian prisoners in Germany at war in-their hands."

F. P. Taylor, publisher of Time, made a statement in which he expressed regret for "the embarrassment its story had apparently caused the Canadian government." He said Time had not realized the matter was to be kept secret and that it had relied on the Reuters report from a Canadian correspondent. He also told us he had been an eyewitness of some of the scenes he described.

BRITISH, U. S. TROOPS CONVERGE ON TUNISIA

Entry of 1st British Army Into African Campaign Makes Combined Forces Greater Than British 8th Army

[By E. C. DANIELS]
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 12 (AP)—The British and American troops together were driving toward Tunisia today from the west in perhaps the largest combined Allied operation of the war, front dispatches said.

This force—the outnumbering any troops Hitler has been able to land in Tunisia—was the newly re-coupled British 1st army under Lieut.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson, 50-year-old Scot, and Americans under Maj.-Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall, Gen. Anderson, a veteran of Dunkerque, in command.

The entry of the 1st Army into the campaign bolstered the Tunisian drive in what looked like Allied operation in North Africa on even a larger scale than Montgomery's drive in the first landings.

It was announced at the outset that several British divisions would take their place in the assault on Tunisia, in addition to the participation of British naval and air forces in the battle. But the size of the British force had not been disclosed.

An army, although that is an elastic word, can be smaller than four divisions. Where Gen. Anderson's complete army is now, of course, is a military secret.

However, the force was regarded as adequate to cope with whatever Hitler might have landed from the air in Tunisia from the week might have been assembled in the Italian 1st Army which beat Field Marshal Rommel's Afrika Korps now is driving into Libya toward Tunisia, from the East.

4 Airmen Killed, Two Injured As Plane Crashes

Montreal, Nov. 12 —(CP)— Four airmen were killed and two others were injured when an R.A.F. flying boat crashed in the St. Lawrence to a Maritime airport because of bad weather in the mid-Atlantic, crashed last night in the Straits of Canso between the Nova Scotia mainland and Cape Breton.

The announcement, made by Air Vice-Marshal G. R. Pitcher, Ferry Ferry Command, said the aircraft, a Consolidated Catalina, struck the water and was lost while attempting to make a landing near a shore patrol station. It was not known whether the pilot was attempting the landing.

The names of those lost were withheld pending notification of next-of-kin. The injured were first officer, Sgt. Pilot Ralph Hall, 28, of Toronto, and Sgt. Pilot Joseph Gerald Hall, both of the R.A.F. They are receiving treatment in hospital at Mulgrave, N.S.

Livestock

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP)—The cattle trade was very dull at the livestock branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture today.

A few butcher heifers sold at $6-$8.25 and steers at $7.50-$9.

Veal calves sold steady at $10-$13.50 according to quality.

Lambs were steady at $12.50 with a few at $12.60 for good ewes and wethers sold at $11-$11.50.

Sheep traded steady at $4-$9.

Hogs were steady at $14.15-$14.65 dressed weight with sows $13.75 dressed.

Receipts reported by the Dominion marketing service were: Cattle 1,100; calves 200; hogs 1,000; sheep 1,100; lambs 150. Unsold from yesterday was 800 lambs.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 12 —(CP)— Stocks were very quiet generally on the early hours today and Mining groups and Industrials were down at noon. The list was off a point in the index.

Base Metals were off to 6.25 and losses of 15 cents came out for Noranda, Hudson Bay and Bralorne. Teck Hughes, San Antonio Gold, Pamour, Wright Hargreaves, Preston, Malartic Gold Fields and Macleod-Cockshutt were off 5 to 10 cents.

Steep Rock, Smelters, International Nickel and Falconbridge were weak issues of the Base Metal group. Some of the mildly soft spots in the Industrial list were Bell Telephone, Massey-Harris, Dominion Steel B, and Orpheum.

Smash Coast

The Germans said that three armored divisions had reached the French Mediterranean coast—but it became apparent that something had gone wrong with the Nazi-Vichy scheme to take over the Toulon fleet: three battleships and a powerful flotilla of cruisers, destroyers and light craft.

Broadcasts from the radio at Vichy and dispatches transmitted by Vichy Havas News Agency, left no room for doubt.

"Inasmuch as French naval chiefs at Toulon have pledged themselves to resist all aggression, German or otherwise, have declared that Toulon shall be a separate region," Toulon will not be occupied, and French warships will be safeguarded."

Since virtually the only safeguard for the long idle fleet appeared to be its speed, to pass across the Mediterranean to join the Allies if Germans moved into Toulon, it seemed likely that such a threat had kept the Nazis out.

Hitler Makes Decision

Hence, now German controllers added that Hitler, himself, decided the Germans should not move into this part of France—and even this dispatch despaired of any effort to explain the Fuehrer's secret.

Berlin broadcasts quoted German dispatches which, in turn, said the radio there had appealed for all French merchant ships to put immediately into the nearest Mediterranean port under Vichy control. It gave no indication what response the appeal had brought. French authors, of course, know that Vichy broadcasts now are all German.

(But with the Germans in control of Vichy, and with Pierre Laval appointed to the saddle there as far as Frenchmen are concerned, all reports from Vichy were highly suspect. But the entire situation in regard to Toulon and other southern ports was very unclear, except that Hitler declared yesterday the Germans would occupy all French maritime coastline and it seemed unlikely he would leave Toulon alone).

An authoritative source in London said at noon that the Germans may also have information of any movement of French fleet units from Toulon.

Could Save Morocco

He pointed out, however, that such a movement might have occurred without the knowledge of the Allies. He said it would be possible for the warships—ranging from battleships to sloops — to put up a great fight if the garrison forces to resist Axis attempts to board them.

Even at the prospect of a mighty air struggle took shape across the western end of the Mediterranean, Allied headquarters spokesman said yesterday he saw in a report from the Bey of Tunis to President Roosevelt's regret that Allied aviation is allowed in the country, other than a Paris radio report that the Bey had received such permission.

The German-controlled Paris radio denied Axis forces had landed in Tunisia, but this German denial was dismissed here as false.

The Allied spokesman declined to say whether the advance troops of Major-General Charles Ryder, pushing eastward by Algeria alongside the British 1st Army under Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson had yet entered Tunisia.

ALLIES CONSOLIDATE . . . .

Had Hope at Dakar

He said he could neither confirm nor deny a story in report that the Vichy commandant in Tunisia had surrendered to the Germans.

Asked whether there was any information available on the bulge of West Africa, the spokesman said grimly: "Everything is quiet on the western front. Everybody has been issued with helmets."

He asserted the Allied situation everywhere in French North Africa was "extremely satisfactory."

The R.A.F. attack upon the Tunisian airdrome was carried out in continued advance by Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's army from Egypt and bombing of Axis bases in Tripolitania.

These blows were aimed at German-Italian positions on the Libyan side of the "gap" whose ports and airfields the Axis is apparently now using in attempts to reach the Allied conquest of North Africa's shores.

This German-Italian invasion of unoccupied France was reported in Axis broadcasts before it had been completed and the Italians began occupation of Corsica.

Political Bulletin, Berlin, announced the prospect of "a new attack on Malta by the Italian fleet, which finally had an opportunity to move into those areas.

Fascists Enter Nice

Fascist motorized forces entered Nice yesterday afternoon, travelling westward, and Allied planes from Corsica bombed it as they might have already reached Toulon, 76 miles away.

Italians were reported to have landed at Bastia, Corsica, and acknowledged the prospect of attack on Italy itself by "a threatening challenge from a 50-mile strip of the Ligurian Sea coast between Genoa and Nice."

Mussolini's newspaper, 11 Popolo d'Italia, called the Corsican landhold fast, saying they knew the Corsicans "to be devoted Latins in the front line."

Across continents, troops were on the move.

Recalling the movement of paratroops from Britain to Italy Britain for the North African campaign, a Berlin dispatch said a large force of transports bombers and gliders was sighted yesterday afternoon flying southward off the Portuguese coast.

A Berlin dispatch to the Neue Zuercher Zeitung, a Swiss newspaper, said the German navy of the west was adequate to cover the expanded guard lines around France.

American concern over the Mediterranean flank was indicated anew in Ankara reports that Hitler was pressuring the Russian government to reinforce his divisions from Greece to Italy.

Move Toward Greece, Italy

Such a move by well-informed sources said billeting was being arranged in Yugoslavia and Hungary for 40 German divisions withdrawn from Russia. Railroads through Rumania and Hungary were declared heavily loaded with Nazi troops moving in the general direction of Greece and Italy.

Another future course clouded late last night as Marshal Petain and his cabinet heard Laval's report on his conference with Hitler at Munich.

Equally obscure was the position of the French fleet.

Rumors spread in Vichy the fleet had been ordered from Toulon to Corsica and then had had to sea from that strategic island. There were reports it was to attack Genoa; that it was en route to join the Allies that all these were false and that the warships remained in Toulon.

The Berlin radio broadcast a Vichy dispatch saying: "No unit of the French fleet stationed at Toulon left the port Wednesday, official French quarters stated."

Not to Fight Allies

The London Daily Express published a dispatch from a staff correspondent saying that "several units," including a number of submarines, had sailed from Toulon early yesterday to join the British and American fleets.

"Of the three battleships in Toulon, including the Strasbourg, the Provence and the Dunkerque, the Strasbourg is serviceable, but other units of the fleet are believed to have been in no and not to fight the Allies," it was added.

The Daily Express said a number of merchant ships — some with cargoes aboard — had left Marseilles with pickup crews after the Axis invasion started. Fighting French, British and American broadcasters urged all French merchantmen at sea to put into Allied ports.

Although naval experts doubted the immediate value of the French fleet to either side, considering its 28 months in port with scant oil and steel, the Allies are doing all they can to keep the warships out of Axis hands.

Immobilized at Alexandria are 11 French vessels which the British hold, but port after France signed the Compiegne Forest armistice, Oliers are scattered, at Dakar, Martinique, Madagascar and other points of the empire.

MINIATURE CANNON FOR MUSICAL REALYM

St. Louis, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Pounding a kettle drum for the artillery effects in Tchaikowsky's "1812 Overture" was inadequate enough for Conductor Vladimir Golschmann of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. At a concert Sunday, he will use a miniature cannon to shoot a charge fired into a barrel.

BECAME SERGEANT AT PILOTS IN R.A.F.

Mesa, Ariz., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Three Americans became Sergeant Pilots of the R.A.F. today and left with their British classmates for service in Britain. They previously were in the United States air forces but were eliminated from flight training. American enlistments in the R.A.F. have been encouraged since last Dec. 7, and the three new sergeant pilots are believed to be the last men from this country to complete the training course.

FRENCH NAZI

Favorite with Hitler is Jacques Doriot, one of the chief French collaborationists in the Nazi machine. He is head of the pro-Axis French Popular Party with headquarters in Paris. Reiss occurred in the Chamber of Deputies when it was demanded that Vichy declare war on the United States and Great Britain.

EMBARKATION FOR PARTS UNKNOWN

With their destination as yet unknown to them, United States soldiers are shown boarding a large transport bound for North Africa. Carrier-borne dive-bombers, and a heavy circle of protecting warships aided the landing of U.S. troops along the African coast, as well as motorboats, lighters and special landing barges sped them ashore.

ENEMY LAND

in the South Pacific found and attacked destroyers. But in neither case was it possible to observe results. One flight in the New Guinea area bombed a destroyer off Lae and the other unit came upon and destroyed a seaplane.

A third aerial attack on surface craft took bombers from the Fiji Islands Command against ship-piping off the southern end of Bougainville Island in the Northern Solomons. Shore installations there also were bombed.

In the Solomons, two pilots of navy planes manoeuvred through a formation of 12 Japanese Zeros over Guadalcanal. Their attack brought down one enemy plane.

Also on Guadalcanal, Army planes assisted in the battle with Japanese invaders, and a recheck by the navy of an attack on a Japanese cruiser-destroyer formation last Saturday showed that altogether six cruisers and eight biplanes all equipped with floats had been destroyed. Originally only a total of 13 planes were reported shot down in that engagement.

Enemy Ports Bombed

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Nov. 12.—(CP)—After seven days of sharp fighting, Allied forces in New Guinea have driven the Japanese from their main positions at Oivi and have cut off their retreat to Buna, 15 miles to the northeast, by a brilliant flanking manoeuvre, Allied headquarters announced today.

The enemy was reported to have lost a force 1,500 strong and an equal number near Gorari, about six miles beyond, where a large enemy detrallan force surrounded and wiped out Japanese reinforcements moving up in an effort to relieve the besieged advance.

The Australians took up positions astride the main trail between Gorari and Buna, thus cutting off the main avenue of escape for the Japanese retreating from their defeat at Oivi.

A communique announcing the double Allied victory said the pocketed enemy troops were trying desperately to cut their way through to the Buna area.

In addition to the 300 Japanese reported killed in the Gorari pocket, a number were said to have surrendered.

The next major objective of the allies on the trail to the Japanese coastal base at Buna is Wairopi.

Orlando, Stewart Fined $100 Each For Fighting

Montreal, Nov. 12 —(CP)— For their part in a fight during a National Hockey League fixture at Montreal Saturday night, Jimmy Orlando of Detroit Red Wings and Gaye Stewart of Maple Leafs each have been ordered to pay $100 to a charity and Orlando is barred from playing in Toronto and Stewart in Detroit "until further notice."

The disciplinary action was announced today by Frank Calder N.H.L. President. He had been studying evidence in connection with the fight.

Today he made the following statement: "For their part in last Saturday's fracas at Toronto in which Orlando of Detroit struck Stewart of Toronto and Stewart retaliated, I suspend Orlando with his stick causing a head injury, each will as a penalty, contribute to the Red Cross or other recognized war charity the sum of $100. In addition Orlando is barred from playing in Toronto and Stewart is barred from playing in Detroit until further notice."

Mr. Calder did not elaborate.

Prefer Living Close to House

Perry, N.Y., Nov. 12 —(AP)— John Schuse, 26-year-old Algonquin Indian from northern Quebec, and a friend came out of the woods to work at a nearby defense plant. They found the rigors of living in a house too great, so they pitched a tent, which Schuse borrowed from a neighbor and Mayor George Blodgett. Schuse uses a guide for the mayor on a fishing trip in Canada.

IF BABY IS CROSS FIND OUT WHY

HEALTHY BABIES are not cross. Your baby need not be cross. If he is, there must be something in his little system it "don't eat" either. Probably it's sour curds from undigested milk. Or perhaps it's—if baby's over 6 months—just the experience, the writer: "My little girl was irritable, nervous and constipated and upset herself—what a relief it was, after giving her Baby's Own Tablets, to see her soon get better she was."

No matter how delicate your baby may be, Baby's Own Tablets will help him to health. Easy to take. Promptly effective in relieving or largely lessening colic, colds, constipation, simple croup, colic, teething troubles and other minor ills.

Never be without a full box of Baby's Own Tablets. Mother Graves writes on the right. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

Benefits Far Greater Than She Had Expected

"Wish I Could Tell Everybody About Syntona," Says Hamilton Woman. Relieved Stomach Troubles, Constipation, Nervousness and Rheumatic Pains.

MRS. JEAN LEVERT

"The results I got from taking Syntona are far greater than anything I ever expected and I wish I could tell everybody about this fine medicine," said Mrs. Jean Levert, 66 Canal Street, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I had suffered from indigestion for the past five years and my stomach was upset. All the time, after eating of food, acid-risings and gas pains would bother me. I was also troubled with constipation, headaches and I always felt light-headed at times. Poisons from constipation got into my system until I was weak and dizzy and had rheumatic pains in my shoulders, arms, knees and hands, and my ankles would swell. I felt as though I would be laid up because of it but no doctor I had ever been to could help me.

"I took medicines regularly, but none of them seemed to really help me. Then I read about Syntona and got a bottle. Right from the first I could tell I was acting different from anything I had used before. I've really become a marvelous new, enjoy my food and sleep fine. My stomach is settled, constipation has become a thing of the past, my nerves are calmed, headaches and dizziness gone. The aches and pains are all gone and I feel that I get a good night's rest and awaken mornings feeling better than I have in five years. I am recommending Syntona and recommend it to any one suffering as I was."

Syntona is made from 13 of Nature's finest herb and root tonics. It acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels . . . aids in the elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy. Syntona is sold and recommended by Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

HOUSOLDIERS—Attention!

Here's the Answer to Your Question

If you cannot get Crown Brand Syrup from your favourite grocer now and then, here is the reason. Because "Crown Brand" in addition to its other uses is being very generally used to help supplement the supply of sugar in Canadian Homes, the demand has increased tremendously.

Though there has been a much greater amount of Crown Brand syrup produced this year, even this increased supply cannot cope with the shortage of millions of pounds of sugar.

Don't hoard! . . . buy normally . . . we are making every effort to supply the increased demand, and your grocer will do his best to fill your needs.

Darlan Urges Vichy French Fleet Flee From Toulon Base

Tobruk Abandoned By Nazis, Reoccupied By British

Ground Action In Axis-Infiltrated Tunisia Possibility At Anytime

TUNIS UNDER RAID

By ROBERT BUNNELLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 13 — (AP) — A powerful striking force of Lt. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's combined British-American Army swept toward Tunisia today in strength which suggested it might break an ominous seal Field Marshal Erwin Rommel to Trigoli—the last major port of escape left after his headlong flight west of Tobruk.

There are many indications that this time the Axis is too late with too little in its effort to grab off big Italian troop-carrying planes filled with German troops and flying north, probably from Tunisia," is indicated on the night's radio broadcasts that the garrisons hastily quilling out the garrisons had they had rushed to that French Protectorate.

Pattern of Developments

British official reports of continued Allied successes, this was the pattern of developments:

1. Advance guards of the new British 1st Army and United States Center commanded by Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson, were rushed to cross the French frontier today, after months of combing within 400 airline miles of the great Libyan port of Tripoli, with little prospect of any resistance in Tunisia that they cannot handle.

2. Racing for safety, Rommel abandoned the historic deep water port of Tobruk to the British 8th Army this morning, too hard-pressed to put up a fight, with only 400 airline miles of desert trail between him and Tripoli.

3. French North Africa was adjusting itself to its new role as a front line of Anglo-American offensive base, and the German-controlled Vichy radio said Gen. Auguste Nogues, former French Commissioner-General in Morocco, had been named "Admiral Jean Darlan in Allied councils at Algiers.

4. An Allied spokesman declared here that "considerable numbers" of the German 1942 Armistice Commission in North Africa had been captured by the United States forces and permanently were considered prisoners of war.

5. Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, declared that the spectacular British-American campaign "made possible a great Allied offensive year in 1943 which might end the war in 1944.

2,500,000 Dwellings Damaged by Bombs In Britain Now Repaired

London, Nov. 13 — (CP) — More than 2,750,000 dwellings in England and Wales have been damaged by Axis bombs since the beginning of the war, Health Minister Ernest Brown reported today. He said nearly 2,500,000 had been repaired and reoccupied.

International at a Glance

(By The Canadian Press)

AFRICA—Rommel gives up Tobruk without a fight as 8th Army pours across Libya; other units of Anglo-American nutcracker of Axis nears Tunisian border from Algeria. R.A.F. shoots down six large troop-carrying planes filled with German troops as enemy apparently begins evacuation of Tunisia.

FRANCE—Vichy's fleet still at Toulon. German-Italian armies complete occupation France's Mediterranean coast except Toulon.

RUSSIA—Reds report heavy attacks on Stalingrad defenders, at heavy cost.

PACIFIC — American submarines sink seven Japanese craft; heavy bombers damage four more.

'TEEN-AGE DRAFT AWAITS SIGNATURE OF THE PRESIDENT

About 800,000 Youths, of 18 and 19 Years Will be Called This Winter

1,500,000 AVAILABLE

Washington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The teen-age Draft Bill awaited President Roosevelt's signature today. Prompt approval means that some 18 and 19-year-old youths may be called to the United States army by Christmas.

(In Canada, the draft age recently was lowered to 19. Men called up are liable only for service in the Dominion.)

About 800,000 youngsters of a total of approximately 1,500,000 available 18 and 19-year-olds are expected to be called this winter, deferring for the present many married men and men with families, Maj.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey has estimated his Selective Service organization will "lose" possibly 500,000 of the 1,500,000 to the Army, Navy and Marine Corps through voluntary enlistments.

The group liable to service takes in all youths between their 18th birthdays on the last registration date, April 27.

The Senate debated nearly five hours yesterday before ratifying the administration of a joint Senate-House of Representatives conference committee which adjusted an amendment requiring 12 months' training or service.

Under the bill, High School Students of 18 or 19 who are called during the last half of the school year may, on application, receive permission to wait the end of the semester. In addition, registrants who have passed their 18th birthdays could not be inducted without their consent.

ELEVEN JAPANESE TRANSPORT SHIPS OUT OF ACTION

Four Totalling 37,000 Tons Believed Loaded With Troops And Equipment

INVASION NIPPED

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP) — American submarines and bombing planes, striking at Japanese supply lines sprawled across the South Pacific put at least 11 cargo or transport vessels out of action in the Solomon Islands and New Guinea.

Seven of the equipment and troop carrying vessels were sent to the marines. Heavy bombers caught four others in the harbor at the Japanese Buin-Faisi base in the northern Solomons. All were damaged.

Their attack occurred early yesterday morning, Navy officials said.

The four vessels, totalling about 37,000 tons, were believed loaded with troops and equipment.

The returning airmen, dispatches from the front said, did not claim any of the ships were sunk but were convinced that their bombs wrought great destruction.

Air Marshal Edwards In Middle East On Inspection Tour

Cairo, Nov. 13 — (CP Cable) — Air Marshal Harold Edwards, commander of the R. C. A. F. in Britain, has arrived in the M. E. Middle East headquarters, it was announced today.

His arrival in Cairo marked the first leg of an inspection tour of the squadrons in the Middle East and Far Eastern theatres of war. Air Marshal Edwards was joined in Cairo by Group Capt. F. G. Wait, director of personnel at R. C. A. F. headquarters in Britain and Group Capt. J. E. Hunter, director of overseas medical services.

Allied African Victory Brings Needed Relief To Russia Says Smuts

London, Nov. 13 (CP) — The smashing Allied cleanup in North Africa has brought needed relief to Russia, Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, said in a press conference today, adding that there now is a possibility of ending the war in 1944.

He said "very wonderful changes, the greatest of all, but there were much more spectacular than I expected," have taken place since the beginning of the double-barrelled British and American offensive in North Africa.

"There has been a vast change in our favor," he declared.

The 73-year-old veteran South African soldier said he expected 1943 would be "the great offensive year" for the Allies, and that if the Allied offensives could be pressed, the war might end in 1944.

The Germans have been forced to divert some of their forces from Russia to Africa, he said.

Attacks Slacken

"We see at once a slackening of the attack on Russia. . . There are reports of a great switch-over from the air force, infantry and armored units from the Russian front, in order to meet this potent new menace.

"It becomes probably the best way of helping Russia. . . The North African campaign might prove more effective, in that respect, than any northern assault the Allies might have undertaken, not only because it has taken some pressure off Russia, but because it opens a better avenue to the Far East, especially India, Burma and China.

"The death blow may yet be started from China," he said. "China is getting to play a great part in this war, as far as the Orient is concerned."

PILOT OF PLANE HERR RICKENBACHER SAFE ON RAFT

U. S. War Department Says Possible Survivors May be on Life Rafts in Same Vicinity

SEARCH INTENSIFIED

Washington, Nov. 13 — (AP) — The War Department announced today the rescue of a flier from Eddie Rickenbacker's missing plane in the Pacific and added "it is believed possible that other survivors may be on life rafts in the same general vicinity."

The rescued flier is Capt. William T. Cherry of Abilene, Tex. The department said he was picked up by a navy yesterday, "in good condition, but weak."

Rescue was immediately intensified search of the vast ocean areas south of Honolulu where Rickenbacker's plane disappeared Oct. 21, when the First Great War flying ace was en route from a Pacific base to Hickam Field.

Cherry was pilot of the Rickenbacker plane.

U.S. Expedition To North Africa Well Equipped

New York, Nov. 13—(AP)—The army's landing in North Africa is no powerful and so thoroughly equipped that even bridges and railroad locomotives were put ashore, Robert P. Patterson, United States Under-Secretary of War said last night at a dinner meeting of the Overell-Collier Publishing Company.

The operation was one of the largest, if not the largest operation, of its kind in the history of military, Patterson said, adding that 700,000 men, plus all equipment and supply were landed with it on the North African shore.

He said that even "one of ship's piling a man was required to land the expedition and to land hundreds of shipping a man would be required to maintain supplies."

Pattfison said, "We have not yet won a decisive victory in the Mediterranean area, and it would be a mistake to suppose that the road from there to Berlin is easy."

REST RELIEVING STRAIN

Toronto, Nov. 13 — (CP) — A thorough examination has revealed "nothing serious" in the condition of Hon. J. E. Michaud, Federal Minister of Transport in hospital here, his physician, Dr. Smirle Lawson, said today.

"Rest is relieving the strain of overwork," said Dr. Lawson. "and Mr. Michaud will be going back to Ottawa in a week."

ITALIAN MORALE SHAKEN BY BLOWS IN NORTH AFRICA

Rome Radio Exhorts Italians to Cease Trembling —Appeal to Sardinia, Sicily

DEFENCES INSPECTED

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Former Chief of the Rome Bureau of The Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—Faced with its first threat of invasion in the war, a quailing Italy is hastily looking to its defences against British and American troops, radio reception indicates.

The obvious apprehension among the Italians is considered all the more significant by those acquainted with wartime life because it is up by navy yesterday, "in good condition, but weak."

Rescue was immediately intensified search of the vast ocean areas south of Honolulu where Rickenbacker's plane disappeared Oct. 21, when the First Great War flying ace was en route from a Pacific base to Hickam Field.

Cherry was pilot of the Rickenbacker plane.

Lower Record For Shipbuilding

San Francisco, Nov. 13 —(AP)— A new record of four days and 15½ hours was established by the merchant ship Robert E. Peary which, in addition to her full construction today before another shipyard made ready to launch one, a sister smaller, three days and eight hours from keel-laying.

Another record for the Axis was on this Friday the 13th, the Pacific Coast Company in Alameda prepared to float the 8,000-ton Samuel Dexter today.

Only yesterday Henry J. Kaiser's big Richmond Shipyard No. 2 launched the 10,500-ton Robert E. Peary, its fifth merchantman since the keel was laid, breaking the previous record for the class held by the Kaiser Company Shipbuilding Corp. at Portland.

The Robert E. Very is a smaller ship than the Peary, but Pacific Bridge officials said the Peary, in addition to her 8,000 tons into the water as the larger size.

BOYES USE UP RUBBER

Toronto, Nov. 13 —(CP)— O. S. Gray, Federal Transit Controller, said today that Toronto boys use up rubber so fast that in no time they would be driving on their rims." He was discussing protests he said had been made by some municipalities against the new 50-mile limit on bus trips which become effective next Monday.

"I am quite aware that some municipalities are considering complaints," he said. "But little can be done to help them. We can't any rubber to waste on unnecessary bus trips."

RUSSIANS REPEL NAZI OFFENSIVE AT STALINGRAD

Reds Declare Fighting Fierce but That Germans Suffered Heavy Losses

SURPRISE RAIDS

Moscow, Nov. 13 — (AP) — Repeated German attacks, which Red Star characterized as the beginning of a new Nazi offensive, were hurled at the defenders of Stalingrad yesterday but the Russians declared today that all the assaults were repulsed with heavy Nazi losses.

The Red Army organ said the Germans had been throwing numerous superior forces into the battle and the mid-day communique of the Soviet information bureau described the fighting as fierce.

The bulletin, however, did not go so far as to label the assaults as full-fledged offensive and the details which it gave were not indicative of a large-scale battle.

"In the Stalingrad area," the communique said, "fierce fighting continued. Our troops are firmly defending their positions and repulsing attacks by enemy infantry and tanks."

In the Caucasus sector sight Red Army men who were defending the flank of their detachment repulsed three German attacks in a fourth attack by an entire company of German infantry. The Germans left 60 dead on the field."

Northwest of the Volga River city, Russian troops repulsed an enemy attack and wiped out 150 Nazis, the bulletin added.

The government organ Izvestia reported meanwhile that Russian aviators of the Black Sea fleet had made a damaging surprise raid on a German airdrome near Maikop in the Caucasus.

Germans Reported Reoccupying Coast Of Greece in Force

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 13 — (Delayed) — (AP) — Advices from Istanbul said Germans and Germans who have been almost completely absent from Greece since October were speedily reoccupying the Greek coast in force.

Another report said the flow of Nazi soldiers from Russia into Southeastern Europe was increasing constantly. The report said 19 German divisions passed through Rumania en route to Greece and Yugoslavia.

Diplomatic quarters heard from a reliable source that all 12 officials of the Italian Embassy in Madrid, headed by Ambassador Gaston Bergeret, would accompany their resignation from the Vichy service to join the Fighting French movement before the end of the week.

Comic Opera Scenes Near Algiers As People on Walks Watch Battle

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN
Distributed by The Associated Press

Somewhere in Algeria, Nov. 13 (Delayed)—Comic opera intruded into the great Allied expedition to North Africa today when Rommel, the opening day of the campaign, west of Algiers as the small suburb of El Biar.

A small army of Americans who had never heard a gun go off in anger tangled with a bunch of vicky Frenchmen in the main street of the suburb as the Battle of El Biar.

There was a brief, funny about the shooting; take it from this correspondent that it was pretty nasty.

The comedy was provided by our own doughboys and by those strangest of all people, the Arabs.

Wily snipers and machine-gunners had established themselves in the barracks just west of the Algiers suburb early in the day. Fire from 25-pound mortars and machine-gun fire cleared the French out of the barracks and back into the town.

The Yanks moved cautiously from tree to lamp post, ducking odd shots and firing whenever they saw an opportunity.

An odd body tumbling from a tree, a sniper's rifle spouting the accuracy of their fire.

Then the cowardly Indian performance apparently was just what the populace had been waiting for.

While rifle shots sounding family groups including Papa, Mama, Grandma, Grandpa and all the little ones — stood on the sidewalks gaping enraptured at the battle. Many of them hurried lounged in a doorway of his tobacco shop, making critical remarks and recounting his feats at Verdun in a group of local loafers.

During one lull in the fighting came driving up through the town for a glass of Vin Rouge—on the house.

During one ear-splitting tornado of machine-gun fire, a small child came dashing by on his car, accompanied by pets and mere, and went through it all without a hair out of scratch.

The Arab, himself behaved oddly, they had nothing on the Arabs.

Whenever there was a lull in the fire a group of small fry came scampering out of enemy territory to the Allied lines.

A high, two-wheeled cart bearing a shabby Arab and his wife, with a baby between, and while negotiated a whole Main Street behind tired, blase little donkey.

Along about 4 p.m. someone came driving up through the enemy lines and stopped to ask where he could find Maj.-Gen. Charles W. Ryder.

The French had had enough, he said, and he, the family in question, were fed up.

Ryder, a tall, handsome officer, was in the thick of the fighting when the message came through.

"Tell them to go back to their homes and stay there," he said.

The Frenchman saluted and departed.

Germans Possibly Leaving Tunisia Says British Source

Six Big Itelian Troop-Carrying Planes, Filled With Nazis, Shot Down

ROMMEL PURSUED

Cairo, Nov. 13—(AP)—Tobruk, abandoned by the Nazis in their headlong flight to stay ahead of British pursuers, was occupied by British forces today and the first indication the Axis may be leaving the last of its forces in Africa without a struggle.

As the 8th army's westward race and the Anglo-American thrust eastward from French North Africa swiftly closed around the remnants of the Axis forces, British Headquarters announced that R. A. F. fighters had shot down six big Italian troop-carrying planes "flying north, probably from Tunisia," and filled with German troops.

This meant possibly that the Germans were pulling out of Tunisia, the last buffer between the Allies in the west and Tripoli, the capital and final citadel of Italian Libya.

(An Allied Headquarters spokesman in London said he did not know definitely that the six destroyed transport planes—shot down presumably by long-range British fighters from Malta—meant a precipitous Axis exit from Tunisia, but "I hope it does mean that.")

Submarine-Proof Land Route Soon To Be Opened

Buchalas, Mexico, Nov. 13 (AP) — It took 4,000 Mexican bridge-workers in southern Mexico and all the emergency bridge-building materials in the international span providing a submarine-proof land route for Central American coffee—and maybe sugar and rubber—will be open for business next month.

Engineers say the span over the Grijalva River, linking Germany, Mexico and Guatemala, set a record for construction. Bridge building crews were taken from the government-owned railroads in the area. The new route is shorter than half a mile, across the river at an average advance of 200 feet a day.

The new bridge will eliminate a 200-mile detour by boat and train.

The bottleneck has been at the mouth of the Mexican railway ends on this side of the shallow, sluggish Suchiate. The Guatemalan line ends on the other. A former bridge was burned during the Mexican revolution and never rebuilt.

'Greatest Moment Of War' Massey Tells New Arrivals

Somewhere in England, Nov. 13—(CP Cable)—Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, today told a newly-arrived R.C.A.F. contingent, "You've arrived at the greatest moment of the war."

Welcoming the unit at a reception depot, he said Allied air supremacy had been gradually built on a firm foundation but of all the great undertakings which were responsible for this supremacy, there was "none which makes such an appeal to the imagination as the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan."

Skills and experiences obtained by the R.C.A.F. men would mean much to Canada in peace because the war was not going to be short, he would lie across Canada and fly-ing would mean more to Canadians than ever.

Laura Hope Crews Dies in New York

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Laura Hope Crews, 62, stage and screen actress, died early today at the Le Roy Sanitarium here after a 4-months' illness.

Miss Crews first appeared on the stage at Proctor's Garden, San Francisco, when she was four years old. After completing her education she returned to the stage in 1896 for a long and distinguished career which included numerous motion picture productions.

Probably her best known play was her performance as Mrs. Phelps in "The Silver Chord" in New York in 1926.

One of her last screen appearances was in "Gone With the Wind."

She was admitted to the sanitarium, October 15th, suffering from a kidney ailment and she never left the bed. A serious condition most of the time since.

Efficient Dismantling of Tunisia's Defences by Axis Helps Allied Drive

(Editor's note: Some of what lies ahead of the Allies in Tunisia is told in the following dispatch from an Associated Press correspondent who became well acquainted with the French North African Empire during an assignment of several months last year.)

By WILLIAM C. McGAFFIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

New Delhi, India, Nov. 13—(AP) — The efficiency of the Axis in dismantling Tunisia's defences and the French Protectorate's topography will help the American and their British Allies in this drive to occupy the last French foothold in North Africa.

Plat farm lands sloping gently to the Mediterranean are ideal for manoeuvring tanks and landing air-borne troops. . . .

When I was there last year the Germans feared the Germans would profit by this terrain.

This is confirmed and reported by the thorough job the Axis Armistice Commission had done in Tunisia dismantling Tunisia's once strong fortifications, feeling that this had left them open to easy German occupation any time that Hitler directed.

The Mareth Line, French North Africa's "Little Maginot" defences facing the border of Libya, was made virtually impotent by the Italians' systematic destruction.

Similarly, the great port and naval base of Bizerte, which had been powerfully armed up to 1940, was so weakened after the Armistice that the French confidentially confessed fear that "Germans could take it whenever they wished" with a minimum of trouble.

GETS JAIL SENTENCE FOR BREWING BEER

When he was in default of the payment of a $200 fine and costs the Dominion Excise Act for illegally brewing beer, J. W. Belcher of Actinolite, automatically received a six-month jail term at Tweed yesterday. Kellar appeared before Magistrate R. L. Lloyd charged with the illegal manufacture of beer and pleaded guilty. It was a second offence. Cpl. Wm. Beatty of the R.C.M.P., reported and fines of $200 and costs were imposed. The accused failed to produce the funds necessitated and the jail term resulted in default.

PEDESTRIAN INJURED

While crossing Front St., near the Bridge St. intersection early Thursday evening Mrs. Harold Alfred Draycott, 31 Brock St., stepped into the path of a motor car and was knocked to the pavement when he sustained a fractured right leg. The injured man was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital where Dr. G. H. Hubbs' fracture was reduced by Dr. G. H. Hubbs. In charge of the case was Donald Sine, Foxboro driver of motor car No. 41-467 Mr. Draycott, informed police he did not see the pedestrian until he looked into the front of the vehicle. Mr. Sine brought his car to an abrupt stop and avoided what otherwise possible. The injured man was carried into Black's news stand until the ambulance arrived.

FRACTURES LEG IN FALL FROM BIKE

Slippery pavement is held responsible for the skidding of a bicycle ridden by Robert Burns, 175 Ring Street, Trenton, on Thursday afternoon, Mr. Burns striking the street with sufficient force to break his leg. An employee of Bennett's Procter, Mr. Burns was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital late yesterday afternoon where the fracture was reduced.

CARS COLLIDE DURING SNOWSTORM

During the height of Thursday evening's snow fall a motor car driven by William Hoskins, Bloomville, skidded into the rear of a parked automobile directly in front of the entrance to the Trenton Air Station causing considerable property damage. The parked car, owned by Stanley Brown, Frankford, had stopped for the traffic light when Mr. Hoskins' car approached from the west and in colliding with the lead vehicle. Damage estimated at $100, resulted to the vehicle driven by Mr. Hoskins. Sgt. Brown car, Traffic Officer W. G. Milton investigated.

VEHICLE BREAKS TELEPHONE POLE

Failing to negotiate a curve on Highway No. 2, one mile east of the Trenton Airport, an automobile driven by P/O H. Clarke, Trenton, skidded into the ditch and broke a telephone pole off at the base late Thursday night. The motor car was left in a tangle of telephone wires, when found by Traffic Officer W. G. Milton. The second motor car was found nearby overturned in the ditch and no operator was present, when Constable Milton investigated. The license plates were recorded and police are conducting an investigation today.

Cpl. Wm. Beatty of the R.C.M.P., reported and fines of $200 and costs were imposed. The accused failed to produce the funds necessitated and the jail term resulted in default.

BOTH FOTO-NITE WINNERS CLAIMED

Ann Street residents felt disinclined to attend the movies on Thursday night, or at least that was the way it appeared to Manager Vince Freeman of the McCarthy Theatre, when the weekly Foto-Nite contest he called the telephone two Ann Street residents but neither answered to claim the prize which is the custom of the Roy C. Sills. 183 Ann Street was called for the first offer, while Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wright called for the second offer.

Largest Blood Donor Clinic Held This Week

One hundred and twenty-seven donations, the largest single collection in the history of the clinic, given at the Red Cross Blood Donor's Clinic at Kiwanis Centre here earlier this week.

The donors were exclusively civilians and represented a cross section of the district. They came from Frankford, Northport, Ameliasburg, Tyrrell as well as the first time a delegation from Warkworth made their appearance.

The clinic, according to officials, now has ample supply in operation and blood donations can be taken at the rate of forty an hour. This is largely due to the through the fine co-operation and co-ordination of the staffs of the various organizations who work under high pressure at each clinic.

The presence of the Warkworth delegation was largely due to the efforts of Mr. J. F. Boyce, of that town who is president of the local Red Cross unit there. Mrs. Stiles with W. H. Henry, also of Warkworth, provided transportation for the donors from their community.

Veterans to Hold Annual Poppy Day

The local Branch of the Army and Navy is making its annual Poppy Day appeal to the people of this community tomorrow. The Poppy Fund is now a recognized institution among the Army and Navy exists in Canada, and it serves a two-fold purpose of much benefit, the money raised is raised by the distribution of the Poppy—the sale of which is restricted entirely to relieve unusual distress among War Veterans of the last War and the present conflict, and their families. At all times it has been found that the Veterans, in view of the fact that many of them have disabilities and handicaps, suffer more than others who are out of employment, since many of these require special care and attention which they are unable to provide. In this is where the Poppy Fund through the sale of Poppies by the local Branch of the Army and Navy steps in and provides relief for the situation.

There is another reason why every citizen should wear a Poppy for Remembrance Day. Those Remembrance Poppies are made by Veterafi shop of Canada, workshops of Veteran handicapped Veterans are given sheltered employment, and in which they manufacture the hundreds of thousands of Poppies which are distributed every year at this time. By wearing a Poppy, citizens can find which satisfaction in knowing that they are helping these handicapped Veterans to obtain a livelihood which they would otherwise lack an account of their special disabilities.

This two-fold appeal should find a ready response in the hearts and minds of the people of this Community, which has always been ready to make the way easier for those of its Citizens who served Country and Empire in the present conflict, as they did in the First Great War and in this to your sympathetic consideration in the hope that you will respond generously and thus help to lead the torch flame to you by those who did not come back.

MRS. M. E. KNOX
(Belmont Twp.)

Picton, Nov., 13—The funeral took place in Belmont Township yesterday afternoon of Mrs. M. E. Knox of Picton who passed away suddenly there, from heart family latives. Interment was made in Belmont cemetery. Mrs. Knox was born in Norwood 88 years ago and resided in Picton since her marriage to the late Mr. Knox. She was a retired member of the United church and active in the work of organizations. She was especially prominent in the work of the Women's Missionary Society. She is survivor of flowers, her home had one of the loveliest gardens in the town. Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Ronald of Peterborough.

WILLIAM FLYNN
(Marmora)

Marmora —(Special)— Following an operation in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, from which he failed to rally, William Flynn passed away early on Wednesday morning at his home in Marmora. Mr. Flynn was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Flynn, early pioneers of Marmora township, who came to Canada from Ireland. Deceased was born here and lived all his life in the township and village with the exception of a short period when he resided in Canada with his elder brother, James Flynn.

The deceased had a wide circle of friends who will regret his passing. As a young man he worked in the lumbering camps and for a prescient river driver when the big drives of logs came down the Moira and Crowe River. Later he went into business for himself and operated a livery business and sold tonsles and cutters and other vehicles of that type. In later years in the large frame building which he erected on Main St., Marmora, he has a large barn and other buildings. Besides a large stock of new buggies and farm equipment. After the fire he erected the present building at Milton Campbell. The deceased then carried on a four and one business for a time but later purchased what was known as the Fidler Farm in Marmora Township where he has since resided.

Those who knew him best will remember him for his kindliness and forthright manner.

In religion he was a faithful member of the Methodist church. He was a lifelong Liberal but in recent years had taken no active part in politics.

The late Mr. Flynn is survived by his wife, the former Margaret Ann Flynn, Marmora; two sons, Edward, Peterboro, and Marion, at home. He is also survived by four daughters, Mrs. Frank Gerow and Mrs. Flynn, Peterboro; Mrs. Annie O'Sullivan, Marmora; David, Calgary; Mrs. John (Catherine) McCullough, Sudbury; Mrs. Elizabeth Madden, Peterboro; Mrs. Thomas Warren, Marmora; John, Peterboro and Mrs. Margaret Flynn, Toronto. She left his late residence, Marmora Township at 8.15 a.m. on Friday and proceeded to Sacred Heart Church, Marmora for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m. celebrated by Rev. J. A. Farrell. Interment took place in Sacred Heart cemetery.

Factory Salesmen Non-committal To Proposal for Colored Cheese

The announcement by W. R. McCreary that he was prepared to pay 25c per pound for all colored cheese and that there was a demand for this variety, drew forth no comment from the factory salesmen at the Belleville Cheese Board, Thursday night.

The question of factories making colored cheese in preference to white for the balance of the season was broached following the reading of a communication from J. F. Singleton of the Dairy Products Board advising that the board was not in the market for cheese manufactured after October 31st.

After reading the communication Mr. Fred Mallory, secretary-treasurer of the cheese board, stated he believed the board still had large cheese. "Unless I am incorrectly informed, the Dairy Products Board will still take November cheese, but they are under no compulsion to do so," he said.

Buyers attending cheese board, however, were hesitant in their belief no November cheese would be accepted by the Dairy Products Board as the Canadian cheese contract with Britain has been fulfilled.

In recommending the manufacture of colored cheese for the balance of the season, Mr. McCreary stated that the government had nothing to fear in the possibility of buyers' strike. "Colored cheese which have been shipped during the past few weeks have graded equally as well as the white," stated Mr. McCreary.

Buyers were practically unanimous in announcing their willingness to pay the ceiling price of 25c per pound for colored cheese delivered to the shipping point. Any advance of this price through buyers taking delivery at the cheese factory was contrary to the regulations and punishable by heavy fines, it was claimed by Mr. McCreary.

Trenton Air Station Heads All Canadian R.C.A.F. Stations By Subscribing $153,200 to Loan

Air Commodore Frank S. McGill, officer commanding the Trenton Air station, his staff and personnel have subscribed $153,200 to Victory Loan, and will they might for they have the proud honor of topping all R.C.A.F. stations in the Dominion with contributions to the Third Victory Loan just closed.

The final figures of the station's splendid total are $153,200 the nearest rival of the Trenton lads is the Training Air Command which contributed the fine sum of $146,500.

Victory flags now flutter from the halyards of the flagstaff at Trenton, each of the officials flags float in the breeze but special star owned by the station denote progressive advances of the quota.

The station's original quota was $43,000 and the amount obtained is considerably 350 per cent. of this amount.

THE WAR TODAY

(By GLENN BABB)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

It has been a week of the war to avenge the disaster of Tobruk. Last time the British had stretched legendary fortress to Rommel's armored spearhead, culminating in the climax or half a year of almost unrelieved defeat. The scene is that of the Nile, leaving some 25,000 prisoners in enemy hands, was the Egyptian Alamein line. The Axis gloated in the prospect of an early break-through to the Middle East, the stroke they hoped would destroy the British Empire. The soiled had his uniforms furnished for a triumphal entry into Cairo.

But the 8th. Army, reinforced by even staunch courages and fortitude in its maintenance by reinforcements from British units, and aided in no small degree by help from the United States Air Force, held and slowly won the upper hand. Winston Churchill told of the achievement in his speech Wednesday. The crucial news of launch reached him as he and President Roosevelt were conferring in the White House. President immediately set American aid in motion, sending tanks which had just been issued to United States divisions and starting them on the long convoy route around Africa, accompanied by numbers of the formidable American 105-millimetre guns which prove the answer to the German 88's.

United States air squadrons began arriving in Egypt. It was a striking numbers and were in action three victory ships that left port to be easy to over-emphasize the American share in Egypt. It was not. It was the British Army and British arms. We know now that the United States was mounting its own great offensive at the opposite end of the Mediterranean basin from which a powerful British-American force almost 400,000 strong struck on Sunday the 8th. Army.

Caught between them, it would seem, Rommel has little chance of repeating the British turnabout at Alamein. He has already lost Tobruk, which offered the chance of a last stand. He probably has it difficult to see where he expects to find even momentary safety. Malta, British-American-Anglo-American army probably will be at Libya's doorstep. Tunisia is the next. Thursday, in front of the Post Office.

The Starch truck was proceeding east on Dundas Street C.N.R. truck was pulling out from the south curb. There was a crash and the heavy truck driven by Leonard and struck a parked car owned by Milton Halladay, Dundas Street. Considerable damage was done to both trucks and the rear received a crushed rear fender.

Cafe Changes Hands

The three owners of the Star Cafe, namely Mrs. Mary Jung Yong, and Jim Wong, it is understood, have sold the business to Nip Hondroyiannis and Tom Pong, the new proprietors will, it is expected, take over the business on the 15th of this month. They anticipate doing for a short time for the purpose of remodelling the interior and making it one of the most attractive cafes in the city.

Appeals For Old Fur

Since the ban on the export of the war the Overseas Parcel League of Canada has been called on for British minesweepers in a remarkable way sending them great quantities of fur, the skins of which are of the finest, particularly needed and appreciated by them. Fur is the fur jacket which is being made up for the British minesweepers.

Mrs. W. R. Baker, York Road, who has already made such a splendid start for the British minesweepers is making a special appeal to all ladies who have a fur jacket whether old coats or just odd pieces of fur, to send them along through her to this great cause. If she is not known by phone or mail she will gladly have these donations called for and send them along where they are needed. Mail sent directly to the Overseas Parcel League for the minesweepers.

Trenton and District

Trenton (Special)—The Quinte Victory Club held their weekly meeting in the Salvation Army hotel on Thursday afternoon with thirty ladies present. A considerable amount of work was accomplished, knitting for the R.C.A.F. hospital, sewing and knitting for the Red Cross.

During the afternoon tea was served by Mrs. Silver, Mrs. Timbers, Mrs. McGrail and Mrs. Jones, the latter hostess in charge of the Temple. Mrs. Schaefe donated cookies and milk for the children.

Cars Damaged

Several minor accidents occurred during the early hours of Thursday morning due to the soft snow which drifted considerably with a stiff wind.

While driving up from Belleville Mr. Pete Smith ran into the rear of another car which stopped suddenly at the main gate of the R.C.A.F. station in darkness and snowstorm. Due to the snow and slippery pavement he was unable to stop in time, the result was a damaged trunk to the stopped car and the bumper guard and lights to pick up on Mr. Smith's car. Because of poor visibility Mr. Smith was unable to get the number of the car, which had stopped suddenly, but proceeded on his way and proceeded toward town without waiting to see what damage had been done.

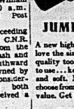
One of C. V. Graham's taxis, driven by Graham, struck a truck and was damaged in much the same manner. Graham was about to pick up passengers on Dundas Street East near Bay Street. It was proceeding west when it struck another car driven by Sgt. Walter Richards of the R.C.A.F. allegedly from the rear of the taxi, doing slight damage to the left fore.

Roy Campbell of Port Credit, driving a Bell Telephone truck from Dundas Street collided with a C.N.R. truck, driven by William J. Norton, Trenton at the C.N.R. crossing on Dundas Street. No damage resulted to the C.N.R. remains of Jis African domains.

There has been a steady flow of Axis Dunkirk's in the offing. Evidence comes today that they may already have begun. The Cairo communique reports the destruction of 200 tanks and the capture of 20,000 prisoners in enemy hands, was the Egyptian Alamein line. The Axis gloated in the prospect of an early break-through to the Middle East, the stroke they hoped would destroy the British Empire. The soiled had his uniforms furnished for a triumphal entry into Cairo.

But the 8th. Army, reinforced by even staunch courages and fortitude in its maintenance by reinforcements from British units, and aided in no small degree by help from the United States Air Force, held and slowly won the upper hand. Winston Churchill told of the achievement in his speech Wednesday. The crucial news of launch reached him as he and President Roosevelt were conferring in the White House. President immediately set American aid in motion, sending tanks which had just been issued to United States divisions and starting them on the long convoy route around Africa, accompanied by numbers of the formidable American 105-millimetre guns which prove the answer to the German 88's.

United States air squadrons began arriving in Egypt. It was a striking numbers and were in action three victory ships that left port to be easy to over-emphasize the American share in Egypt. It was not. It was the British Army and British arms. We know now that the United States was mounting its own great



A tale of adventure on the lines of a spy thriller has been told by Major-General Mark W. Clark, U. S. second-in-command of the Allied African expedition. Before the invasion started Clark and a few aides made a secret trip to Africa, touring all the French military installations there. The information gained gave the Americans a most advantageous footing in the capture of French Africa.

GERMANS

(Other sources speculated that the Tunis line had not slightly been technicians sent to Tunisia to destroy everything which might help the Allies.)

Outflanking how that the 8th Army was on Rommel's heels, a Reuters' report said land forces were in touch with the enemy in the El Adem area, just behind (not the Mediterranean south of Tobruk).

No Elaboration

The communique did not elaborate on the information the Axis was fleeting from Tunisia, but only yesterday Allied sources reported Germans and Italians were being flown into the French Protectorate to meet the combined Anglo-American force rapidly approaching it from Libya.

With Tobruk, a vital and nerve-ally debatable position, again in British hands, there was no indication where Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel might try — if at all — to halt his retreat.

The 8th Army has pushed him back 200 miles from the El Adem line and with each mile his manpower and armored strength have dwindled under ceaseless land and air attack.

British headquarters announced that the 8th Army had occupied Bardia, 256 miles west of El Adem and about 13 miles deep in Libya from the Egyptian border, that Allied planes were hammering at Rommel's transport near Tobruk.

A Furious Pace

Then, indicative of the furious pace of the chase across the African desert, a special communique soon after made the terse announcement—

"Tobruk is reported in our hands this morning."

Its harbor important as a source of sea-borne supply for the forces in the desert, is the chief objective of the battle over the sandy wastes.

This was the second time it had fallen to British.

It was captured first from its Italian defenders in Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell's 1941 drive across Libya.

When the battle swayed back, the Axis counter-drive was compelled to detour around it and it stayed in British possession for 17 months.

For eight days after the fall of Tobruk and Allied garrison, withstood siege until Rommel's troops stormed into the port last June 20.

African Bastion

Now that Rommel has lost what might have been an Axis African Dunkirk, the next phase British observers believe he might attempt a stand is in N. Agedia, on the Gulf of Sirte.

There he would have the advantage of defending a narrow passage — as British forces had at El Alamein.

But even if his depleted forces tried to strike there, they still would be 450 miles from Tripoli, and Allied forces on the opposite side of Tunisia now are nearer that Mediterranean.

If he could reach Tripoli first, Rommel still might lack air and naval strength to make an evacuation possible although it is not known what emergency reserves he may be holding there.

The question now is whether he will hug the coast for its better road and water supplies or risk the abortcut over the rugged inland track.

Removing Supplies

Unable to reorganize his forces for a stand, so clearly was he pursued by the British 8th Army, Rommel was reported moving supplies and equipment westward across the Libyan desert from Tobruk in an effort to save something from the debacle.

British military quarters emphasize that Rommel's apparent decision to surrender that vital port 80 miles inside Libya indicates he is in dire straits for the city is a tough nut to crack when manned by a well-equipped force.

They recalled how a British garrison held out in Tobruk for eight months in 1941, though ringed by Axis forces.

Exactly how many troops Rommel still has at his disposal is uncertain, but the total is doubtless far less than the 150,000 he commanded back at his rearguards.

Allied airmen, including Canadians, also were reported taking a heavy toll of Axis equipment, blasting ceaselessly at the enemy's line of retreat. Particularly heavy attacks were delivered on lines of trucks streaming along the coastal highway from Tobruk to Gazala, 30 miles farther west.

The last major obstacle barring the 8th Army's sweep into Libya was removed with the fall of Mal-heia (Halfiya) Pass on the Egyptian side of the frontier on Armistice Day.

Aussies Over-Run Fortifications

Australian infantry, supported by tanks, over-ran this strong natural position—much fought-over in previous campaigns within 5 minutes after launching their attack. The operation resulted in the capture of an additional 800 prisoners, mostly Italians who garrisoned Bir-ter as having been abandoned by the Germans.

Germans ran away, leaving us," their spokesman said. "We did not even fire a shot. . . We are glad to be out of the war."

British headquarters said that with the capture of the Halfaya garrison the only remaining Axis troops in Egypt are prisoners.

Among the latter are listed nine Italian generals, including: Division-nal Gen. Edoardo Nebbie of the 10th Corps; Mal.-Gen. Nazzaro Scattaglia of the Pavia Division; Brigadier-Gen. Brunetto Brunetti of Brescia Division; Mal.-Gen. Giorgio Masina, Trento Division, and Mal.-Gen. Enrico Frattini, Pogue Division.

Also among the captives is Lt.-Col. Bruno Bruno, chief-of-staff of the Bologna Division. Brig.-Gen. Francesco Antonio Arena of the Ariete Division was believed killed in action.

DARLAN URGES

Casualties Light

An Allied spokesman said spasmodic and partial reports show that United States casualties in North African operation have been extremely light."

Observers here estimated that an American assault force which landed yesterday at Bone, 60 miles west of the Tunisian border, should cross that frontier today, leading the way for Gen. Anderson's British army.

The Berlin radio broadcast a Vichy communique which said United States planes had bombed the Tunis airport. The Vichy radio said Tunis had alarms last night from 8:15 to 10:30 p.m., and this morning from 2 to 4 a.m., and from 6:10 to 6:45 a.m.

A spokesman at the Allied Headquarters here he did not know definitely that the destruction of Axis planes carrying Germans north from Tunisia meant a precipitous Axis exit from the protectorate, but "I hope it does mean that."

Nazis Have Little Choice

The Germans had little choice, however. There seemed no way by air or sea that they could reinforce the few thousands they have rushed to Tunisia sufficiently to check the Allied onsurge.

Some sources speculated that the Germans shot down might have been demolition experts sent into Tunisia for the purpose of destroying the airdrome's installations which might be useful to the Allies.

Another possibility was that the planes might have carried reinforcements to Tunisia, which were ordered back without landing when it was found that a stand there would be futile.

Rommel Keeps Run

The Axis had paid considerably for its attempt to interfere with the Northwest African operations. An Allied spokesman said that Allied counter-attacks by German air attacks against the North African expedition had been extremely effective, and that "between 40 and 50 per cent of their air effort has been expended."

From the east, the British 8th Army kept Rommel on the run with an advance that set speed records in the desert campaign. Al-Tobruk the British column had advanced 300 miles in nine days after breaking through El Alamein line.

They were so close on Rommel's heels that it was not regarded as likely, with the limited force at his disposal, that he could set up enough rearguard action to escape by the bomb-battered port of Benghazi, but the Axis line across the hump of Cirenaika from Tobruk.

British military observers said that the nearest line on which Rommel could attempt a stand was at El Agheila, on the Gulf of Sirte southwest of Benghazi. That was the last defensive point of previous British drives into Libya and there is nothing to show that at El Alamein could be established extending from the coast into a trackless desert.

At El Agheila, Rommel will be roughly 400 miles air line from Tripoli, with every further retreat bringing him closer to the Anglo-American force closing in from the west.

Ground action within Tunisia, where the French protectorate, was apparently a possibility this Friday the 13th.

Tunis, the capital, was made an air-raid alarm for two hours and 15 minutes last night and anti-aircraft guns were in action as raiders circled in an airdrome, the Nazi-controlled Vichy radio said. This followed an attack by Malta-based R.A.F. bombers in which 38 Axis planes were reported wrecked.

Evidence developed that the remnants of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Africa corps, fleeing westward across Libya from the hornet's nest stirred up in Egypt, intended to abandon even the seaside stronghold of Tobruk without a fight.

Cairo dispatches said supplies are being moved out of Tobruk, 80 miles from the Egyptian frontier, ahead of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's British 8th Army. Other supplies were burned.

Early yadio broadcasts said both Marshal Petain and Pierre Laval had indicated an intention to remain in office and continue Vichy's collaboration policy. A dispatch to the Basler Arbeiter Zeitung, Swiss newspaper, said the Vichy Havas news agency had been taken over by DNB, German news and propaganda agency.

Giraud Denounced by Vichy

French General Henri Honore Giraud, who helped to swing Algeria and Morocco into the Allied camp, was denounced in a Vichy communique which asserted he should not be obeyed "by troops or officials or the general population."

Petain's ministerial council said Giraud had "treacherously violated his official duties and thereby ceased his honor"; that Petain alone was to give the orders.

The Allies played a trump card in their bid for possession of the Toulon-based fleet, three score or vessels bizarrely belated by the German-Italian invasion of Southern France.

Admiral Darlan, who fell into Allied hands at Algiers, was put in charge of the fleet's forthwith and he asked that the commanders of the vessels leave their ships for North Africa. His appeal was to men who knew him as a veteran of their service and, until 48 hours before, as the chief of Vichy's armed forces.

Not Immediately Apparent

Whether the suggestion could or would be heeded was not immediately apparent, but any of the craft would be welcomed by the British and American naval forces protecting the allies' Mediterranean flank and the convoys of reinforcement and supply.

A Vichy broadcast last night said there had been no military operations in Tunisia at that time.

Morning dawned at a 78-mile-a-day clip, however, was the powerful joint striking force of the British 1st Army and the United States expeditionary force which may consist as many as 150,000 men. The Times said it was "predominantly British."

The force, commanded by Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson, a veteran of Dunkirk and Dunkirk, was reported by the Vichy radio to have occupied the Algerian city of Bone, only 60 miles short of Tunisia's western frontier, yesterday morning. Under Gen. Anderson, in command of the Americans, is Lieut.-General Charles Ryder.

Estimates of the flying and marine personnel which Hitler is reported to have landed in Tunisia ranged from 2,000 to 3,000. In the event of a fight, the zeal of the Axis armistice commission of 1940 in stripping the French fortifications along the protectorate should ease the Allied task, observers said.

British naval circles said the request of Admiral Darlan, who has been a sailor since youth, would be sure to impress French seamen at Toulon, whose big naval base now is confronted by a half circle of Germans.

But today is Friday the 13th, ruled unlucky for anyone to begin a voyage. And, although the invaders have by-passed the port, Nazi dive bombers may be in position to attack any warship making a run for it.

The Axis-controlled Vichy radio said the French navy suffered "severe losses" recently, apparently referring to the action in the Atlantic off Casablanca, French Morocco.

Perhaps for the first time from Vichy, the French people were advised that the new 31,000,000-man Soviet Red Army had been put out of action.

RUSSIANS REPEL

Following a heavy aerial bombardment, Izvestia said, the paratchutists—armed with special equipment—were dropped on the field, where they set fire to 12 planes and damaged ten more. They also were reported to have burned a railway station.

Approximately 80 German planes were said to have been using the airdrome as a base to attack Black Sea ports.

In other action in the Caucasus, the Russians reported their advance line had prevented the Germans from affecting a river crossing northeast of Tuapse, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy. South-west of Stalchik, where Red Star said the Russians had retaken two settlements, Soviet artillery was credited with smashing four German armored cars, a battery of 105-millimetre guns and a mortar battery.

On the Leningrad front, the Soviet information bureau said Russian snipers had killed 562 of the enemy in two days, while on the central front the Germans were reported killed by artillery fire.

In local fighting on the front northwest of Moscow the Germans were said to have lost an additional 300 men.

Washington Spotlight

(J. F. SANDERSON)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 13.—(CP)—His full name is Dwight David Eisenhower, his rank is Lieutenant-General and the Commander-in-Chief of American forces in the European theatre of operations and the man in charge of the forces occupying French Africa is known universally as "Ike".

When he stepped ashore at some unspecified spot in North Africa last Sunday, it was his baptism of fire although he has been under shot since 1918. After graduation from West Point, Eisenhower was employed in the training of men in the last war and never left the United States—to his great disgust.

Born in Texas and raised in Kansas, Eisenhower comes from an Old Pennsylvania Dutch family that has been thinned out over the years by liberal infusions of Scottish, Irish and English blood, about the only thing German about him today is his name and even it has been anglicized from the original Eisenhauer.

The General is known as a propitious worker and a great student of war. Years ago he made a replace the tank would play in modern warfare and he pioneered the mechanized section of the army. At 48—he will be 52 next October—a licensed pilot because he felt it necessary for a top-flight military man to have personally felt the air of a theoretical knowledge of planes and conditions in the air.

Eisenhower, his friends say, has an extraordinary capacity for understanding people, a kind of sympathetic understanding that helps him to use whatever and like so many professional soldiers, is ruthless in his absorption of the forces underlying the militarism of Germany and Japan.

The Devil Dogs

There was a momentary pause in the Guadalcanal fighting last Tuesday, just a pause. There was a moment of contemplation and fresh resolve on hundreds of American hearts as they looked out and at bases scattered over the globe.

It was time out from war to mark the 167th anniversary of the founding of the United States Marine Corps, created in 1775 by the Continental Congress during the American Revolution. The United States Marines have a long and glorious record but during 52 of the 167 years of its existence, the marine corps has seen a war in one section of the world or another.

The spirit of the Marines is expressed best in the retort of a captain who, in 1918, was ordered by French superiors to withdraw from Belleau Forest. He replied:—

"Retreat, hell! We just got here".

Then Came Chateau-Thierry

When Gaston Henry-Haye, Vichy ambassador to the United States, bade his farewell and returns to France, it will be the end of a long, sometimes tragic, but for former mayor of Versailles, France, the relations between Vichy and the United States cooled and headed for inevitable rupture. Henry-Haye was more and more the lonely man of Embassy Row.

Recently, possibly the finest in Washington and sumptuously furnished Georgian mansion he had occupied with the men of Vichy. Henry-Haye gradually came to lead the life of a recluse, except for occasional short walks exercising his dog.

Notes That Makes News

Washington newspaperwomen are neither over the prospect of the glamorous job months. Into taking her seat in Congress. They don't feel the same about the retirement of Jeannette Rankin the only member of Congress who voted against the declaration of war against Japan, who didn't choose to run again.

A Washington joke has come up with a perfectly ducky idea to bolster Russia morale which she, alone, seems to think needs bolstering. She would have everyone send a Christmas card to Stalin.

Advertising Cost For Victory Loan Kept Quite Low

Toronto, Nov. 13 — (CP) — Cost of government advertising to support the third Victory Loan was only about one-tenth of a cent for each dollar subscribed, H. H. Rimmer, Toronto advertising executive, said today in an address prepared for delivery to the International Advertising Association conference. This covered all forms of publicity and advertising.

After reviewing the achievement reflected in the increase in the number of subscribers, Mr. Rimmer said: "This Victory Loan and the one in February have proven to us that we are big boys now, with added responsibilities to face, and with a great national future to defend. In February we freely subscribed nearly $1,000,000,000. In October we did it again. And six months from now we shall do it still again."

Praises Advertising

Mr. Rimmer expressed pride in the record as a Canadian, and pride as an advertising man that "the co-operation between the press and previous loan campaigns had be credited, at least in part, to the power of advertising to stimulate a free people."

He asserted that advertising in Canada "had its supreme test during the past three weeks" and that period advertising helped to produce sales of roughly $1,000,000,000, possibly three or four times the volume done by any individual business in a year.

The campaign was brief, "so brief that an unthoughtful person might easily have been led to criticize the tremendous weight of advertising poured into the campaign by the government and by industrial sources donating space.

If the same weight had been distributed over 12 months no one would remark on it." At the end of a year we might have got $1,000,000,000. So we can't wait a year. In six months we shall need another billion."

Shown, ABOVE, is Rear Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, who is commanding American forces participating in action against French North Africa.

CAR BROKE IN TWO

Albuquerque, N.M., Nov. 13—(AP)—"That must be my car," said Frank Annabel, 75, as he sat up and looked around after his auto had been hit by a train. He was only half right. Part of the car remained on the grade crossing and the rear half landed 200 feet away. Annabel was treated for cuts and bruises.

FIREMEN WILL NOT ACT

Unanimity of Aim

The unanimity with which the United Nations have answered the task of completa war upon the enemy by multiplying the fronts is one of the most cheering notes according to Captain Lyttelton, British Minister of Production.

A proof of this unanimity is seen in the mighty armada which was possible through the co-ordination of services and the combined might of the American and British.

Most people cannot yet have realized what power the United States was able to throw into the invasion plans to defeat the aims of Hitler, and what Britain has achieved with the United States in North Africa and in the Battle of Egypt.

History was made. 350 ships of war guarded and guided 500 ships in the United States convoy which made the swarm of enemy submarines believed to be infesting the area through which the armada passed practically impotent or harmless because of British and American skill.

The energy these two great powers together with Russia as well as the other great United Nations, the great Chinese Republic and the overrun nations of Europe are throwing into the fray, is a happy augury.

Bells of Defiance to Ring

The church bells of Great Britain will be rung on Sunday morning "in celebration of the success granted to the forces of the Empire and Allies in the Battle of Egypt and as a call to thanksgiving and to renewed prayer." The clergy and ministers will arrange for bells of their churches to be rung during the mid-morning services during the period between 9 a.m. and noon.

These bells have been silent since June of 1940 when the Government silenced them as a measure of precaution against threat of invasion.

1,200 churches which were damaged or wrecked by enemy bombs will not be able to ring in the service of victory. In other churches there may be no bell-ringing as fifty per cent of Britain's bell-ringers are in Britain's forces.

After the bells have been sounded in national thanksgiving on Sunday morning they will become silent under the original order.

The ringing of the bells on Sunday will have a profound significance for the people of Britain who are a religious people and in the midst of war and its tragedies have not lost their faith. The bells have long been associated with religious ceremonies, in the time of such a victory they do not forget their duty of thanksgiving and prayer. They recall the blessing which has come through the sacrifices of the war as they look forward to the day when the evils of the enemy shall be brought to nought and the church bells of British shall again ring in the world of freedom and peace secure. Britain has felt the inspiration of fighting for the right and in the knowledge that her cause is just, she has been able to strike at the foe and strike hard.

In Britain where bell-ringing has been carried to great perfection, from the stately church towers and belfries pointing skyward will ring as in other days the message of the bells. Who does not know the inspiration of a church bell or a peal of bells in a village or town or large city when the sky is filled with the changing notes which reverberate and touch the hearts of men and women and children?

It will herald the day to come when the bells will again ring with all ordinances and restrictions removed — when Britain announces the birth of a victorious peace. And on Sunday when these bells have finished ringing their peals of praise and prayer, Britain's people will carry on their great task to the end inspired by the British victory in Egypt.

The people of the United States in the wisdom of President Roosevelt have been called to observe as a day of prayer, Thanksgiving Day and New Year's. His presidential proclamation opened with the familiar words of the 92nd Psalm, "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord." This president recited the 23rd Psalm known to hundreds of millions of people the world over and called his nation to the work that confronts it in this time of emergency in every department of life and in the homes of the Republic. These two facts are significant of the spirit of the Allies.

OURSELVES AND THERS . . .

BY

WE JOIN THE AIR FORCE?

"Tighten up your safety belts, it might get a little bumpy," sang back Wing Commander W. G. Stephenson.

The big Lockheed bomber hovered over Brighton. Below and to the left lay Presqu'île in a misty haze.

Inside the big plane Air Commodore Frank S. McGill turned his head and smiled assurance. Back in the fuselage as comfortable as a bug in a rug rode the writer, Mayor Glen E. Thompson, Jim Barclay, and Ted Wooley, and a real pal, LAC. Allan.

The big silver plane roared its way through a cloud-flecked sky. We were flying at about 2,000 feet. Overhead was the vast cerulean blue. Abreast foamy feather-like clouds kissed the silver wings of the plane.

Below the bay lay in a funny spread-out formation. We dipped down to cloud level, about 1,800 feet. LAC. Allan (our pal) turned to us and offered a cigarette. Ahead lay the lake and our destination.

We had left the Trenton Air Station at 10:45 and with Air Commodore McGill were escorting the famous Commando Dagger to Toronto where it was officially turned over to Air Vice Marshal George E. Johnson, officer commanding No. 1 R.C.A.F. Training Command, who will eventually transfer the dagger to the proper authorities who will see that it will fill the purpose for which it was originally intended.

But that's apart from the point.

Here we were. Four embryonic flyers. Eventually it was a red-letter day in all of our lives. True, LAC. Allan fixed our seat belts, and Jim Barclay gave us cigarettes when we were "up."

And we also found out that the fags are "out" when you land or "take-off" and believe us the R.C.A.F. don't fool!

There came a bump, and "Joe" smiled backwards (wise guy). Then the big silver-winged ship slipped over the Ontario shoreline out to "sea." Up forward Air Commodore Frank McGill must have smiled to himself. In his lap was the Commando Dagger. In his mind was the fact that he was doing a bit more for his country. But better yet, if we could really estimate that fine officer's feeling, there was a sense of pride, not only in what he represented for the county of Hastings, but his own stirling lads at his station.

The big silver bomber heeled. We clutched at our safety belts.

"Say," sang out Jim Barclay, (he was sitting in the seat opposite us), "I would like to see what the Pickering plant looks like but it's it down there, isn't it?" he asked us.

We looked down. It was a grand picture. Pickering may have been "it" but we looked like any other of the terrain. Pal (LAC.) Allan smiled. "That, sir," he said, "is Cobourg."

From there on it was a grand party. No Sir Johnson and all the controls of the big bomber. Air Commodore Frank McGill with his grand hospitality was the "keyman" of the day's enjoyment.

Forty-six minutes after we left the Trenton Air Station Joe "set her down" on the Island Air Station, Toronto. Sleek R.C.A.F. boats awaited us. We were whisked to No. 1 Training Command R.C.A.F. headquarters where we met a grand gentleman, Air Vice Marshal G. E. Johnson, air officer commanding that division, who cordially invited us to lunch at the University Club. And a Sherry.

Such hospitality was grand. We had a "flying" day of it. The lunch period was all too short. Within a few minutes we again caught up with our schedule, thanks to another grand air force officer, Air Commodore G. Walt, who was our luncheon 'pal." We raced to the R.C.A.F. cruiser which had brought us to town, and back to the Island Air Station where the big plane was awaiting us.

We had a tail wind. Joe was at the controls. We took off at 2 p.m. and he "rolled" the big silver ship to its Trenton hangar exactly thirty minutes later. Wotta day.

COMPARISON

We'll be seeing them tomorrow,
boys with blank and sightless eyes,
Broken lads who go on breathing
but who do not can never rise,
And against that sort of service
we shall seem a sorry crew
If we've ever stood and quibbled over tasks we've had to do.

They'll be coming home from battle
as our Country's glorious dead;
And we'll have to group about them as the last few words are said.
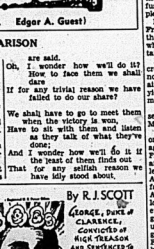
Oh, I wonder how we'll do it
how to face them we shall dare
If for any trivial reason we have failed to do our share?



We shall have to go to meet them
when the victory is won,
Have to sit with them and listen
as they talk of what they've done;
And I wonder how well do it if the best of these finds out
That for any selfish reason we have idly stood about.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Our Political Relations With France

New York, Nov. 13—War and politics are inextricable. Whether, at the outset of a war involving France, it will be well to revise our political relationships with France.

Three factors have been involved in these relationships: the French government; General de Gaulle; and the people of France. Now at Darlan's assassination, Giraud, in North Africa, leader of a new force, has appeared on the scene.

The Vichy government, the Fighting French, and the American Army and have all been conceived as a means of reaching the people of France. The military negotiations, the North African army, the French forces which have been assembled since summer, 1940, by General de Gaulle. These latter, though small, have participated in the Syrian campaign, the Egyptian campaign, and have been the base for operation in New Caledonia, Tahiti, and Madagascar.

Mr. Hull thought it wise to keep contact with Vichy for the purpose of winning away from Germany as much as possible. It cannot be said that this was done in preparation for the North African campaign because this policy was pursued during all the months between the collapse of France and our entrance into the war, before any military measures were planned.

Now, the question may be asked. Was it successful? Have we achieved anything from our political relations with Vichy?

Achievements Claimed

Mr. Hull says we achieved: First, intelligence information; second maintenance of close relations with the French people; third, keeping alive the idea of a Free France; fourth, fostering resistance to increased German demands under the armistice; and fifth, paving the way for sending a military force into the Western Mediterranean.

Now, if we accept the first gain as claimed, it is of enormous importance—how about the other four?

Did our policy toward Vichy help us to maintain the morale of the French people, or did it confuse the minds of the French people? This at least is arguable.

Did it keep alive the idea of a Free France, or did it discourage the only Free French movement in existence operating? This is certainly arguable.

Did it foster resistance to increased German demands? This is not arguable. The Vichy French Fascist Government has consistently yielded ground to German demands.

And did it pave the way for entrance into the Western Mediterranean.

Perhaps it is that Petain offered only a formal verbal protest against the dismemberment of France, and withdrew even that after Laval's conference with Hitler, and has since called on North Africa to continue resistance. The fact is that the French forces in Algiers and Morocco resisted as long as possible. The fact is that even the prisoner, Darlan, has not been ready to say no, nor offered us as much collaboration as Petain gave Hitler. The fact is that Frenchmen in Tunis did not try to keep out Axis parachutists.

And, finally, the fact is that though the French fleet was not delivered to Hitler, but still is at Toulon, it is probably due to be scuttled by the French crews.

Honesty Isn't Simplicity Needed

If now the State Department admits that we were just playing a game with Vichy, it puts our diplomacy in a class with that of Mussolini. And, frankly, I don't like it. Nor do I think it good diplomacy in the end to do so.

If we go into the past, it is because we must learn from our past mistakes in our relations with France. As a mediatory factor between us and the French people, the Petain-Laval Government is eliminated. All Continental France is occupied by the Germans with the exception of the unusually ill-fortuned Darlan is apparently playing with us the same original game he played with Hitler, the Germans, but under conditions less favorable for the Axis.

But who is to be the new mediatory factor? There is a choice among three: De Gaulle, Giraud, and Roosevelt. Apparently we tried Darlan and Giraud. We dropped de Gaulle. This drop is obvious, from the tone adopted by the Administration since the State Department.

In this we are again at odds with the British. Churchill, in his Wednesday speech, paid a tribute to de Gaulle with appropriate words for General Giraud, whose acquisition by our side is without doubt extremely welcome and valuable.

Now, it is obvious that the choice following collapse, plus our diplomatic policy, has created enormous difficulties among the French. We cannot create unity. But we certainly could avoid increasing disunity.

If the impression goes abroad that Giraud is our particular favorite and that we are hostile to de Gaulle, the debate in France will not centre on how to fight Germany but on the question of who is Giraudist and who de Gaullist. That debate is what Hitler wants. It can produce not only rifts in France but rifts inside our own coalition—Britain, Russia, United States. It will also create uneasiness among all the Governments in exile, who will then be left down.

Obviously we must try to bring together all the good German elements in France, and the first step in this direction is to bring together the General Giraud and General de Gaulle, without letting down either of them. This is the first necessity of simple honest diplomacy.

NORTHWEST PASSAGE

Eight members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police recently arrived at Sidney Nova Scotia, after completing a two-year patrol of the Northwest Passage.

They set out from Vancouver on the Pacific in June, 1940, in the "St. Roch," an 80-ton schooner specially built to withstand Arctic weather, waters and ice floes.

One member of the party died during the voyage of 26 months, but he was replaced by another R.C.M.P. and a Royal Canadian Mounted Police post along the route.

Soon after Columbus ran into a new world while trying to sail directly from Europe to China and India, explorers began a search for a water route across North America.

Much-dreamed-of and sought-for northern waterway was the continental passage known as the Northwest Passage.

Cabot, Cartier, Champlain, Hudson, Frobisher, Davis, Baffin, Ross, Mackenzie, Barrow, Franklin, Melville, were only a few of the many navigators who sought in vain for the Northwest Passage.

These efforts, though they failed in their objective, contributed much valuable information about the Arctic regions and resulted in many important discoveries.

The British Parliament offered a 20,000-pound reward for proof that such a passage existed, and in 1903 Benjamin Franklin, hoping to organize the expedition headed by Dr. Kane, died.

Ronald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole is credited with having been the first man actually to navigate the Northwest Passage, his ice floe, named "Gjoa" in the "Gjoa", sailed through Lancaster Sound and arrived in Spring Strait July 11, 1906, more than three years later, the "Gjoa" was frozen in the Arctic ice three winters.

Although Amundsen had discovered "a Northwest Passage" and was the first to sail a ship from the Atlantic to the Pacific north of the continent, the ice floe remained and navigated was so far north that it had not no commercial value to this day. Dangerous waters, treacherous ice floes and inclement weather make this shipping route impractical.

The desire to send aid to Russia by a northwestern route has revived interest in the possibilities of the Northwest Passage.

But it is probable that the real shortcut from the west to the east will be found through the air and not over water.

E. G. ROHRBOUGH TO BE PROSECUTED FOR TIME STORY

Charge Alleges Violation Defence of Canada Regulations

Ottawa, Nov. 13—(CP)—Edward Gay Rohrbough, an American citizen now living in Canada, will be prosecuted for an alleged violation of the defence of Canada regulations in furnishing the United States News Magazine Time with information concerning German prisoners of war at Bowmanville, Ont., the Justice Department announced yesterday.

The department said Rohrbough, Barrie, Ont., newspaper correspondent who enlisted in the Canadian army was retired from the army in 1941 on account of ill health, would face trial for contravening the regulations, and that J. C. McRuer, K. C., of Toronto, had been appointed to act as its agent and conduct the prosecution.

Rohrbough has represented a Toronto paper (Star) at Barrie, and Camp Borden, Ont.

The story sent to Time Magazine concerned the resistance offered by German prisoners at the Bowmanville camp when suburbs; they were handcuffing them as a reprisal against the German government's action in ordering the manacling of Canadian prisoners taken at Dieppe last August.

Section 16 of the defence of Canada regulations, under which Rohrbough is charged, provides in general for the safeguarding of information, and summary conviction under that section carries with it a maximum fine of $500 or 12 months' imprisonment or both.

Press censorship suppressed the publication of details at the time trouble arose in Bowmanville, but Defence Minister Ralston issued a statement describing the disorders after the account of them carried by Time appeared.

Col. Ralston said Time's story contained "falsehoods" and "distortions" likely to provoke the enemy with propaganda material which the Nazis might use as an excuse to mistreat Canadian prisoners of war further.

The Canadian government lodged a "protest" with Washington, through diplomatic channels, after the magazine's story appeared.

ELEVEN JAPANESE

A total of 18 tons of bombs was unloaded by Flying Fortresses and Liberators, formations of which made raids on the shipping concentration at the Buin-Faisi area and base and a Japanese airfield there.

These bases are 290 miles northeast of Guadalcanal.

On land in the Solomons a lull apparently has developed in the battle between American troops and Japanese forces seeking to retain Henderson airfield from which bombers can control many shipping lanes.

Enemy Believed in Retreat

In New Guinea, however, the battling of Allied ground troops continues to pile up victories. Allied headquarters reported the enemy was retreating from Orri-Gorari area where the Japanese had sought to gain control in the Owen Stanley Mountain area. The retreat might develop into a disorderly rout, official reports indicated, for the Japs have abandoned much equipment and left behind some troops.

Enemy aerial attacks on American-held positions in the Solomons were made at heavy cost, the navy reported. Many Japanese planes shot down 17 Japanese bombers and seven fighters, and probably 3 more dive-bombers and two fighters were destroyed. American losses were seven planes.

Submarines also damaged and possibly sank an enemy destroyer, the navy said.

Of the cargo and transport vessels sunk by submarines, three were large cargo vessels, another a cargo vessel; two medium sized, a cargo carrier and an auxiliary, and one small, a cargo ship and patrol boat.

Those sinkings brought to 141 the number of enemy vessels sunk or damaged by undersea raiders since the United States entered the war. Of the total, besides 61 vessels sunk, 21 probably sunk and 27 damaged.

SEE NEUTRALITY SPANISH POLICY

Gen. Franco Seems to be Striving to Hold to Middle-of-Road Course

New York, Nov. 13 — (AP) Spanish foreign policy, hitched to a program of pro-Axis non-belligerency when Hitler was winning victory after victory, has veered suddenly toward strict neutrality as a result of developments of the past week, advices from reliable European sources said today.

Faced with the sudden rise of Allied power in the Mediterranean, Gen. Francisco Franco apparently has experienced an overnight change of heart and is trying desperately to hold his country to a middle-of-the-road course, declared these sources whose identity cannot be disclosed.

Vichy France and Vichy North Africa — the buffers which heretofore stood between Spain and the armies of the warring powers—have been wiped out of the picture with startling suddenness.

On the north, the Spaniards now have nothing between them and the Nazis except a thin chain of mountains.

On the south is Gibraltar and just beyond, the powerful British and American forces which have seized control of French North Africa.

Several reasons are cited by European observers why Hitler might not choose to go into Spain—

1. Franco's cupboard is bare. German invasion forces could not live off the land.

2. Most observers believed Hitler hasn't sufficient troops and material in Western Europe to occupy Spain successfully, but would prefer a neutral Spain guarding his flank.

3. Should the Germans cross the Pyrenees, it would be an even bet whether they or the Allies would get to Southern Spain's vital ports first.

4. There is small reason to believe Franco would willingly become a party to occupation of his country by the Nazis.

ITALIAN MORALE

As overlooked by United States listening post, the Rome radio is exhorting Italians to cease their trembling. Mussolini's Popolo D'Italia has called on Italians to hold fast (incrollabili). The Duce said it particularly a year ago when Italians began to grumble more or less openly at the pinch of stringent food rationing.

Appeals to People

Since the R.A.F. bombed Sardinia Tuesday, the radio has been appealing to the patriotism of that island 7 1-2 miles south of Corsica.

Similar attempts to inspirit the Sicilians and Neapolitans have made by the Rome radio, but the main thrust there is apparently not yet on the R.A.F. last year.

This is not to say that Italians, cowed by 20 years of Fascism and now by the Germans in their midst, are ready for revolt, although a rebellion might develop from a successful invasion.

Reports reaching government circles in Washington tell merely of a little more deterioration in morale since we left Rome last May.

With such a situation prevailing, with Italian forces characterized by the knowledge that British and American land forces are within easy range to blast Italian objectives, with the Germans feeling they cannot trust the Italians to hold Sardinia and Corsica, Hitler is said to be diverting German army divisions from Russia to Italy.

They would be the first German infantry to occupy Italy. The estimated 260,000 Germans on Italian soil thus far have been aviation units and sailors for German submarines in the Mediterranean, as well as gunners for Italian warships. Mussolini has been holding 1,000,000 or more men under arms in Italy against invasion, while his propaganda ministry is attempting to laugh off the possibility.

An apse is a part of a church, don't ask me what it means, and a gazebo is a gazebo is a kind of a little summer house with a view, and a gulp is a four letter word meaning an organ or touch, such as Handel Bach, pa said.

Those were the days of innocence before such deadly sounds as ackack, or Stuka, had even been heard of, pop said, and ma said, Pica is a size of type and a rudd is a four letter fish.

So is the fellow that invented crosswords I often think, pop said remembering some remarkable words from the crossword era myself. A gigantich is a tool used by oyster mongers to close oysters that have been opened by mistake. Biffis is a six letter word meaning to get the better of somebody who is trying to get the best of you.

Now William you're making those things up, ma said. Not at all, ma said. Joppa is the ancient name for Jaffa, and in Palestine, she said, and pop said, Gyppa is the modern name for a female crook, pa said.

Do you know what a skeg is? ma said, and pop said, Yes, a skeg is a miniature keg.

It is not, tis a certain part of a boat, ma said, and pop said, Do you know what a twinkle is?

No and neither do you, ma said, and pop said, I certainly do. It's the light made by stars when they're just too faint to twinkle, he said, and ma said, Oh well, if you're going to be silly we may as well drop the subject.

Wich they did.

NEW MAGIC RECIPE AUNT JEMIMA READY MIX SOUP

Southern Jaw Of Axis Vice Is Wrecked

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Mounting evidence that the developing Anglo-American drive on Italy in Africa has already shattered both prongs of Hitler's neat axis vice definite symptom of relaxation of enemy pressure on Russia due to the Allied offensive in Africa.

Turkish observation posts say that with otherwise unconfirmed but plausible reports that Nazi troops from Russia also are being hurriedly rushed into the Balkans to man a new potential Axis defence front. In the south that means from the Pyrenees to the Dardenelles, from Spain to Turkey. Nor can Spain be certain that the resentment Turkey might forsake her neutrality to join the fighting powers of Mediterranean cordon.

The state of secrecy and "demoralization" to invite new Allied attacks which Prime Minister Churchill foresaw is not yet arrived. The first crux of the American-steeled offensive in the Mediterranean theatre is brewing in Tunisia with domination of the Central Mediterranean narrows at its prime objective.

First Air Blows

First air blows of that clash have been exchanged in the little French protectorate. Just how near the American or Anglo-American armored columns hastening eastward may be is not completed but the movement of French African outposts is not clear. The odds seem heavily in Allied favor.

Turkish accounts of heavy Nazi troop movements from Russia to the Balkans are of special interest. If true, they indicate Hitler's apprehension over the security of the Greek-Balkan sector of his southern front as well as over its French or Italian sectors.

His concern is justified. His most vital war asset, the oil to keep his panzer, Stuka and war industries going, is in the Balkans. Could Allied major strategists freely pick the place at which they could strike the most deadly blow at the Axis, without question the Rumanian oil fields would take first place in their calculations.

Last evening an enjoyable dance was held at No. 2 Wing airmen's mess in the Belleville Hospitality Club, St. Michael's Club and Trenton Hospitality Club were guests of the airmen at their monthly dance. The band of R.C.A.F. orchestra provided excellent dance music and the affair proved most successful.

On Wednesday evening, the Trianon Ballroom was the scene of one of the most interesting events of the Fall season when the Deacon Dan Social committee held their annual Sadie Hawkins Dance. Miss Margaret Meeks was chairman of the committee and with her committee planned an affair that started out the arrangements for the delightful party. Mr. and Mrs. Deacon Deacon and other members of the firm were patrons and patronesses of the dance. Many guests and couples attended. The beautifully decorated hall provided an effective background for the vari-coloured gowns of the young ladies, while many of their partners were in the uniforms of the services. The Commodores orchestra supplied the music for the dance and their syncopated rhythm ensured the success of the dance. Three novelty dances added to the enjoyment of the guests and the prizes for these spot numbers were won by Mary MacDonald, Harry Donnelly, Miss Dorian Rose and A. A. Cunningham and Mr. and Mrs. Goodman. At eleven o'clock supper was served and midnight found the dancers enjoying one of the highlights of the evening, the Grand March when hats, horns and balloons were presented. A most successful evening was brought to a close with the strains of "God Save the King". The committee acknowledged with appreciation the interest of the many friends who attended and the firms who assisted, the Cherry Press, Lattimer's Drug Store and S. S. Kresge Co.

Baby Doll Girl on Way Out

Sonja Henie is both Attractive and Capable.

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT LOOKS as if the baby doll type is fading from the picture. We can't say high noon yet, for the idle, wishy-washy young lady who spends hours on end at the dressing table, fussing with her hair, laying on the facial paint. There's a knack to doing lots of work and Miss Useless had better come to acknowledged with education the interest of the many friends who attended and the firms who assisted, the Cherry Press, Lattimer's Drug Store and S. ## Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"In the Style to Which"
Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 17 years old and have one more year in high school. I'm in love with a boy but we can't agree on the date of our marriage. He is older than you, so I'm unlikely he marry a girl unless he could give her as good a home as the one her father provided.

Do you think a girl should wait for a young man to get her as good a home as the one her father provided, or would it be well to work together to get this home?

Miss M. A.

You do not state this young man's age. Unless he's a good many years has often said he would never could provide a home for you for some time to come. It would be well for you to look into consideration the likelihood of his being drafted.

Hands-Off Policy Suggested
Dear Miss Fairfax:

A year and a half ago my only daughter ran away and got married. We have seen the boy three times everything she wanted. I was terribly upset, and my husband took it very hard.

She had a wonderful position and was on the brink of a business career; although her firm wanted her badly, she wouldn't return.

Three months ago they had a baby girl. They live in a city town, and it seems she never got a chance to write. Although she used to confide in me, now she tells me nothing. They're both very sexy and I shudder to think of what that child will be when she grows up.

Her husband is in the Air Force and I've just had contact with my daughter. I've tried to tell her at different times to stop systemizing her work, but she listens to no one but her husband; he has her "under his thumb." We've found out he lies to her. We will appreciate any suggestions.

W. H. C.

Nothing is harder for a parent than to stand on the side-lines and see a beloved child make what seems to be grave mistakes. But a hand-off policy is the better part of parental wisdom. When your daughter has made enough mistakes she'll be glad enough to come to you. Meanwhile, these young folks are still practically enjoying a honeymoon, a time at which no one is more gifted with hard, practical common-sense. Try to be patient.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Double Wedding
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I are to have a double wedding. It is to be held at home, with only the relatives of the three families present.

1.—Please explain how the wedding party enters the room. Each bride is to have one bridesmaid and a flower girl; each bridegroom will have a best man. Is the bride's father give us both in marriage?

2.—Who gives the gifts to the bridesmaids, the brides or the grooms?

K. F.

1.—First to enter the room is the clergyman. He is followed by the two bridegrooms, each with his best man behind him. The bridegroom of the older sister walks on the left of the bridegroom of the younger sister; that is, nearer the aisle leading to the improvised altar.

As for the entrance of you and your sister at your informal house wedding, you all do not choose your attendants, or you may have separate groups. If you choose the first plan, two bridesmaids would enter together, and the two flower girls would follow them, walking together. Then you and your sister would be escorted to the improvised altar by your father, one on each arm.

The alternative plan, more suitable for a church wedding, or for a very large room, would be for the bridesmaids, each with flowers, to walk first, alone; then the flower girl, then the older sister, on her father's right arm. Next would come the younger sister's bridesmaid, walking alone; next, her flower girl, walking alone; and last, the younger sister, on the arm of her brother, or uncle or other near male relative.

Your father would give both daughters in marriage, first, at his discretion, and then his younger daughter.

2.—You would give your bridesmaid and your flower girl each a gift, and the groom would give a gift to her bridesmaid and flower girl. Each bridegroom gives his best man a gift.

Name Problem
Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have been a business woman for ten years, and have acquired quite well-known belly say, Mary Smith. Now I am going to be married to a professional man, but I am going to continue in business.

What form of name would you suggest I use after my marriage?

Reader.

The most practical thing for you to do is to continue to use in your business life the name that has a business value for you, Miss Mary Smith. Use your married name—Mrs. John Robinson—for your social life. These forms correctly indicate and differentiate between your business and social life.

Some women object to the form Mrs. Mary Smith; this is not only not in good taste or good form, but it is meaningless, since there is no such person as Mr. Mary Smith ("Mrs." means the wife of the name that follows the "Mrs.").

President, Chicago Board of Health.

Effective Treatment Required to Stop Abnormal Bleeding Occurs

Bleeding which cannot be controlled is always a most alarming symptom, for the loss of too much blood may easily be fatal. Although it usually associate profuse bleeding with large wounds, many persons have disorders affecting the blood so that severe bleeding from even slight wounds may occur.

When abnormal bleeding takes place, a study is needed to determine the cause in order to employ the most effective treatment.

Among the conditions responsible is a disease known as purpura, one type of which is ca se to a lack of tiny bits of tissue in the blood, known as platelets. Just why the platelets decrease in number is not known. There may be bleeding into the skin, with the formation of large purple spots. Bleeding from the joints maybe present. In another type of purpura there is pain in the joints, sometimes the spleen is the left upper part of the abdomen is found to be enlarged.

Two things may be done in treating this type of disease—transfusions or injections of whole blood into a vein. Another treatment is to remove the spleen. This may result in a permanent cure in many instances. Following removal of the spleen it is found that the platelet count begins increasing in number, and the bleeding stops.

Bleeding may begin following severe infections— typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles or smallpox. It would appear probable that the disease in these cases is due to damage to certain bloodforming cells in the bone marrow by this kind of germs, efforts to overcome the infection are made and, in addition, blood transfusions are given. Removal of the spleen is of no value in overcoming this form of purpura.

Prolonged bleeding may be due to a lack of a substance known as prothrombin, which has to do with the clotting of the blood. This deficiency may be traced to a lack of Vitamin K. This substance is of value in infants but is not so frequent in the adult. When Vitamin K deficiency occurs in the adult, it is usually due to some disease affecting the liver or the gallbladder. In such cases, Vitamin K can be given by injection with very little effect on the skin. In most instances this deficiency can be overcome by giving the vitamin by mouth.

STILL GOING STRONG are the afternoon blacks with touches of glitter. Black crepe is used for an afternoon frock made with bandings of purple panels in sequins around the square neckline and cuffs. Bandings at the peg-top pockets too. Worn with a purple chenille cap spattered with black sequins.

This certainly is a season for colorful hats, typical model is a flamingo Cossack hat of felt, satin felt studded with jewel color stones and trimmed with a long tassel of gilt and red fringe.

Do you go out a great deal evenings? Then you should like the new evening spoon. An ornate bowl on long full-length cost of black wool with tiny black paillettes sew all over it.

Cited as the ideal dress for the guest of honor at important events is an afternoon frock in black, deep plum or black velvet made with deep square V neckline and a big sequin rose on the bodice embroidered in raised design. Green sequin stem and leaves.

Rather than put away an ermine wrap for the duration, one woman had it turned into a high-length evening coat which she wears for important late afternoons and evenings with street length glitter frocks or with a black velvet skirt and a paillette blouse.

Many girls like tiny feathered headdresses or hat hats rather than the regulation hat for evening. Tiny ostrich feathers shaded from purple to cyclamen held by purple cord and mixed with parma violet veiling makes a pretty and fanciful little hat.

Since Vitamin K dissolves in fats and bile salts are needed so that the fats may be absorbed by the body, any disease which interferes with the formation of bile salts will produce a Vitamin K deficiency and bleeding. Jaundice, diseases of the gallbladder and diarrhoea may often be responsible for deficiency.

New 'Kid' Line Blossoms As Toronto Leafs Defeat Boston Bruins by 3-1 Score

Jack McLean, 19, Playing First Pro. Game, Picks Up Three Points

CANADIENS WIN

By ALLAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A new "kid" line was launched in Toronto which threatens to make Maple Leaf fans forget that Charley Conacher, Harvey Jackson and Joe Primeau ever functioned as a hockey unit.

The new threesome made a sensational National League debut last night when Jack McLean, 19-year-old University of Toronto freshman teamed for the first time with teenaged Gaye Stewart and Bud Poile. McLean may not be another Conacher, but the speeding right winger looked like a Jacobin version at his contributed a goal and two assists in the Leafs' 3-1 victory over Boston Bruins.

Stewart rounded the other two Leaf goals and Poile drew an assist. The kids had never even practised together until last night, but they formed the snappiest offensive unit in a wide-open contest which saw Leafs fire 32 shots at Frank Brimsek in the Boston nets. Turk Broda handled 27 for Leafs.

Fourth Straight Loss

A couple of former Leafs, Russ Bolt and Flash Hollett, figured in Boston's only scoring play as the Bruins dropped their fourth straight in as many starts. Bolt got the goal after Hollett blasted the length of the rink to set up the play. While a new star was born at Toronto, N.H.L. veteran Clifford (Ched) Gouplile played his last professional game for the war's duration and scored what proved to be the winning goal as Montreal Canadiens in their 5-2 conquest of Chicago Black Hawks. Gouplile enlisted in the Canadian Provost Corps as a private today and will go to Ottawa hockey playing with the Montreal army team in the Quebec senior league.

Canadiens did all the way against the Hawks. Their five goals were distributed evenly between Maurice Richard, Joe Benoit, Ray Getliffe, Buddy O'Connor and Gouplile. Max Bentley and Bill Thoms (still another former Leaf) scored the Chicago pair.

The night's results moved Toronto and Montreal into first place tie, one point ahead of Detroit Red Wings.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings players dominated the National Hockey League's individual scorers, with Cordie Drillon of the Canucks out in front with 11 points. Drillon's total comes from four goals and seven assists. One point behind was Buddy O'Connor, centreman of the Canadiens, with two goals and eight assists. Both Drillon and O'Connor moved ahead of Carl Liscombe of Detroit when the Red Wings remained idle last night.

| Leaders: | G. | A. | Pts. |

BUFFALO BISONS INCREASE LEAD

Defeat Providence Reds, 5-1 Without Help of Leading Scorer

Buffalo Bisons defeated Providence Reds 5-1 last night although they played without Fred Thurier, the American Hockey League's leading scorer. It was the only game of the night.

By winning, the Bisons increased their western division lead to three points over the second-place Indianapolis Capitals.

Thurier, who had left for Montreal Sunday to confer with Canadian Selective Service officials, notified the Bisons it would be impossible for him to reach Buffalo in time to play in last night's game.

Doug Lewis and Bill Summerhill each scored two goals. The other Buffalo scorer was driven home by Maxie Bennett.

Jack Facey netted for Providence.

Last Night's Stars

(By The Canadian Press)

RED GOUPILLE, CANADIENS, scored the winning goal as Montreal downed Chicago-Black Hawks, 5-2.

MAX BENTLEY AND BILL THOMS, BLACK HAWKS, whose third period goals dimmed Canadiens' shut-out hopes.

JEAN BELIVEAU, TORONTO, 19-year-old rookie, who made his debut with Maple Leafs by collecting three points as Leafs turned back Boston Bruins, 3-1.

KINGSTON BEATS HULL VOLANTS BY 8-4 COUNT

Roy Giesbrecht Scores Four Goals and an Assist in Contest

POSTAL CLERKS WIN

Ottawa, Nov. 12—(CP)—Sparked by Roy Giesbrecht, who scored four goals and assisted in a fifth, Kingston Frontenacs whipped Hull Volants 8-4 in an Ottawa Senior City League Hockey fixture last night. Mel Williamson got one goal and four assists for the victors.

In the second half of a league doubleheader, Canadian Postal Corps edged out a 5-4 victory over Montagnards.

Hull held Kingston to a one-goal margin mid-way through the third period but then the Frontenacs bore down to tally three times without effort.

Blake scored two goals for the victors, and Carr-Harris scored the other one. Montpetit tallied twice for Hull and the other goal was notched by Fiolets and Seguin.

Postal Corps entered the win column in the second game by hammering home three goals in a row as the third period of their match with Montagnards got under way. Montagnard back, but time ran out of them after they had scored two goals in reply.

Johnny Deschen put Montics in front for the first and last time in the fifth minute of play, but Harrison and Bradshaw each scored within one goal of the Postal Corps. In the 19th minute Montpetit failed to get the equalizer.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Toronto, Nov. 13 (CP)—When Montreal (The Red) Dutton managed to beat New York and Brooklyn Americans in the National Hockey League he was tops at referee-baiting. Last Saturday night Red took a new role. He refereed.

It was a charity hockey exhibition in Calgary between Army and Air Force teams with Referee Dutton, assisted by Tommy Anderson, as Army playing-coach and Tiny Thompson, former Boston and Detroit goalie, guiding the airmen.

Bob (Calgary) Hammill commented: "Coach Thompson registered objections with the old referee on almost his every decision, out of reach for any verbal combat. "Coach Anderson accepted the first penalty handed out by Dutton without any fuss, but he didn't duplicate it any call or interpretation of the official but, nearing the end of the game, Tommy swerved sharply to the right after making a rushing rush and ran clear smack into referee Dutton. The referee picked himself up and play today is Independent financially.

continued, 'Go sorry', said coach Anderson. 'It was an accident.' And as the referee dusted after the play he came back with: 'It's okay but that was no accident.'"

McCaffery Says Servicemen Will Dominate Hockey

By DOUGLAS GREEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 13 (CP)—By next winter, large affiliated with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will be composed entirely of servicemen, and as the war goes on, it is possible that in Canada's larger centres—will be played only by service teams.

These are the predictions of James P. McCaffery of Ottawa, president of the now-disbanded Ottawa Senators senior hockey and lacrosse club and former manager of the Ottawa football club since 1922.

Mr. McCaffrey emphasized that in making these forecasts he was speaking entirely of sport "as I know it and its future. However, he expects to see the gradual displacement of civilian athletes by servicemen extend in time to all sports. The suspension of the Quebec senior hockey league presents an example of this. In Quebec City there was has affected the sport in eastern Canada, he said. This season four service teams, Cornwall Flyers, Ottawa Commandos, Montreal Army and Navy and R.C.A.F., and only three civilian teams, Montreal Royals, Montreal Canadiens and Quebec Morton Aces.

Against Regulation

The action of the Q.S.H.L. in limiting the number of players per goalkeeper the number of players who can be dressed for, each game has not found favor with Mr. McCaffrey.

"A player in the army," he explained, "is first of all a soldier. The military authorities are anxious to have as many men as possible play hockey in their spare time, and for this reason I think all service teams should be allowed to play as many men as they wish."

He added that the C.A.H.A., at its annual meeting, decided to foster the growth of service sport. Accordingly, Ottawa Senators offered their Q.S.H.L. franchise to the Commandos, all of whose players are soldiers on Active Service.

Mr. McCaffrey said he felt the step taken by the Senators would probably be followed by other civilian clubs in future as more and more men active as athletes in civilife joined the forces. It would not surprise him, therefore, to see the Q.S.H.L. become an all-service league before long.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Nov. 13—(AP) — Did you know that there's a football team representing one of the "major" Eastern United States colleges that is undefeated so far, and has had a nickle's worth of publicity about it? . . . And, what's more, it has won its last nine games by four times in five years. . . . The team is Princeton's 150-pound outfit, which may come through to another title if it can knock off Penn today. . . . The lightweights get only four games this year, since the Ivy and Lafayette suspended operations in the eastern 150-pound league, but they play every one as if they were in the Rose Bowl. . . . Since the league was organized in 1934, football for fun has caught on so well that games have drawn as many as 10,000 spectators with an average of around 1,500, and the squads run anywhere from 60 to 150 players. . . . And it's inexpensive, too. Nobody has had to weigh in at 154 pounds just before the game, they don't go for those big, juicy steaks.

BALMY BEACHES READY FOR NAVY IN CRUCIAL GAME

Can Earn Place in Playoffs by Defeating Navy in Nightcap Game

HURRICANES IN

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's just one of life's little ironies that the finest-executed all-star west football storm should break at a time when the Ontario Rugby Football Union is looking for one of those all-or-nothing, do-or-die, blue-chips-on-the-table clash contests.

The O. R. F. U. hasn't had much to short about up to now, because R. C. A. F. Hurricanes dominated the league so thoroughly first place was beyond the reach of any other team. It's still the case tomorrow's meeting between Toronto Navy and Toronto Balmy Beach would be the big chance for Navy, but they weren't for all the talk about the Flesh-Wood team.

As things stand now, Navy holds a one-point margin over Beaches in second place and the only remaining berth. Victory for the Sailors would give them a two-point edge and spell Hurricanes. A Beach victory wouldn't be so conclusive, because they have already up the lost ground Nov. 21 by defeating Hurricanes, while Beaches also bowed to Toronto Oakwood Individuals.

To Be Played Second

That's a possibility, but it's so remote that we've assumed the Navy-Beach game will decide Hurricanes' opponent in the total final. The league must see it that way too, for it has ordered the second game, to be played half of the matinee double bill at Toronto's Varsity Stadium, between the two Indians, originally scheduled for second billing, will meet in the opening rubber.

Navy and Beaches seem well matched. Navy has the better ball in bank on the pitching arm of Coder Mervin Morrell, but Beaches have travelling at a fast pace, will be strengthened by the return of speedy Ross McKelvey on the halfline.

The tall-end Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers travel to Hamilton to meet Wildcats in the other league game. The Hamilton club could make the playoffs by taking its two remaining games, and it has a home tilt tomorrow and lost to Indians Nov. 21, so even the Cats aren't counting on it.

Football Pot Simmers

Meanwhile, the football pot from coast to coast simmers over developments during the week. They were all but filled the chances for the all R.C.A.F. Dominion final with the Canadian Rugby Union sanctioned the match, with Winnipeg Navy Flyers being slated to meet the eastern title-ist Dec. 12 in the Winnipeg stadium for the Grey Cup. Bombers qualified as Western representatives Nov. 7 by defeating Regina Roughriders 7-1.

But unexpectedly, the R. C. A. F. decided to call off its participate in football after Dec. 1. This meant two clubs would be left members of the Winnipeg club are R. C. A. F. members and the two Regina clubs are composed of R. C. A. F. teams.

Then came the solution—that Eastern schedules be speeded up to have an Eastern champion ready by Dec. 5, when the Grey Cup final —came last night from Arthur Kelly, president of the Winnipeg club's management committee. No official O. R. F. U. reaction has been obtained immediately, but Union secretary Harold Ballard said he personally feels the schedule can not be accelerated.

Week Ahead Now

"We already are a week ahead of the schedule originally drawn up," Ballard said. "We have been playing doubleheaders every Saturday and Sunday to get the season finished by the 28th, and I don't see any reason why we can't speed up the games. I would not like to see the season extended beyond that date, because the weather is unpredictable (R. F. Symington) for night games, in view of the fact that signs have been erected all across Canada. We would be entirely out of our element playing for that."

PO. Syd Haller, Winnipeg president, indicated Western Canada has not yet altered its decision to play in the proposed final. "We have no plans prior to Nov. 19," he said, adding that a Dominion final is the only one that interests us. We will be without players who are members of the R. C. A. F."

Fred Ramsden, club president said that "as far as the Winnipeg team was concerned, that's all. Its members is concerned, that's a matter for other members of the squad to decide."

CASUAL COMMENT by R.J.C.

WITH SO MANY YOUNG ladies and girls in war work of different descriptions, recreation must be provided. Sports are very essential for the physical well-being of the girls. Last week P.O. Ray Barnett, president of the R.C.A.F. Bay of Quinte Sports Service League, announced that the league for young ladies in active service and civilian teams in the Belleville area, arranging six teams, had been organized. The original six were teams from the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. stationed at Trenton and Mountain View, while the civilian quintettes were local teams, Lake-Zellers, Deacons, "Y" girls and Reliance A.C. Since then the league has been expanded to an eight-club group with the Picton Grads, a civilian team, and a team from the No. 6 Repair Depot (WD) R.C.A.F. at Picton. Games are played on Sunday afternoons at No. 8 I.T.S., thus providing entertainment for the personnel of the local station.

THE BLAME FOR the sudden "black out" of the east-west Canadian football season is laid at the door of the R. C. A. F. sports organizers. The Canadian Rugby Union officials say they insisted the Dominion final all be played in Toronto. There is no denying the fact that Air Force officials in Winnipeg knew they were entertaining the idea of staging an all R.C.A.F. Dominion final with teams from Ottawa, Toronto and Winnipeg being included. This announcement was doubtless made after considering the C.R.U. had abandoned the Dominion final in 1941, but regardless, the Canadian Rugby Union is the governing body for the grid classic in Canada and when this body announced the resumption of the east-west series this week Air Force big-wigs should have abided by the decision as their teams are part and parcel of the civilian football loops all across Canada, filed the C.R.U. stood pat on the matter of the Dominion finals there is little doubt but that there would have been an R.C.A.F. play-off, as originally announced, before its all off.

IT WAS QUITE A WRESTLING show Mr. Tunney presented at the Hume Arena last night. There was a bit of the rough stuff, but a riot inside the ring with "Irish Jerry" Sullivan, referee, and a few of the patrons in the main affair when he scrapped with Phil Lassen and the "Swedish Angel" and himself with a loud mouthed gentleman. Now that Mr. Tunney has presented his smith picture with the boys, perhaps he may have to consider bending business; he has promised the "Swedish Angel" a fall when wrestling again next week.

ALTHOUGH THE PROPOSAL to split the major league baseball operations in eastern and western sections was prompted by Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn president of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, sees the possibility of such changes being made in the big circuits after the war, following announcements of the proposed realignment.

"That 'brainstorm' plan to split each major league into eastern and western sections was a little bit premature in the magazine," reports Wray. "The suggestion, anonymously fathered, was designed to save transportation costs during wartimes. But the club owners have gone ahead with a loud 'no,' just as other blowouts.

"While splitting the National and American leagues into Eastern and western sections is bit problematic, it may very easily there's a germ in the thought that might bear fruit, if and when the war ends and we return to normalcy.

"After the war baseball agreements have to be changed. The existing agreements, in many ways have to be scrapped. And something new in baseball could easily arise. In that case, how about forming eastern and western major leagues, in place of the National and American? Or, keep the old names but form one circuit of western clubs and the other of eastern?

"That would cut down transportation costs, to say the least. And might add a new sectional zest to

WORLD'S SERIES RIVALRY

The World's Series rivalry? What's that? Oh, just another breakdown. In 1917, Webb, writes all entitled to have one of those things during a life time.

REMEMBER WHEN Bernie Morton, sharp-witted Sarnia, halfback, topped all opponents to snag the east's individual scoring championship three years ago to-day? Bernie was alone at top with 26 points; second and third were Tommy Sims of Montreal Westmounts and Red Storey of Toronto Argonauts with 36 and 26 points respectively.

HOW'S THIS for consistency: Cincinnati Red pitchers walked 366 batters in 77 home games played in 1942 and walked 365 in the same number of games played on the road in the National League.

The same pitchers yielded 70 home runs...Cincinnati at 42 elsewhere around the circuit and Cincinnati and Cincinnati and 27 on the road.

Cincinnati Reds committed 81 errors in Cincinnati and 77 when opposing the Reds on their own playing fields.

THIS AND THAT—LOOKS like a sane decision handed down by Commissioner Landis when he ordered a century note fine on Jimmy Orlando and Gaye Stewart for their stunt break last Saturday. . . . The best part of the decision was when Disciplinarian Calder ruled Orlando couldn't play for Detroit, nor can Stewart now in Detroit until further notice. . . . Leo (I ain't hit a home run) Durocher says he'll be the field for his own job as manager of the Dodgers, but others say "The Lip" is headed for a uniform and will be in some baseball legend!!! . . . # 3 JAP CRUISERS AND 5 DESTROYERS SUNK IN 15 MIN.

Delayed Report Tells How U.S. Ships Waylaid the Enemy in First Surface Battle of Heavy Ships Since 1898

FOUGHT OCT. 13

The United States Navy Department last October 13th announced the destruction of at least one heavy Japanese cruiser and four destroyers and heavy damage to other enemy ships in an engagement the night of October 11 with an American force. Rear Admiral Norman Scott, Associated Press war correspondent, aboard one of the American ships, tells of the encounter.

(By TOM YARBROUGH)
(Associated Press War Correspondent)

Aboard a United States Cruiser in the Solomon Sea, Oct. 27 (Delayed) (AP)—This is the story of the United States Navy's first surface victory in a battle between heavy ships since the Spanish-American War of 1898.

Led by Rear Admiral Scott, seven anti-destroyers surprised and wiped out a similar Japanese force the night of October 11 near the tiny island of Savo off Guadalcanal.

Counting "probables," the American ships sank three cruisers and four destroyers and lost only one destroyer. Another United States destroyer was damaged slightly and two cruisers were hit by shells but the damaged ships came out under their own power.

No planes were involved.

Heavy Japanese Losses

Systematic shakedown reports showed two Japanese heavy cruisers and four destroyers certainly were sunk and one light cruiser and one destroyer probably were sunk. Tokyo's agreed. It was unlikely any Japanese ship got away.

The Japanese armada listed one heavy cruiser, four destroyers, and one merchant cruiser. Another cruiser and another destroyer probably sank. It said one United States destroyer was sunk and several ships received minor to moderate damage.

The battle occurred two nights before the enemy opened a new counter-offensive against Guadalcanal. It left a big gap in the Japanese naval force being shaped up for the stroke that began with the heavy bombardment of Henderson Field, core of the marine establishment, and now—at this writing—in full swing by land, sea and air.

Japanese Manoeuvres

Since late in August, a little more than a fortnight after the marines moved into the Solomons, the Japanese sent destroyers and at least cruisers and battleships and other submarine had been slipped down to Guadalcanal every few nights to land troops and supplies and shell and bomb the marine defenders.

The way to stop it was with ships. As darkness came on the appointed night, the American force moved at a speed calculated to place it in the vicinity of Savo Island and Iron Bottom Sound west of Guadalcanal shortly before midnight.

At 10:45 a column of Japanese cruisers and destroyers was sighted bearing southeast straight for Cape Esperance. Some destroyers were between the opposing columns. The range was about 4,000 yards.

Japanese Naval Commander

Our ships put their searchlights on the enemy and instantly let go with the first shot. That first salvo and the incessant thunderous fire that followed threw the Japs into confusion. It was ten minutes before they returned a shot.

Ninety seconds after the opening broadside of gunfire, Japanese destroyers were burning.

Torpedoes were fired while streaked through the water but no Japanese torpedo found its mark. Our torpedoes died.

In the meantime, one American cruiser which had caught most of the ships scored by the Japs in the enemy engagement, pulled out of the fight toward Guadalcanal—with nearly half her main battery still effective.

By 1 a.m. the United States force could find nothing else to shoot at and took a course away from the battle area to speed home, according to plan and cool off.

The fight had lasted only 30 minutes.

Swedish Angel Beats Monnahan In Straight Falls

Uses Flying Mare to Conquer Former Hooded Horror

PRELIMS GOOD

Maybe there weren't 2,000 patrons at the Hume Arena last night, but the count was mighty close, for that figure to see wrestling's No. 1 monstrosity, "The Swedish Angel," triumph over "Irish Jerry" Monohan, the former big-bad-man of hooded days. The elongated misfit of humanity won the first fall with the application of a series of flying mares and repeated the dose, much to the delight of the paid customers, after Mister Monohan tried to reverse matters but had a kick-back right on the sneeze and lay on the mat quite disgusted with the world, especially inside the Hume Arena ring.

A lowering brute well over six foot, "The Swedish Angel" sounds the chalk, rubs it into your neighbor. He admits his brother is from Finks, but how he collected together such a conglomeration of letters even Promoter Frank Tunney won't admit. Not only is Mister Swede the tallest human monstrosity but he's also a wrestler in his own right. He's signed with the "Irish Jerry" in straight falls. Or rather, he was signed with Jerry up, but he showed the odd signs of life. Then Mister Monohan "Huns" hither and yon in a futile effort to perhaps even matters, it was so easy, however.

Two or three times last night Mister Price appeared to be in agony but he always grunted and breathed his way to safety and then only roasters can grunt and groan when trouble seems to be at hand. The main-busters hauled and pulled shoved and heaved for minutes on their initial squaring off before "The Angel" finally gained an advantage and shorted his way through a fog of swinging and went on to repeat the dose seven minutes later. Mister Monohan still lived and the fans bade fair adieu to the Hume Arena.

From the opening ceremony, when it was announced one Pedro Martinez, a native of Mexico, well known to local wrestling circles, would battle with "Portland Pat" Praley, until the last faithful person left the hall, there was never there wasn't a dull moment. Praley opened proceedings with the "Aztec Mexicana" to the delight of all Mexicans present and then settled to a 30-minute draw. "Bring 'em back" roared at least two customers.

In the semi-final go "Whipper Billy" Watson, the boy from Toronto, triumphed over Gorgeous George, the Flying Frenchman applying his newly acquired "Sharpshooter" hold. The pair provided the fastest scientific wrestling of the show and left the ring to a big circle amid the applause of many. Now Skipper Tunney says it will be wrestling at the Hume Arena again next week.

Jarrin' John Kimbrough, ex-All-American gridiron star who announced his retirement from professional football after signing with the New York Americans as a professional, has a fine opportunity as a 20th Century-Fox western star in "Sundown Jim," which is now showing at the Capitol.

"Sundown Jim" is an exciting story of frontier days with Johnny using his flats and gun on the same way he used to on the gridiron for Texas A. & M. James Tinling directed the picture, and Johnny in the cast are Virginia Gilmore, Arleen Whelan, Joseph Sawyer, Paul Hurst, and Morcni Olsen.

"Confirm or Deny"

"Confirm or Deny" is a dramatic tale dealing with the work of the valiant group of American correspondents in England who daily risk life and limb for news, stars Fred Ameche in the leading role.

Ameche portrays a bureau chief for a world-wide news syndicate in London who repeatedly puts his life in jeopardy to report the first story on England.

"Confirm or Deny" is the second attraction at the Capitol. A funny cartoon and the first chapter of "The Perils of Nyoka" completed the bill.

Picton and District

Only One Dentist Now in Picton

Picton, Nov. 13—Residents of Picton are wondering if they will have to go back to the old fashioned way of pulling their own teeth with a piece of string. The war has taken all but one of the dentists in Picton while there is but one other in Bloomfield and Wellington which boasts a population of 15,000.

Latest to be called for service with the Canadian Army Dental Corps is Dr. C. K. Wright. He leaves this month for duty at Kingston. This leaves Dr. R. M. Mowbray as the town's only dentist. He is a veteran of the last war and has two sons in the service. Also another dentist, Hagerman, fifteen miles distant, has one dentist.

Previous to the war there were five dentists in Picton and all were kept busy. For the past few months even with two dentists working long hours it was almost impossible to get an appointment. Concern is afterward locally has been aired by residents suffer from lack of dental attention.

The medical profession here has also been hard hit by enlistments. Practically all the younger doctors have gone and those more advanced in years are finding the added burden a great strain.

Sheetage Predicted

An impending shortage of many lines of food was predicted by M. M. Robinson, secretary of the Ontario Food Distribution Council, who addressed the Belleville and County Board of Trade here. This situation is developing against sentiment because of the situation, which the farmer faces in a wartime economy coupled with certain policies of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, with which the speaker criticized and termed dangerous with regard to the need of large agricultural production.

Mr. Robinson predicted that Germany is on the verge of a breakdown as a result of lack of food and transportation. Wars are lost by lack of food, he declared.

With increasing bombing power taking more goods, shipping losses and lack of shipping, goods were becoming increasingly less and unless agriculture's is given a better deal production will lag and a shortage ensue. It is essential to wind up the war with agriculture in a sound position, the speaker declared, pointing out that Europe will have to be fed for two or three years after the war is over.

The Prince Edward Chamber passed a resolution as favoring the establishment of parity prices for agricultural products, which will enable the farmer to hire farm labor at today's competitive wage scale and in general to increase farm production as indicated by the country's need for foodstuffs.

Burton Baxter, president of the Prince Edward Federation of Agriculture, introduced the speaker.

Short Talks Given

Final figures in the third Victory Loan campaign last night show Prince Edward County people invested the sum of $606,600, or 121 per cent of their objective. Members of the Royal Airforce and the small number of civilians employed at the air station here, subscribed $6,000 or 120 percent of their objective. Mountain View R.C.A.F. station, where there were more possible investors, took bonds amounting to $44,000, which is 160 percent of their objective. The majority of members of the R.A.F. personnel invest regularly from their pay, through their Office Savings Certificates.

Alfred township and Prince Edward district subscribing 174 per cent of their objective. They led the county in both previous loans.

FRETS ABOUT MOTHER

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 13 — (AP)—Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, associate editor of the Seattle Intelligencer, has been fretting about her mother. For Eleanor Roosevelt is in Britain and has been in several danger zones. Then Mrs. Boettiger received a letter from mother, she reported in her weekly column. It was from Mrs. Roosevelt said she had enjoyed visiting with her son, Elliott. "Now I won't be worrying about every one of you at home."

Study Efficient Touch Typing at Home

Chart Makes System Easy

The girl who can type well will get along in business.

But typing isn't just a knack, a trick. It's knowing the fast and accurate touch system—which you can start learning at home with a chart of the typewriter keys.

As you see in our picture, the chart shows the alphabet keys (A, S, D, F and J, K, L,) in black; and the other keys in white. Your fingers always return to these guide keys after typing other keys.

Of course you know there are four rows of keys. The chart divide these into areas, one for each finger, indicated by the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4. For instance, Number 4, the left little finger, types A (the guide key), S above it and Z below it.

Your fingers get used to their positions and areas in a very few short times. You don't need to look at the keys any more—you can type with eyes on copy!

Our 32-page booklet, a home course in touch typewriting, includes chart of keys and exercises for speed and accuracy. Explains how to operate typewriter; good usage in typing business mail; official letters and tables of statistics. Can serve as a foundation for a business college course.

MURDER ON THE AVENUE

by CAROLYN WELLS

CHAPTER 15
Arrest

The four names.

Raynor had told them this was merely a necessary precaution, that it would enable the police to get a consistent account of the presence of all the guests at Clifford Mc-Leod's house at the time of the crime. They were told they were not suspected, but witnesses.

The room looked no different from when they had last seen it, but when Murray, Haynes, Herrick and Martin Delevan entered it, each had a feeling not far removed from fear. The two police officers looked stern and almost cruel, Hugh McCleod seemed like an omnipotent judge who looked accusingly at each of them. Miss Emmy stared like an avenging Sphinx and the whole atmosphere of the room was almost audible condemnation. At least it seemed that way to Brand Herrick, who was sensitive to any inimical element, and the other three were not much less distraught.

Captain Raynor began to speak: "You gentlemen have all told me of your innocence of this crime, and therefore you can have no objections to some probing questions. Beside answering these I want you to tell me if you know or have heard of any other facts or evidence that might help our work. You are all friends of the late Mrs. McCleod and want to learn who is responsible for the sad fate that came to her. Outside this room the man Dickson was on duty, and the butler also was around at times. And there was a ladies' maid in attendance. By diligent investigation, we have learned that about the time of Mrs. McCleod's death there were several people in and out of this room, including you four and also Mr. McCleod himself. Now I desire to find out in what order you young men entered and left the room. First, were any of you here with any other person besides Mrs. McCleod? I beg of you not to hesitate to tell me because of a mistaken idea of loyalty. If any one was in here with any other of you, say so now."

No one spoke and Raynor went on.

"Then, I will begin my inquiries with Mr. McCleod. Will you tell me, sir, at what time you were in this room and talking to your wife, near to the fatal moment?"

"What is the time in question?" asked Hugh McCleod.

"It is understood that Mrs. McCleod died between half-past three and four o'clock in the morning."

"Yes, I was in here and was talking with her at about three o'clock."

"How did you happen to come in here?"

"I had just been called to go up to see my father who had had a severe attack of his heart illness."

"Who called you?"

"My father's man, Dunn. I paused then to speak to my wife and I told her I was going up to my father's apartment. I stayed but a moment and went on upstairs."

"And that, you say, was at three o'clock?"

"Yes." Emmy broke in; "when my brother came in, I had just given my father his medicine, which was due at three. So I know it was but a few minutes after the three when Hugh came upstairs."

"Thank you, Miss McCleod. Now gentlemen, can you tell me anything of you next came into this room?"

Presently Odgen Murray spoke.

"I think, Captain, it might have been my self, but then I'm not sure. I decided to go home. I came up to this room for my hat and coat. Mrs. McCleod was sitting on the chaise lounge, leaning back on a pillow. I said, 'Tired out?' or something like that. And she said, 'No, I'm waiting for somebody to run along.'"

"Were you annoyed at her speech?"

"Oh, no. I had an engagement to see her next day. We had a business deal on."

"Was your deal ever completed?"

"No. I picked up my hat and coat—the man wasn't around—and I thought I was bothering Mrs. McCleod, so I went out that same door and went downstairs. As I left the room, I heard steps and I come in Mrs. McCleod say, 'Hello!' but I have no idea who it was on downstairs."

"It was I," said Delevan, suddenly. "I was looking for you. Mrs McCleod greeted me cordially and said she was resting for a minute. We said but a few words. I went out by the same door when in I went. I met Haynes in the hall. I don't know whether he came into this room. I went downstairs. That is all."

Raynor looked grave. He said, rather abruptly, "You're next, Mr. Haynes."

"I saw Delevan come out." Haynes said definitely. Mrs. McCleod had thrown herself on the chaise lounge—for a short rest, she said. I was inclined to stay and chat with her, but she did not invite me to. I gathered she wished me to left her. But she looked very beautiful, and I lingered a moment, until she said, with unmistakable meaning, 'Good night, Van.' Of course, I had to go then, so I went."

"By which door?"

Haynes pointed. "By that one, opposite to the one I came in at. This room is a sort of hallway. I went out by the door I came in that door, it seems natural to go out the other."

"You went right downstairs?"

"Yes, I was pressed by my hostess' telling me."

"And who followed you into this room?"

"I've no notion. I went downstairs, meeting people on the way, and when I reached the bar I fell in with some cronies and stayed on for a while."

"You didn't go upstairs again?"

"No."

"Mr. Herrick, then you must have been the last one of these four to go into the coat room for your things."

"I don't think so," Herrick said, "but I am not sure of the time."

"When did you come in here?"

"About half-past three."

"How long did you stay?"

"Not long. Mrs. McCleod heard someone coming and she told me to go."

"Why?"

"There was a sound at the door of the hook bringing, and Mrs. McCleod said for me to leave her, so of course, I did."

"You didn't return to the room?"

"No, I did not."

Looked at Hugh and Emmy, as Raynor said, "Now, Brand, you've thought making a report. We have heard all these men tell their stories. But one of these men was here with Mrs. McCleod for some time earlier, and was shut up with her in the small private elevator which runs from the first floor to her rooms. This seems to me to need some explanation. What about it, Mr. Herrick?"

Brand kept his voice steady.

"Yes, it was I who came up with Mrs. McCleod in her automatic elevator. She asked me to see it, because she got the catch jammed and we couldn't get out."

"How did you get out?"

Brand hesitated. He didn't want to tell about Alma, but this was no time for evasion. So he told the truth.

"Mrs. McCleod was sometimes mischievous," he said, and she had pressed the catch held the door shut, for a joke on me."

"A joke?"

"Yes, she thought I would be alarmed."

"Mr. Herrick," Raynor said sternly, "we do not believe your story. Furthermore, finger print experts have discovered on the chrominum frame of the couch on which Mrs. McCleod was found lying, several very distinct marks of your own finger-prints. There are no other prints on the metal, and we are convinced of your guilt. I arrest you for the murder of Alma McCleod."

No heed was paid to his insistent denials, and Brand Herrick was taken away by two policemen.

Herrick, in his cell, was waiting for Clarence Silas, his partner. Brand had sent for him and was wondering why he didn't come.

"Had to find out a few things," was Silas' explanation as he came in. "Now no matter how you got into this mess, old man, the thing is how are we going to get you out?"

"Not easily," Herrick said.

"Who did kill her?"

"It must have been Haynes, I suppose. I'm quite sure his yarn was a lie, but I've no way to prove it."

"You couldn't accuse him then and there?"

"Why, no. I was sort of dazed, Silas. I'm not sure I told a straight story myself."

"Oh, yes, you did. I've seen Sergeant Colby—Now who do we want to pull you out of this? Chadwick and Wade?"

"They're McCleod's lawyers."

"Yes, that's why. They'll know all the people concerned, and the most of the circumstances. And they're good chaps. What's McCleod's attitude?"

"He's so busy being sorry for himself, he hasn't given any sort of attention to what's going on. His daughter cares for him, and she knows just what time he went upstairs—you see, the sister and I left her at McCleod's have an apartment just above, and a little private stair up to it. She did plan to dine with him, when his wife was killed."

"Did he die?"

"No, he has sinking spells now and then, and any one may be the last. Hugh McCleod is devoted to his father but his wife's death has floored him. He didn't listen to Raynor's quiz. He just sat hunched down in a big chair, mumbling, 'It can't be! It can't be!'"

"How did he do?"

"Forty-five, they say, but he looks over fifty. The latter bosses Shirley Chadwick, or something like that."

"What kind of the young wife?"

"Not a bit. She hated, her, but pretended friendliness for the sake of peace."

"Could she have killed the girl?"

"Oh, no. They're Scotch, and she is very loyal to her brother. The two women got along all right, living in separate homes, as they did. But Alma had many admirers and while Hugh was always jealous and disdained to be jealous, it is thought that she had boy friends that he didn't know about."

"Where'd you get all this inside information?"

"Scrape picked up here and there. And, well, Silas, here's the nuisance, Alma chose to pick me for her special favor just now."

"Which led to your arrest?"

"Just that. I have never made up to her, I didn't care for her at all. That's not my type. I don't say there was any harm in her, but she lived on the excitement, and the mild admiration and flattery and I think she was piqued by Alma's attentions to her hints. At the party she made a dead set for me and—so, well, I didn't play up. She grew angry and so did I, and I left. She's still alive, but in a rage. I went out and went down stairs."

"You went into that room next after you?"

"The murderer, I suppose. Alma was a glamour girl, and any man who came in was in danger of her lures."

Poultry Supply Good With Prices Steady

Toronto, Nov. 12 —(CP)— The dressed poultry market has remained steady this week, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports. Receipts of turkeys and hens have been plentiful in excess of demand, and supplies have been packed for storage. This applied mostly to fowl. Roosters are practically off the market. Arrivals of turkeys and ducks have been all. A few geese have been on the market. Chickens, Ib. basis Grade A. Local requirements showed an increase and out-of-town movement has been exceptionally heavy. Dealers reported 100,000 pounds going forward to eastern points and Newfoundland. Trading has been quiet with little interest in poultry trading. While quotations to producers and country shippers remain unchanged, there is a tendency on the part of larger dealers to increase the spreads between dealers to keep the volume arriving and enable them to fill their out-of-town commitments.

KING GEORGE PAYS VISIT TO AIRMEN

Personally Thanks Crews of R.A.F. - R.C.A.F. Lancaster Squadrons

Somewhere in England, Nov. 12. — (CP) — King George VI, visiting the King yesterday visited R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. Lancaster squadrons, personally thanking the men for their outstanding raids on the Continent, Berlin, Munich, Bremburg and other points in Europe.

His Majesty inspected a hospital in which Sgt. R. D. Mix of Toronto, Ont., and Sgt. Hopkins take with the King and nursing orderly of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force, W. Officer Mc-Donald.

His Majesty rarely failed to stop and talk with a wearer of the "wings" badge as he reviewed crews of the giant four-engined bombers, visited kitchens, gardens and headquarters of the various squadrons.

Group Captain Hesketh who met the King was Flt.-Sgt. Gordon Ramsey of Hamilton, Ont., and the crew members including Sgt. W. O. Lendy, Toronto, and Sgt. Glen Corris, Stratford, Ont.

Wreckage of Plane Found in Ocean

Halifax, Nov. 13—(CP)—Wreckage of the R.C.A.F. aircraft, missing since last Saturday on a flight from Gander, Nfld., to Nova Scotia, has been found in the ocean off the Newfoundland coast and the five men aboard "all are believed to have been drowned," an Eastern Air Command announced today.

Aboard the plane were the pilot, P.O. W. G. Harle, Midland, Ont.; Flying Officer Kenneth L. Cole, Ernest Mal. H. B. Munro, Cndr. R. N. R. Now, all of Halifax, and P.O. H. M. Arney, of Montreal.

The announcement listed those aboard the plane and added: "all search efforts have been fruitless although as yet no trace of the occupants has been reported."

Three Persons Seriously Burned

Toronto, Nov. 13 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rooney and their three-year-old son, Russell were seriously burned when fire swept through their two-storey rooming house on Bathurst street Friday morning by the burning staircase and were taken to hospital.

A roomer, Mrs. Hannah summoned help when she discovered the blaze which started in the basement and spread quickly through the hall, trapping the Rooneys. Another roomer, Mrs. Verna Paterson was overcome by smoke.

TORONTO STOCKS

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 13. (AP)— Wishful peace thinking and long-war realization were about evenly on in today's stock market and most departments continued to exhibit mild irregularity.

Shares of companies that may have to undergo considerable adjust when victory finally arrives, still were under light pressure but selling here apparently had dried up appreciably. Gains and losses usually were in fractions.

Gold mining stocks among peace-time favorites, enjoyed and early flurry with Dome registering a new top for the year and Homestake advancing.

The Canadian section was quiet. Lake Shore Mines gained 1-8. In the Bond Market Canada 4s gained one-eighth.

Forward inclinations were shown by Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil (N.J.), Union Carbide and Chemicals, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, U.S. Steel, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Anaconda, Allied Chemical, Western Union and J. C. Penney.

DESERT WAR GOES ON AS AXIS PRISONERS ROUNDED UP

At the beginning of the British advance in Africa, prisoners were brought in in dozens. Now they are rounded up in thousands as this picture shows. They are marching to the rear while a British truck convoy speeds on in pursuit of Rommel.

MOGADOR "THE BEAUTIFUL" UNDER AMERICAN FIRE

Called "Suirah" (the beautiful) by the Arabs, Mogador, on the Atlantic coast of French Morocco is as useful as it is beautiful to whomever holds it. That is why Mogador was chosen as one of the places to be occupied by U. S. landing forces in North Africa. The Vichy radio admitted landings here, possibly at the ground shown above one of Mogador's beaches.

Double Presentation At Mount Pleasant

Rawdon — On Friday evening, November 6th, at Mount Pleasant was the scene of a happy gathering when neighbors and friends honored Mr. Carl Hay and his bride and Pte. Lorne White.

Rev. T. T. Townsend was chairman for the occasion and spoke briefly. Mrs. Charles Potts led in a round of community singing, with Mrs. Percy Hammond at the piano. Mrs. Ida Vowles contributed a piano solo; Mrs. Edgar McGuinness read "How I met your husband." Master Neil Hubbs sang very pretty numbers. Mrs. F. MacMullen gave a humorous selection. Mrs. Lorne Symons and Mr. Will Potts spoke briefly.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hay were given seats of honor and Mr. Herbert Smith read an address of appreciation to the newlyweds which was signed by Messrs Grant Hubbs, James Hoard, Carleton Potts, Harold White and himself.

Mr. Kenneth Weaver made the presentation of a rocking couch upholstered in fruit tapestry. Both Carl and Lorne thank their many friends for the lovely gifts.

Memorial Services In Stirling Churches

Stirling — In keeping with the Remembrance services held on Sunday last throughout the Dominion and in keeping with the midweek observance Sunday services in all Stirling churches on Sunday last had this as their theme for worship. At St. Paul's United Church members of the Stirling Branch of the I.O.D.E. gathered with the members of the church and an excellent message was delivered by Rev. D. D. Gray, the minister, who publicly greeted the members of the organization during the service.

Special music was featured by a large choir with solo work by Misses Wallace and Ted Reynolds. The choir offered an anthem, "Showers of Blessing" and Pte. William Reynolds, home on furlough from Camp Borden, offered prayer. The hymn sung was "Flanders Fields." The same inspiration guided worship at St. John's Anglican Church and the message to the congregation was delivered by the rector of the parish, Rev. Leslie Harding.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Rev. W. H. V. Walker in a stirring message urged this listeners to re-dedicate their lives to a lasting peace and a better way of life. Special music was rendered by St. Andrew's choir under the capable leadership of Miss Grace Pitman.

Memorial Service Held at Consdaph

On Wednesday at the same hour that the public was joining in similar ceremonies in all the towns, cities and villages, Stirling residents gathered in large numbers at Memorial Park to pay tribute to the gallant lads who gave supreme sacrifice in the First World War. The event which, embraced all citizens of the community was well attended and three prominent members of the clergy took an active part, namely, Rev. Father Farrell of the last Great War and public and high school pupils attended. The impressive ceremony,

Mr. Clifford Hatton President

Mr. Clifford J. Hatton, prominent local businessman, and president of the Stirling Businessmen's Association, acted as master of ceremonies in the absence of Mayor W. G. West. The devotional service which took place before the cenotaph (a Memorial) Park opened with the singing of two hymns, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," and "O Valiant Hearts." The Scriptural lesson and Prayer of Dedication was given by Rev. D. D. Gray of St. Paul's United Church, Rev. Leslie Harding, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, led in the singing and offered the closing prayer of the ceremony. Rev. W. H. V. Walker of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church gave an appropriate address in which he spoke on commemoration of those who gave their lives for the peace of the earth during the conflict of 1914-18 and urged His listeners to so dedicate their lives to the cause or justice, truth and righteousness and go forward remembering the price paid by those whom we honor today. Rev. F. P. Wait, representing the local remaining veterans of the last Great War, read the list of memorial names and wreaths were placed on the cenotaph by Mrs. Fred Alger, widow of the late Lt.-Col. H. H. Alger, and Mrs. Pritchard, a veteran also of the last war.

Personal, Home & Interest

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mowe left recently for Manitoulin Island for their annual vacation period. Mr. Moore, popular member of the local staff of the Bank of Montreal, is an ardent sportsman and hunter and will spend the greater part of his holidays hunting deer in the northern woods.

Mr. Stanley Hulin of Brighton, spent Monday and Tuesday of this week visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hulin, Stirling.

When you buy carelessly the Axis is pleased

We know you want to help win the war and one sure way of doing just this is to buy only when it is necessary and then to buy only those articles which last longer. The products you buy which last longer won't need to be replaced so soon. Less material will be used; less machine time wasted; less labour will be diverted from our war effort. More of all three will be available to fight the Axis.

Also note that buying for longer service not only helps to conserve but it also provides you with better value.

Make sure before you buy a new one that your present battery is worn out. Ask the Exide Dealer in your district to advise you. # TUNISIA FRENCH FIGHT HUNS

British Troops Move into Tunisia From Algeria

Revolt of French Synchronized With Allied Sweeps From East and West

SWIFTLY DEVELOPED

London, Nov. 14 — (CP)—French troops were reported battling German tanks and parachutists on their own within Tunisia today in a revolt apparently synchronized with Allied sweeps across the vital area from French Algeria and page Tobruk in neighboring Libya.

Field dispatches indicated street fighting within Tunis, the capital, and Gabes at other strategic centres of the French Protectorate as the garrisons rose to combat the Axis infiltrations with which Hitler hoped to blunt the North African pincers.

MILITARY developments piled up swiftly.

Evidently referring to the vanguard of Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson's Anglo-American legion, Reuters news agency said in a "dispatch dispatch" British troops had moved into Tunisia from Algeria.

The Allied drive to the East was tactically coupled with a continued westward advance into Libya by the Eighth 8th Army on the trail of the fleeing remnants of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Corps — a once-powerful army now described as "completely smashed."

Good Hunting Says Montgomery

Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery told the 8th Army in an order of the day that "Our leading troops are now in Libya ready to begin" the mop-up after the destruction of 13 of Rommel's divisions and capture of 30,000 prisoners, including nine generals.

"On with the task," he said, "and good hunting to you all."

His picture indicated an appreciable rise in Axis casualties since Prime Minister Churchill announced Wednesday that the German-Italian dead, wounded and captured totalled 59,000.

Appeals Help Situation

The swing of French colonial forces in Tunisia to the Allied side followed repeated appeals by such leaders as Admiral Jean Darlan, Gen. Henri Giraud, Gen. Georges Catroux and Gen. Auguste Nogues for their collaboration with the armies of occupation and liberation.

Gen. Giraud, who is forming a French North African Army for the Allied cause, was reported by the Axis-controlled Paris radio to have fled from upon yesterday by two young Vichy French naval officers who commandeered a seaplane at Algiers.

Both missed and they were disarmed and "immediately shot by Americans," the announcer said.

It was apparent that French hatred for the Germans had flared up in Tunisia to precipitate a battle.

Dispatches relayed through Allied headquarters in North Africa said the Germans were reported to have landed 12-ton tanks in Tunisia by planes and were trying desperately to reinforce the advance detachments by sea.

Nazis Control Tunis Airdrome

Nazi parachute troops were declared in control of the airdrome of Tunis on the Gulf of Tunis 80 miles east of the Algerian frontier. Suicide squad might also be held it for both aerial offensive operations and the embarkation of any of Rommel's refugees who survive the Libyan rout.

Axis-controlled Vichy radio broadcasts, without confirmation from Allied sources, said a "great battle was in progress off Allied-occupied Algiers" and that Axis planes caused damage and civilian casualties in several raids on Bone, Algerian war-station of the drive toward Tunisia.

A dispatch from La Linea, Spain, was quoted by the radio as authority for the report of the naval battle. It said that the bombardment of the report was seen in the departure of British naval and air units from Gibraltar yesterday.

Payment in Full Expected of Nazis After the War

By A. C. VAN BEERS
(Ottawa Staff Correspondent)

London, Nov. 14 (Aneta to CP).—In a bureau of the Netherlands government here trained accountants are writing a bill for Germany. It is a bill for the property looted from Holland by the Nazis during the occupation. Payment in full will be expected after the war.

When the inside story is told of this vast and calculating robbery, the world will be aghast. One of the most engrossing chapters of this story will be the reality of Nazi hobnobs over the spoils of the invaded. Some of these details were given me by a Netherlander who recently escaped to Britain, to take over information for the bureau to the Netherlands government.

I asked that examples of looting. My informant said:

"One of the most remarkable cases concerns the famous Goudsticker art collection as it reveals the almost fantastic methods in which even the thieves quarrelled and tried to cheat each other.

Established Special Firm.

"Goudsticker, a Jewish art dealer, had managed to make his way out of the Netherlands, but died of an accident before reaching England. The Treuhand Corporation decided to take over the collection before it could do so, it stepped a German named Alois Miedel, who was an old school friend of Herman Goering. Miedel not only represented Goering, but also a notorious company headed by Prof. Hoffman, formerly Hitler's private photographer, who now is the fuehrer's banker and financial adviser to the Nazi party.

Accusation Made

"Miedel took possession of the Goudsticker collection, announcing he would carry on the business. He appointed agents to buy up any valuable art objects in Holland at any price, subject to certification of authenticity by the old German expert, Friedlander, who, however, would only say he will by the piece as he certified the pictures which had been submitted to him, even those actually known to be copies. When one or Miedel's agents purchased a picture at the wholesale certification, he was promptly arrested by the Gestapo interior and was sent to a concentration camp.

"Acting for Goering, Miedel sold many of the pictures to German museums and art galleries. Then the fun began. When Miedel tried to obtain the collection belonging to Daniel Wolf, the banker, he found that the Treuhand Corporation had been there first, representing the interests of the German Minister of Economic Affairs, Funk. In the struggle which followed Funk personally visited the Netherlands to uphold his claim, whereupon Goering raced to Amsterdam also.

ATTACKS CUTTING JAP STRENGTH IN SOLOMONS

Two Light Cruisers, Transport Damaged; 30 Planes, 30 Landing Boats Destroyed

AIRFIELD HELD

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—Hard-hitting attacks on the Japanese ashore on sea and in the air in the South Pacific continued today to cut away at enemy strength in the Solomons while in New Guinea Allied ground troops moved forward, wiping out resistance.

Two light cruisers and a transport damaged; 30 planes and 30 landing boats destroyed; a number of shore batteries silenced; and "many" Japanese killed—those are the enemy losses as reported in communiques by Allied headquarters in Australia, and the United States Navy last night.

Bombers and, within 1,000 feet of the foe heavy bombers blasted the Japanese airfield at the 8,000-ton transport ashore in a new attack on the Buin-Faisi area in the northern Solomons. A day earlier, the Allied high command reported, bombers had struck at four troop-laden transports in the same area in the Solomons islands.

Scars Near Mile.

The bombers also scored a near miss on a Japanese destroyer, and before they returned safely to their base blew gaping holes in the runways of the enemy's Kahili airdrome.

Entering in to support ground troops on Guadalcanal the United States cruisers San Francisco and Destroyer Buchanan turned their heavy guns on Japanese troops east of Henderson airfield.

While they poured shells ashore the cruisers attacked by air seeking to halt the bombardment. But the navy gunners planted a curtain of and shot down 16 bombers and five fighters. Anti-aircraft machine guns aboard the ships got another nine, permitting only one of the 31 enemy planes to escape.

Plane Crashes On Deck.

On the Buchanan's deck, however, crashed on the deck of the San Francisco, causing slight damage to the cruiser and death of 30 of her men. The destroyer Buchanan was called to assist, but was not badly smashed. A five-inch shell from a Japanese battery hit the destroyer and killed five men. Damage to the ship was slight.

Another heavy number of other ships participated in the bombardment, which, from reports so far, the communique knocked out several Japanese shore batteries, and probably started large fires near enemy positions, and destroyed 30 of 73 landing barges assembled in the Tassfarongo, about 12 miles west of the American base at Henderson Field.

In the New Guinea jungles near Gorari where an enemy force was encountered and annihilated earlier in the week, the Allied high command reported, dive bombers of five Japanese officers and more than 500 men. An unconfirmed report said several were reported counted at Oivi where another Japanese force was trapped.

Still another enemy force has been annihilated, the communique added. This was in the vicinity of Illimow, between Gorari and the Japanese coastal base of Buna. No additional details of that action were given.

Joseph Stalin Approves Allied African Thrust In Letter to Newsman

Less than six weeks ago, Henry C. Cassidy, chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Moscow, scored a journalistic coup when he obtained from Joseph Stalin a written statement expressing for the first time the Soviet premier's views on the second front question. Now Cassidy has scored again by obtaining from Stalin his reactions to the Allied thrust into French North Africa.)

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
(Copyright, 1942, by The Associated Press)

Moscow, Nov. 14 (AP) — Joseph Stalin gave high praise today to the Anglo-American campaign in French North Africa and declared that it had created the prerequisites for a second front in Europe and shifted the political and military situation in favor of the cause of the Anglo-Soviet-American coalition.

In his second letter to this correspondent in six weeks, the Soviet leader said the campaign in North Africa could have been executed only by first-rate organizers and pledged that "the Red army will fulfill its task with honor as it has been fulfilling it throughout the war."

The Soviet leader said the North African campaign would result in "a certain relief in pressure" on the Soviet Union in the near future and provided the "prospect of the disintegration of the Italo-German coalition."

Barely half an hour before the Stalin letter was announced at midnight, Berlin radio propagandists still were asserting that the African action did not meet Moscow's second front ideas nor "relieve the situation" of the Russians.

Translation of Letter

The authorized English translation of the text of Stalin's letter follows:

"Dear Mr. Cassidy:

"I am answering your questions which reached me on November 12.

"1. What is the Soviet view of the Allied campaign in Africa?

"Answer. The Soviet view of the Allied campaign in Africa presents an outstanding fact of major importance, demonstrating the growing might of the armed forces of the United Nations, the beginning of the disintegration of the Italo-German coalition in the nearest future.

"The campaign in Africa refutes those false views who affirm that that Anglo-American leaders are incapable of carrying out such serious war operations as the organization of landings in North Africa across the ocean, as the quick occupation of harbors and wide territories from Casablanca to Bougie and as the hounding of Italo-German armies in the western desert, being effected with such smartness.

"The campaign has the campaign been in relieving pressure on the Soviet front, as it has furnished does the Soviet Union awaits?

LIBYA CLEARED OF AXIS TROOPS EAST OF GAZALA

Seven Axis Aircraft Shot Down Out Of Large Formation Flying Toward Sicily

AIRDROME BOMBED

Cairo, Nov. 14 (AP)—Long-range Allied fighter planes shot down seven Axis aircraft of a formation which was flying from Greece to North Africa toward Sicily yesterday as the British 8th Army cleared another 70 miles west of Tobruk, British headquarters announced today.

This week the 8th Army's tireless troops pursued the Axis forces beyond Gazala, bombers and fighters roared overhead, raking the retreating Axis columns with machine-gun bullets as the heading flight continued.

In addition to the seven Sicily-bound planes shot down, about six others were badly damaged.

On Thursday British fighters shot down six large Italian troop-carrying planes filled with German troops "flying north, probably from Tunisia," it was announced. The long-range fighters apparently were operating from British bases on the island fortress of Malta.

Tunis Airdrome Bombed

The communique disclosed that the Tunis airdrome, where the German air force reported it could not be heavily bombed and machine-gunned "Thursday night, it was the third attack on the field. Planes, gasoline supplies, workshops and hangars were damaged.

A report from Allied headquarters in the field said that the British 8th army had landed light tanks by air in Tunisia indicated the Axis forces there were being reinforced rather than withdrawn.

It was regarded as probable the Axis planes intercepted yesterday on the way to Sicily were returning here to pick up more troops and equipment since the communique did not mention that they carried a troops.

Soon, German prisoners were taken at Tobruk when the 8th Army entered the old and familiar fortress. The communique said, completely smashed."

1,500-Mile Round Trip Made Without Loss of One Bomber

Weather Over Target Good and Many Large Fires Were Started

SECOND BLOW IN WEEK

London, Nov. 14 (CP)—Bombers based British bombers returned to the attack upon Italy's supply port of Genoa last night and started many large fires, the Air Ministry announced today.

Every plane returned from the hazardous, 1,500-mile round trip which involved two crossings of the Alps.

"The weather over the target was good and many large fires were started," the Air Ministry said.

It was the second blow in a week at Genoa, Ligurian Sea coast city 750 miles from Britain. The R.A.F. smashed at Genoa, in successive raids Friday and Saturday of last week to cripple the warehouses and transportation facilities serving the German-Italian desert troops of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

Air-raid warnings sounded in Berne, Geneva and Lausanne last night as they have on previous occasions when R.A.F. planes were striking across the Alps. The alerts lasted from 70 to 80 minutes.

The night sweep followed a day in which Allied fighters carried out offensive patrols over Nazi-occupied Holland and Britany.

"Canal barges and railway locomotives were attacked," the Air Ministry said. "None of our aircraft is missing."

SHOULDERS DUE TO ROWING

Halifax, Nov. 14 (CP)—Football shoulders, reported ribbed them, just because they were broad and large.

But a check of the record books will show that Lieut. Harold Lawrence of Brockville, Ont., one of the two seamen who leaped from the S.S. Ontario Oakville to capture the crew of a German U-boat in the Caribbean put those shoulders from pulling on a boat oar.

Typhoon Kills 11,000 Persons

Berlin (from German broadcasts) Nov. 14 (AP) — A Bangkok dispatch quoted by DNB said today a fierce typhoon had killed 11,000 persons and destroyed 70,000 dwellings in the past week in the southern regions of Japanese-controlled Thailand (Siam.)

The Japanese also claimed three Allied transports were set on fire and 19 planes shot down and said that 13 ships left of their own aircraft were missing.

There has been no confirmation from any source for any part of this Japanese statement either of their own or Allied losses or even of a major new sea-air battle.)

OrderstoBeTaken Only From Petain

London, Nov. 14 (CP) — The German controlled Paris radio said today the commander-in-chief of the Vichy French army, demobilized at Alexandria had announced that he would take orders only from Marshal Petain, Chief of State in the Vichy government.

(There was no immediate confirmation of this report from any other source.)

The Vichy French eastern Mediterranean fleet based at Alexandria was demobilized by an agreement between its commander and British authorities immediately after the French-German armistice in June, 1940. Under terms of the agreement, which pledged France not to make use of the warships, the vessels were partially disarmed and many crewmen were permitted to return to France.

The radio said Germany has broken the armistice by marching into Unoccupied France naturally has raised the question of whether the French fleet will now no longer bound to observe their pledge.

The vessels at Alexandria number about 11, including several powerful units.

CANADA FULFILLS BACON CONTRACT WITH GT. BRITAIN

Commencing Monday Gov't. Starts on New Contract of 675,000,000 lbs.

HIGHER PRICES

Ottawa, Nov. 14 — (CP) — The agriculture department at the close of a tough assignment of providing the United Kingdom with 600,000,000 pounds of bacon in a year—and prepared to start meeting a new contract to supply 675,000,000 pounds.

By the end of this week virtually all of the 600,000,000 pounds of bacon called for under the terms of the 1941-43 agreement with the United Kingdom will have been secured," the departmental statement said.

"This means that the week commencing Monday, November 16, will mark the beginning of the new 1942-43 contract for 675,000,000 pounds."

On Oct. 5, following announcement of the terms of the new agreement, the Canadian bacon board announced a new price schedule at Canadian seaboard do the 1942-43 contract level.

FACTORY DISTRICT AT STALINGRAD FIGHTING GROUND

Germans Gain Some Ground but Driven Back to Original Positions

COLD IS INTENSE

Moscow, Nov. 14 (AP) — Germans gained ground in the factory district of northern Stalingrad yesterday in their bitter struggle to capture the city, the Soviet mid-day communique said today, but declared the advance was "insignificant" and that Russian troops were fighting desperately to regain their original positions.

Further enemy attacks in the factory district were thrown back with heavy losses, the report said. Some 900 Germans were killed and eight tanks were shattered in the unsuccessful German assaults yesterday, it was reported.

Another equipment destroyed included 34 trucks, eight guns, 19 mortars and 12 machine-guns, the communique said.

The Russian counter-attacks in the Nalchik area of the Caucasus, where a German drive toward the Georgian military highway over the Caucasus Mountains has been halted, continued yesterday and several German positions were taken, the Russians declared.

Apparent About-Face of Darlan One of Mysteries of Recent Events

By JOHN FERRIS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Nov. 14 (AP)—One of the strangest of the many strange mysteries of the Vichy regime is probably that of the apparent about-face of Admiral Jean Darlan, regarded for years as one of the most loyal of Marshal Petain's followers of Marshal Petain.

Any analysis or design Darlan has become a prisoner of the Allied forces in Africa and has ordered official tables in Algiers. He has ordered the French Army, Navy and Air Forces in Africa to cease hostilities, and has appealed to the French fleet to sail from Toulon to North Africa.

These developments, viewed against the background of the last two years, have furnished a fascinating subject for speculation. Was he really sincere in his collaboration or was he carrying on a gigantic piece of play-acting?

Consider the case: One city he is denouncing Britain for the invasion of Madagascar and by inference the United States as well for its support of that action, labeling Britons "highway robbers" and condemning it "Anglo-Saxons" in general.

Now he apparently is persuaded that a better course is to accept the Allied successes in French North Africa and declares that the Allies have no territorial ambitions and that they will rise again. Then he urges the military co-operation of the French army with the United Nations.

One day he is talking bitterly of a possible Allied invasion of Dakar and French West Africa. Three weeks later he is conferring with the man whom, he had told the world, he would fight in defence of the empire.

WOMEN OF MOOSE HOLD MEETING

A meeting of Belleville Chapter 435 women of the Moose was held on Tuesday evening in the Moose auditorium by Senior Regent M. Dunn. The guests were the ladies from Orono to Myrtle Harvey, Midland Reg., and a most enjoyable prize was won by co-worker E. Jeffrey, donated by co-worker G. Irish. At the close of the session a demonstration was held by C. Moore on homemaking, followed by questions and guesses which were very interesting. The meeting was brought to a finish with a social hour.

FIRE DESTROYS FOXBORO BARN

Fire of an unidentified origin completely destroyed the small barn of Mr. Andrew Woodcock of Foxboro at six o'clock on Saturday morning, with a stiff wind blowing and the winter's hay and a considerable quantity of new wood also being lost.

The fire was discovered by Mr. Woodcock who managed to free his milch cow which was stabled in the barn but was unable to untie the young heifer tied. A few hens were also lost in the blaze.

Fortunately the stiff wind which was blowing almost directly away from the Mr. Woodcock's nearby residence or the house might also have been lost in the blaze.

JUVENILES FOUND IN BILLIARD ROOM

Complaints from parents alleging truants were being permitted to play pool in some of the local billiard rooms saw police investigations to find some justification for the complaints. Friday evening city police visited the Belle Billiard hall, 364 Front St., and found nine minors playing pool. The names of the lads were recorded and today Deputy Chief Thurston announced that charges had been preferred against the joint proprietors.

H. B. FETTERLY GIVEN HIGH POST

H. B. Fetterly of Belleville was elected vice president of the Association of Ontario Public School Trustees and Ratepayers at their annual meeting held in Toronto this week.

The importance of religious education in the schools was discussed at the meeting with the most rational progress advanced at the meeting being the interchange of young teachers in urban schools with married teachers in rural areas. Retention of teachers also was one for superannuation and increased employment of, married women were suggested as a means to alleviate the teacher shortage.

DEPT. GIVEN RUN TO BELLEVILLE CLUB

A chimney fire at the Belleville Club over the Canadian National Railways express office on Bridge Street resulted in a short run by the Belleville Fire Department at eight o'clock on Friday evening. The blaze was quickly extinguished by the use of chemicals with no damage being reported by firemen.

RELIGION'S SURVEY OBJECTS OUTLINED

All Religious Bodies Will Co-operate in 23 Districts of Belleville

The committee for the religious survey of Belleville met last night in Bridge Street Baptist church with twelve churches represented. Mr. Bert Orr, chairman, presided. After preliminaries discussion of the census took place as to the interest people were taking in the canvass, and the different opinions people have relative to it. In order to clarify their thinking, it was decided to draw up the purpose of the canvass and the information required. The following was endorsed:—

(1) Purpose:

A. To get a list of the new arrivals and their church affiliation.

B. To get a list of children and their ages for Sunday Schools.

C. To get information necessary to correct church rolls.

(2) Information required.

A card for each family to show whether a member or adherent of any (which) church; If not what denomination; Name; Address; Children's names and ages.

The 23 districts into which the canvassers from all religious bodies in Belleville working in co-operation will be divided, and the 23 districts, each with a group captain, will be instructed to canvass and collect the cards and turn them over to a central committee.

Expect 450 Canvassers.

The chairman of the canvassers' committee reported that names of 336 canvassers had already been secured and that he hoped by Wednesday to have 450 when all the churches would have reported.

A motion was passed instructing the secretary to write all ministers, asking if they would be willing to use preaching on or including in their sermons on Nov. 29, the Sun-day preceding the week of the survey, the need and purpose of this religious survey.

It appears Belleville is not the only place conducting such a survey. This week, reports were noticed in the papers of such surveys in Kingston and Bowmanville.

All churches in the city are co-operating and the committee for the following have appointed delegates: Chairman Bert Orr; Rev. W. Medcalf (Asst. Emmanuel, Mr. O. P. Lowery; Pentecostal (City Hall), Harry Harris.

MILITARY EXPERTS WEIGH EVENTS

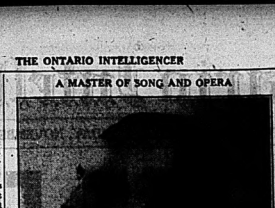
See Hitler Boxed in and Forced to Fight Where Allies Choose

Washington, Nov. 14 (CP) — It was Gen. Erich Ludendorff, one of Germany's ablest military leaders of the first Great War and the victor of Tannenberg, who declared a few years ago, that the next war would be won or lost in North Africa, not on the continent of Europe.

It would be fatuous to say, at this point, that the Allies are in the process of being won as a result of the joint North African campaign of the British and American forces, but there are military experts in Washington who now declare a successful Allied occupation of the whole of the Mediterranean coast, from Morocco and Algeria to the Suez Canal, would mean that Hitler definitely has lost.



When that day comes, given the broken remnants of Rommel's once proud armies, the Italian corps have been liquidated, Tunisia cleared and Allied garrisons stand alone the shores of Suez, the Axis will be boxed in and no longer in a position to choose the point of attack.

As the general situation is viewed here it will mean that the initiative, the most important factor in strategy, will have passed from Hitler's hands for the first time since he sent his armies into Poland in 1939. Instead of attacking where and when he wishes, Hitler will be forced to defend at all points on the perimeter of a wide circle, points chosen by the Allies, not by him.

Hitler last Sunday made what may turn out to be one of the most revealing statements of his extraordinary career — he prompted the German people he would not join away when things get really tough as the Kaiser did in 1918. That was not the Hitler whose armies crushed Poland in 18 days and went on to win a series of victories unparalleled in military history — it was a Hitler in whose mind the element of doubt and frustration had been planted.

The complete occupation of the land bridge linking Europe, Africa and Asia will mean that the fighting front for Germany is no longer a line of 2,000 miles up to now — but a whole continent, populated by hostile millions, who some day will become a military factor of prime importance.

The German occupation of the rest of France and the alacrity with which it was done, demonstrated better than anything else the strategic changes wrought by the North African campaign. Hitler simply could not afford to leave the Riviera coast undefended, no matter what political or military repercussions sprang from his occupation.

A MASTER OF SONG AND OPERA

Norman Cordon, American Bass-Baritone of Metropolitan Opera Association who has sung with other opera companies in the United States, England and Scandinavia, delighted his audience with opera excerpts and songs at the opening of the season of the local Community Concert Association.

Metropolitan Opera Bass-Baritone, Norman Cordon, Opens Music Season

Sings Program of Opera Numbers, Lyrics and Spirituals Revealing His Great Vocal and Dramatic Gifts

HAS WIDE RANGE

One of the outstanding concerts in the series which residents of Belleville have been privileged to enjoy in recent years through the local Concert Association took place last evening in the Collegiate Auditorium when Norman Cordon, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Association, was heard in recital.

Mr. Cordon's magnificent voice in a program that was perfectly planned not only for the artist's art but for the utmost enjoyment of the audience brought the acclaim of Belleville music lovers. To the Community Concert Association which was responsible for the selection of such a splendid musician to open the present season the audience is indeed indebted.

Norman Cordon, American bass-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Association, who was born in Washington, North Carolina, has already won an enviable position among leading vocalists. Not only has he sung with the Metropolitan Opera for several seasons but he has been featured with other important open companies of the United States and Canada. In the concert field he has been asked to sing with the best symphony orchestras and music festivals and has been featured on the air on many major hours.

Distinguished Artist

His opera career has been particularly impressive. He was an instant success in Belleville and has been among the most frequently heard of the Metropolitan artists. Critics and public alike for four years he sang 297 performances of 8 roles, a truly distinguished achievement.

The privilege of hearing such a distinguished artist was welcomed by Belleville audience last evening and the enthusiasm with which his opening numbers was greeted.

For his first number the singer chose the particularly exacting Largo "Ombra mai fu" from Handel's Xerxes. It was at once apparent that here was a master possessed not only of a great voice but the ability to handle it in masterly fashion. From this serious number Mr. Cordon turned to Deems Taylor's gay "May Day Carol", a folk song gaining brilliance with his execution. That Mr. Cordon is not only a famed singer, but an actor of unusual skill was shown in his operatic arias. In "Non più andrai" from The Marriage of Figaro (Mozart), Mr. Cordon was transformed into the lusty lad friend the life he would have to lead in the army, far away from his loves. Mr. Cordon's power in dramatic vocalization was further revealed in military bluster in logue of Czar Boris from "Boris Godounow" (Moussorgsky). This rendition was superb and his interpretation of the groping and unhappy Boris was unforgettable in its sympathetically done.

Also on the list, a humorous aria from "The Barber of Seville", in which is demonstrated the lighter, more whimsical side of his nature, only overwhelm the talker and the talked-about. Mr. Cordon, with his inspired touch of humour, had the audience in a merry mood as with music and facile expression he whispered as gossipers do, until a fine crescendo of sound and fury was finally achieved by their efforts.

Fine Vocal and Dramatic Gifts

The second group, contrasted, the singer's gifts, the depth and quality of his great voice, the full, vig-orous qualities which make his singing outstanding, and his art as an actor, imposed on his audience that here was a true artist, fills his program included the pro-lists from "Cycle of Life" (Sir Landon Ronald), "Home of the Lonely Heart," (Tschaikowsky) and the inimitable "Danse Macabre," (Saint Saens). Mr. Cordon lent to this vocal form because of extreme versatility.

A particularly appealing group were the spirituals. Eddie Included ed the Don Juan Serenade (Gounod), the exquisite aria from "Don Giovanni," Schubert's familiar serenade and the serenade of Mephistheles (Gounod). The diverse themes and treatments showed the great resources of Mr. Cordon's communicate vocal art. The laughter of the mocking Mephistopheles concluded this group, the encore for which was the amusing "Serenade to Mem."

In Negro Spirituals

Mr. Cordon is famous for his singing of Negro spirituals and he was very generous with this group extending it to encore after encore. The simple emotions of Negro life in the deep south were very movingly interpreted as the vocal power of a great singer. Four of these spirituals were arranged by Harry Burleigh, "Deep River," "Little David Play on Your Harp," "My Lord, What a Mornin'" and "Joshua Fit de Battle oh Jericho." Roland Hayes' arrangement of "Ole Man River," "Lindy Lou" and Gershwin's "I Got Plenty o' Nothin'" from "Porgy and Bess." A rollicking "Tavern Song" completed the group.

With Mr. Cordon was Mr. Theodor Hlag, pianist and accurate artist, Mr. Slaig gave perfect support to the work of the singer. In his own solos, Mr. Hlag brought a rich understanding of the music of the composer and a brilliant technique, rounding out an evening of perfect musical enjoyment.

Plan In Fair Condition

The rescue of Cherry was announced yesterday, the pilot had almost given up hope, although weakened by about three weeks' exposure he was said to be "in good condition."

Cherry was pilot of the plane which was carrying Bicknbacker to the Pacific on a mission connected with plane operations for War Secretary Henry Stimson.

The Army Air Corps Training Plan has been last Board from Oct. 31 when a radio station in Washington, saying the plane had only about one hour's supply of gasoline.

American ships and planes swept over hundreds of square miles of the South Pacific Ocean in search of all the missing men.

This was the second time in recent years that Bicknbacker, who shot down a score of German planes in France in the last war, has encountered adventure and great danger as a result of a visit abroad. Two years ago he survived the crash of an airliner in Atlanta, Ga., in which though some others among the passengers died. After the crash Bicknbacker was severely injured.

APPARENT

He talks to Hitler and Ribbentrop and to other Nazis. For months he has been busy between Vichy and Paris, between Petain and Pierre Laval and the last statement M. Petain returns to the men intent on crushing Hitler.

Only one thing seems to stand out consistently in those 3½ years. That was his reliance on Providence never to surrender the fleet to the Germans. And it given him credit for the column.

The school then stood up and recited the Reconsecration Pledge. With the school still standing and the flag displayed, Mr. Turner presented the names of those students of Grade 9-C, who made their lives in the last war and in this. The two minutes silence followed, at the end of which the last Post was played by Cyril Smith. The Girl Club then sang "God Bless the Righteous" by Tertius Noble from behind the stage with the flag-draped curtain in front of a reproduction of the National War Memorial, with its reflecting urn and bowed heads.

After the school was dismissed, Mr. Turner introduced Flight Lieutenant Hadley of Trenton Airport, who then gave us a talk. He said in that we must do our best at school and out of school, and try to be good citizens. He said that we must build up the Empire that we are giving up their lives for. After this inspiring talk the Band played the National Anthem.

Mr. Hill then read the War Savings report, that there was a drop this year amount to $1,567.75, and the total for the week was $3,450.25. The highest forms are X-A $249.50; XC-1, $145.50; XC-2, $105.50; XII-C and D, $103.50. After these figures, he told us that the sales in the week ended at the beginning of the term, but lately they have been coming in at an alarming way. Mr. Turner then read the names of those Mr. Bert wants twenty-five boys to make model planes on stainless steel during the next few days. Don't forget that the money from the sale of these models goes to "Bundles for Town" should be in by Tuesday. An announcement was then made concerning the new school calendar of current events, and a circular letter, which is to be sent to ex-students who are overseas, telling them the news about the "old school".

This very pleasant assembly then closed with the National Anthem.

To the Boys in Navy Blue

(This poem is dedicated to my two brothers who are now serving with the Royal Canadian Navy, and to all sailors everywhere.)

"Once you were near us, today you are away,
But you will be returning, one glad and glorious day.
When you can sail from the Motherland
In ships as free as the skies,
And come to a peaceful country Where the fog of freedom lies.
We'll welcome you with fervour,
And love you all the more;
For you did a wonderful job
All you boys in Navy Blue!

You suffered in the freezing cold,
You suffered in the heat,
You sailed away from loved ones
With a heart full of pain.
You were brave; you never faltered
In some dark hour, I know,
You'll come home and there'll be
Peace again.
Our boys in Navy Blue!

Short Sport Shots:

(Special note to my fans, both of 'em.)

No sports appeared in last week's Collegiate News Column because I was couldn't muster sufficient strength to take pen in hand following the shellacking our senior gridders received at the hands of Albert College. It's hard to believe that we were beaten so badly or so thoroughly whitewashed.

Since then, what happened so belated congratulations, are offered to Albert College's Senior Six and to the about-to-be Academy Juniors, respective champions of our local rugger-ists.

Oh well, basketball and hockey will be coming on soon, I suppose, you know.

Speaking of basketball practices are definitely underway, with the Juniors having the gym on Monday and Thursday, and the seniors on Tuesday for practices. There are about fifteen hopefuls out for the junior squad while the seniors have only about ten. In the latter case, needed, so if you were seventeen or over on Nov. 1, 1942, and want to play, by all means come out to practice next Tuesday.

Remember, the various offices of the Boys' Athletic Society and the Girls' Recreational Club results are not known as yet.

POLICE BLOTTER

Cecil Keller, 41 South John St., reported the theft of a green colored bicycle, valued at $30, which he had been moored in the slip at the south end of Front Street, in the bay from where it disappeared.

Police found the bicycle abandoned on Bridge in front of the Kent Shoe Store last night and reported the matter to the local Hydro Electric Commission today. The light and bell had already been left on inadvertently.

Two inebriates languished in the cells because of the local bastille Friday night after being apprehended by police and charged with drunkenness. Their court hearing will take place Tuesday.

Whims And Fancies Are Limited By Ban On Light Fixtures

This is no time for interior decorators, either amateurs or professionals, to indulge in whims and fancies. A ruling by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board will put almost all ornamental lighting fixtures to be changed unless with written permission of the Administrator of Electrical Equipment and Supplies. So, if house owners want to put in indirect lighting to take the place of the old-fashioned centre light, now is the time to do it.

Although the ruling does not cover the purchase of such fixtures, the department of Munitions and Supply in its effort to conserve electrical power wants no-one to purchase them. While the National War Finance Committee would much sooner that interior decorators were occupied for the duration of the war, unless home owners would be interested in decorating their houses with War Savings Stamps and Victory Bonds.

Weekly War Commentary

(Written for The Canadian Press By Maj.-Gen. Sir Charles Gwynn)

London, Nov. 14 — (CP Cable)— The landing of United States and British troops in North Africa, to which Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Commander-in-Chief in the Middle East in Egypt was so well timed as a forerunner, contains wide strategic implications. The effect will appear in the protection and shortening of the Libyan lines and the communications apart from opening the way for new offensive operations.

The operation in French North Africa was one which may be left to American commentators to describe although the British share in it was obviously essential to its success. Tactically the success mainly depended on the navy. Although the troops and air forces, both American and British, evidently carried out their part with speed and efficiency, the opposition encountered fortunately was not such as to provide a high tactical test.

The whole operation was admirably planned and carried out. The outstanding conclusion the world will draw is that the British Empire and the Northwest African theatres of war, is that the Allies possess dynamic organization, administrative capacity and leaders and troops who are superior to anything Germany can produce.

Victory Certain

It is now clearly established that the victory of the British 8th Army and the Egyptian battle have been complete. Practically the whole Italian component of Rommel's army has been destroyed. Immense quantities of equipment and transport vehicles, together with the greater part of the remnants of German mobile divisions have fallen into the Allies' escaped.

It is still uncertain what is the exact strength of Rommel's remaining forces or what reserves he may have in Libya's base to replace the lost vehicles. But it is improbable they are sufficient to bring the enemy up to anything like strength and at least one of his divisions had practically ceased to exist.

Petrol will probably be his main weakness should he attempt to make a stand. Although his main petrol depots may have considerable stocks, it is improbable that there are minor depots distributed over the area of probable encounters. It is obvious most of the lighter transport of the enemy would have been established east of Mersa Matruh.

With Malta still commanding the communications of Cyrenaica, Rommel's central waters no longer offering immunity to Axis shipping, prospects of reinforcements reaching Tripoli by sea have practically vanished.

May Stand in Cirenaica

Rommel may elect to make a stand in Cirenaica, possibly in an effort to evacuate his personnel by air transport — but can we have little hope of carrying out an evacuation by sea.

What the airborne landing of the Germans in Tunisia amounts to is not yet clear, but it is conceivable that Rommel may attempt to join hands with them at all speed. He has good roads to move on. In any case the battles can be expected over this area. A race is on for the Allies and morale rapidly eastward toward Tunis and Bizerte.

The strategic effect of Sir Harold Alexander's victories obviously has been immediate. Themselves they would almost certainly have ensured the security of the Middle East and completed the task of all of Libya thereby restoring much of our naval dominance in the Mediterranean.

In Russia it would seem that the German offensive is drawing to a close with Stalingrad still not conquered. Although the Allied power may continue unless snow, which has already fallen heavily, halts them to a standstill. It is evident the Germans are desperately anxious to establish their winter quarters before winter sets in.

Initiative May Pass to Malta

I think we may take as genuine Hitler's announcement that he has settled on Malta as the object at Stalingrad. The initiative must now pass again to the Allies and while he will use it remains to be seen. It seems certain that it will be necessary for the Germans to retain a higher proportion of the Luftwaffe in Russia than they have.

In New Guinea, the Japanese are in danger of being overwhelmed. Our Australian attacks have gone very well and an airborne force has been landed in possession of the fields at Buna would increase the weight of the Allied attack on the disintachments in the area. The situation in the Solomon Islands also has been greatly improved.

Glancing back 25 years:

Attempts to oppose Soviet assumption of power in Russia with military force ceased, at least temporarily, 25 years ago. Less than a week after the coup d'etat which put Nicolai Lenin in control at Petrograd, Cossack troops remained loyal to the deposed premier, A. F. Kerensky, were decisively defeated near Tsarskoe Selo on Nov. 13, 1917 and their leader fled from Russia.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Nov. 14 — (CP) — The housing situation is one of the major problems in Montreal for the duration and as it tries to maintain the labor supply for vital war industries.

So far the manpower situation has not been reform in all respects but Montreal are scarce in the highly-industrialized centres; not so scarce as to cause furniture and other sections where the war has had only a moderate effect on industry.

The selective service task has been to attract workers from places where men and women are available to those where war plants have a short of employees. But the industrial areas are finding that their supplies — already have seen a vast influx of population.

Industrial centres are strained to the utmost. Overcrowding that situation is getting plenty attention from selective service, but the solution hasn't been found yet.

Incidentally, it has been shown to application of compulsion in assigning workers to specific jobs — the stage for that hasn't been reached yet — the indications are not encouraging. Pressure used only in certain highly-industrial areas rather than on a national basis, for a starter at least.

Maybe life begins at 40, but that sounds a bit off on the prices board offices. Chairman Donald Gordon is still below the 40-year mark and James Coyne, who recently resigned as Governor Chairman, was so close to 30 he could mail-car rates when he enlisted in the R. C. A. F. Robert F. Chisholm, director of the industrial division with the tough job of curtailing non-essential industry, is only 37.

The beautiful French legation building beside the Ottawa River, overlooking the Gatineau Hills, was silent and still when one of our diplomats tried unsuccessfully to interview Rene Ristelhueber, erstwhile minister from the Vichy government.

Our man sat in a great high-ceilinged room with big square doorways leading to even greater rooms beyond. Behind a desk piled with life's unique etchings sat in marble, plaster and bronze the bust ment of Canada; the vast ballroom with its huge mirrors; the long, lamp-lighted dining room.

"All this needs," he thought, "is one of those blood-curdling screams the movies put into deserted manor stairs."

Suddenly there was one. Our man admits he jumped.

But a feminine voice chiding a small, howling dog somewhere in the building brought back that air of safe domesticity which indicated life was still placid — and more or less normal — in this bit of France that was.

In Ottawa this week was Kenneth Grubb, controller of overseas information services in the British Ministry of Information. One of his jobs is keeping the British neutral groups like the recent handful of Canadian editors who went to Britain.

He chuckled when he told newspaper men one man who had been shown about everything there was to see and was asked if he had any time he in mind. His only request was to be shown 221-A Baker St. where lived the fictional Sherlock Holmes.

And then there was the rotund member of a foreign-language group who wore a be-medalled uniform and was asked where in the north country town when he went out along. "Clearing pulling a Hess."

But his only reaction was to remark that the Russian people certainly did make a fuss over him . . .

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Another Warning of the Danger of Persistent Hoarseness

Years ago I wrote of the warning of the Drs. Chevalier Jackson, Philadelphia, that allowing hoarseness to continue for more than two weeks without finding its cause was a serious mistake on the part of the patient. Cancer of the larynx, hoarseness or change in the voice lasting a few days is not usually a serious matter as it may be due to a cold, sinus disturbance, overuse of voice, irritating vapors and other conditions and circumstances of a persistent hoarseness or change in the tone of the voice should always be investigated. The use of friar's balsam—tincture of benzoin compound—inhalations, lozenges and out the nose—usually gives relief in these simple cases.

However when the hoarseness continues it is a danger signal as one of the three dread diseases—tuberculosis, syphilis, cancer—may be present, only early treatment of which can save the person's life.

An editorial on hoarseness by Dr. Franklin Hoffman, Chicago, recently appeared in Digest of Modern Medicine. He gives this warning as to danger to life of continuing hoarseness was given by physicians and physicians.

This a physician even when he believes he has found the cause of the hoarseness must not be satisfied until he has made a thorough examination that rules out other causes, common or uncommon, that might also cause the persistent hoarseness. There is always the possibility that more than one cause is present. This entails careful history, careful indirect (mirror), and direct examination of the throat with the laryngoscope; a complete general examination particularly of the bronchial tubes and lungs; X-rays study of the sinuses, chest and neck; examination of the blood and sputum; and a removal of a specimen of tissue to be examined for cancer.

Dr. Lederer further points out that two of the mistakes made are (a) thinking that cancer occurs only in old age, as ten per cent of the cases of cancer of the throat (larynx) occur in patients under 40, (b) that if a specimen of tissue is removed and it is cancer, that this removal of the specimen will cause the cancer to spread.

The belief that removal of a small piece of tissue will cause the cancer to spread has kept too many individuals from seeking relief from hoarseness or difficulty in swallowing.

It is with the idea of getting patients with persistent hoarseness to seek their physician's early attention that Dr. Lederer has written this special editorial.

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw, Nov. 16—An impressive Armistice Day service was held at the town Hall, Bonarlaw, Wednesday, Nov. 11, commencing at 10.30 a.m. and wreaths were laid on the nearby cenotaph.

The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Spetigrock United Church who also gave an appropriate address. Mr. Lorne Johnson recited a poem. The wreaths of flowers from the Government was placed by Mrs. M. Stine and the wreath from Rawdon Township by Councillor Geo. S. Eastwood, D.C.M.

The proceeding were under the direction of Deputy Reeve W. J. Tanner. There was a good attendance.

A successful euchre was held in the club rooms of St. Mark's Church on Wednesday evening, the Church on Wednesday evening, the proceeds being Miss Jean McIlroy and Ronald Brown. Lunch was served and all report a splendid time.

Freighter Building

Who could have believed that a ten-thousand-ton freighter could grow from keel to completion in four days and fifteen hours and a half? Started the Sunday last at 12.01 a.m. with the keel-laying and launched on Thursday at 3.30 p.m., the freighter Robert E. Peary slipped down the ways at the Henry J. Kaiser yards in Richmond, Col., to a new world record of speed in the construction of merchant ships. Outfitting is taking place and craft will be delivered "before Monday" for total time from keel-laying to-delivery of eight days or less.

A unique fact about the record is "we are not primarily trying to break any records," the manager said.

"Our primary purpose has been the experimenting with new prefabrication methods for months and after receiving hundreds of thousands of suggestions and time-saving inventions from our workers we all decided to try them on the hull and see what would happen."

Then came the new story on Friday when an 8,000-ton boat slid down the ways at Almeda for the latest low record, namely three days and eight hours from keel-laying to launching.

There are many things Hitler has not foreseen and this is one of them.

He could not have foreseen this speed. He started to arm Germany many years before the war broke out but all his fiendish cleverness never equalled the sheer massive and yet fine elastic quality of the action of the United Nations.

Now we wonder when the promised United States construction of 16,000,000 tons of ocean-going vessels in 1943 is achieved? It will be, Rear Admiral Land says so. And an American say-so means that it will be done.

Does Hitler see something ominous in this shipbuilding and all other activities which promise that mighty armadas will cross the ocean to carry the war into Hitler's conquered territory and Germany? Can he not recall how the former Emperor of Germany failed with U-boat warfare? Does he not know that the freighters are going to have a great part in ringing the deathknell of his Nazi rule?

He cannot hope to contend successfully against the United Nations' ever-developing power.

This building record is the consequence of the response of the United States with its industry and its high sense of liberty.

Trenton Air Station's Part

Trenton Air Station has won high honor by subscribing no less than $153,200 towards the Third Victory Loan, thereby leading all stations of the R.C.A.F. across the Dominion. This is an achievement of which all connected with the station, and all who took part in the effort at the station to put the loan across in a big way, should be proud and it is something in which the R.C.A.F. itself and the Dominion take pride.

Across Canada the air stations did themselves proud, especially Manning Pool, which stood second with $146,500 subscribed.

The enthusiasm of the members of the air force has been an inspiration to the civilian population to extend their purchases of the bonds so that the national total is not far away from a billion dollars.

The work of the R.C.A.F. stations in Canada has been a demonstration of the response of all people of a democratic nation to the needs of their country when at war. It shows that though the men have donned the uniform, and the women have joined the women's division of the R.C.A.F., they hold the view that their duty is to strengthen the hands of the Dominion in raising the money which has been called the sinews of war.

It is one of the outstanding facts of the Third Victory Loan campaign. Trenton station may therefore bear its honor proudly for what it has done along with the other establishments of the R.C.A.F. has been very effective in the national cause.

How the enthusiasm rose is indicated by the nominal quota of $42,000 which has grown more than three hundred and fifty per cent to attain the magnificent final result.

OURSELVES AND THERS...

BY

SORRY, HIAWATHA

From the southlands came the hunters,
Keen-eyed, strong and full of vigor,
Toted they their load of grubstake
Toted they their share of water.
Proud were they of woodland knowledge
They the great and mighty hunters.

Van-Deh-Blaks-Leh, called the eagle,
Called the ferret, called the beaver,
Jo-Jo Shortt, hailed the porcies,
Pad-reh Payne, and O, Ye Bennett,
Russ El White, the hardware heaver,
Known through the hills and valleys,
Known through the water courses,
Knwon in hamlet, stream and woodland
As a mighty band of hunters.

Buck-o-Deer, the mighty staglet,
Wet his muzzle at the shoreline,
Sniffed he of the morning odors
Fine and balsam, strips of bacon.
Mighty-antlered King of Forest
Cared he not for human pipings.
Cared he not for man-made laws.

Peering through a leafy woodglade
Lay the mighty Russ El White, he Drew his gun upon the staglet
Drew his gun upon the antlers,
Closed his eyes and muttered something
Muttered 'neath his three-day whiskers,
Said a prayer to Great One-Shot-to,
God of all the wilderness,
Closed this eyes and pulled the trigger
Closed his eyes against the northwind.

Buck-o-Deer stood swaying gently
Swaying in the morning breezes,
Thinking of the woody gladelands
Thinking of his fawns and buckler
Suddenly he reared his antlers,
Suddenly he pricked his earlets.
Stared he at the fallen body
Of a reddish black woodpecker,
On the golden leaves
Of the Autumn's shedded garments,
Where it lay full fifty yardlets
Far from where the Buck-o wandered.

In a nearby thicket hidden,
Lay the mighty hunter Pad-reh.
Leaned he on his trusty weapon,
Leaned he on the thicket rusty.
Gazing through the leafy thicket
Saw he there the mighty Buck-o,
Nuzzling in the morning sunshine.
Raised he then his trusty musket,
Drew a bead on beating heartlet,
Closed his eyes and muttered something
Muttered as he pulled the trigger.

Far to westward in its death throes,
Lay the little chickadee-let
Thrashing in its every life-blood,
Victim of the Pad-reh bullet.
Jo-Jo Shortt and O Ye Bennett
Saw the prowess of the hunters
Sadly laid aside their muskets
Sadly wandered into camplet.
Counted they their shiny shekels
Added those of Russ and Pad-reh.
Hied them to a nearby farmer,
And settled for a load of buckwheat.
But the woodlands ring with stories
Of the prowess of the hunters.
Van-deh-Blaks-Leh, mighty shot-to Large of stature, wise of eyelet.
He the eagle eye, he the hunter,
He the Cat-E-Gor-eh E man
Wandered in the woodland jungle
Wandered through the leafy gladelets,
Wearing he his trusty musket
With its cheaper rusty crape-shot.

Through the valleys rings the story
Through the woodlands goes the tale
Told by beaver, told by ferret,
Told by eagle as he flutters.
How the mighty Van-Deh-Blake-Leh
Met the fierce carnivorous Bruin,
Met him there in mortal combat
Met him in the grassy woodlands.
The forest rang with sound of battle
Rang with cries of mighty mantlet
Crappled close with mighty clasplet,
Grappled he with arms of steel.

Hushed the beaver in his damlet
Hushed the ferret in its lairlet
Silent, eagle eyes looked downward
On this battle of the strong ones.
Then the mighty Van-Deh-Blaks-Leh
Thrust his armlet to its fullest
Length within the throat of Bruin,
Grasped him by the woolly tail-let
Gave a mighty heave and pullrip.
Turned the mighty Bruin screaming
Inside out in woodland forest.

That's the story of the woodlands,
Told by mighty Van-Deh-Blaks-Leh.
How the mighty hunters henceforth
Dined on steaks of fur-lined Bruin.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

30 YEARS AGO

NOV. 14TH., 1912.

The Community Banquet, under the auspices of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Quinte last evening was a great success. The President, Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, occupied the chair and the principal speakers were Mr. Russell T. Kelly, a former President of the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce and Mr. John T. Laughton of London, Ontario, President of the Ontario Commercial Travellers Association. Community singing was led by Mr. Sanford Barrows, with Mr. Tim Little as piano accompanist. Short addresses were made by Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, Mayor Charles Hanna, Mr. G. M. Reid, Mr. W. H. Dracott, Mr. John Elliott and Mr. Jamieson Boog.

30 YEARS AGO

NOV. 14TH., 1912.

Mr. Jack Clarke has returned home after a trip to Western Canada.

Mr. E. Bonisteel has returned from Lloydminster, Alberta, where he has a cattle ranch. Messrs. Ed Warham and Davidson are in charge during his absence from the ranch. He expects to return west in the spring and will take with him more cattle.

We noted today several new planks in the sidewalk near the lower bridge. Thanks. We travel over that route to our meals and bunk.

Mr. H. C. Thomas of Wellington was in town today.

The schooners Keewatin, Elizabeth Mestner, New Dominion and Dundee are in Cook's harbor and are being dismantled for the winter.

The steamer Belleville made her last call for this season at this port today.

40 YEARS AGO

NOV. 14TH, 1902.

This is the day the Mayoralty candidates are supposed to come out of their places of concealment. If they see their shadow they stay out until January; if not they again enter and settle down in the frenzied popular interest which usually breaks out about twenty-five minutes before nomination day.

Past Grand Master Bro. A. M. Ketcheson of the Prentice Boys, Grand Secretary C. O. Brickman and Bro. James Warham, Wor. Master of the Royal Lodge, paid a fraternal visit last evening to Frankford Lodge of Prentice Boys, No. 25.

No doubt the Water Commissioners are trembling in their boots just now, wondering whether the Aldermen have made up their minds to abolish them or not. Should the council not abolish the Water Commissioners or not remains to be seen, but a motion to abolish the Belleville Board of Trade would be quite out of order, as that body ceased to be as dead as a doornail already.

50 YEARS AGO

NOV. 14TH, 1892.

Mr. James McGuire's young horse, Nutgrove, is proving worthy of its grand ancestry.

Dr. Ackerill of this city has purchased from Mr. H. E. Shepler of Kingston, Ohio, his great young stallion, Sim Ohio.

The Directors of the Mechanics' Institute are offering for sale two billiard tables. The room in which they were used is to be made a reception room.

Messrs. Chas. Row and Gilbert Rodoln have returned home from the north country. They survived three deer, one being a large buck.

Herring are being taken in gill nets in large quantities as far west as Northport. The fish are large and of fine quality.

Mr. Stanley Hulme, a Belleville boy, a member of the staff of the Bank of Montreal here, has been transferred to the Lindsay Branch of the same bank where he will assume the post of teller.

THE PRICE

No joy without attendant care,
No blossom but has come through rain,
No pride without its ache to bear,
No triumph without stress and strain,
No worthwhile gain without its price
In courage, faith and sacrifice.

If laughter is worthwhile to seek,
And pleasure is a good desire,
Then men must stand where frail and weak,
And timid very quickly tire,
For laughter is by merit earned
And with courage much concerned.

All bits of glory and delight,
All love, esteem and friendships true
Come from the struggle to be right
And what for truth men dare to do.
The life triumphant everywhere
Is based on courage and on care.

By R.J. SCOTT

Rommel's Chance To Escape Trap Dwindling Fast

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

With the fall of Tobruk to the British 8th Army in Eastern Libya and simultaneous Anglo-American advance from the west into Tunisia, the original 1,000-mile gap between the jaws of the Allied trap closing on Rommel's shattered and fleeing Axis armies in North Africa has been shrivelled to 900 miles.

Against that dual threat, driving in upon him from both sides at a pace unmatched in any previous phase of the give-and-take British-Axis campaign in Africa, Rommel's chances of escaping complete annihilation are dwindling every hour. There are strong indications that Berlin already has abandoned him and is salvaging what it can from Africa by sea and air evacuation.

Valuable Prize

Tobruk is of extreme practical as well as psychological value to the British command. It pushes forward a British supply advance base, fed by sea as well as land, to sustain and speed up the pursuit of the Axis army to its ultimate annihilation. It enormously strengthens British control of the vitally important Eastern Mediterranean.

The westbound British have encountered for days virtually no Axis air opposition, Rommel's men are running almost unsheltered from the air attacks.

What has become of German-Italian air power in Africa is a puzzling enigma. Some of it has been massed westward to meet the American occupation of French Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia. Indubitably much of it has been destroyed, but unconfirmed Axis reports of damage inflicted on British-American warcraft and shipping suggest that freely.

If so, however, Hitler sent a small boy to do a man-size job. It signally failed to halt or even slow up the American thrust. Berlin was obviously guilty of the same folly at this time that has so frequently plagued Rommel and her Allies in the Axis which was too late with too little, and reports that Hitler has removed the Air Commander there sound plausible.

Opposition Negligible

General Dwight Eisenhower's coastal column of Anglo-American armored forces under British commander was estimated to have thrust into Tunisia to the degree of opposition it has met or will meet remained uncertain, but the chances were it would be negligible.

Nazi withdrawal of air-borne troops flown into Tunisia to reinforcements before they even came to grips with the Allies is significant. It looks like flight from possible Fighting French seizure before the Allied columns arrive.

The battle of Tunisia seems ended before it began, in fact, in the fact, the next Allied objective from the west must be Tripoli before Rommel can get there. The American advance guard is closer than the fleeing Axis army. It has some 400 miles to go, against Rommel's 900 by land, and Tripoli is today bp-passing the Libyan hump and Benghazi to the south.

In his last retreat Rommel halted at the coastal narrows west of the hump on the gulf of Sirte. There as in Egypt, an impassable inland salt marsh comes close to the coast at El Agheila. Anglo-American forces in Tunisia are within air striking distance of El Agheila now. They could reach it with tanks and guns before Rommel can there, and seal his doom.

President Roosevelt has virtually no use for secret money.

Even if he wanted to, he would have very little opportunity to pay out cash for anything.

The President of the United States is no longer allowed by secret service men, aides and other assistants that he may have, wants set promptly taken care of by others.

Even his family finances are handled for him.

He does, however, make out his own income tax return.

On the day he left the White House, Calvin Coolidge handed a secret service man twenty-five cents that he had owed him for several months for getting him a magazine.

A man who has been at the White House for thirty years says he has never seen any President in all that never seen any President in all that time give anybody cash from his pocket.

A purse or pocket book would be about the most useless present you could give to a President of the United States.

Provide Opportunity For Young People To Follow Abilities

Toronto, Nov. 14 — (CP) — Principal R. C. Wallace of Queen's University last night told the Toronto branch of Queen's Alumni Association that young people must be allowed to develop and follow their abilities and hopes in the postwar era if Canada ever is to become a great nation.

"We cannot be an effective nation unless our people follow their abilities," he said. "We must go away with the idea that certain people get the opportunities of training simply because their parents are in a position to pay for them. We must provide the opportunity for young people to go ahead in the fields they are best equipped or like best, perhaps through scholarships that are theirs by right."

Principal Wallace said "We are far behind Russia in this regard—Russia which is a standing example of how such things should be done."

11 Axis Planes Downed

Allied headquarters did not mention a surface clash in its communique last night, but reported 11 Axis planes had been shot down by the R.A.F. and Allied naval guns during Thursday's air attacks on Bougie, between Algiers and Bone.

While mystery veiled the main fleet at Toulon, the German-controlled Paris radio said the commander-in-chief of the 11 Vichy French warships immobilized more than 36 months at Alexandria, British Egyptian naval base, would take orders only from Marshal Petain. There was no immediate confirmation of this report from any other source.

Sovereignty Not Affected

A communique broadcast from Vichy said the stationing of German and Italian troops in the formerly free zone did not affect the sovereignty of Petain government.

Again the Vichy French stressed the vigor of the North African defence before the final capitulation of Bone and Algiers, but said the defenders were overwhelmed by superior force.

The 35,000-ton Vichy battleship Jean Bart, the Ministry of Information said, was set on fire, while three destroyers were knocked out of action and grounded and a fourth was sunk. Of four submarines engaged, one was reported sunk and two missing, while the other reached Toulon.

The Axis army of four divisions and three Italian army corps of eight divisions "have ceased to exist as effective fighting formations" and 36,000 prisoners, including nine generals, have been captured, he said.

"We have made a very good start and today there are no German or Italian soldiers on Egyptian territory except as prisoners," he declared, "In three weeks we have completely smashed the German and Italian army and pushed the fleeing remnants out of Egypt, have advanced circles nearly 500 miles up to and beyond the frontier."

Following Formations Smashed

He listed the following Axis formations as smashed: The army composed of the 15th Armored Division, 21st Division and the 90th and 164th light divisions; the Italian 10th Army Corps made up of the Pistoia, Pavia and Folgore Divisions; Italian 20th Army Corps with the Ariete and Littorio armored divisions and the Trieste Division and the Italian 21st Corps made up of the Trento and Bologna divisions.

The amount of tanks, artillery, anti-tank guns, transport, aircraft etc., destroyed or captured is so great the enemy is completely crippled," he said.

"I feel our great victory has been brought about by the good fighting qualities of the soldiers of the Empire rather than by anything I may have been able to do myself."

"Secondly, I know you will all realize how greatly we were helped in our task by the Allied air forces. We could not have done it without their splendid help and co-operation. I have thanked the Allied air forces warmly on your behalf."

But it may be confidently said that in effect will not be a small one and that a certain relief in pressure on the Soviet Union will result in the nearest future. Initiative With Allies.

"But that is not the only thing that matters. What matters first of all is that since the campaign in Africa means that that initiative has passed into the hands of our powers and demoralizes Hitler's allies in Europe; that the campaign relieves Germany from her state of lethargy and mobilized anti-Hitler forces of France and provides a basis for building up an anti-Hitler French army; that the campaign creates conditions for putting Italy out of commission and for locating Hitler's forces and, finally, that the campaign creates the prerequisites for establishment of a second front in Europe nearer to Germany's vital centres which will be of decisive importance for organizing victory over Hitlerite tyranny.

"3. What possibility is there of Soviet offensive power in the east joining the Allies in the west to hasten the final victory?"

"Answer: There need be no doubt that the Red army will fulfill its task with honor as it has been fulfilling it during the whole war.

Twice As Long As First.

This second letter from Stalin, which will be published on the front pages of Russian newspapers today, was twice as long as the first one October 3, It was handed to me last midnight by Nikolai Palgunov, chief of the press department of the foreign commissariat, a little more than 24 hours after I had submitted my questions.

It was typed neatly on plain white paper without a letter-head, but this time the signature, "With respect, J. Stalin", was written in Stalin's hand with blue crayon. The earlier letter was signed with a stamp in violet ink.

The letter gave the first direct, authoritative Soviet comment on the Allied campaign in North Africa, although the press had been following the progress of these operations with obvious satisfaction.

In his first letter to me, Stalin said that Allied aid had been of little effect compared to Soviet contributions to the conduct of the war and called upon the Allies to fulfill their obligations fully and promptly. He said a second front was of paramount importance.

"Thus farmers in Canada have already received the benefit of the new higher prices of approximately 75,000,000 pounds of bacon purchased since Oct. 5 to complete the old contract and by the conclusion of the purchases under the new contract producers will have benefited from higher prices paid on a total of 750,000,000 pounds of bacon," the department said.

Under the new agreement the Bacon Board will receive $21.75 per 100 pounds for "A" grade bacon at seaboard, with relative prices for "B" grade bacon and cuts. The 1941-43 contract price was $19.77 per 100 pounds for "A" grade.

"In view of the increased volume required under the new contract, the problems associated with meeting total requirements in the past year and the shortage in farm and packing house labor, it looks as though supplying the necessary pork products will be by no means easy," the statement said.

"Feed, an important factor in hog production, is fortunately abundant and farmers are being urged to convert as much as possible of it into meat. However, it will soon be too late to plan for any further increase in that part of the 1943 pig crop which will arrive at markets in time to benefit the 1942-43 contract.

"It is therefore, extremely urgent that all possible steps be taken to save and finish for market more than the usual number of pigs from every litter.

Stirling Grid Squad Defeats Tweed by 17-0

Stirling, Nov. 14 — Stirling High School rugby squad set up a couple of worthy records Friday afternoon when they copped the C. H. H. S. Rugby Championship by defeating Tweed High School 17-0 on a gridiron covered with ice and snow and in weather that drove the fans to the shelter of their cars and into the school building, where from crowded windows they watched the Stirling lads lead all the way. Stirling's fast moving crew under the coaching of Elgin Mundy have scored a total of 75 points throughout the season's play and have only had a single point scored against them. Two years ago in similar weather conditions they wrested the championship from Tweed in Tweed, last year the Northerners beat them out for the championship by 16-9.

It was sweet vengeance for them as they romped over the Tweedies yesterday almost at will. They were superior in every department, stronger in plunging, in aerial attack and in passing and faking. McIntosh opened the scoring with a single point on each of two kicks and also made a perfect placement. Patterson went over for a touchdown. There was no scoring in the second quarter. In the third McIntosh again singled and Basedo scored a touchdown. Stirling added a single point in the last quarter. No converts were made and the score ended Stirling 17, Tweed 0. Thus they became C. H. H. S. champions and unless they are challenged further automatically O. S. S. A. champions also. Next Tuesday the stars of this squad meet Albert College in a sudden death game for the Br. C. O. S. S. A. Six man championship in Belleville. Win or lose they have turned in a great season's performance and are the pride of their village. Following is the personnel of the team: masp F. Eagleson; insides Stocker and Thompson; middles Reid and Pidgeon; ends Haslett and Basedo; quarterback Vandervoort; halves Basedo and Paterson; fullback McIntosh; flying wing McLaren; subs. Reid and Jackman.

WEDDINGS

BANNER—O'NEIL

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Eugenie O'Neil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Charles O'Neil, Hamilton, to Pilot Officer Leslie Thomas Banner, R.C.A.F., Trenton son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Banner of North Bay, took place this afternoon in Centenary United Church, Hamilton. Captain the Rev. Stanley Rawson officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore heather rose faille in bouffant style, fingertip veil with Dutch cap, and carried orchids and pink roses. Mrs. G. Allen of Hagersville and Miss Elizabeth Johnson, Toronto, were their matron of honor and bridesmaid. The bridesmaid wore a gown with bodice in white velvet and skirt in rose taffeta, and the bridesmaids gowns were in rose velvet and blue taffeta. They all carried nosegays, the gift of bridegroom, of pink and white sweet peas and white single chrysanthemums and the bridesmaids had matching flowers in their hair. Each wore tulle in her hair, topped with flowers to correspond with her bouquet. The attendants also were gold necklets, the gifts of the bride.

The flower girls, Miss Betty Burns, Trenton, and Maureen Shannon, Smith's Falls, wore picturesque Kate Greenaway dresses in rose taffeta with matching cape, and rose necklets and bracelets, the gifts of the bride. They carried nosegays of Dutch roses and white 'mums.

Mr. Robertson Collins was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Bruce Doyle, Ron Warren, R.C.A.F., and Ernie Cowan, R.C.A.F.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served in the main dining room of the Hotel Quinte, the bride's table being most attractive, centred with a tiered wedding cake, and white and yellow chrysanthemums; Mrs. Killoyle, mother of the bride, was attired in fuchsia and saxe crepe with hat to match and corsage of orchids. Mrs. Howe, mother of the groom, was in black crepe with black dinner dress, grey squirrel fur furs and flower turban in white and black. Mrs. P. J. Donahue of Trenton, grandmother of the groom, wore ashes of rose crepe with mink marmot hat, and corsage of gardenias, and Mrs. A. E. Collins was in cyclamen crepe with matching hat and corsage of Pernet roses. A reception for two hundred guests took place in the tea room of the hotel from five to five o'clock. Roses and yellow glass 'mums were used in profusion in the decoration of the tea room.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a rosary, to Mrs. T. Hill, who was pianist at the wedding breakfast and during the reception, and to Mrs. Truaisch, brooches were presented. Miss Mary Kerr, Trenton, who sang a group of numbers during the reception, and Mrs. Hill as accompanist, was presented with a nosegay necklet.

For travelling the bride chose a Kelly green jersey suit trimmed with mink. With this she wore a swagger coat, muff and hat of leopard skin, the gift of the groom. Upon their return they will reside in Trenton.

Out of town guests at the wedding included the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Killoyle, the groom's grandfather, Mr. James Vincent Killoyle, Mrs. and Mrs. J. R. Killoyle and Jimmy, Mrs. Gary Steele and children, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Ullmann, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. F. Fuller, Toronto; Mr. Alex Shannon and family, Madeline Shannon, Smith's Falls; Mrs. James Kerr and Mary Kerr, Mrs. Robert Burns and Mrs. K. Bussey, all of Trenton.

Proper Safety Measures Overcome Potential Dangers of Magnesium

A great deal has been said in publication lately about magnesium because it has been used in making incendiary bombs. The fact, however, that when mixed together with aluminum, in building airplanes, it is perfectly safe under circumstances it is used in making cameras, pumps for gasoline, airplane cabins, parts, and flashlight bulbs, illustrates how the danger is overrated and fit the form of a fine dust it is highly explosive and burns rapidly. Since magnesium is now being so extensively used, it is important to understand the dangers of contact with it and also what can be done to prevent these dangers. When magnesium oxide, a white powdery substance, is inhaled, it may produce what is known as "metal fume fever."

The dust of magnesium silicate, asbestos is known to cause a condition called pneumoconiosis. In this condition, scar tissue forms in the lungs, interfering with breathing and producing a continuous cough. Salts of metallic magnesium may irritate the skin and cause some inflammation. Magnesium salts are not poisonous.

Numerous fires and explosions have occurred in industries where magnesium is employed, and as a result, it has become necessary to enact special fire-extinguishing powders and garments for the workers, which afford protection against the flames.

It is also possible to prevent metal fume fever by keeping the person free from dust in the magnesium oxide. The skin may be protected against the irritation by the use of a thin influnction does not develop. The wearing of masks will help to keep asbestos dust from being breathed in by those who work with asbestos materials. Those would appear to be no good reason why any one should be afraid to use, as should suffer any ill effects if the proper measures are employed.

The final meeting will be held in the form of an inspirational gathering at the Citadel on Monday evening. Special services will mark the presence of the officers and cadets.

SURELY A MISTAKE

Conway, Ark., Nov. 14 (AP)—The man showed up at the draft board with a card deferring him for 90 days on account of vaccination. "I think this must be a mistake," he said. "I'm married and have children, too." His questionnaire bore no mention of his family. "I guess I just forgot about them," the registrant commented.

PROMOTED IN RANK

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 14 (CP)— Frank E. Hanton, of Kenora, with the R.C.A.F. overseas, has been promoted to the rank of flying officer, it was stated in a cable received today by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hanton.

High Hair-Do Needs Study

Joan Leslie has a becoming high hair-do

By HELEN FOLLETT

NOW THAT the fashion hair dress is gaining in favor your beauty reporter desires to go on record as having seen another terrible looking upswept mops. The long bob is crisp, trim and neat. Combed back at the sides, front locks done in a smooth, high pompadour. No curls or curlers. Just a bunch of tuck combs to keep tresses intact. Not one woman in a thousand will look well with such a careless design. It makes the back of the head flat, the face appears long and narrow. The high coiffure requires an eye for head shaping. You can't do it without a triple mirror.

The upswept hairdo can be extremely distinguished. It is the most difficult of all styles to design and it is well nigh terrible for the woman who is making the change from bob to restrained effects de sock the advice of a specialist, one who understands hair styling. A casual arrangement is likely to look blowsy, and it is not easy to anchor down locks that have been flowing.

The hair must be trained. Vigorous upward brushing night and morning is necessary if it is to do a turn about. Throw the head forward, brush like all get-out. Back locks should carry an undulation if they are to look chic. Place the tuck combs on the crown of the head; you may have to use large bobby pins for stray locks.

Form rolls with the side strands. In front you can have a lifted effect, or a pulled down one, or an arrangement of rolls.

You're likely to have troubles at first because your hair won't understand what has happened to it. But persevere.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Jealousy Makes Him Unhappy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm in love with a girl I met at a party my service men. She says she loves me also, and we hope to marry after the war. But my trouble is that I am an extremely jealous person. When she talks or dances with other men, I just see red and am very unhappy.

I know I shouldn't be like this, but it seems to be part of my nature. I wouldn't harm a soul and would like to change. Can you please tell me how I can overcome this fault? I'm now in an Army camp waiting for the call to go overseas. What if another girl should step in after that, I expect to go overseas. I do want to go the way with a feeling that I needn't worry about her going with someone else.

A Soldier.

If I could tell you how to get rid of jealousy, I would be very happy indeed. There is no way to be completely rid of it, but you have made a fine start, even though you believe you don't realize it. You have recognized it as a fault. Hang on to that fault-finding mind and going you harm, that it weakens you, and it is cowardly and unmanly.

The very moment you begin to make some progress in the control of this fault, you will begin to win a victory.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"Money Shower"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My sister is going to be married to a young man in the Army. Because of his indefinite stay here, he has not had time to get a start now. I think they would benefit by a money shower than any other kind.

Would you please advise me how I could give this kind of shower without embarrassment. H. C.

—If your religious denomination requires that someone give the bride away at the altar, the answer for your brother to give you in marriage.

Difference in Terms

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

What is the difference between a reception and a formal afternoon tea?

Matilde

There is usually no very real difference. They are equally formal, and the procedure and the refreshments are practically the same. A tea, even though formal, does usually has a more intimate atmosphere than a reception. Usually, when the formal tea is given by a club or other organization in honor of a celebrity or visiting lecturer, the formal tea is usually called a "reception".

Saturday Dates Only

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a high school girl of 16 and my mother allows me to have dates only on Saturdays. Sometimes she won't let me have any dates at all, and forbids me to go to school dances.

My mother thinks I am wild when, I go out but, honestly, Miss Fairfax, I'm not. I'll admit I am a very happy-go-lucky girl. I think I can overcome it if you will tell me how.

Won't you please tell me at what hour a girl of my age should come home from a party when she is out with a young man?

Junior

Your mother doubtless has her reasons for not allowing more dates on you. She knows your characteristics better than any outsider can possibly know them. There's nothing wrong with the spirit that leads you to enjoy the company of boys, but you have got to keep it in subjection within the proper bounds. I'm sure you can do this. You're in school; why not give a little extra attention to your school work?

As to the time you should arrive home from a party or date, that depends entirely on you and the rules of the house in which you are living. It also depends upon whether you are out alone with the one, or whether you go to a party among friends. Certainly, your mother is the best judge.

STILL DONT KNOW IF HE'S A CANNIBAL

Noted Explorer Seabrook now confesses his first and startling tale of human flesh eating made him the butt of a cute old chief's sly humor, but then came a high-life banquet, maybe of man meat, and that's the secret he still can't find the sure answer to

A slain enemy warrior was scheduled to be the piece de resistance of Seabrook's jungle feast, but he had to eat ape—and like it. Above, the cannibal cooks prepare a culinary titbit.

Most delicious morsel of all, to a cannibal, is the palm of the human hand. But maybe Seabrook ate a giant ape's hand, shown here.

Human steak was promised at a sneak dinner given in honor of author Seabrook by Daisy Fellowes. above. But only Daisy knew what was really served.

Famed author-explorer William Seabrook, above, who confesses in his autobiography, "No Hiding Place," that he was hoaxed by a cannibal chief who had invited him to sit in on a jungle "feast." The chief substituted ape for human flesh, he learned later.

Human sacrifice and torture like that in the unusual photo above, were what Seabrook "needed" as background for his book, they said.

(Ewing Galloway Photo.)

Women are sacrificed to the Voodoo gods, particularly at harvest. Warriors are considered fit to eat by the savage cannibals who asked Seabrook to the wedding banquet when their chief decided to take for himself a new bride.

WILLIAM SEABROOK, famed author-explorer who shocked the literary world some years ago when, in "Jungle Ways," he told how he ate human flesh at a cannibal feast, has written another book which is going to shock Joe Public all over again.

In his autobiography, "No Hiding Place," Seabrook confesses that what he really ate the first time was roasted ape, not man, but he gives a startling description of a second occasion on which he may have sampled cannibal fare. And he intimates that food "just like it" was on the menu at still another meal which he shared with such distinguished companions as Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and Daisy Fellowes, a leading American-born light in pre-war France's glittering international set.

As related in his autobiography, Seabrook's second experience with cannibalism came when a friend in Deuilly, France, obtained from a hospital interne at the Sorbonne a chunk of meat, says Seabrook, from the body of a human killed by accident. "I cooked it," he writes, "at the Villa of the Baron Gabriel des Hons, who, was my translator. I ate a lot of it in the presence of witnesses and liked it, no more or less than any other edible meat."

Cannibal warriors see no harm in eating an enemy slain in battle. He's dead anyway, they explain, and eating him saves needless killing of wild game.

Of course, some stubborn souls might insist that if Seabrook was wrong about what he ate in the jungle he could have been wrong about what was placed on his plate at Deuilly. Perhaps it was in anticipation of such dietard objections that the author placed in evidence in his autobiography the episode at the Daisy Fellowes villa.

Daisy was one of those who joined in the loud guffaw that greeted Seabrook in France when globe-trotting journalists brought back the word that he had been fooled by the cannibal king who had substituted ape meat for warrior steak. Telling the story of Daisy's dinner in "No Hiding Place," Seabrook says:

Daisy came to see me one day with Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and said, "It was just too bad, you poor credulous little boy—and with all the trouble you took, I think you deserve to know what human flesh really tastes like, so I am giving you a dinner next week in my garden."

"We went and it was all very beautiful, and there were eight or ten other guests, including some marvelous young women, the Prince Sixte de Bourbon, and the late Tranchant de Lunel, who had been Minister of Arts in Morocco." The explorer continues:

"The aperitifs, following Pere Yakoba's Timbuctoo recipe, were Pernod and Amer Picon mixed in equal quantities and iced. Then out on the lawn marched the majordomo followed by lackeys in knee-breeches and white gloves, bearing a charcoal brazier, silver dishes, and a platter of meat cut up to be grilled.

"We ate it and liked it. It looked and tasted exactly like fully developed veal or fine young baby beef. In other words, it looked and tasted exactly like human flesh.

"Nobody but Daisy Fellowes knows what the real truth is about that 'cannibal feast.' Anything could happen and often did at 9 Rue St. James."

Thus was a new chapter added to the Seabrook gastronomical saga, and a new controversy begun. Daisy alone knows whether her gourmet guests dined on "fine young baby beef" or something less conventional. And Daisy won't tell.

Seabrook's strange experiments with cannibalism began as the result of a meeting some years ago with Paul Morand, wealthy Frenchman, who wielded a powerful influence in the social and political life of his country and its colonial empire. Morand had read Seabrook's book, "The Magic Island," and liked it. He urged the American writer to make the African Ivory Coast the locale of his next adventure tale.

"You must go over there and live with them as you lived with the blacks in Haiti," Morand said. "You must see a human sacrifice if it is possible, and you must eat human flesh if you can. I wouldn't write the book unless you really get inside."

Morand, who had recently returned from an African trek, assured Seabrook that he knew the whereabouts of savage tribes that still practiced the traditional rite of cannibalism. He named other tribes that still carried out their weird rituals of human sacrifice in fantastic voodoo temples. And he offered to make available all the necessary maps and to provide couriers with which doctors who held the keys to jungle secrets.

Seabrook journeyed to the Ivory Coast, organized an expedition and set out on a jungle safari in search of the mysterious tribal realms which Morand had described. Finally reaching the ancient village of Ogoun, he was given a royal welcome at the royal palace of the king, Mon Po. The magic of Morand's influence in colonial affairs proved an open sesame. The American author and the cannibal king became firm friends. They drank, hunted and fished together by day, lounged on royal robes at night, while drums boomed a pulsating refrain and native dancers writhed and gyrated in the light of the campfires.

After a few weeks, Seabrook felt it safe to bring up the subject that had drawn him to the jungle. He began a cautious questioning of the tribe's culinary expert, a big, flashy fellow whose face was daubed with gray chalk and whose knives and other cooking tools were carried in a monkey-fur sack suspended from his neck.

The chief yielded to prompting and revealed some of the secrets of his trade. Ribs and rump steak from an enemy warrior are the best for solid meat, he told Seabrook. The liver, heart and brains are choice tidbits, but the most delicious morsel of all, to a cannibal, is the palm of the hand.

Came the night when Mon Po staged a lavish cannibal feast to celebrate the addition of a new wife to his already lengthy string. An enemy warrior was to be the main item on the menu, and Seabrook was listed as a guest of honor at the festive board. He told about it at length in "Jungle Ways."

"I took a good swallow of wine, a helping of rice, and thoughtfully ate half the steak," he wrote. "It was so nearly like good, fully developed veal that I think no person with a palate of ordinary, normal sensitiveness could distinguish it from veal. It was a mild, good meat with no other sharply definite or highly characteristic taste such as, for instance goat, game, have.

"The steak was slightly tougher than prime veal, a little stringy, but not too tough or stringy to be agreeably edible. The roast, from which I cut and ate a central slice, was tender, and in color, texture, smell as well as taste, strengthened my certainty that of all the meats we habitually know, veal is the one meat to which this meat is accurately comparable."

Publication of "Jungle Ways" with this bit of diet detail in it started a typhoon of controversy both in the United States and in Europe. Critics split into opposing camps, some denouncing it with blistering invective, others accepting the book as legitimate reporting. Scientists lined up on one side or the other, and "The Commonweal," one of America's most conservative and respected publications, added its editorial voice to the discussion.

"Leaving the critics and the experts in ethnology to deal with the questions as to what place in literature and in science should be assigned to William Seabrook's 'Jungle Ways,' we think it has a significance which calls for mention quite apart from its interest as a piece of remarkable prose or the light it throws upon the customs of primitive races. The eating of human flesh' and the participation in idol worship and the ritual of jungle mystery religions, all have significance.

"There have been many modern instances of men wearying of civilization and getting out from it by many strange paths into the heathendom which still surrounds what is left of christendom; but no one has gone further than this American, the son of a Lutheran minister, or perhaps it would be more accurate to say that no one has gone deeper. Hilaire Belloc some time ago wrote that the neo-paganism which is growing up in the midst of christendom, both in Europe and America, was probably in the way to form a sort of moral alliance with the exterior paganism of the East, of Asia and Africa as well. We have for some time been deriving new sources of stimulation in our arts from Asia and Africa. Poets and painters in plenty—such names as Rimbaud and Gauguin occur to us in this connection—have brought motives and technical methods as well as material out of the wild places of the world. William Seabrook seems to be the pioneer in the return to actual savagery of life as well as of art. It is to be hoped that few or none will follow him. Otherwise, the book will be a portent."

Shortly thereafter, Kessels and other French journalists brought back to Paris the story that Seabrook had been hoaxed by the cannibal king, and that he had eaten ape, not warrior.

In his autobiography, Seabrook readily admits that he was fooled, explaining that the tribesmen had promised that an enemy warrior would be the main course at the feast but had changed the menu at the last minute for fear of punishment by the French colonial administration.

"They had faked it well," Seabrook writes in his new version of the strange episode. "They had shown me the body of the slain young enemy warrior. I'd seen him killed, fighting. The Guere were fighters, butchers, but no murderers. They had told me there were ritual reasons why I couldn't see the slain young warrior any more until he came out of the pot—and then substituted the cut-up body of a great ape." The shocked critics of "Jungle Ways" may have thought Seabrook was munching human flesh at that cannibal banquet, but the author was not a man to be easily duped by a band of untutored savages. He knew it was ape meat he was eating, and he says so now in his autobiography:

"I knew it before the evening ended, but only because of the fingernails of one of the severed hands which Mon Po made the mistake of offering me on a dish of rice. I was very drunk."

All of which leaves the score in the Seabrook cannibal sweepstakes somewhat as follows:

1—He started out to eat a warrior in the jungle and ended up nibbling on an ape.

2—He ate a generous portion of human steak at Deuilly, France. At least, the friend who provided it assured him it was human steak.

3—He joined a jolly group of socialites in a banquet at which the main course may have been cannibal fare—or it may not.

Speculation on Possibility Of East-West Football Final Revived After Statement

O. R. F. U. Secretary Says Series of Meetings to be Held Over Weekend

WORK OUT SCHEME

(By The Canadian Press)

Speculation on the possibility of an east-west football final for the Grey Cup revived today following the statement by an Ontario Rugby Football Union official that some progress has been made in seeking to remove the obstacles confronting the all-Canada classic.

Harold Bailey, O.R.F.U. secretary, said late last night that a meeting of O.R.F.U. club officers will be held during the weekend to discuss the Canadian final. He added: "I think we'll have something happy to report."

Bailey said he could not say what steps are being taken to arrive at a solution of the tangled grip setup, but declared "We are working on something and that something, at the present time, looks promising"

His statement was the first encouraging one since a spokesman at Royal Canadian Air Force Headquarters in Ottawa announced Wednesday that the deadline for Air Force participation in football has been fixed at Dec. 1. This apparently quells plans for the final, which had been set for Dec. 12 at an earlier meeting of Canadian Rugby Union officials.

Bombers Qualified

Under C. R. U. arrangements, the O.R.F.U. would have completed its playoffs Nov. 28 and the O.R.F.U. titlist would have met the Ottawa City League finalists Dec. 5 in an eastern playdown. Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers had already qualified as western representatives by defeating Regina Navy 13-6 Nov. 7 and were scheduled to come east for the all-Canada final Dec. 12. These plans apparently were upset by the R.C.A.F. ban on Air Force football after Dec. 1, since 15 of the Winnipeg players are members of the Air Force and the eastern leagues involved are dominated by R.C.A.F. clubs.

Suggestions since have been advanced that eastern schedules be speeded up to have an eastern champion ready for a Grey Cup final before the end of November, but until last night O.R.F.U. officials had frowned on all such propositions.

Navy Has Real Chance

The O.R.F.U., meanwhile, has two weeks to go under its present regular schedule. One playoff berth has already been conceded to R. C. A. F. Hurricanes. The one remaining playoff spot may be decided today, when Toronto Navy opposes Toronto Balmy Beach at Varsity Stadium.

Navy could clinch second spot by a victory. A Beach triumph would fail to clear the air entirely, because it would be mathematically possible for the sailors to make up the lost ground Nov. 21, but such a sequence of events is not considered likely.

Hurricanes meet Toronto Oakwood Indians in the first game of Saturday's weekly double bill in Toronto. The tail-end Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers travel to Hamilton to meet Wildcats in Saturday's third game.

Volleyball

FO. Alex Munroe's No. 5 I.T.S. volleyball squads drew first blood in the district R.C.A.F. volleyball league defeating the other three squads in the loop, No. 6 Repair Depot, Trenton Air Station and the Mountain View "Bombers" in succession. The single game winners were No. 6 R.D. beating the "Bombers", Trenton winning over No. 6 and Mountain View trouncing Trenton.

The league standing now reads:

| | W. | L. | Pts. |
|---|---|---|---|
| No. 5 I.T.S. | 3 | 0 | 6 |
| No. 6 R.D. | 1 | 2 | 2 |
| Trenton | 1 | 2 | 2 |
| Mountain View | 1 | 2 | 2 |

The lineups of the teams for the initial monthly round robin tournament played at No. 5 Initial Training School were: No. 6 Repair Depot PO. Black, PO. Buchanan, Cpl. Panton, Cpl. Therren and Sgt. Hughes. Mountain View, FS. Mabie, LACS. Lascon, Horsbey, Kilmen, Partridge, Deitcher and Carp. Trenton Air Station FO. Passmore, PO. Fitton, PO. Golkes, PO. Church, Sgt. Dickens, Cpl. Walling, FO. Stedman PO. McGill and PO. Allman. No. 5 Initial Training School, Cpl. Sharp, FO. Cameron, FO. Henderson, FO. Elsley, FO. Regon, FO. Munroe, FL. Kestor, PO. Wilson and A.C. Danville.

SAMMY FASSANO HERO OF PIECE IN CORNWALL WIN

Scores Two Goals and an Assist in Thirty-Four Seconds

FIGURES IN ANOTHER

Cornwall, Ont., Nov. 14—(CP)—L. Cpl. Sammy Fassano chalked up a modern scoring record last night when he scored twice and assisted in another tally within 34 seconds as Cornwall Army defeated Montreal Canadiens 5-3 in a Quebec Senior Hockey League tilt.

The victory gave Cornwall a clear three-point lead at the top of the Q.S.H.L., but to win they had to come from behind a 3-1 deficit with a brilliant third-period drive that netted four goals, with Fassano figuring in all of them.

The win maintained Cornwall's undefeated streak, and was the first loss of the season for Paul Haynes' Canadiens.

It was the line of Fassano, L. Cpl. Frank Mario and Pte. Nick Knott who exploded all the dynamite in the wild third period, with Fassano as the hero of the piece.

Canadiens seemed heading toward their third straight victory in the third until the nine-minute mark rolled around and then the crack Cornwall line went crazy. Fassano bagged the first, Knott the next and Fassano the third. Originally, all three were awarded to Fassano, but the decision was charged later on the middle one.

Bags Final Goal

Fassano bagged the final goal of the game also, this time teaming up with defenceman Pte. Jack Church.

Church bagged the other Cornwall goal early in the game, and also played the entire 60 minutes without relief.

Alex Smart got two for Canadiens, and Smiley Meronek chalked up the other.

The two teams shared two goals in the opening period. Canadiens struck swiftly in the second, with Smart collecting both his counters within 12 seconds.

That feat had the crowd gasping, but they collapsed altogether in the third when they rose to cheer Fassano's first counter and saw two more roll in before they could sit down again.

There were few weak spots on the Cornwall team, but the terrific checking of Canadiens and the superb goal-tending of Roger Bessette had them stopped for a big part of the game. The home club was strengthened by Lieut. George Ritchie, member of last year's Cornwall Flyers, who returned here recently.

George Brown, Glen Harmon, Marcel Dheere, Meronek and Smart were the pick of the Canadiens.

Toronto, Nov. 14 (CP)—Jim (London Free Press) Burns comments on the headquarters announcement no R.C.A.F. football teams will be permitted to play after Dec. 1, thus putting a terrific crimp in Canadian Rugby Union plans for a national final Dec. 12 because airmen form a goodly part of Winnipeg's western champions and Toronto R.C.A.F. is favored to win the eastern title. Says Jim: "We can not help but feel that had the C.R.U. shown sufficient intelligence to get a definite understanding with the R.C.A.F. before they went ahead with plans, they wouldn't be feeling so disappointed." And Burns gives this tip to hockey leagues which include service teams: "The hockey schedule should be cut to suit the cloth of the navy, the army and the air force."... A clever simile from the typewriter of Walter (Hamilton Spectator) McMullen: "Chances of a Canadian football final being staged this year are about as bright as a blackout in a coal mine."

Little March has been a goin- concern now for 14 years. Offhand you could say that he is the most dangerous man in hockey when his team is one man up. March is a little package of T.N.T." ...Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson learned from Coach Paul Thompson that Alf Bentley, 25-year-old brother of the Black Hawks stars, Max and Doug Bentley, is being groomed in Chicago by Johnny Gottselig for the N.H.L. "There are two or three Bentley brothers left back in Delisle, Sask.," said Paul. "Probably we'll get around to them. And if the war lasts long enough, we'll have papa Bentley, too." Incidentally, the Bentleys once formed a complete hockey team for Delisle with papa in goal.

PLENTY OF ACTION IN SENIOR O.H.A.

Navy, Port Colborne and St. Catharines Win Contests

There was plenty of action in Senior "A" Ontario Hockey Association last night as six of the eight teams opened their 1942-43 schedules.

Navy trounced Research Colonels 8-4 in the Toronto group while Port Colborne Sailors edged Niagara Falls Cataracts 3-1 to open the Niagara Peninsula season in Niagara Falls. St. Catharines Saints laced the Senior O. H. A. champion Hamilton squad 9-2 in the other Peninsula group opener at Hamilton.

At Toronto the Navy squad showed power and speed in their victory. Held scoreless for the first period, they broke loose in the second, outscoring Research 5-4. Navy rammed home three more goals in the final period. Bert Peer led the Navy attack with a goal and three assists.

Port Colborne were held scoreless for the first period at Niagara Falls. Both teams scored once in the second and the Sailors notched two in the third.

St. Catharines came from behind to take the measure of the Hamilton team. Outscored 2-1 in the first period, they scored five times in the second and three times in the third periods while holding Hamilton scoreless. Paul Mundrick scored three goals, one in each period to lead Saints' goal getters.

New York, Nov. 14 — (AP) — Ever hear of a forward pass catching the receiver instead of vice versa. ... well, it happened in a schoolboy game at Washington, D. C., between Western and Devitt the other day ... halfback Duke O'Connell of Western pitched a pass ... that ball hit quarterback Alex Papanicolas on the back of the neck and stuck between his helmet and shoulder pad ... Pap ran 15 yards before he realized what had happened and then he reached around and grabbed the ball, making a 20-yard gain.

Willie Pep, the Hartford, Conn., featherweight, who fights Chalky Wright for the title next week, probably has the largest personal following of any out-of-town fighter to show in the Garden. More than $20,000 worth of tickets already have been sold to Connecticut buyers. Although Spence Moseley, Yale's grid captain, never has played on a team that beat Princeton, his dad, a member of Cupid Black's famous 1916 team, never lost to the Tigers ... when a Washington naval officer phoned the Pimlico press box Tuesday to ask a sports-writing friend to make a $5 bet for him on Count Fleet, he wound up loser by eight cents. The officer collected $5.50 and the call cost 58 cents.

"Y" Basketball Pries off Lid

The lid was pried off the basketball season at the Y.M.C.A. this week, with the opening games played in three different House Leagues.

Tuesday morning the Probationer Nurses opened their schedule with Miss Grills' Blues losing to Miss Sharland's Reds in the opener by the tight score of 6-4. In the second game of the weekly double-header Miss Anderson's Golds gave notice that they may be the team to beat for the championship on early form by trimming Miss Cormier's Purples 14-2.

Red—Sharland, Young 6, Van Alstyne, Smeltzer, Nicholson, total 6.

Blue—Grills 4, Reid, Kirkpatrick, Hutchinson, Hanna, total 4.

Referee—Shortt.

Gold—J. Anderson 2, Brownbridge, Jones, Holden 2, Henderson 2, Deneau 8, total 14.

Purple—Cormier, Forster 2, Cameron, R. Anderson, Sills, Embury, total 2.

Tuesday evening saw the Boys' House League, four teams of boys who are employed full time or after school, ranging from 14 to 16 years of age, get their schedule under way. They played good basketball in spots and the "Y" has hopes of developing another team for outside competition from this group to enter Ontario Midget championships. Bill Flander's Flyers took the measure of Cam Snell's Snipers in the first game 22-11. Young Jimmy Watson was the high scorer, getting 10 points. The second game was marked by close checking and low scoring, George Wonnacott's Wanglers taking John Rollins' Riders 7-4, Gordie Watkin was high man in this game sharing five of his team's seven points.

Flyers—Flander, Carefoot 6, Watson 10, Dawkins 6, Connell, total 22.

Snipers—Snell 4, Garrow 5, Walmsley, Gilbert 2, Woodley, total 11.

Wanglers—Wonnacott 2, Mifflin, Kellett, Watkin 5, Vaughan, total 7.

Riders—Rollins 2, Legate, Cameron, Rapino 2, Burke, Kuntze, total 4.

Referee—Shortt.

Senior House League.

A five team preliminary senior house league opened on Wednesday night, with George Pate's Juveniles putting in two teams which met in the opener and three teams shuffled out of the senior membership completing the league. Under this arrangement one team draws a bye each week and does the officiating. This league will be reshuffled at Christmas and a new schedule drawn in which it is possible that Reliance and other industries will be represented by individual teams. There are enough Reliance men in the various teams now to make a fairly strong contender, and others from other plants are expected to affiliate before the holiday season. In the opening game Juvenile B took the measure of Juvenile A by 37-25. Long "Red" Carson of last year's Juveniles ranged the floor, fed by passes from his team mates, to amass 28 points, Clark James got 8. For the "A" team Gord Bankier, a newcomer to "Y" basketball got 16, and Yateman, another newcomer, 5. In the second game "Spike" Pryke's team beat Don Mason's 1st 36-29 in a game that was comparatively fast for so early in the season. Pryke uncorked a lot of the speed and trickiness that served him when he played for Windsor Alumni to garner 16 points. He was flanked by El Wickerson who got 8 and George Pate made the plays that set up this pair of scorers. For the losers, Mason with 8 and Hyde with 10, both boys played juvenile last year, and Glen Robertson, formerly of the O.S.D., with nine, did the scoring. Both teams played well considering lack of practice together, and it looks as though the league will be a fairly good one. There was a great lack of spectators who missed some good sports entertainment. The league will play each Wednesday night, first game called for 8 o'clock.

Juvenile "A"—Lyall 2, Rollins 2, Lazier, Yateman 5, Bankier 16, total 25.

Juvenile "B"—Carson 28, Garrow, Mifflin, James 8, Flander 1, Wonnacott, total 37.

Pryke's—Pryke 16, Wickerson 8, Locke 6, Watkin, Zufelt 4, Pate 2, total 36.

Mason's—Robertson 9, Mason 8, Hyde 10, Cushman, Dean 2, Hillborne, Shapley, total 29.

Referee, Shortt; scorer, Bray; timer, Watkin.

FOOTBALL TEAMS PLAY 1-1 TIE

Winner Will Play Kingston School for the Title

Ottawa, Nov. 14—(CP)—St. Patricks and Technical School played to a 1-1 tie yesterday in a football game for the senior city championship. A playoff game will be held next week, probably Tuesday.

The winner may go to Kingston, Ont., in a contest to decide the Eastern Ontario Secondary School Association title, but whether the title game is played depends upon whether transportation can be arranged.

Earlier reports said the game between St. Pat's and Tech. would decide the E.O.S.S.A. title but it was learned subsequently that Kingston still was in the field.

In another fixture, Technical High School won the Junior City Interscholastic Football League Championship, defeating Ottawa University 2-1. A team from Kingston is expected to come here next weekend to meet Tech in a game to determine the E.O.S.S.A. title.

Canadians Wager $25,470,913 At 32 Meetings

Ottawa Nov. 14 (CP)—Canadians wagered a total of $25,470,913 in supervised pari-mutuel betting at race tracks this year, an increase of $4,107,284 compared with 1941, the Agriculture Department reported today.

Although there was a considerable increase in betting the number of race meetings and days racing declined in 1942. The department supervised betting at 32 meetings, compared with 35 in 1941, with a total of 275 days racing, compared with 282 the previous year.

A slight reduction was reported in prize money paid, $1,061,290 in 1942 and $1,073,325 in 1941. Meetings were held by 24 racing associations this year one less than in 1941.

A breakdown of statistics by provinces showed considerably more than half the total wagers placed at Ontario meets where there was no reduction in the number of days racing, 98, compared with the previous year.

Wagers at Ontario tracks totalled $16,920,015 compared with $13,650,148 in 1941. Prize money paid at Ontario tracks was $560,000 ($547,100).

The largest amount wagered was at the fall meeting of the Long Branch Jockey Club held at Dufferin Park, Toronto, where bets totalled $1,624,460. Smallest amount was at a one-day meeting at Chilliwack B.C., where bets totalled $7,018.

Manitoba held second place among the provinces for total wagers, bets amounting to $2,309,296 compared with $2,093,366 in 1941. There was no change in the number of racing days 28, or the prize money, $102,500.

Military Boxing Show Being Held At London, Ont.

London, Ont., Nov. 14 — (CP)—Ten boxers from Military District No. 2, two from District No. 3 and one from District No. 1 will fight it out for the Ontario Military London Armories tonight.

One clean knockout and three Boxing Championships at the technical knockouts featured the semi-finals last night before a fair-sized crowd. One was stopped by the referee and a fighter disqualified for talking back to an official while another brought disqualificaton on a low-blow.

The knockout victim was L. Cpl. Bill Kilder of Ottawa who went down at 1:25 of the third round under a sudden flurry of blows from the fists of Sgt. Ken Sproule of Toronto.

The first technical knockout came in the featherweight class when the referee stopped the fight at 1:35 of the second round to save Sigmn. Jack Stephenson of Windsor, fighting under the banner of M.D. 3, Kingston, taking further punishment from L. Cpl. Robbie Robertson, Toronto boy stationed at Camp Borden.

Likewise the referee stopped a lightweight scrap at 1:25 of the third round when Pte. Everett Gray of Emsdale, Ont., stationed at M.T.S., London, was taking a bad beating from Rfm. Fred Schults, tough battler from Tufts Cove, N.S., fighting for Camp Borden.

The third technical came in the middleweight clash between Cpl. Les Raetzen, Windsor lad with M. T. S., London, and Spr. Eddie Lafreniere, of Ottawa. Raetzen had been down a couple of times in the second round but was far from out when the referee stopped the battle after 55 seconds of action.

NATIONAL LOOP TEAMS SHOW WELL ON HOME ICE

Most of the Teams Have Not Impressive Records Away From Home

LEAFS LOOK GOOD

It becomes abundantly clear, as the National Hockey League enters its 25rd week of competition, that all six clubs have nothing better than to stay at home and curl up in front of the fireplace with a good book.

The comparison may be strongly put, but it's justified by the first 12 league games. So far not a single club has managed to win a game away from home.

In the case of Toronto Maple Leafs, the metaphor may be malicious. Leafs have won three away from home but they haven't lost one either, because the schedule has presented them with nothing but home dates so far. Boston Bruins are nearly as classed as sitby-the-fire boys, on the other hand, because they don't make their home debut until tonight. But they've dropped all their games played to date of the remaining teams, Chicago Black Hawks have the best road record. The Hawks managed to tie Detroit Red Wings 3-3 at Detroit, but they lost two other out-of-town gaims and won their only contest before the hometown fans.

New York Rangers are the worst offenders. The Manhattans have not both their broadway engagements but dropped their three out-of-town tilts by terrific scores. The Wings lost their only game away from home, won two at Detroit and tied the other. Montreal Canadiens matched six points in three games at the forum but returned from their only trip with nothing but their travelling bags.

It doesn't look too promising for the early part of next weekend. Tuesday night Red Wings play at Montreal, Chicago at Toronto and Rangers at Boston. Saturday's host Clubs assume at least roles in repeat engagements Sunday, and all six contests appear tough to guess.

One concrete result of the weekend games should be a thorough examination of the standings. Leafs and Canadiens now share the lead with Detroit one point behind in third place.

FRED THURIER HELD BY POLICE

A.H.L. Player Will Appear in Court for Alleged Military Offence

Granby, Que., Nov. 14.—(CP)—Fred Thurier, 24-year-old leading scorer in the American Hockey League, was taken into custody by Royal Canadian Mounted Police here Friday on a charge laid under the National War Services Act.

Thurier will appear in court in Sweetsburg, Que., today on a charge of failing to report to military camp for training.

Thurier reported to the district registrar's office in Montreal Monday in reply to a notice sent him and then reported at Longueil Manning Depot outside Montreal.

A medical rolling on an operation he underwent last summer delayed his induction, and police said he failed to show up at the depot when told to do so by his following day.

Thurier wired his club, Buffalo Bisons, Tuesday implying that he expected to be in the army shortly.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 14 (CP).—A little fellow who won the derby on Lord Derby's Wailing Street this year, Harry Wragg has been reduced in army rank—and is bursting over with joy.

As Sgt Wragg of the Royal Artillery he had a cushy job in an office and didn't like it a bit. He applied for and received a transfer and, as so often happens in such cases, was reduced in the rank of corporal. Now he's on the guns and in a hot spot.

"The other night I was in a room when bombs were dropping in my pockets," Harry said. "Yes, sir, in my pockets. I could answer back!"

Before joining up, Harry, Britain's champion jockey last season, said he didn't care where he went or what he did as long as they gave him a gun. Now his ambition is to bring down a Nazi plane. He says that would give him more satisfaction than riding three derby winners.

A record wartime price in Britain for a yearling came during a bloodstock sale at Newmarket, when Sir Ag Khan, through a representative gave approximately $38,000 for a bay colt by Hyperion from the stable of the American millionaire, Marshal Field, who is selling his Hunter racing stock.

A year ago, the Aga Khan, who can't get away from Switzerland until the end of the war, paid just $1,000 less for a colt since named Hydershad which has not yet run in public.

The Duchess of Norfolk, who supervises the training of her horses in the grounds of Arundel Castle, is one of the principal buyers. She gave $18,500 for one filly and $14,000 for another.

POPULAR WAR BONDS

Pretoria (CP)—War bonds earmarked for response by the South African forces have sold to the extent of nearly 5,000,000 pounds ($22,250,000).

NEW GREEK ENVOY

Pretoria (CP)—Dr. A. Colsaz, Greek minister to Rumania for 14 years is coming here, it is rumored for T. H. Mistouadis as Greek envoy to South Africa.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

With the advent of colder weather thoughts naturally turn to hockey, or at least some laughs on the puck pasing picture of the future. Charlie Crask says hockey news down this way resembles military secret, as nothing has been heard from the Trenton Air Station. For Mister Crask's information and others interested, there just won't be any hockey news emanating from that station this season. At least not puck news pertaining to same. Flight Lieut. Hockey Hill is newsboy was in communication with Wing Commander Carling-Kelly, other commanding the Central Flying School at Trenton, and he definitely stated the only look for hockey was drab for the "Flyers" and not to expect an entry. "We haven't the time nor the material to think of playing O.H.A. hockey this season. However, we'll do our team in the district service league, I understand, but that will constitute the limit of our hockey for 1942," stated W/C. Carling-Kelly.

We also contacted P/O "Buff" Norton, senior sports officer at the Trenton Air station proper, and he reiterated the superior officer's statement. Air Commodore McGill, officer commanding here, is not anxious to have us publish any stories with civilian clubs for the time being at least. He feels the sports recreation obtained in a service league among the district R.C.A.F. bases is sufficient to our present needs. He pointed out P/O Norton, "On the other hand we haven't adequate hockey material to compete with outside teams at this time. As one Simon Legris of our 1941 team is left on the station," added "Buff." It is unfortunate he "Flyers" won't be back in the O.H.A. hunt this coming winter, but then the men in the Air Force have a more important game at hand—scoring plunkers on Adolf Hockeyhitler.

However, there was one ray of hope emanating from the talks with the P/Os and officials when we learned that "Russ" Cockburn, star goalkeeper with Brantford Lions junior "A" club for the past two years is now stationed at Trenton taking an extended course. If it is impossible Cockburn would be a decided asset to the local senior "B" club and Messrs. Tilly Donihee and Billy Hughes, co-sports chairmen of the Belleville A.C., might be well advised to ascertain whether or not the Trenton Air Force officials would permit the former Brantford star puck-stopper to play with a civilian hockey club.

While talking hockey it is noted that only Mel (Gone Beggar) Williamson, of the 1941 Kingston senior "B" championships is now playing for Wally Elmer's Kingston Frontenacs. Some have received, but for the greater part the former Combines are in the armed services. Time takes care of mostly everything.

Probably the first friction recorded between Branch Rickey, newly named president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Sam Breadon came when the St. Louis Cardinal owner slandered Dan Beach as president of the Columbus Redbirds in 1938. The latter was a lifelong friend of Rickey and became associated with the Columbus club under George M. Trautman.

When Trautman became the American Association president, Rickey promoted Beach to the presidency of the club.

In 1938, Beach received a letter from Breadon informing him his services were no longer needed as president of the Red Birds, Beach immediately contacted Rickey. The latter said he would consult his employer and informed his friend that usually, in the past, Breadon had consulted him before making any drastic changes in the baseball farm system.

A few weeks passed and then it was announced that Beach had severed relationships with the Columbus club and the Cardinal organization. That was the first open indication that Breadon and Rickey had started on the path that led to the parting of the ways.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE McCARTHY
"They All Kissed the Bride"
Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas, co-starred in what is said to be the season's gayest romantic comedy, "They All Kissed the Bride" come to the McCarthy Theatre screen next.
Roland Young, Billie Burke and Allen Jenkins head the top-flight cast which also includes Helen Parrish, Andrew Toomes, Roger Clark, Hydia Westman and Mary Treen. "They All Kissed the Bride" was directed by Alexander Hall, who also directed Rosalind Russell in "My Sister Eileen" which is now completing a week's showing at the McCarthy Theatre.
In addition to "They All Kissed the Bride," the never-to-be-forgotten thrill hit, "Submarine Raider" featuring John Howard and Marguerite Chapman will be presented, making up one of the finest two feature attractions ever at the McCarthy on the same program.

AT THE BELLE
"DESPERATE JOURNEY"
The new picture at the Belle Theatre is "Desperate Journey" now playing, starring Errol Flynn and Ronald Reagan in a story that fully lives up to its exciting title. The thrill-packed film tells about the extraordinary adventures of five members of a British Bomber crew who are shot down while on a bombing mission over Germany. These members of the crew who find themselves prisoners of the Nazis along with Flynn and Reagan are Alan Hale, Arthur Kennedy and Ronald Sinclair. Assisting the four tall by a beautiful intelligence officer, played by Raymond Massey, the five fearless Englishmen escape from the prison camp, after Ronald Reagan puts Massey to sleep with a hard right to the jaw.
Slowly, and travelling only by night, they make their desperate journey across Germany toward the Holland border. They get a break in overpowering some Nazi guards and taking their uniforms. Now, disguised as German soldiers, they stield a good chance of being shot as spies; but they have also increased their possibilities of escape.
Luck, still with them, helped them on a crowded night train bound for Berlin, only to be kicked off as the train entered the suburbs by some officer who was later severely reprimanded for allowing the English to get away. By this time, all Germany was on the lookout for them. It was mass man-hunt.
One night, shortly after leaving the trains Flynn leads the men on a desperate mission. They enter and set fire to a factory that manufactures incendiary bombs. While leaving the inferno, Ronald Sinclair is shot, and seriously wounded. Flynn, whose knowledge of German already has gotten them out of many tight places, meets a young German girl, played by Nancy Coleman, who takes them to a doctor, and tells them that she is strongly anti-Nazi and will do anything to help defeat Hitlerism. At the doctor's it seems quite patient suspects them and calls the Gestapo, flinclair dies as the secret police surround the house, but the others manage to get away.
After leading the Gestapo a merry chase across the rest of Germany and a good part of Holland, they steal a conditioned British bomber which the Germans were going to use in a sneak raid on London. It is a desperate fight against overwhelming odds but the intrepid Britishers are successful and make their getaway.
After they are safe over the channel, Flynn radios to squadron headquarters that they are coming in, mission completed!
"The Belle News of the Day and a color fun cartoon completes the program.

AT THE CAPITOL
"Devil Bat"
(First Belleville Showing)
No less an authority than Bela Lugosi himself, who played the leads in both psychotic, insane that for sheer dramatic tension and unadulterated horror, "Devil Bat" his latest starring vehicle which comes to the Capitol Theatre beginning Sunday midnight far outshines that masterpiece of another year, "Dracula."
Arguing horror with Lugosi is simply ridiculous. Arguing relatively with Einstein for Lugosi not only acts in these chill-epics but has made a deep and grateful study of crowd and individual psychology which has helped him no little in portraying blood - curdling and spine-tattooing roles for over two decades. It is interesting to note that very seldom indeed does one find any sign of repetition in Lugosi's work, for rather than resting contents on his laurels, his studies have enabled him to improve his artistry more and more with each succeeding picture.
"Devil Bat" his latest picture, has afforded Lugosi with the meatiest role of his long career and to it he brings a completely new and different approach and interpretation. George Bricker's story which begins with an interesting story of injustice to a highly sensitive mind allows Lugosi to use his entire bag of tricks and a mighty full bag it turns out to be.
"Escape"
A group of eleven outstanding character actors, headed by star Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor, combines to bring to the screen one of the most thrilling best-sellers of the past year, Ethel Vance's "Escape." The picture opens also Sunday midnight at the Capital Theatre.
Mad dictator is seen as the Countess von Treck, who finds herself in the clutches of the desperate attempt-ed American artist Mark Preysing to rescue his mother, actress Emmy Ritter, from death in a concentration camp. Taylor stands young Preysing, with Nazimove, star of silent films, returning to the screen for the first time in fifteen years, as Emmy. Romberk his latest star Conrad Veidt appears as the General, lover of the Countess, and ultimate menace of Emmy's safety.

Little Benny's Note Book

My cousin Artie stayed all night last night on account of today being Saturday, and pop and ma were talking about the war and I said to Artie, Good night by the time we get big enough to get in it I bet it'll be all over.

Sure, yeah closing the luck, Artie said, and pop said, It's too bad you're not drafted immediately, the Nazzies would of started to harden you up long ago. They begin with the infantry. They let the babies rattle around in hare wooden cradles till hard knocks become 2nd nature to them, he said.

Well anyways, we can harden our selfs up by taking such fierce long walks that when the time comes for forced marches we'll be ready, I said, and Artie said, Sure, O, how about starting tomorrow?

O, sure, I said. We'll start early in the morning and we'll take lunch. Hay, ma, will you pack us a lunch? I said, and ma said, Certainly, I'll be glad to. It sounds like a good idea.

Oh boy, will you put in some devil eggs? I said, and pop said, Devil eggs don't sound to me like a very rugged diet.

Well then just plain hard boil em, hard boil is as rugged as eggs can get, Artie said.

CHAPTER 16
Strange Situation

"You don't know who went in that room after you came out?" Bliss asked Herrick.

"I can't help thinking it was Haynes, but he says he was before me.

"If so, who was it, then?"

"I don't know. They quizzed Haynes, Murray, Martin Delevan and me and then decided on me. I didn't declaim much. Anything I could say would cast suspicion on some of the others there and I didn't want to do that."

"You were too damn careful of their feelings, my boy. It all isn't so good.

"Fine bit of understatement. Where do we go from here?"

"Unless we're mighty careful, you will go to Sing Sing. Shall I call in Chadwick? Then you can refuse to talk to, anybody without counsel."

"Do what you think best. I seem not to have any ideas at all. I'm flabbergasted, Bliss. How could they think I killed her? She was too pretty to kill—too young and sweet."

"What ails you, man? Stop that drivel! Have you lost your mind?"

"Yes, I guess so. How long must I stay here?"

Clarence Bliss looked at him. He was about to speak sternly, then changed his mind.

"Not long," he said mildly. "It's up to you. You're the boss, you know. Now, give me my orders."

"Well, go and get Chadwick, then. Don't get Wade. He's Alma's lawyer."

"Then Chadwick would be all for Mr. McCleod. Not so good for you, maybe."

"Nonsense! Chadwick is nobody's fool. If I can't convince him of my innocence I can't convince anybody. Tell him how things are, and tell him I want him—quick."

"Glad you've waked up. Now, I'll send him to you here."

"Yes—" Herrick made a queer sound in his throat. Being a man of person, Clarence Bliss went out. In about an hour Robert Chadwick came, understanding was written in every line of his strong kind face. A middle-aged man and a lawyer of good repute, he knew these two younger men and he cared, as Bliss' request.

Soon Chadwick was listening to the story told by a man who had come to realize his own danger and the necessity for action. Bliss knew his lawyer and had done right when he left Brand on the verge of an emotional breakdown.

Left to himself, Herrick had faced the facts, picked up his courage and met the situation with the calm habitual to him.

He had greeted Chadwick gravely and at the lawyer's bidding had plunged into the harrowing of the affair.

"Why they picked on me, I don't know," he said, at last. "I didn't kill Mrs. McCleod. I had no reason and no wish to. I knew her only in a social way. I never went to see her alone. I never took her anywhere."

"I believe all you have told me, Mr. Herrick," was Chadwick's response. "And as I knew Mrs. McCleod rather well, I think perhaps I understand the situation better than you do. Mrs. McCleod was a spoiled belle. Her husband worshipped her, her friends admired her and she was accustomed to have every man she met fall at her feet. I take it you did not succumb to her lures and it displeased and surprised her. Unaccustomed to failure she determined to win you. Would that explain her affection?"

"Why, yes, Mr. Chadwick. But I cannot imagine Mrs. McCleod caring for my attentions enough to make an effort to win them."

"It may have been because you seemed unattainable. That is often a stimulus. Now, tell me again the order in which you four men were in that rest room."

"But that's what I can't do. The more I think it over, the more I can't remember clearly about seeing the men. You know yourself that you would find it hard to recall any such trifling events, not thinking, that you would need to remember. I did see Haynes in the hall! Think I saw Martin, but whether before or after I, was in the room myself I can't know. I came out of the room with a feeling of embarrassment. I was ashamed of myself for getting into such a fix."

"Fix? Fix as what?"

"Such a fix as having a beautiful lady besieging me to make love to her, when I had no inclination toward her. I am not a Lothario type, Mr. Chadwick. Although I admired Mrs. McCleod's beauty I had no affection for her."

"And her advances made you only the less inclined to care for her?"

"Exactly. They irritated me and puzzled me. Tell me, Chadwick, could her affairs with other men have so enraged her husband that—"

"Lord, no! Hugh sees no flaw in her. He is tenderest of her lapses, if any; and mind, I don't say she is anything worse than a coquette."

"Perhaps not. But the Scotch are a bluff race. An outraged husband can lose his head utterly."

"Not McCleod. He might kill a lover, not his wife. But he was what could be called besottedly in love with her. Had Alma been faithless to him he would have deemed her more than condoned sin than sinned. A strange character you may say, but I know him. And I know her nature. She wanted admirers, adorers, worshipers all that—but not lovers. Her one love was money, that is, the things money could buy. That's why she was planning some investments. Hugh gave her all she asked and would have given her more, but she thought investment an adventure. Now, Herrick, I'm thinking you took your arrest well—I was going to say supinely, but I can't think that of you. Or did you?"

"I suppose I did. I was so taken aback—so bewildered; that I somehow couldn't assert myself. I was dazed. What can we do about it? My partner Clarence Bliss is pretty sore at me. He thinks I lost my wits and a lawyer ought not to do that in an emergency."

"I know you' firm, a couple of sound young fellows, who are riding steadily—if this doesn't give you a setback."

"It won't give us a setback. It will come through with flying colors. That's why I want you to take hold. Will you?"

"I think so. You're going to tell me the truth?"

"You said a moment ago you believed my story."

"Yes, I do. I could wish it a little more positive, but it may come to you more clearly."

"Don't bank on that."

"What must I bank on?"

"The fact that I did not kill Mrs. McCleod, and we must find out who did."

"And which way do we look?"

"I'm not sure that we should confine our search to the four men whom Captain Raynor considered the only possible suspects."

"Did he say that?"

"Not in so many words, but if he had other suspects why weren't they there?"

"Not very sound reasoning, but perhaps true. Bliss coming back here today?"

"He said he'd try to, but there's the office to take care of."

"I'll go to see him, then. Listen, my lating will be against me. Rely on you. I don't want you to get suspicion of committing of all a tendent—"

"You not likely to run off at anything!" Brand said, with a despairing look.

"No, but you're the up-and-down sort and I don't like the unexpected."

"I won't make trouble for you. But suppose you acting for Mr. McCleod in this case?"

"In what case? McCleod hasn't recognized any case that I know of. A case has to have a complainant and a defendant."

"All right, I'll be both. And you'll have me through. Going now?"

"Yes, I'll see Bliss."

"Tell him to come here to see me tonight."

The look of misery in Brand's eyes made Chadwick uncomfortable as he had known the youngster many years and had always liked him and was watching his career with satisfaction. He didn't think Clarence Bliss so well, but he wanted to see him. He went directly to their office.

Bliss asked whether he was going to give Herrick his help.

"Of course," Chadwick said, "if you assure me of his innocence."

"I can't do that as well as he can."

"He has done it," Chadwick smiled. "I am convinced of it, but he has a hard row to hoe."

"In what way?"

"He is so uncertain as to the happenings of that night. Has he told Wade all he told me?"

"Not yet. We were hurried a little. He'll see him this evening. He'll tell me all!"

"Don't depend on his telling you all—get it all out of him. He's willing, but he's flighty. The thing has been a shock to him. Look here, Bliss, Brand couldn't have killed for the lady's charms and then, if she laughed at him, flown to the pillow and laid his head and grabbed the pillow, not knowing what he was doing!"

"You must be crazy yourself Chadwick."

"But, he is almost entirely unable to remember that incident. Not if it didn't what happened. Which it didn't! Leave it to me. I'll see him tonight and when I'm through with him, I'll know all. Then you and I will fix things. How about Mr. McCleod? Isn't he your client?"

"Yes, a regular. But I'm not doing anything against the interests of justice by helping the murderer of his wife."

"I know. Won't be go away or something?"

"He won't, very well. His father is so ill. And he can't leave his sister with all the responsibility."

"No; I see. Well, I'll talk to Brand tonight and I'll report to you. Do you mean then, that we're just playing detective in a murder case?"

"As present. When we can prove Herrick innocent we can think about taking steps."

"All right, Mr. Chadwick. Why are you so good to him?"

"I've known him from his cradle—and I see a great future for him, if we can get him fired to enjoy it."

Chadwick went away and the young member of the firm of Herrick and Bliss sat pondering on the strange situation that confronted them.

Darlan Acted In Contradiction To Petain's Order

London, Nov. 14 (CP) — The German controlled Vichy radio today broadcast Marshal Petain's Marshal Petain was said to have sent to Admiral Jean Darlan telling him his decision to resume responsibility for French interests in the Bay of with approval of American authorities, was in contradiction to the Marshal's orders.

In London, an Allied headquarters spokesman told a press conference that Darlan's position was a political matter. The spokesman declined to discuss his position.

"The French are not considered hostile and the help of any Frenchman is welcomed," he said.

Hartley Shawcross, Attorney-General for the French to handle, which they will do with all dispatch so we can intensify the campaign against the Axis."

The statement by French fleet still remained in doubt, the spokesman declared, "but according to information in London, there is nothing further on this regrettable question.

This informant disclosed that those of other United Nations besides those of Britain and the United States participated in the North African operations.

Temperature Drops To Fifteen Degrees

Accentuated by a stiff northwest wind, Jake Frost got in a few strides over Ontario last night sending thermometers down to a low of 15 degrees as the official reading at the Belleville Water Purification plant. Generally the coldest night on record so far this season, this mark was lowered by thermometers in the country which variously reported a reading of 10 and 12 degrees.

Water puddles which were lying about the city early in the evening presented a solid sheet of ice with the thickness sufficient to carry a man's weight total collapse in the commons. Ice appeared in the marsh areas along the banks of the Moira River and fishermen reported ice covering the coves in the Bay of Quinte, particularly on the south shore where the north wind swept across unchecked.

Farmers attending market expressed the opinion that frost would be stopped for the season unless considerably warmer temperatures intervened. Recent rains have thoroughly dampened the ground and there is thus soon the frost will go down several inches, it was claimed.

Visit to Malta To the Boys Of the R. A. F.

By Tom Treanor in the Los Angeles Times.

Danger must be very good for the character.

It must be a forcing ground for all the gentler virtues such as honesty, hospitality, courage without noise, self-assertion and plain British guts.

It must be danger that develops these things in the highest degree or I'm the only thing I can think of after living nine days in R.A.F. stations from the Suez Canal to Malta and Gibraltar and back.

Something has made wonderful men out of these R.A.F. boys. You've read a lot about them and it's hard to add any new praises.

I can only say they're just as advertised.

I forgot my parachute. This sounds like the old gag, but it happened. When the pilot heard about it we were coming into Malta with perhaps a 1-in-4 chance that there would be a welcoming raid on. He called me forward.

"Look here," he said, "we can't have you flying around without a parachute. You're our mine. I can't have mine and no one else is gone, anyway, then it would be bad luck. You take it. It's really the best letter."

Now it was hardly possible to do this. I would hate to spend the rest of my life explaining how I floated safely to earth in a parachute I borrowed from the pilot. That would be a little tough.

But—and here's the R.A.F. touch. He wouldn't wear the parachute, either. Even though it was absolutely my fault and I left the thing on the ground in the dark through sheer carelessness, excitement or something, he would have nothing to do with his own parachute.

He had it moved back where I was. Another parachute was borrowed at Malta and you may rest assured it was never forgotten.

* * *

Of course, the spectacular things about the R.A.F. is the flying they've done.

At Malta, which has been bombed more than any place on earth, virtually every pilot in the mess has performed some kind of daily act of mention.

If nothing else, he has gone into the sky time and again against fearful odds.

But this sort of thing is so commonplace at Malta that you really can't talk to a pilot about it. He looked upon as a childish form of conversation which may have been all right at the beginning of the war but is just not done any more.

* * *

So you actually don't know what any one has done and you have to judge them by some other means.

Th quality which is an American visitor can't miss is their free-handed hospitality.

In Malta, where they had never heard of my coming and had no possible relations to take care of me as a visitor, they took it individually upon themselves to see that there were no dull moments ever. They wouldn't let me pay for my board, and they wouldn't let me pay for my bed.

Although cigarettes are painfully short in Malta, I don't think I went a meal ever 30 seconds went by without some one offering a cigarette, and some one offering a cigarette after a meal as if offended at my consistent refusals. (Because I don't smoke.)

* * *

In its general friendliness an R.A.F. station can't be beat. I came into one spot after two nights of flying and two days of sight-seeing, practically exhausted.

But the commanding officer and his second in command couldn't let a guest pass through without a special show. While I was innocently looking forward to a 12-hour sleep they arranged for an all-night patrol.

"But—"

"You can't miss it," said the commanding officer. "It's the big night of the full moon. You'll agree it's worth it."

It was worth it.

MAKE 50 MILES ON 100 POUNDS

Ottawa, Nov. 14 (CP)—The use of producer-gas units for automotive vehicles has become wider in Australia as the necessity for greater economy in the use of gasoline has become more urgent, Frederick Palmer, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Sydney, has reported to the Trade and Commerce Department.

"It is increasingly apparent that the desire of the Commonwealth government to increase the use of producer-gas units is being translated into action," he said in discussing extension of the use of charcoal fueled by power plants for automobiles and industrial vehicles. At the end of June, 1943, approximately 36,000 vehicles had been equipped with producer-gas units, while about 13,000 vehicles per month were being changed over.

"The necessity for increasing the use of producer gas is still so urgent that recently special arrangements were made for the release of manpower and materials required for the increased production and fitment of units. . . .

It is reported that operators of vehicles fitted with producer-gas units are generally more than satisfied with the performance of the producer-gas units. Generally a bag of charcoal, containing approximately one hundred-weight, will last for at least 50 miles.

"Unsatisfactory producer-gas units no longer drive vehicles as economically as gasoline, as the price of charcoal has rapidly advanced until it has 7s. 6d. in Australian currency ($1.35) per bag, while the price of gasoline has only moved up to 2s. 9½d. per gallon (60 cents).

Dime-a-Dance Is Nice Work Writer Finds

By VIVIAN BROWN

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 14 (AP)—The dime-a-dance girl — tall or short, dark or blonde, slinky-hipped or fluffy-pompadoured — is always waiting for the right man to come through the door with a dime in his hand. She earns a good living and the life is gay — but she wants that nine-pierced cottage, or at least an apartment for two.

That's what I found out—among a lot of other things—when I was hostess-for-a-night at one of the town's newest dance-halls.

Most of the girls marry and have families and forsake dancing for domesticity. Several have fared extremely well. The girls told me of a starlet who came back night after night until wedding bells chimed.

No Newcomer

But to get to the dancing, twenty girls on a roped off dais (the pen) waiting to be claimed. One girl said reassuringly:

"If a man is objectionable just turn him and walk away; we don't have to stand for any nonsense." Another said: "If you can't say hello call one of the housemen who police the floor—they take care of flitterbugs and improper dancing."

One girl is a model, another a radio singer and several do war work. They come from Connecticut, New Jersey, the Midwest and the South. Some play a short time, some several years.

I didn't have to whistle for a customer. Almost immediately, I acquired a gentleman from San Francisco. He wanted a date and I told him that was not possible. We talked as we glided about the floor to the music. It was my first night, I said. He borrowed money for the next three dances.

"A handsome young man from Detroit, an aviation engineer, brought my "time" for half an hour. We went to the electrically star-lit cocktail bar. We had soft drinks—and talked about his war job.

Good Earnings

He was surprised to learn that the girls earn from $25 to $60 a week and dance approximately 100 dances a night. I averaged $3 an hour, received seven cents for every 10-cent ticket, and 81 of the time ticket. The girls all thought I got a good play because I was a "new face."

The hours are from 3.30 to 1.30 and each girl must spend a half hour in the Ware Room booth. All of them are registered with the Police Department; all have to have three references and a picture which is attached to the files. As a matter of fact at closing time I decided it had been very entertaining and as for wedding bells . . .

Even I had some possible prospects: a movie stylist, an artist, and a war worker among others. The last was the war worker. He had a car—gasoline, and four brand new tires—but definitely—he couldn't dance a step.

Nazis Execute Thousand Serbs In Single Town

London, Nov. 14 (CP) — A thousand Serbs, many of them women and children between the ages of 12 and 14, were executed last September in the Danube River northwest of Belgrade—the Yugoslav capital—Prime Minister Dr. Milan Nedich declared Friday.

It said 214 others were put to death at the same time in other communities nearby.

Twenty-five other persons in Mad-ocupied lands were reported by Allied governments in London to have been executed for espionage.

Czecho-Slovak officials said 12 Czechs were beheaded in Prague for spying, and 13 others charged with other offences were executed at the same time.

The Belgian government reported that Victor Lemmens of Brussels, was executed for alleged espionage on behalf of the British.

The Germans in Prague have been forced to organize special "assault commando" corps to protect themselves against attacks by the Czech population, the Czech government reported.

FOOD SUPPLIES WORRY FRENCH

Nazis Command Billets, Get Cold Reception—General Move to Hide Livestock Reported

On the French Frontier, Nov. 14—(AP) — While Axis troops expected of their Italian ally today across that was the Vichy Free zone, French worries as to food supplies increased.

Cutting of supply lines to African colonies across the Mediterranean was declared in some quarters to threaten France with the loss of Corsica.

Dispatches said civilian traffic from Lyon, north of Paris and south to Marseille, had been interrupted and the roads were reserved for German troops.

Vichy Havas news agency announced that Nazi troops had arrived at Montpellier, near the seashore 80 miles west of Marseille.

(The London Daily Express said in a Frontier dispatch that the French people in many places were suspected of occupation of Vichy territory. The Germans, commandeering billets wherever they went, met a cold reception and short answers, it said. A general move to hide valuables and livestock was reported.)

For Santa Claus Wooden Soldiers Just Lead March

By JAMES McCOOK

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 14 (CP)—The big news on the Christmas bringing front this year is that Santa Claus has sewn up the rule for toys.

What with restrictions on the delivery of Christmas bees and the practical certainty there will not be as many as in 1941, and with all the other regulations that beat toy drums into iron guns and tricycles into tanks, dark Santa began to appear in the very rosy Christmas picture.

But the Price Board said it won't be as bad as it sounds. Santa Claus, with eye on the list of prohibitions from the Munitions Department, the Board of Trade, Selective Service, National Defence, Cabinet Council and other war-born administrators, was sawing his way to victory. In brief, said the board, it would be a wooden-toy Christmas but what toys.

Wood and Wood.

Reports reaching Ottawa give assurance that the toy needs of fighting soldiers will only be the start. They will be supported by wooden jeeps, universal carriers, bombers, fighters, battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines, guns, machine-guns and automatic rifles, all made of wood least needed for war purposes.

The latest communique from Santa Claus' headquarters goes something like this:

"Progress is being made on all fronts, with rearrms of wood, cardboard and paper called into action to a greater extent. Jigsaw puzzles are going airborne.

"Books on history, sociology, economics, engines and science appear to be among the things grown-ups want. Books may crackle a bit when they are opened, since flexible gine supplies are short, but the contents are as good as ever.

"Educational toys, paint sets, scientific chemistry sets, necklace-making sets, serving kitchens and plastic dishes are coming into action.

Ahem—the Tax.

The communique had a note of caution. The Christmas buyer, it said, should keep in mind a little thing called the excise tax which stops 30 per cent additional on perfume and similar non-essential items.

But, for the juvenile faced with the problem of pleasing grown-ups, the North Pole bulletin had the encouraging news that while metals might be short there are leather goods, fascinating wooden necklaces, and cosmetics made from cocoa sea shells and macaroni.

"Woodenware for silver, plastics for metal," is coming to be a Christmas slogan, it added, and some authorities, the supply of wood is not limitless and lumber is a vital war commodity, Santa suggests that to it as to almost everything else a person wants at Christmas. But informed sources said Santa's work is well advanced for this year and there should be plenty of merchandise for Christmas.

The Claus postal department said that Christmas mail would be cheaper to buy this no lighter this year. War regulations decree that no greeting card may be manufactured or finished which will be sold at retail for more than 25 cents including envelope, except for cards manufactured with special permission, specific local greeting cards or personal greeting cards.

And all the administrators, coordinators, deputies and dollar-a-year men said Santa was a fine fellow and pegan brushing up their "Merry Christmas" diction.

How Young French Girl Saw Life Around Channel Islands

She Fled German Rule in a Small Boat and Tells of Jittery Nazis at Time of Dieppe Raids

By FOSTER BARCLAY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 14 (CP)—First clear cut picture of life on the Channel Islands, only British territory under Nazi domination, has been brought to Britain by a young French girl who helped peel potatoes for German workers.

The vivacious, 20-year-old girl, identified only as "Ella Raymond," fled Guernsey with a fisherman in a nine-foot boat equipper with an outboard motor and spent nearly fifty hours tailing water before the little craft caught the attention of a Royal Air Force pilot who signalled a patrolling vessel. She described the morale of the German troops on the islands as "very low" and laughed as she recalled how "panic" broke out during the Dieppe raid which started with the dawn.

"We first heard a rumor the British had landed at Dunkerque, Dieppe and Boulogne" she related. "And when the Germans learned definitely about the raid they lost their heads and started issuing contradictory orders.

"They put the curfew forward by two hours and all civilians were locked in their houses. Germans armed with machine-guns and rifles patrolled the streets and guarded for several days. They also warned that in event of the British landing on the islands they would evacuate and take the population to Germany with them."

Anybody who remembered the islands as a holiday centre would hardly recognize them now, she said, telling about many ruined and terrorizing conditions. The hotels had been occupied by the Germans and about every other shop had been forced to close. The inhabitants were not molested if they obeyed orders, but were punished severely if they caused trouble to the Germans.

"Though the English are nominally free and the young men have not been conscripted, the tempo of life has become very slow and melancholy," she continued. There are still a few English policemen in the streets and each island has a council. The islanders rather than the Germans are dealt with under peace-time law.

"The retired English who had settled on the islands are treated no better and no worse than the native islanders. The inhabitants have the same newspapers to read as they did in peace time but they are rigidly censored. People can listen only to the German radio because the death penalty threatens anybody who has a private set for listening to British programs."

MAN LOSES LEGS

Oshawa, Nov. 14 (CP)—Stanley Gordon, 23, was in critical condition in the hospital Friday after both legs were amputated below the knee because of injuries suffered when he was struck by a sandcar on the Canadian National Railways freight yards Thursday night.

Gordon, employed as a brakeman, is believed to have fallen under the wheels of an engine he was uncoupling from the incoming freight.

Vicious Air, Naval Fighting Persists Along Africa Coast

Darlan Proclaims Self Administrator Of French N. Africa Acting for Petain

GIRAUD LEADS TROOPS

By ROBERT BUNNELLE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 16 (AP). — Driving eastward "as fast as possible, according to plan," a joint Anglo-American force was reported at grips today with Axis troops acknowledged by Berlin and Rome to have been rushed across the Mediterranean to make a fight for France's key North African protectorate, Tunisia.

Opposing the powerful Allied force were some 10,000 Nazis and Fascists to whom Hitler was reported to have sent a personal and urgent exhortation to hold on at any cost.

Entry of the fast-moving Allied force under Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson into Tunisia "according to plan" was announced last night by Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who said advance elements swept in from Algeria. A subsequent report from the Morocco radio said contact had been established with the Axis troops near Bizerte, French-built naval base which controls the central Mediterranean.

The Germans and Italians claimed their troops were sent to Tunisia "with full approval of French civilian and military authorities."

Rome said merely that the landings were in the French protectorate; Berlin, more specifically said the Axis troops were put ashore at Tunis, 40 miles southeast of Bizerte.

Their claims of French approval significantly lacked confirmation from Vichy. They also were in contrast with determined opposition which the Axis-hating French garrisons were reported putting up.

Axis Field At Tunis Hammered.

Out to win and keep control of the sky over Tunisia, the R.A.F. delivered punishing blows to the Axis landing field at Tunis over the week-end.

The Germans said their airmen bombed the harbors and airport at Bone, Algerian jumping off place for the Allied drive into Tunisia.

Four-motored Liberators of the U. S. Air Force in the Middle East joined the R.A.F. in punishing blows against the Africa Corps in Libya, where the eastern phase of the big Allied African offensive is drawing to a spectacularly successful conclusion. Marshal Rommel's retreating remnants were strafed and Bengasi set aflame.

Vichy Report.

The Vichy radio meanwhile broadcast a report from La Linea, Spanish town across from Gibraltar, reporting that two Allied battleships, two aircraft carriers, four cruisers and nine destroyers sailed from the Rock into the Mediterranean this morning.

Still in port at Gibraltar, this broadcast said, were 26 merchant ships, five transports and two hospital ships riding at anchor under the protection of a battleship and several destroyers.

Vichy broadcast a report that Axis forces had landed in Tunisia, but said nothing about having given its sanction.

Details Lacking

While details of the land action were lacking, the R.A.F. announced another destructive assault upon the Axis-held airport near Tunis, capital of Tunisia. Striking at dusk Saturday and again after dark, British airmen destroyed six big German planes and set airfield installations and buildings aflame.

The Tunis raid followed close upon five other attacks on the London, Nov. 16—(CP)—Reuters news agency reported today that an extensive revolt had broken out in western Croatia in Yugoslavia where between 10,000 and 15,000 guerillas are operating and that they are holding two towns.

The guerillas were operating independently of the Yugoslav army chief, Gen. Draja Mihailovic, the Reuters dispatch "from the German frontier" added.

6 Firemen Die In Boston Fire

Boston, Nov. 16 (AP)—In one of the greatest tolls taken by a Boston fire since the turn of the century, six firemen are dead and two score others are in hospital today after being pulled from the debris of old Armory Hall in Maverick Square, East Boston.

Fire Chief Samuel Pope said the fire started in grease on the kitchen stove of a restaurant. He estimated damage to the four-storey structure at $45,000. In addition, a $20,000 aerial ladder truck was crushed when a wall of the building collapsed.

The fire was discovered early on Sunday morning.

Firemen apparently had it under control and a number of them had entered the building to quell the remaining flames when a wall on the street side collapsed without warning.

Part of the wall fell inward, causing the death of six firemen and temporarily trapping others, while the other part of the wall tumbled outward, showering debris on firemen on the sidewalk and crushing the ladder truck.

Forty Priests joined the firemen in rescue work. One Priest, wading in knee deep water in a section of the basement, gave conditional absolution to the trapped men.

Another Priest, climbing a ladder to the top of the masonry pile, administered last rites as the dead were carried away.

It was hours before some of the dead, trapped under fallen beams, were removed. Three giant cranes aided in lifting away the debris.

Bus Travel Limit 50 Miles One Way Is Now in Force

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP) — A Federal order limiting transportation by bus to 50 miles one way or 100 miles return, went into effect today.

The regulations provide that no person without written general or specific approval of Transit Controller G. S. Gray, is allowed to supply or sell any tickets for transportation by bus or convey any passengers in one continuous journey of greater distance than fifty miles one way or 100 miles return.

Mr. Gray said the order would not apply where bus travel is the only means of transportation.

Compulsory Service In Reserve Army Said To Be Under Consideration at Ottawa

LIKELY 3 CLASSES

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 16 (CP) — Compulsory service in the Reserve Army was understood today to be under active consideration.

While there are a number of questions relating to it which have yet to be settled, its adoption in principle may come at any time, informed sources said.

The classes believed likely to be affected are:-

1. Single men in the age groups liable to call for Active Army Service under the National Resources Mobilization Act—19 to 40 inclusive —who have been medically examined and found in categories "B", "C" and "D", making them ineligible for Active Army Service.

2. Single men in category "A" who have been called for compulsory service but whose training has been postponed because they are key men in essential industry;

3. Married men.

DISMISSES CHARGE AGAINST COMPANY

Magistrate Garvin Dismisses Charge Under Selective Service Regulations

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 16—(CP)—Magistrate J. B. Garvin today dismissed a charge against W. R. Holdcroft, Kingston contractor, under selective service regulations.

The charge was that Holdcroft interviewed William Mowat, an applicant for employment, while Mowat did not present in duplicate the written permission of a selective service officer to seek or accept employment.

The Holdcroft Company was engaged in constructing sewers at nearby Barriefield Military Camp and engaged Mowat as a timekeeper, the court was told.

In dismissing the case Magistrate Garvin said that he found that Mowat was not an applicant for employment within the meaning of selective service regulations.

"The National Selective Service Regulations, 1942, provide that 'employe' shall not include any person in respect of part-time subsidiary employment which is not his principal means of livelihood," the Magistrate said.

"Because of this definition I hold and find that Mowat was not an employee or person within the meaning of section 11" of the act.

Last Friday when Holdcroft first appeared in court, Mowat said that he was the owner of several properties from which he derived an income in excess of wages he drew from the Holdcroft Company.

SENTENCED ON 25 FORGERY COUNTS

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 16 — (CP) —Pte. William A Zaharia, Regina, was sentenced to three year in jail today on each of 25 charges of forgery, the sentences to run concurrently. He was given three years on a charge of uttering and six months for forging a cheque, also to run concurrently with former sentences.

He forged the names of Ontario city mayors to cheques amounting to more than $300.

Diplomatic Advisers Called in To Advise On Status of Darlan

London, Nov. 16 (CP).—A number of British diplomatic and political advisers have reached French North Africa to help clear up the ambiguous situation revolving about Admiral Jean Darlan, the former Vichy Vice-Premier and defence chief captured when Algiers was taken.

Petain in Vichy was said by the radio there to have rebuked Darlan for declaring an armistice with the Allies, repudiating Darlan's assertion that he was acting in the Marshal's name and accused him of going contrary to orders in allowing French troops to oppose Axis forces.

Darlan last night replied that Petain no longer dared express his real thoughts since the Germans have occupied all France.

Today the Vichy radio said Petain had declared Darlan stripped of his public functions and military commands.

The muddle is partly occasioned by the alarm in fighting French quarters over even a temporary recognition being given Darlan who headed the Vichy government under Petain when collaboration with Hitler was the guiding policy of the hotel-room government.

Some Allied governments here have expressed the belief that recognition of Darlan in the North African situation was purely a military expedient to expedite an armistice with the French forces that otherwise might remain loyal to Vichy and that he would be supplanted by Gen. Henri Honore Giraud or some other French leader "whose loyalty to the Allied cause is unquestionable."

RUSSIANS SNATCH TACTICAL POINT ON VOLKOV FRONT

Army Beats Off Assaults at Stalingrad and Advances in Caucasus

JAB AT LINES

Moscow, Nov. 16—(AP)—With a frigid, wintry, wind sweeping across the steppes, Red army again beat off German attacks within besieged Stalingrad, advancing slightly in the Caucasus and, in a surprise move far to the north, snatched a "place of great tactical importance" from the Germans on the Volkhov front between Lake Ilmen and Leningrad, the Russians announced today.

Russian troops broke into the German-occupied community in an unidentified sector of the Volkhov front, forcing the Germans to withdraw, and then held it against all counter-attacks, the Soviet mid-way communique said.

"About one battalion of infantry was wiped out and war material was captured," the communique reported.

The action seemed to indicate the Red army planned to take advantage of the German High Command's preoccupation with the new front in North Africa with winter jabs at the long German line in Russia.

After a period of fierce fighting within Stalingrad during which, the army-newspaper Red Star said, the Germans gained only "over literally mountains of the dead," the action there again subsided yesterday.

HEAR BURSTING OF ALLIED BOMBS

Allied Troops Are So Close They Can See Puffs of Smoke on Buna Base.

By MURLIN SPENCER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Somewhere in New Guinea, Nov. 14 — (Delayed) — (AP)—A ground force advanced through the rain-soaked jungles of Northeastern New Guinea today to a point where bombs dropped on the Japanese base at Buna could be heard exploding.

As the soldiers moved forward, scouts brought word the enemy was withdrawing ahead of them to the vicinity of the Buna beach head, against which the Japanese were being ushed by Australian American pressure from the south and west.

Not only could we hear the bombs bursting on Buna but we could see the weaving specks which were our planes and the puffs of smoke from Japanese anti-aircraft batteries around Buna.

There is no question about Allied mastery of the air over New Guinea. Not once have we had to jump for cover — for not even a single Japanese reconnaissance plane has come over.

Jap Beachhead Shrinks as Allied Columns Meet at River

TRANSPORTS HIT

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Nov. 16 —(CP)— Converging columns of Australian and United States troops moved in on the battered Japanese troops under Lt.-Gen. Tomatore Horii today for a showdown fight for the Japanese base of Buna, New Guinea.

The Japanese beachhead was steadily shrinking as the two columns, now in contact, advanced to battle. Allied planes moved constantly overhead, attacking the retreating Japanese forces.

The forces met yesterday north of the Kumusi River. The Japanese now face Allied forces to the west and south and have the jungle and the sea at their back, the Allied Headquarters communique said today.

The advance was made difficult by heavy rains which caused the Kumusi River to spread to a width

FLAX, FEED GRAIN URGED AS CROPS

Western Farmers Asked to Switch From Wheat But No Ban on Wheat Growing Heard of

Ottawa, Nov. 16—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said today that western farmers have been urged to switch from wheat-growing to the growing of feed grains and flax, but that he had never heard of any consideration being given a plan to forbid the growing of wheat in large sections of the Prairie provinces.

Mr. Gardiner was replying to questions based on a Winnipeg report that "a spectacular change in western Canada's wheat production for 1943" is under consideration, with indications the federal government was seriously considering prohibition of wheat growing in Prairie districts "least suited to its production."

More Than $4,100,000 Saved on Contracts

Ottawa, Nov. 16 (CP)—The Munitions Department said today that a saving of more than $4,100,000 had been made on existing contracts for accessories for machine guns, rifles and other small arms through simplifications in manufacture and elimination of unnecessary accessories.

Most of the contracts involved run out at the end of next year.

PRIVATE AUTOMOBILE MANUFACTURE CEASES IN GREAT BRITAIN

London, Nov. 16 (CP) — The Ministry of War Transport announced today that manufacture of private automobiles has ceased, except for those under construction.

Licences already have been issued for acquisition of machines still under construction and no further licences will be issued.

SECOND ATTACK IN THREE NIGHTS STAGED ON GENOA

Port Blasted to Cut Its Value As a Source Of Strength to Axis In Africa

NO BOMBERS LOST

London, Nov. 16 (CP)—Home-based R.A.F. bombers attacked Genoa last night, making their second attack in three nights and the fourth this month on the north Italian naval base and port.

"Good results were seen", the Air Ministry announced. Coastal command craft were reported to have hit a medium-sized Axis supply ship off the Norwegian coast yesterday.

In neither the North Sea foray nor the 1,500-mile round trip to Italy was a plane lost.

Atmospheric conditions over Genoa were described as fine.

No planes were lost in the operation which involved a 1,500-mile round trip.

"The weather was good and the attack was concentrated," it was stated authoritatively this morning.

Genoa has been blasted again and again to cut its value as a source of Axis strength in the North African fighting ashore and aloft.

The Sunday night mission marked the third time the R.A.F. had hammered Genoa without a loss.

London commentators expressed belief the British bombers had concentrated again on the Ansaldo works, which manufactures engines for warships.

In the last previous raid, Friday night, four-motored home-based bombers smashed at Genoa in a concentrated attack. Several Canadians with the R.A.F. took part in their raid. Genoa had been attacked also on the nights of Nov. 6 and 7.

Two air-raid alerts sounded in Berne, Switzerland, during last night indicated the R.A.F. was on its way to Italy even before the announcement.

First Operational Flight

Last night's Genoa bombing was the first operational flight for Sgt. John Hirst of Stonewall, Man., tail gunner in an R.A.F. Halifax bomber squadron but a member of the R.C.A.F.

The tall, fair-haired 22-year-old gunner, tired from the long flight to Italy, told an intelligence officer it was "a very peaceful trip".

Two other Canadian members of the same squadron were WO. J. F. W. Towse, 24, of Toronto, a pilot, and Sgt. W. E. J. Murphy, bomb-aimer from Mount Forest, Ont., both veterans of many bomber raids.

Towse said he flew through cloud until the Alps were reached. Then it was so clear "they looked only five feet under us".

His aircraft found Genoa easily and the flight was quite uneventful with anti-aircraft fire light.

Murphy described the trip tersely. "We found the target, hit what we wanted to, and came home. It was my first trip to Genoa and I wouldn't mind going again".

The Italian High Command communique said "further very large damage" was caused by the raid at Genoa and that four persons were killed, 23 injured.

$1,500 FUR, JEWEL THEFT

Toronto, Nov. 16—(CP) — Furs and jewelry valued at over $1,500 were stolen Saturday night from the home of Mrs. M. Chambers in what police said was the largest fur theft of the year.

Among the furs taken were a mink coat, a silver fox jacket and muff.

Other Units Pursue Rommel Between Bengasi, Agheila

Trying to Prevent Retreating Army Making a Stand This Side of Tripoli

AXIS LOSES 75,000

Cairo, Nov. 16—(AP)—Marshal Rommel's broken army—cut down by 75,000 casualties and captives—sped westward in the Libyan desert as far as El Agheila, beyond Bengasi, Sunday while British forces occupied the landing ground at Martuba and strafed and bombed the Axis forces for miles along the coastal road.

Rommel's forces were spread out from Bengasi to El Agheila, but the great mass of his remaining trucks and motorized equipment apparently was centred around El Agheila, some 400 miles east of Tripoli and 150 miles southwest of Bengasi.

While the Allied fighters and fighter-bombers harassed the bedraggled Africa corps in Libya, long range fighters, probably from Malta, struck out ahead of the British 8th Army and destroyed six large German planes on the airfield at Tunis, where Axis reinforcements are being landed.

Medium bombers attacked the Tunis aerdrome Saturday night and hit buildings and workshops, starting large fires, the communique said. Five Allied aircraft were reported lost in these operations. One Axis plane was reported shot down over Tunis and another over Libyan desert in addition to the planes destroyed on the ground.

Some Not Passed Bengasi

Some of Rommel's forces have not yet passed Bengasi and apparently are still in danger of capture, if indeed a sizable portion of his remnants are not cut off, the communique indicated. The coastal area between Bengasi and Tocra, a few miles to the east were reported under attack from the air yesterday.

A large explosion and fire followed a British raid on the port of Bengasi, it was reported.

But the main aerial attack on the retreating army was centred between Bengasi and El Agheila.

With the occupation of Martuba the British 8th Army was approaching the chain of hills known as Gebel El Achdar which screen the bulge of the Bengasi coast. The Allies thus gained an important advanced base for their planes to pound the retreating Axis.

Tremendous Raid on Bengasi

Heavy bombers of the R.A.F. and of the U.S.A.A.F., operating under the bomber command of the U.S. Army 9th Air Force, made a tremendous raid on Bengasi Saturday night, an American communique said.

The attacks on Bengasi continued on through yesterday, while fighter-bombers, both British and American, inflicted heavy casualties on retreating enemy transport columns between Cirene and Bengasi Sunday.

Indicative of the poverty of the Axis air resistance, these sweeps encountered no enemy planes at all Sunday afternoon, it was reported.

One particularly successful attack took place 60 miles south of Gialo Oasis, which is more than 200 miles south of Bengasi. Scores of enemy transports were damaged and destroyed, but there was no indication yet whether Rommel was abandoning that desert outpost.

WARSHIPS SPAR WITH EACH OTHER IN SOLOMON AREA

Battle May Decisively Influence the Whole War Situation

JAP TRANSPORT FIRED

Washington, Nov. 16 — (AP) — Japanese and American warships sparred with each other in a battle of manoeuvre today.

The Navy reported that a "determined effort" was underway by the Japanese to recapture positions in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area of the Solomon Islands, but said details would be withheld until the outcome of a running sea battle was decided.

The action at sea was described as "hit and run, hide and seek" touch and go."

"Numerous enemy surface forces are active in the Southeastern Solomons is an attempt to reinforce the enemy troops now on Guadalcanal and to disrupt our delivery of supplies to our forces which now occupy shore positions in this area," the navy reported. "The engagements are continuing."

While official details were lacking here, the German radio broadcast a Tokyo dispatch declaring the fight would "decisively influence the whole war situation" and Norman Makin, Australian Navy Minister, said in Melbourne the outcome might determine whether Australia is invaded.

No mention was made of an enemy convoy previously reported off New Georgia Island, northwest of Guadalcanal, which apparently was aimed at strengthening the Japanese forces that have been trying vainly to recapture Henderson airfield.

One 12,000-ton transport in this convoy was reported set on fire by Allied attackers.

TORPEDO HOLE IN SIDE OF NAZI TANK OSSAG

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 15—(Delayed)—(AP)—An indication that Russian submarines are keeping a close patrol in the Black Sea against German shipping was seen today when the Nazi tanker Ossag, of about 1,000 tons, limped back into port at Istanbul with a torpedo hole in her side.

Polite Hand-Clapping When British Destroyer Rams, Sinks Axis U-Boat

London, Nov. 16 (CP).—There was "a little polite hand-clapping from the gun crews" when the destroyer Wolverine rammed and sank a submarine in the Mediterranean, said Lt.-Cmdr. P. W. Gretton, the destroyer's commanding officer.

The British warship carried the underwater craft 30 yards on her bows before it dropped off. Seconds later the submarine blew up and there were no survivors.

"It was quite a thrilling moment," Gretton said. "But such is the sang-froid of the modern British seamen that there was no burst of cheering."

It was the third U-boat sunk by the Wolverine. The two others were in the Atlantic and the destroyer crew believes one of them was commanded by the Nazi ace, Prien, now reported missing, who sank the Royal Oak at Scapa Flow.

Only Six Allied Cargo Carriers Destroyed by Subs Last Week

By The Associated Press

Sixty-eight merchant seamen are dead or missing in enemy submarine attacks which destroyed six Allied cargo carriers in the Western Atlantic, United States Navy announcements last week revealed, but 190 others were rescued and safely landed at United Nations ports.

In the Western Atlantic area, developments last week included the torpedo-sinking of a small American merchantman, with loss of 34 of the 38-man crew, and the announced capture of another ship captain by an Axis raider which sank his vessel off the north coast of South America in September. He is the 14th skipper known to have been taken prisoner by submarine commanders since June.

Three United States cargo ships, one British, one Norwegian and one unidentified Allied have been announced between Nov. 8-14 as sunk.

THANKS ST. JULIEN CHAPTER FOR 30X

Captain R. J. Palmer has received from Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E., thanking the members on behalf of Major Bolger of the battery of the Royal Canadian Artillery, for two parcels each containing fifty-two pairs of socks sent to them. The officer pointed out that they were very much appreciated. The parcels were handed over by Mrs. Thomas Wills, Belleville, who distributed them among the Belleville boys.

HUNTING LICENCES NOW IN MARKET OF A YEAR AGO

Despite the fact Armistice week was a complete absent quantity the number of deer hunting licences sold in Belleville this season was essentially the same as one year ago, it was reported this morning by Mr. George Finch, local licence issuer.

This, according to Mr. Finch, indicates the call of the woods during the deer hunting season proved considerably more attractive to Canadians than in other years. A large number who formerly spent a week in the woods during the hunting season are now with the armed forces. A great percentage of youths, and older men were in the woods during the season.

General reports of hunters returning from camps indicates the majority of hunting parties got their quota of deer, some claiming it was the best season they experienced in years.

SKATING SEASON OPENED IN DISTRICT

Made possible by the sudden drop in temperature on Friday night the skating season was officially opened in the Belleville district over the week-end. Scores of young people in the rural areas have been seen and made good use of the frozen ponds in the open fields, while in the commons in the city the children sought out patches of ice on which to slide and to skate.

CAR BREAKS POLE

When an automobile went out of control and struck a telephone pole on Dundas street late Saturday afternoon, the front of the vehicle was torn off and damaged, but the occupied off some three feet from the base. The motor car was driven by Ernest Tallman, of Point Anne, who escaped injury. Police investigated and charge the driver on Mr. Tallman's car were defective. Charges of operating a motor car with defective brakes and also careless driving later preferred against Tallman, whose case was held until today when the owner was instructed to have the brakes of the vehicle adjusted before driving it in the future.

BAND CONCERT MUCH ENJOYED

A delightful band concert was held at the McCarthy Theatre Sunday evening when a capacity audience was entertained by the Trenton R.C.A.F. Band. The concert was sponsored by the Nursery Alumnae of the Belleville and Hastings General Hospital in benefits of the fund. A varied program of martial, classical and modern music was presented by the Trenton R.C.A.F. Band. First in the courtesy of Air Marshal F. S. McGill, officer commanding the Trenton Air Station. The sum of $84 was realized on the silver collection taken.

JOYRIDERS ABANDON CAR ON HIGHWAY

Doubtlessly taken by joy riders, an automobile owned by Frederick Reddick, R.R. No. 7 Belleville, was recovered during the Trent Road by its owner early Sunday morning after being stolen late Saturday night. Mr. Reddick reported the theft of his 1928 Chevrolet coach to the police late Saturday. The vehicle had been removed from a parking position on East Bridge St. Sometime later while being driven by two young friends, Mr. Reddick found his car abandoned on the Highway No. 2 a short distance west of the city limits.

HOPE OF FINDING MISSING HUNTER ALIVE IS EBBING

Fears for the life of 81-year-old Charles Wannamaker, of Stockdale who has been missing from the woods northeast of Bancroft for five days, were exceedingly grave today as no reports of the recovery of the aged man had been received by Provincial Police here up until noon on Monday.

The elderly man was on a deer hunting expedition and failed to return to his camp last Wednesday night. His hunting companions, Walter Tweedy and Lloyd Wannamaker, united in vain for their missing companion. Wednesday night Provincial Police were notified and Thursday Chief Fire Ranger Milton Grouhy and seven guides joined the search. Palmaker of Bancroft, Stanley Gilmour of Irondale, when the chief fires have been lighted in many sections.

With last weeks sudden drop of the temperature and the first snow of the season, hopes have fallen in the vicinity little hope is being held out for the finding of Mr. Wannamaker alive.

Rotary Squadron Of Air Cadets Attends Service

Courage, bravery and efficiency alone will not bring victory to the United Nations, declared the speaker of the past week. With these three qualities added, however, the three qualities added, however, Rotarian Insight into the cause for which we are fighting, Group Captain Cockran, R.C.A.F. Instructor of Chaplain Service, RCAF, Ottawa, told the Belleville Rotary Squadron Air Cadets, at a simple but impressive service at Albert College yesterday morning.

"The Nazi youth and also that of Japan," the speaker said, "have bravery, courage and efficiency, but they have not the Christian drive that is sending them to do phenomenal things."

The child of Britain, Group Captain Cockran told the cadets, demonstrated that Canadian youth as turned out in Canada's first flight squadron to be trained for it in the air forces of the world. It had these sterling qualities to a marked degree plus the spiritual equipment they had.

"Finally," he added, "they had them, not one bit more than you fellows have it or the nations that are now fighting in Canada."

Certain Qualities Not Enough

"But these qualities are not enough to win the war," he said in his war quickly. Furthermore we don't want to win the war unless there is a certain plus is not added to our courage, bravery and efficiency. This plus is a spiritual plus, a spiritual insight into the cause for which we are fighting."

The service held in the College chapel was in charge of Principal the Rev. Dr. Bert Howard. Attending was the student body of the college. The cadets, in command of Sergt. Instructor Bonderson in Shire Hall were taken to the college immediately to the service, which began at 9.15 a. m. They were in charge of Flying Officer T. C. Wood, assisted by Flying Officer T. E. Boyd. Other officers of the squadron were in attendance.

Featuring the service was a fine violin solo, "Meditation" taken from the opera "Thais" by Mr. Donald Horton. The college choir was under the direction of Mrs. Bert Howard, assistant leader with Mr. F. B. Reid at the piano. The lesson reading was read by F/O Boyd.

Following the service the cadets were taken back to Shire Hall where they were formally dismissed. The church parade was the first in the history of the local squadron.

POLICE BLOTTER

Routine investigations kept Belleville and Provincial Police authorities busy over the week-end.

Colin Cameron, 161 Front St., reported the theft of his bicycle on Saturday. The bike was taken from a parking position off Front St. Several licenses ran afoul of law and were picked up on intoxication charges during late Saturday night two youths were held after apprehended flighting on Campbell St. Stern warnings were given the would-be Joe Louises and they were allowed to return home.

Oshawa Car Stolen

Oshawa police reported the theft of a 1933 Dodge sedan bearing Manitoba licence plates bearing 69087.

Mrs. H. Stoliker, Thurlow Township, reported to Provincial Police that a strange motor car had struck and damaged a fence in front of her home. The matter was subsequently and amicably settled when Provincial Constable Gordon Hayes investigated.

Mr. Quinlan, who operates a grocery store on the Trent Road, reported to Provincial Police an attempt to enter his premises had been made early Saturday night. Provincial Constable Robt. Duncan investigated and no sign of intruders was in evidence.

Everyone Should be Doing More Than Their Duty in Times of Stress Says Dr. Stewart at St. Andrew's Church

"Like the Commandos, who do more than their duty, and who each one should be doing more than their duty in times of stress," declared Dr. R. G. Stewart, Toronto, a former pastor of St. Andrew's United Church in this city, in speaking to large congregations at both services in the church when the congregation celebrated the "anniversary of its founding. The choir under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bonter rendered appropriate program for the anniversary services. The attendance each day was excellent, while Mrs. Preston delighted with organ selections.

As was his usual custom, when pastor of the Church, Mr. Stewart spoke to the children before delivering the main sermon. The speaker told the children, "The many men and women who were being used by the Allies in this war that we inhabit of in the last Great War, the principal innovation being a gun perfected by the Russians, that has a range of 20 miles and is a strict secret. Two months ago" said the speaker, "things looked indeed bad because an Allied standpoint, but faith lifted us and kept us true in the midst of a great victory, for the cause of God that is the cause of the entire course of the conflict".

Had Great Faith

"In our churches," continued the speaker, "we have a confession of faith but does it mean to us anything of faith. They believed, that fish would multiply and feed the people they were ordered to lower them again by their Master. They made the effort and with their nets, when their strength was exhausted, which is a confession of faith, and today we need 'Christianity with the backbone of faith, knowing that because Christ is behind us we must do it. We must have more our faith, the faith, that has been preached in this church for years, and has been true.

Mr. Stewart expressed his pleasure in attending the Anniversary Anniversary services but that his heart was with the congregation many, who were in my pastorate, active in all branches of church work. He asked for God's guidance for the congregation in the critical days, that are before us.

Canadians Have No Cause for Grousing States Group Capt. Cockram at Bridge Street Church Anniversary Services

"People in Canada who grouse about the sacrifices they are making and yet sacrifice very little, are a disgrace to the Canadian people," declared Group Captain Cockram, Director of R. C. A. F. Chaplain Services, Ottawa, declared yesterday.

Speaking at the Bridge Street United Church Anniversary Services to a packed congregation including 600 personnel of No. 1 A. T. T. R. C. A. F. Service Flying Corps stated that the Royal Flying Corps stated that Canada knows nothing of rationing as yet."

"You get three meals a day, don't you? You have gasoline and tires and the privilege of using them? Then why grouse about what has been rationed?" he said.

Speaks Each Year

Despite the good news of the past week, he said, "I will not be surprised if the present conflict develops into a long war. If so, the prizes of victory will be great indeed, as has seemed thus far. Many people think they are making sacrifices because certain things are becoming difficult to get. Forget about them and carry on."

Some people in Canada, Group Captain Cockram declared, have more money than ever before. They are in no mood upon asking to do their share in the war effort. If they have nothing upon which to spend it.

Group Captain Cockram's engagement are three of the good things which are coming to be recognized as long as the world lives, he said.

The men of the Royal Canadian Air Force have courage. They have faith, and they have the spirit of encouragement. Their courage", he said, "is not dead, but it is usually combined with more bravery. That was demonstrated in the Battle of Britain, when a comparatively few fighter squadron of twelve planes attacked 150 bombers and were engaged with flying colors. Theirs is the kind of courage that fights until victory is won.

Faith Needed

To the people who have no faith in God, Group Captain Cockram advised laying it on. "Don't be afraid to be not rationed." These people, he said "who have not this faith now faith will be found in the end to be responsible for their freedom, are a hindrance to the war effort."

He criticized the "whisperers" in Canada, who are "doing a disservice to Job, when they should have every

THE WAR TODAY

By PAUL SANDERS
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 16—(AP)—Notwithstanding the fact that occupation of the Axis in northwest Africa more applauded today, there was no indication the isolationist stand of the Argentine and Chilean governments was shaken.

Argentina and Chile are the only two American republics which still maintain diplomatic relations with the enemy. But Chile is edging toward the Allied camp following President Ramon S. Castillo has been forced to make several overtures to quiet a redoubled popular outcry against the Axis.

Chief argument in the South American isolationists has been that the Axis might win. The timid profess to fear an enemy invasion across the South Atlantic.

African developments and that argument cut to shreds, and the South-American neutrals appear to know it.

Chilean President Juan Antonio Rios sent President Roosevelt a message hailing the Africa move as tending to "guarantee the security of the western Hemisphere." Argentina's government to continue its crackdown on Axis agents and push production of war materials.

Foreign Minister Enrique Guinazu of Argentina sent a polite message expressing "solidarity and interest."

Argentina also announced new rigid controls over radio and cable communications to prevent "messages that might injure the security of the Argentine nation."

And it thanked Under-Secretary Sumner Welles for having three memoranda giving evidence of Axis espionage in Argentina.

Obviously, Argentina and their country will break with the Axis before the Nazis can threaten any more serious aggression have vanished and that Welles, in addressing the Pan-American gathering in a Boston speech Oct. 8, has exploded a belief held in some Latin-American circles that their neutrality was condoned at Washington.

But Argentine sources are doubtful in Castillo government will quickly abandon its neutral policy.

President Castillo is considered pro-Ally although not a fighter. He's a thorough Nationalist, representative of the upper-class elite of wheat barons who have been Conservative and Isolationist since Colonial days.

The Conservatives have the government in their hands and the pro-Democratic President Roberto Ortiz, which elevated vice-President Castillo to the presidency.

The Conservatives want to stay in power, and their control today is tangled with Argentine politics.

The government is concentrating on the presidential election of the presidential candidacy of Gen. Agustin P. Justo, Minister of War and political figure in the country. Elections take place next October.

Observers see a break with the Axis would boost Justos stock tremendously. Justo has many Axis-line Liberals object to him because of local issues, but they would be overshadowed by the unpopular neutrality policy of the government.

Some Argentines feel that Castillo won't break with the Axis until he knows the outcome of the Conservatives and not the opposition.

The Castillo regime controls the Senate, but not the House, and is in a minority throughout the country. The Radical Democratic party is well-organized, led by a group of half-national political bosses with disciplined machines.

Complete Axis Rout in Africa Is in Making

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

November has shown a bleak face to German conquest hopes in other years and this November is no exception.

November saw the Kaiser's glory dreams burst like a bubble in 1918. His strutting successor as a war lord has admitted that in 1941 the vision of a Nazi-dominated world was close to utter disaster in Russia as saved, not by Hitler, but by Providence.

It was a slightly humbled Hitler who gave credit only a few weeks ago to some more potent force than his own lightning military genius for that 1941 escape. He capped the admission, however, with "assurances to his German listeners that he, not Providence, had seen to it that there would be no repetition of that dread winter of 1941 for Nazi Germany.

Yet this November whizzes again upon Hitler's dangerously far-spread armies in an unconquered Russia. Moreover, Anglo-American forces of ever expanding size and power are confronting him from across the Mediterranean. A complete Axis rout in Africa is in the making. Italy, the soft under-belly of the Axis dragon, is exposed to Allied attack. Nazi Air Power Fails.

Hitler's vaunted air power so far has failed him, failed even to protect German cities from a terrible and continuous air drubbing. His U-Boats have wrought mightily at sea but not mightily enough. The presence in French Africa of the great and growing Anglo-American army sufficiently shows who still rules the Atlantic.

To meet an emergency the scope of which he has not yet measured, Axis armies are again on the march in France and the Balkans, not to offensive but to defensive assignments. Axis collaboration-ism in France is dead or dying and Colonial France is back in the war as an Allied recruit.

What this may mean to further reshuffling of the war odds in the Mediterranean still is unclear.

Pacific repercussions of the changed war scenes in unique and startling fashion are yet to be fully assessed. The effect on India to ease Allied tension cannot yet be appraised, but the hope that the hour for reconquest of Burma from the Japanese has been brought a long stride closer is justified.

Japs on Defensive.

The one outstanding fact in the Pacific war theatre traceable to the new and ominous developments for the Axis in Russia and the Mediterranean this November is that Hitler's Japanese accomplice also has failed him. At the moment when he most needs a Far East arm diversion—a Japanese assault on Russia in Siberia or a Japanese power thrust at Australia or its ocean life lines—Japan has appeared, up to now, to heed only self-defense herself to answer his pleas. The week-end, however, brought an announcement from Berlin that heads of all Japanese missions to Europe had been assembled in the German capital since Nov. 10. Such a gathering at this time suggested Hitler might be renewing pressure on the Japanese ally.

But what all the swift developments of this November will add up to is beyond conjecture. The end is not over but it has turned a significant direction. Allied hope of ultimate and complete victory now are based on things more tangible than an undaunted will to win.

TEAMWORK WON THE DAY IN EGYPT

The British 8th Army introduced a novelty in modern warfare, when infantry and artillery advanced on fleeing Germans and Italians together, as shown in this picture. The move was successful as proven by the Axis withdrawal far beyond the Libya-Egypt borders.

SLEEP AT LAST —AS PRISONERS

Here is a picture of the British army's rout of the Axis forces in Libya. It shows some of the thousands of prisoners made by the British Eighth Army in its triumphant surge to the west. Sleep seemed the most important thing to the men who had undergone a pounding of British long-range artillery before the infantry and tank advance.

GROWING INCREASE LEASE-LEND AID

President Roosevelt Quotes October Figure to Show Amount of Aid

Washington, Nov. 16—(AP)—Instead of sharply declining as forecast by the Axis, lend-lease aid to Allied countries has risen greatly since the United States entry into the war and is likely to show a "growing increase" in 1943.

President Roosevelt, announcing the new high record of more than $915,000,000 worth of lend-lease goods and services furnished Allies in October, compared with a previous high of $643,000,000 in September, said these figures "show how wrong the Axis was in assuming that our aid to our Allies would sharply decline once we had been brought into the war."

"We have never intended and do not intend to diminish our lend-lease aid to the slightest," he said. "The record for the last four months shows that we are seeking to strike a careful balance between supplying our own army and supplying the other armies fighting in the common cause."

Despite the fact the United States in the last four months had the "imposing task of arming, equipping and transporting our strong expeditionary force now in North Africa," he declared, "we were able to transfer $2,713,000,000 worth of goods and services to our Allies" in that period.

Of this total, two-thirds were military items, including large numbers of planes and tanks which Mrs. Roosevelt said "helped turn the tide in Egypt and to hold the lines in Russia."

More than $918,000,000 in military items alone was transferred abroad in two months of September and October, 1942, when preparations for the African campaign were at their height.

Lend-lease requirements for 1943 have just been charted in conferences between lend-lease administration officials and representatives of the United Nations.

A slight advance southwest of Nalchik was reported. Here the Germans have been stalled for weeks in their effort to drive to the important west terminus of the Georgian military highway over the Caucasus mountains.

Two hundred Germans were reported killed in a night engagement on the Nalchik front.

The midnight communique said the Russians had improved their position south of Stalingrad by driving the Germans from a fortified point and entrenched themselves there after killing 120 of the enemy.

Britain Turning 'Socialist' Says Capt. Adamson

Montreal, Nov. 16 — (CP) — Brig. Sherwood Lett of Vancouver, one of the three Allied commanders of the Dieppe Raid, returned to Canada Saturday with other officers and men who served at Dieppe and is with scores of Canadian troops coming back as instructors.

The contingent included Brig.-Gen.A. B. White of Montreal, who organized and commanded the Canadian Forestry Corps which he built from two years ago; Brig. R. B. Gibson, of Ottawa, Deputy Chief of General Staff, who was overseas on a business trip, and Lt.-Col. Cecil Rae, who commanded the No. 9 Canadian General Hospital, R. C. A. M. C., overseas.

With them were two Ontario members of Parliament — Maj. W. F. Harris of Markdale, Ont., officer of the Grey and Simcoe Foresters and Liberal member for Grey-Bruce, and Capt. Rodney Adamson of Port Credit, Ont., officer of the Lorne Scots and Conservative member for York West.

Faith in Leaders

"When we left England it was evident that the people were expecting action as soon as possible," said Maj. Harris. "They had faith that their leaders would give them action at the right time and place. Events have justified that faith."

Capt. Adamson expressed conviction that Britain was turning "Socialist" and that Canada would go that way too.

"Don't mix that up with Communism," he said. "Socialism is a democratic way of life."

Maj. Harris said he had recently been on a seven-month period of instruction but did not indicate its nature. Capt. Adamson has been detailed for special duties the nature of which he declined to reveal.

Prince of Wales School Sends Boxes to Former Students in Services

Through the generosity of ratepayers, pupils and teachers 55 former pupils of the Prince of Wales School, Cobourg will receive gift boxes at Christmas.

A week ago fifteen of these boxes were sent to destinations overseas. For the most part they consisted of foods and tinned goods. The remaining twenty boxes will be mailed at suitable dates so as to arrive near Christmas as possible. Former pupils are stationed at various points in Canada from Halifax and St. John's to Vancouver and in United States from a training camp in Georgia to San Francisco, California.

The school is reasonably proud of its contribution to the armed forces, one of whom is a nurse in a military hospital.

Those in charge take this opportunity of thanking all those who have assisted in making this possible again another year.

Four Persons Burned to Death

(By The Canadian Press)

Eight persons met violent deaths in eastern Canada during the week-end. Four persons were burned to death in two fires, two were killed by trains, another man died in a fall and a man was injured fatally in an automobile-street car crash.

Ovila Rancourt, 27, and his four-year-old daughter, Claudette, were burned to death Saturday when fire swept through four buildings at Sherbrooke, Que. Rancourt's wife and another couple were injured, but not seriously.

Frank Pigula, 43, of Hamilton, Ont., was killed early Sunday when run over by a train near Simcoe, Ont. He severed body was found on the right of way.

At Hamilton, Ont., T. Ray Baker, 43, was injured fatally Saturday when crushed between two freight cars at the plant of the Steel Company of Canada.

Harry Englund, 61-year-old inspector for the Protestant School Board, died Sunday in a fall from a window of his seventh-storey apartment at Montreal.

Roy Craig, 46, of Toronto was fatally injured Saturday night when hit by a car. The victim was killed with a street car at Toronto.

Quebec Provincial Police investigated a fire which destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Constantineau, in St. Pierre De Wakefield, forty-two miles north of Hull, burning to death the two children, Marianne, two and Marcel, four.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Nov. 16 — (Special) — The St. Andrew's Girls' Society held their annual Fall Tea and Sale in the Church parlors on Saturday afternoon, with a large crowd in attendance. The many guests were received by Mrs. (Rev.) R. S. MacLeod and Miss Norma Clarke, President of the Society, while the tickets were taken by Miss Jean Bernice Alyea, the treasurer.

The tea table was lovely with lace cloth, huge basket of bronze and yellow baby chrysanthemums and yellow tapers. Tea hostesses were Miss Doris Fraser and Miss Hazel Walker and the tea was poured by Mrs. T. H. Gothard, with Miss Ruth Dixon and Miss Dorothy Ferguson serving the guests.

The table laden with home cooking was in charge of Miss Muriel Wilson and Miss Margaret Joan Weese and the guests were entertained during the afternoon by several instrumental numbers by various members of the Society.

Search Continues For Former Actress

Beverly Hills, Calif., Nov. 16—(AP)—Search widened for Peggy Ann Bennett as police sought without success a trace of the former film actress who disappeared after preparing to attend a party at the home of friends last Saturday night.

Her husband, screen cowboy Buddy Randall, told police she had been dependent since a Hollywood, Calif., Judge recently awarded custody of her five children to her first husband, Singer Morton Downey, and obtained a divorce from her in June.

Police accepted Randall as saying Miss Bennett was last seen by him when she was preparing to leave for a dinner engagement at the home of James Doane, actor's agent, and Mrs. Doane.

The 32-year-old Barbara, who eloped to Yuma, Ariz., with Randall married a few days after her divorce from Downey, is the niece of Richard Bennett, former stance and Joan Bennett and the daughter of Richard Bennett.

Rescue

One of the great motives of drama or story is the rescue of man from danger in the face of great obstacles.

There has just been effected one of the most sensational rescues in history, that of Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, American flying hero in the first World War and the finding alive of all his crew but one who was buried at sea.

Lost over three weeks while performing a mission for the United States Rickenbacker and his associates were forced down by lack of gasoline, used their presence of mind and to that owe their lives. They were found on a liferaft 600 miles north of Samoa. The resourcefulness of the doughty United States flier and racer and the co-operation of his men have written one of the great stories of rescue. The United States ships and planes had scouted the vast expanses of the Pacific Ocean since the message was sent out by Rickenbacker that the plane was running out of gasoline. That was on October 21st. Since then one of the greatest searches in history has been on. With the persistence of the navy and the resourcefulness of the crew, the rescue came.

The world admires such courage as that of the American ace of the first World War. It does not like to see harm come to its heroes. This human motive is very strong. The loss of Amelia Earhart several years ago in somewhat the same position in the Pacific is recalled. She was never found though an intensive search was carried out by navy and other craft. Only with great reluctance did the world give up hope for this heroic woman flier.

Such stories have universal appeal just as "Robinson Crusoe" will always attract the adventurous mind. Everyone follows with intense interest a search for a missing person. The dangers which man has undergone in making his way up the step ascent of progress and civilization have made men hardy and made adventure such a necessity a nature which not even centuries of dwelling under other conditions can remove.

"The lost is found" is one of the great story motives man loves.

Hitler's 'Intuitions'

Hitler last winter claimed to have hunches or moments of vision and he promptly withdrew some of his generals and assumed supreme command of the German army in Russia. Everyone recalls how the German situation last winter was one of the most terrific blows ever levelled at Hitler's and German prestige. Hitler's hunches came to nothing.

Once again his guiding spirits have misled him. At least they left him tied up with Russia, sending his men against the stout Russian positions at Stalingrad, all the while on the Egyptian front there was a movement afoot which was at one mighty blow to smash the German power in North Africa, rout his army so that its battered remnants have been fleeing for several weeks and may yet be caught in a trap.

Neither did his "psychic forces" help him while Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill with General Eisenhower were preparing the swift and deadly blow for the German Fuehrer in the French Colonies in North Africa. Suddenly the offensive was launched and has now been proceeding for nine days with Hitler's hope of retaining anything in the continent fleeting as fast as his Rommel army can fly.

The Mediterranean, which has been of the greatest strategical importance because it runs the route to the Middle East and to Russia and to Mid-Asia by land and air routes and the sea route to India and the Orient, is passing into the hands of the Allied offensive.

Now no psychic moments are Hitler's. His are moments of desperation as he hurries men and planes to the European coast of the Mediterranean. They show that he has gone in the claim to German invincibility, a bluff with which he tried to terrorize the nations.

Now the aggressor whose initial strength lay in his central position which made it possible to move an army in short order from any part to another finds that his central position is a ring or trap or prison wall out of which he will not be able to break.

LAUNCH OF A BATTLESHIP

This ship was made for England; its launching means
Another piece of England sails the tide;
Another ship for freedom, a fitting heir
To share our ancient sea-borne legacy;
How many sires of wood or royal steel,
In years gone by and battles long forgot,
Have fathered this swift ship, how many fleets,
How many centuries of fleets have left our slips
To show our land the way to victory!
How many Nelsons of less rich renown,
But no less rich deserts, how many Drakes
Have seen adventure in each morning sky
And manned such ships and shared such enterprise!
This ship was made like us to do a task,
A strong, brave task of keeping cleanness clean;
Speed on, then, ship, and when you hear at hand
Grey guns in battle thunder echoing back
The thunder of the gale, remember still
You sail for freedom and take England with you
Where you sail; and when you see, as see you must,
The hidden ambush of the fleets at war,
That long fish shape which lurks in cold pale gloom
Halfway to ocean hell, speed on unscathed;
And when, mast-high, there seem like bees to drone
The flying death, the swarming hives of fear,
Sail and sting back, as Nelson sailed, sail on,
And show us, too, an age of victory.

—A. E. Tomlinson, of Lowestoft, England, in the New York Herald-Tribune.

OUT OF THE PAST

Not nonchalantly, we are told,
Should tenants now disport
Themselves in suds, except when cold,
Since fuel's getting short;
For now, it seems, we're on the path
Of ever-changing ways
And soon, they say, we'll rate a bath
But twice in seven days.

Yet tho' the shock seems rather rude
From modern points of view,
One might recall this attitude
Is relatively new
And recollect a regimen
Like that could not annoy
A truly sturdy citizen,
When grandpa was a boy.

Indeed, in grandpa's youth 'twas felt
That once weeks suffice
For renovation of the pelt,
And no one thought of twice;
For that would then have seemed to be
Like having, or so speak,
A needless superfluity,
Two Saturdays a week.

LATE AUTUMN

The arms of the elm tree are bare,
In shreds is the maple's red gown,
There are signs in the yard which declare
King Winter's besieging the town.

The frosts and the winds which precede
The first swift arrival of snow,
Have struck at both blossom and weed
With fury and levelled them low.

The songbirds have fled from the cold,
Gone are robin and martin and swift,
Now sparrows and blue Jays will hold
The field till the spring comes adrift.

Not much will remain this fair
On that day when Kink Winter arrives,
For all that no hardship can bear,
In terror have fled for their lives.

Political Interlude in North Africa

New York, Nov. 16—The military situation is not yet clarified in North Africa and until it is the political situation will also, probably, remain obscure.

That the United States will contribute to setting up a new Vichy in Africa is quite out of the question, whatever indications may be to the contrary emanating from Admiral Darlan. The situation, indeed, has its comic elements. Darlan as Machiavelli seems to have become entangled in his own Machiavelli-ism. And speaking of Machiavelli, the thought of Mr. Hull in this role brings a broad smile to one's face.

The policy of the United States is not clarified in all details, but it is certainly clarified in essentials. We are, for instance, committed to the four freedoms. That must mean that we can never put our military might behind a para-Fascist Government.

So, when Admiral Darlan tries to set himself up as the civil authority in North and West Africa, one only has to look at his record and ask oneself whether this is the kind of France that the United States intended to liberate and help to port. There can only be one answer to that: I don't believe it. There is nothing in the mentality of Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Churchill or Mr. Hull that would welcome that kind of regime; the United States never would not only abandon for it; and, even more importantly, neither would the French.

Now, the only reason the question arises at all is that the Allied gadio, now in control of the United States forces, signed Darlan and General Auguste Nogues have announced that the former "assumes the defense of North Africa." He edits this statement with "pending the reestablishment" after which, if reports are accurate it was repudiated by the Marshal.

In this, Darlan is acting toward us as Petain acted toward Germany. The base of whatever power he may have as the successor to an armistice. Whether he has any real power at all is doubtful. He cannot, apparently, command the French fleet.

It was logical that when, in 1940, France capitulated to a Fascist power, a Fascist regime like Petain and Darlan should be recognized as a Fascist and Totalitarian Government, obviously with the function to help down the French people. But there is no logic in our celebrating a victory by recognizing the same Government. Things don't turn out that way.

Victor Emanuel, under the pressure of Mussolini and Franco anti-Fascist refugees; in multiplied copies of the Nuremberg laws; it participated in the deportation of Jews in Poland; it dissolved the trade unions and suppressed the free press; it created a French Legion as a kind of S.A.; it turned over Indo-China to the Japanese; it has enabled the Japs to attack us; it ordered the French fleet to attack at Dakar; it ordered resistance in Syria and Madagascar; it produced armaments for the German war effort and recruited French volunteers for the Nazi war against Russia; it never even requested the French fleet to join us until it was too late; on the contrary, it ordered resistance to us in Morocco and Algiers and caused the deaths of an unknown number of Frenchman and Americans.

Neither freedom of speech nor freedom from fear is possible under any Vichy leaders. Therefore, one must regard the present political moment as an interval in an unconsolidated military situation.

De Gaulle behaves calmly.

Throughout these days General de Gaulle has behaved calmly and impeccably. I am no fanatical de Gaullist, but the Fighting French are our allies and have been since the beginning. General de Gaulle has always insisted that the future political leadership of France could come out of the underground forces of resistance there. Obviously we cannot assume that any leadership of such underground resistance can come from former Vichyites who have spent their lives suppressing and persecuting them.

Since the war the Fighting State are so fundamental that it is absolutely out of the question that our State Department, or the President will play with the forces of reaction in Europe, selling democratic blood in order to set up anachronistic or Fascist-like regimes. Nor is there enough Toryism in the whole of British politics to make possible before British public opinion. It is as impossible as it would be to set up and make acceptable as Papen-Doering Government in Germany, which would be an analogy to a Darlan-type Government in France. To attempt to do so would be to incite the most radical revolts in the whole of Europe.

Our Government knows these things. We have very distinguished political leadership.

MALTA FIGHTS ON

The island of Malta, in the Mediterranean, has been mentioned more frequently than any other single spot in the world.

Since the beginning of the war more than three years ago Malta has been bombed nearly 1,700 different times by German and Italian planes.

Last April King George VI conferred the George Cross on the population of Malta as a token of honor for their heroic defense of the island fortress.

This was the first time in the history of the world that the whole population of a commonwealth was decorated with a medal.

The George Cross was instituted in September, 1940, and was named by King George VI himself.

"Malta Bags 12 Planes," "Malta Bags 17 Planes," "Malta Bags 112 Planes in Month," are typical of the dispatches from Valletta, capital of the tiny British crown colony only 58 miles from the coast of Sicily.

The colony of Malta comprises not only Malta proper, but also the islands of Gozo and Comino, which have a total area of 122 square miles and before the war had a total civilian population of about 270,000.

War is nothing new to the Maltese. During the romantic and colorful history Malta has been occupied successively by Phoenicians, Greeks, Carthaginians, Romans, Saracens, French and British.

The ancient name of Malta was Melita. St. Paul was shipwrecked on the island in 58 A.D.

In 1530 the Emperor Charles V turned Malta over to the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, who came to be known in history as the Knights of Malta.

The Knights of Malta held their island commonwealth in the teeth of the Turks until 1798, when they surrendered to and were dispersed by Napoleon. The Turkish siege of Malta in 1565 is one of the memorable sieges of history.

Malta has given its name to a cat, a dog, a crops, a mushroom, a fever.

The Maltese cross was the emblem of the Knights of Malta. It has eight points, each bar shaped like an arrowhead with its point at the centre of the cross.

The Maltese have rebelled against the French, and from 1798 to 1814 the island was blockaded by the British fleet, aided by the Maltese.

In 1814, by the Treaty of Paris, Malta was finally annexed to the British crown upon the request of the Maltese themselves.

The British gradually converted Valletta into their chief naval base in the Mediterranean.

Malta is the scene of Christopher Marlowe's "The Jew of Malta," Byron's "Don Juan" and Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice."

VICIOUS AIR, NAVAL

Axis base and weekend clashes out over the Mediterranean in which 20 Axis planes were shot down and carriers were shot down between Tunisia and Sicily.

Coupled with this action was another searing assault last night upon Genoa, Italy's principal North Africa, by home-based longranges British bombers. Although new destruction was inflicted, the Air Ministry said, the Italians and Canadians in the R.A.F. took part in this raid.

Rommel's Forces Pounded

With the second Great Allied offensive shaping up in Tunisia, the first one rolled on toward its final decision in Libya, where Marshal Rommel's retreating forces pounded westward across the Libyan hump and were still going.

Rommel's main forces were in the area of El Agheila, 150 miles southwest of Benghazi, indicating he had given up any idea of an attempted evacuation from the latter Cyrenaican port, Allied headquarters said.

The Allies had about 1,250 miles to go to form a junction between their forces in Tunisia, and the 8th Army in Libya, but the units in Tunisia were 400 miles from Rommel.

In a broadcast quoting the Turkish newspaper Ikdam, the Moscow radio said that once the Allies have cleaned the Axis out of North Africa they could be expected to occupy the Italian islands of Crete, Sardinia and Corsica and then "make their first jump into Europe via the Italian mainland".

Establishment of contact between the Germans and advanced detachments of Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson's predominantly-British legion was announced by the Allied controlled Morocco radio at 9 p.m. (3 p.m., E.D.T.) last night.

It was the first regular action by United States ground forces against the Germans since their meeting on the Meuse-Argonne front in France 24 years ago.

There were other military and political highlights:

Vicious air and naval fighting persisted along the North African coast as German and Italian forces sought compensation for the Nov. 8 coup that caught them napping.

The German high command claimed, without confirmation elsewhere, that 99 Allied transports and warships had been sunk or damaged.

Admiral Jean Darlan proclaimed himself administrator of French North Africa—declaring he acted upon authority which Marshal Petain had granted — and appointed Gen. Henri Giraud as commander-in-chief of French forces in the region.

Rommel's Forces Jam Roads

Refugees of Marshal Rommel's African Corps were reported jamming the coastal road on the Gulf of Sirte between Bengasi and El Agheila on their retreat across Libya from Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's avenging 8th Army; Prime Minister Churchill said the German and Italian casualties totalled 70,000.

A state of siege was declared at Algeciz and other towns of Corsica as a result of active opposition by the French garrison and civilians to Italian landings, the Morocco radio said.

Vichy announced that a large number of Vichy French troops had arrived to garrison Toulon the mainland naval base which the Germans by-passed in extending their occupation to the south shores of France.

Toulon is closed to all non-residents and leave to enter is will be given only in case of death or grave illness of a near relative, the Nazi-controlled Vichy radio said.

Weygand Reported Arrested

The BBC quoted "a usually well-informed French source' as saying that Gen. Weygand, former Allied general, had been arrested in France on German orders.

The contact at Sterire recalled the closing days of the First Great War.

Then the Americans and their French Allies swept over German defences along the Meuse River and through the Argonne forest and put 42 divisions to flight in an offensive that ended with the Armistice Nov. 11, 1918.

Determined to maintain the initiative despite a prospect of hard fighting, Gen. Anderson said his whole purpose in North Africa is "to get East as quickly as possible and kick Rommel in the pants" in cooperation with the British 8th Army.

10,000 Germans Land

The striking force of the 55-year-old Scot is made up of the British, 1st army—supplying nine-tenths of the personnel—and United States units, apparently made up largely of specialists such as parachutists and Rangers, commanded by Major-Gen. Charles Ryder.

The Morocco radio estimated the Axis had landed 10,000 Germans and Italian troops and airmen in Tunisia and said they were being reinforced by ships and transport planes daily despite the active opposition of French garrison which cast off Vichy rule last week to challenge the invaders.

Although the Allied numerical superiority was apparent, a large-scale battle was regarded as probable for control of Bizerte, a major naval centre commanding a strategic position opposite Sicily on the narrowest part of the Mediterranean.

Most of the city lies on the shore north of a canalized channel which links the lake to Bizerte, shelltering both the naval port and seaplane base.

Gen. Anderson said the Axis detachments had control of both airfields and seaports at Bizerte and Tunis, the capital, 30 miles to the southeast, and landed planes from both Malta and Algerian fields were supporting the eastward advance.

American troops who carried out this initial assault on North Africa under the command of Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will remain to defend that area, Gen. Anderson said.

Bizerte 90 Miles From Bizerte

The opening round of the showdown fight for mastery of Bizerte was reported by Berlin at an announcement from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters that Axis troops had forces had crossed the rugged Tunisian frontier.

The point of entry was some 90 miles from Bizerte.

Gen. Eisenhower said the Mediterranean was "swarming with enemy submarines" but an Allied war bulletin declared the enemy had suffered severe losses. U-boat attacks and that action by Axis warships and torpedo planes proved "a costly adventure."

A roundabout Madrid dispatch to Reuters News Agency said "A considerable part" of the Italian fleet was in the western Mediterranean and American armadas of reinforcements.

Prime Minister Churchill an-

Prime Minister Churchill announced that 19 U-boats had been sunk by the Allies off the French North African coast five of them in the last two days in a convoy battle said 16 German bombers were destroyed in the operations and attacks on the Bone and Bougie areas of North Africa.

Algiers dispatches broadcast by the Axis-controlled Algiers radio said Italian troops which landed three days ago at Bone had been captured in five minutes by British parachutists who dropped upon the port from four-motored planes

OTHER UNITS

Rommel's army was spread out over a long expanse of Libyan desert country stretching from Tobra, east of Bengasi, to Agheila, the British communique indicated.

Long-range fighters raked the west-bound Axis trucks and troops and strafed aircraft on the ground in an effort to harass Rommel to the point where he could not make a stand this side of Tripoli.

Raid Tunis Airdrome

Allied aircraft also raided the Tunis airdrome again Saturday at dusk and damaged a number of planes there, it was reported. Buildings and workshops were hit the same night and large fires were started.

Rommel left 75,000 Axis soldiers behind in graves, hospitals and prison camps, when he fled 500 miles from his original position at El Alamein, Egypt, to the point where his dusty transport trucks today approached the swamps of El Agheila.

Seven there, on the road between Bengasi and El Agheila, they could not shake off the persistent hornets of the Allied air forces, which continued to strafe and bomb the hapless survivors of Rommel's defeat.

130 Miles Behind Rommel

The pursuing British 8th Army forces, harried by problems of supply and the necessity of clearing up some of the Axis wreckage, were reported some 130 miles behind the Axis army yesterday. Some of Rommel's forces were reported lagging behind and just approaching Bengasi.

The most recent official total on the number of Axis casualties in the battle of Egypt and the pursuit across Libya was given in London yesterday by Prime Minister Churchill, who placed it at 75,000 Germans and Italians.

May Stand at Agheila

(German military sources in Berlin indicated that Rommel was planning to make a stand soon and DNB, German news and propaganda agency, said the main party of the smashed army has already prepared positions, there is a possibility Rommel is planning to make a stand in the sweeping El Agheila region where he stopped another British army in 1941, El Agheila is approximately 400 miles east of Tripoli, the main Axis base in Libya.)

Heavy United States bombers smashed at Bengasi harbor Saturday and started large fires, a communique said yesterday.

R.A.F. fighters continued to range over the Axis air lines from Sicily to Tunisia, where the Germans are trying to frustrate the Anglo-American occupation of North Africa, and shot down seven more planes yesterday, bringing the bag for three days to 50.

CAN'T BE ACCUSED

OF HOARDING

Plummer, Idaho, Nov. 16. (AP) —Grover A. J. Reutiman can't be accused of hoarding. Customers depleted his stock of coffee. Then his wife asked for a pound. Grover Brutman finally obtained one from a sympathetic competitor.

FILM COMPANIES JOIN HANDS

Hollywood, Nov. 16. (AP)—David O. Selznick, independent film producer, and 20th Century-Fox studio have joined hands—at least for the duration. Completion of negotiations was announced yesterday whereby Fox takes over a group of stories and plays owned by Selznick, as well as the services of several of his contract players, but not the contracts.

GUERILLAS LAUNCH DRIVE

London, Nov. 16 (CP).—A Reuters dispatch from Geneva reported today that Croat guerillas had launched an offensive on a 30-mile front and has occupied a town and 32 fortified villages after stubborn fighting.

Investments of Life Insurance Co's In Loans Help War Effort

Before a full meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club yesterday noon at the Y.M.C.A. last Thursday Mr. A. J. Gough, manager and manager of The Great West Life Assurance Company for Eastern Ontario, addressed the club on interesting and informative address on "The Living Pursuit and Conditions in Relationship to the Life Insurance Business."

Mr. Frank Webb of the London Life Insurance Company, president of the Association, was in charge of the meeting.

A special invitation was received from Air Commodore Frank S. McGill of the Trenton Air Training Station inviting the members to visit the Air Station at some future date. The invitation was enthusiastically received.

Mr. Geo. A. Reid, ex-Mayor of St. Catharines, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Shannon.

Pte. Bernard Finnegan of Kingston spent the weekend at his home here.

Earl Trumble of the R.C.A.F., Ottawa, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Trumble.

Miss Peggy Hewitt of Toronto spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Hewitt.

Joint Celebration For 3 Birthdays

Their birthdays a few days apart the brothers Wayne and William Brown, sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of Deloro, were tendered a pleasant birthday party at their home on Friday evening, an impromptu affair. They were joined by almost twenty young friends and games which wound up with a pleasing repast.

Miss Margaret Shannon, of the W.A.A.C., Ottawa, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Shannon.

Mr. Tom Maloney left on Sunday for Ottawa to go in training with the R.C.A.F.

Mrs. G. R. Barlow of Belleville spent last week with her son, Sf. C. Barlow and Mrs. Barlow at Deloro.

Mrs. A. V. Yates has returned home after spending a few days in Hamilton and Toronto.

John Shannon of the R.C.N.V.R., Ottawa, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Shannon.

The following is an extract from the Belleville closing remarks:

"It is true that wars are won by men, but they are won by men and women in the munition plants. Without the latter the former would be lost. The war loan just closed resulted from necessity and when the subscription lists are complete, you will observe that a very substantial portion of the total subscriptions was underwritten by the Life Insurance Companies.

"As Life Insurance men, I do not need to say to you, that it is not the companies who supply the money, but the many thousands of individual policyholders—and Life Insurance policyholders are scattered widely by the nature of the field.

"Your companies are buying war bonds with the dollars which you and I have been forward to them, and you will probably note, that practically speaking, every dollar of Premium Income, received by most Life Insurance Companies is being loaned to the government.

"The public at large may not unfurl flags or start the bands playing for the conscientious Life Underwriter, but nevertheless when the victory is won—and thank God we now know it will be ours—then in the quiet consciousness of his own mind, this man will find satisfaction in knowing that he too played his part and played it well".

Ralph Morden of the Canada Life Co., extended the thanks and appreciation of the members to Mr. Smith for his educative remarks.

Tribute Paid To Trade Board

Tribute to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board was paid this morning by Mr. W. R. Mitchell, local egg dealer, in regard to the price of eggs within reason during the current shortage. If it were not for the ceiling price established by the Board, egg prices in Belleville would go as high as 75 cents the dozen, it was estimated.

At present the ceiling price for eggs in Belleville is 56 cents the dozen, if they are zone in baskets or 60 cents the dozen if in cartons.

A greatly increased demand for eggs is responsible for the current shortage, it was claimed. As egg receipts are higher than they were a year ago. The scarcity has been made more acute though the fact there are no storage eggs available as it is now necessary to obtain a government permit before eggs can be stored.

The most noticeable effect of the current shortage has been the disappearance of the usual spread in price among the various grades. In other years this spread amounted to as much as eight or ten cents between Grade "A" and pullets. This year this spread has been narrowed almost to the disappearing point, in some cases a flat price being quoted for all grades while in others there is only two cents the difference between pullets and "A" grades.

9 Soldiers to Receive Medals Won at Dieppe

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—(CP) — Nine Canadian soldiers who were awarded decorations for their conduct during the Battle of Dieppe, had been invested, or who returned to Canada before receiving their medals, will get them from the Governor-General at a special investitures here Dec. 2, it was learned today.

The names of the men to be summoned to the investitures were announced as defence headquarters but they are among the 17 veterans in the party of them wounded, who returned to Canada several weeks ago.

Brigadier Gault, D. S. O., Recovering From Fall

London, Nov. 16 (CP).—Brig. Hamilton Gault, D.S.O., who raised and commanded the famous Patricia Canadian Light Infantry during the First Great War, is making progress after injuries" after fracturing a leg in a fall. Part of the leg was broken the last year. He is 57 and about each day, but is still in hospital.

Brig. Gault, a former Conservative member of the British House of Commons, was recalled from the reserve of officers in 1940 and is again serving with Canadian overseas forces.

FAMOUS ARCHITECT DIES

London, Nov. 16 — (CP) — Frederick W. Speight, famous architect and father of Robert Speight, the actor and author, died Sunday.

Miss Grace Prentice of Belleville and Gunner Wm. Prentice of Kingston Spent the Weekend at Home Here

Miss Dorothy Henry of the W. A.A.C., Kingston, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Henry.

Mr. Francis Neal of the C.W. A.C., Kingston, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Neal.

British Submarine Reported Lost

London, Nov. 16 (CP).—The Admiralty last night announced the loss of the Talisman, one of the few submarines boasting a victory over a U-boat.

The ship is overdue and must be considered lost, the Admiralty said.

One January night the Talisman was cruising on the surface of the Mediterranean when she sighted a hostile submarine 700 yards away. The enemy fired two torpedoes which missed. The Talisman fired two shells and the second scored a hit, sinking the enemy when it was only fifteen feet away.

In 220 days in the Mediterranean and the Atlantic the Talisman sank four enemy ships and damaged a destroyer.

Flying almost any automobile, the adjustable insect screen has been invented that is inserted behind a grille, cut of sight.

SGT. J. R. LAPORTE DIES IN SERVICE OVERSEAS

Sgt. Joseph Raymond Laporte, R.C.A.F., 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Laporte, Montreal, superintendent of the Montreal and Southern Counties Railway, died on active service overseas on November 12, according to word received by his father.

Sgt. Laporte was born in Montreal November 11, 1914, and was attached at the Belleville and Stratford, Ont., collegiate, to the physical training department of the Canadian National Railways at Montreal in 1936 and three years later the railway service to join the Canadian Car and Foundry Company.

Enlisting with the R.C.A.F. in August, 1941, Sgt. Laporte received his training at Yakartier, Que., Scoudoue, N.B., Toronto, Victoriaville, Que., Malton and Trenton, Ont., and received his wings as air gunner at Paulson, Man., in April last.

Two other brothers, Laurier Laporte on active service and Leo Laporte in the reserve army, were also former employees of the Canadian National Railways.

INFORMAL CLUB OPENED

Alexandria, Egypt, Nov. 16 (CP)— Organized by Lt.-Col. Den McGill, R.C.N.V.R., London, Ont., an informal club for R.C.N.V.R. officers serving in the Mediterranean area, has been opened here. The club's conception came while McGill was assistant fleet recreation officer and members meet periodically.

400 Canvassers To Cover City's Religious Survey

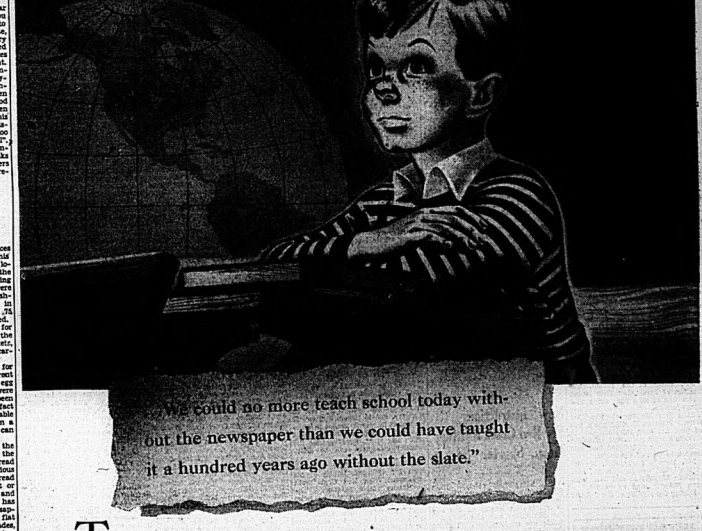
At a meeting of Religious Survey Committee held Sunday afternoon at 4:15 in the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Sunday School room, the final work was done of appointing district captains and allotting canvassers to these districts. Approximately 400 canvassers will take part and will cover the city starting Nov. 22nd. Each district captain will meet with his or her canvassers before next Monday and will arrange partners for the survey and sections for each team with 400 canvassers, each team of two will have about 20 homes to call on. There are 23 districts and the following have been chosen as captains: Ted Polwell, Albert E. Robinson, Miss S. V. Scott, Bert Orr, W. A. Watson, Mr. MacKay, Robert Shannon, George Warder, R. J. Smith, Don Brown, H. Trundale, A. D. Archibald, A. C. Campbell, George O'Brien, Mrs. George Wilson, Mrs. Logan, Mrs. Pelsey, Mrs. A. G. Hannah, L. E. Shapiro, Mr. O. P. Lowery, Harry Harris, John S. Barker, C. W. Burr.

These captains represent every church in the city and as well the canvassers are drawn from all churches. This whole effort is a remarkable co-operative bit of work.

On Less Than $100 Built 30-Million Dollar Business a Year

New York, Nov. 16—(AP)—Samuel Klein, 56, founder and sole owner of what is said to be the biggest independent chain fast suit house in the world, died last night. Son of a Russian immigrant tailor, who specialized in women's inexpensive clothes, built a great business of more than $30,000,000 a year on an original investment of less than $100.

He was widely known for his philanthropies.



Once, a poor high school girl was caught trying to steal an inexpensive garment in his store. He promptly set up a fund through which needy school girls were provided with clothing. His vast Union Square store operates on a "cafeteria" basis.

229 KILLED IN OCTOBER

London, Nov. 16 (CP).— Britain's air-raid casualties in October were 229 killed or missing and 370 injured, it was announced today.

Corresponding totals for October last year were 321 killed and 361 injured, but in October, 1940, during the Battle of Britain, 6,335 lost their lives and 8,695 were injured.

Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, revealed last night that 47,000 persons have been killed in air raids on Britain, thus far in the war, 56,000 injured and 2,750,000 houses damaged or destroyed.

THIS TRIBUTE to the importance of the newspaper in the classroom is from a recent statement by E. R. Van Kleeck, Assistant Commissioner of Education of the State of New York. His department supervises the education of 2,000,000 children in North America's largest public school system.

Mr. Van Kleeck is not alone in this view. Educators and teachers throughout the country know that textbooks alone are not enough to prepare today's students for the world of tomorrow. They realize that if the boys and girls in our schools and colleges are to solve tomorrow's problems successfully, they must know and understand what's going on in the fast-moving world of today.

They realize, too, that the newspaper is indispensable in acquiring this knowledge and understanding. For, in the classroom or out of it, the daily newspaper satisfies the need for the news . . . and its interpretation . . . as no other medium can.

In these critical days, all of us . . . young and old, students, teachers and parents . . . are relying on newspapers more heavily than ever before, not only for the news of the day but also for guidance and instruction in waging the war on the home front.

It's not surprising, therefore, that so many advertisers find the newspaper today's most effective medium for presenting their messages to the public.

WEDDINGS

ALEXANDER—ROBERTS

Madoc, (Special.)—A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. William Roberts, Madoc, at 3 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 4, when her youngest daughter, Iris Marguerite, was united in marriage to James Arthur Alexander of Queensboro. The Rev. A. Poulter of Trinity United Church officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Joseph Sandford, looked charming in a gown of robin egg blue crepe. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. W. B. Heath of Stirling. Mr. Heath was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to the guests by Misses Mary Finch, Nora and Ellen Sandford. The home was attractively decorated with Autumn flowers. Rev. Mr. Poulter proposed the toast to the bride and groom and congratulations and good wishes were expressed by many friends present. The bride and groom left for a trip to Ottawa and points east, the bride wearing a brown and beige travelling suit. On their return they will reside in Queensboro.

BAILEY—McTAGGART

Roslin, (Special.)—An interesting wedding took place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church which was attractively decorated for the occasion with potted plants and chrysanthemums, at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon, when Helen Elfreda, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard McTaggart of Thomasburg, became the bride of Gerald Charles Bailey, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey, of Roslin. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. W. MacDonald.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride entered the church to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, played by Miss Marjorie McTaggart of Tweed, cousin of the bride. The bride was charming in her floor length gown of white embroidered sheer. She wore a shoulder length veil and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Mrs. Reginald Scott of Smith's Falls, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, her floor length gown was of rose pink crepe with short jacket.

Miss Amy McTaggart was her sister's bridesmaid. Her gown was of pink net over taffeta.

Both attendants wore shoulder length veils and carried bouquets similar to that of the bride.

Mr. Donald McTaggart, brother of the bride, was groomsman. Mr. Wallace McTaggart and Mr. Carman Bailey, acted as ushers.

During the signing of the register Miss Jean Freeman of Belleville, sang "I Love You Truly".

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Thomasburg.

Mrs. McTaggart, received her guests in a powder blue gown with corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Bailey, mother of the groom, received in rust crepe with corsage of white roses.

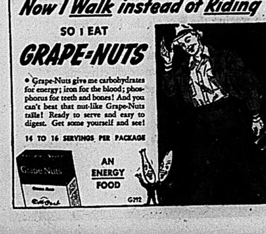
A buffet luncheon was served to about thirty-five guests.

The bride and groom left later for a trip to Ottawa. For travelling the bride chose a gold dress, green coat trimmed with brown fur, brown hat, shoes and other accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

Honor Hadley Family Previous to Leaving Frankford Village

Frankford — On Thursday evening a large number of friends and neighbors and members of the church and Sunday School of the Frankford United Church gathered in Rose Lowery Hall to tender a farewell party to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hadley, Keitha and Bud, prior to their leaving for a new home in Trenton. The program began with community singing and the hymn "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Rev. H. H. Lackey, as chairman spoke a few words pointing out the purpose of the gathering and mentioning the great part the members of the Hadley family had taken in the different organizations of the church. Mr. Hadley has been treasurer of the church for several years and he is a member of the Session. Mrs. Hadley has been for a number of years a teacher in the Sunday School and it was said she was one of the most faithful teachers in the school.

The next number on the program was a song by Shirley King and Doreen Osterhout, "Hearts in Canada." A reading "Me and Pa on the Telephone" was given by Mrs. Harold Terry. Miss Marjorie Forbes read "Blessed Are They." A duet, "God Will Take Care of You" by Mrs. J. A. Warren and Mrs. Lackey was so much enjoyed that a request number "Beautiful Garden of Prayer" was also contributed. Mrs. G. Bennett read a poem "To the Hadleys" and Mrs. J. Finnigan read a story "Mixed Prescriptions."



At this point the chairman called the guests to seats of honor at the front of the hall and Mrs. H. Terry read an address which expressed in a small way the esteem in which they had been held and the regret that every one felt at their leaving the community. Mrs. S. Osterhout and Mrs. P. Mikel presented them with a tea wagon and a chesterfield cushion. Mr. and Mrs. Hadley thanked their friends for the lovely gifts and the thoughts that went with them and expressed the hope that everyone would visit them in their new home. All joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows." Mr. Walter Morrow, superintendent of the Sunday School, gave a short talk, telling how much Mrs. Hadley would be missed in the Sunday School and expressed the wish that everyone present, if they were not already coming to Sunday School, would come on Sundays and help in this much needed work. A contest put on by Mrs. S. Martin concerning the weather, was very much enjoyed. At the close a delicious lunch was served. The social evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

New Instructions For Red Cross Knitting Mean Shorter Socks

In a letter just received from the Headquarters of the Ontario Red Cross, knitters were instructed to reduce the length of the sox for servicemen and the local officials are anxious that all those about to begin sox follow these instructions carefully.

The letter reads: "For the purpose of the further saving of wool it has become necessary to shorten the length of service socks. At present our instructions read 14 to 16 inches from top of cuff to under the heel. These instructions should now read 11 inches from the top of cuff to under the heel. The reduction should be in the leg and not in the cuff. Socks already made should not be altered. This does not affect seamen's sox or seamen's stockings".

WILL BE MARRIED DECEMBER 5TH.

Miss Mary E. Kerr and Wilbur J. Countryman, R.C.A.F., whose engagement has been announced, will be married December 5, in Tabernacle United Church. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Kerr, Bleecker Avenue. Her fiance, son of Mrs. G. W. Countryman, John Street, and the late Mr. Countryman was graduated from the University of Western Ontario, London, and O.C.E., Toronto.

Reports of Branch Activities Reveal Wide Field of Red Cross Interest Throughout District

The regular monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held Thursday, November 12, with Mr. Howard Clarke, acting president, in the chair.

The treasurer, Mr. Zeran, reported for October as follows:

Receipts

|---|---|
| Donations | $1162.46 |
| British War Victims' Fund | 50.00 |
| Refund for uniforms | 4.56 |
| Refund for Home Nursing uniforms | 5.00 |
| Blanket Fund | 28.00 |
| Prisoners of War Fund | 204.58 |
| Total receipts | $1454.60 |

Of the above Prisoners of War Fund $199.58 was the proceeds of a concert put on by the Third Victory Loan Committee; the talent being provided by the Air Force from the adjoining camps.

Bills totalling $314.73 were presented and ordered paid.

Mrs. Ketcheson reported for the Home Nursing Committee that 65 are registered in the new class just commencing and that ten tried the examination last week and others plan to try in December.

The president reported that the Five Disaster Units of Red Cross supplies received from headquarters have been stored in the Blood Donor Clinic building in readiness for an emergency.

Mrs. Lazier, chairman of the Women's War Work Committee, made her report, as below in full. The president referred to Mrs. Lazier's departure from the city for some months and expressed regret at losing such valuable services.

Mrs. Mikel was unanimously appointed to act as chairman of the Women's War Work Committee during Mrs. Lazier's absence.

The chairman thanked Mrs. Mikel for taking on this most important work.

Cablegrams Sent

Miss Lynch reported that two personal cablegrams had been sent through the Red Cross to relatives in enemy-held countries, one to Hungary, one to Greece. There is no means by which parties in Canada can prepay a return cablegram, nor any guarantee that the original cablegram will be delivered.

An inspirational letter was read from Dr. Caldwell, telling of his retirement from Red Cross work to resume active practice. The secretary was instructed to write Dr. Caldwell, regretting his retirement and telling how much this branch owes him in the establishing of this Blood Donor Clinic and wishing him success.

Bottle-caps are very acceptable for salvage, it was pointed out in a communication from Salvage headquarters.

70,000 boxes per week are going to prisoners of war from the Canadian Red Cross.

Report Women's War Committee October 1942

Mr. Chairman, Members of the Executive, Belleville Branch.

The workroom committee has shipped to headquarters during the month of October 29 cartons containing the following:

Hospital supplies, 535 articles; knitted goods, 279 articles; British Civilian Clothing, 613 articles; quilts, 36; Afghans, 4.

The chairman is very grateful to all the Auxiliaries for this splendid contribution to the work of the Red Cross, all of which is sorely needed on all fronts.

Respectfully submitted.
FLORENCE M. LAZIER,
Chairman.

Women's War Work Committee Jam and Honey Report for October

Thirteen cases have been sent to headquarters for overseas shipment. This brings to an end this branch's work for the year and many thanks are due the efforts of the Women's Institutes as well as some city organizations in making this contribution to the war work.

In closing my reports for the month of October, I should like to express my regret at giving up my Red Cross work in this branch for an indefinite period. To the members of the executive, I am very grateful for their continued loyalty and support; without them, my task would have been impossible and especially to our Campaign chairman, Mr. H. J. Clarke, I am indebted for he has produced the materials for our job. Mr. Hefkey and Mr. Zeran, our honorary treasurer, and acting treasurer, have been most understanding and helpful at all times.

And last but by no means least come the Red Cross workers of town and country who have done such a wonderful job. The Women's Institutes in our district are an inspiration to all of us and I thank them most sincerely for their unquestioning loyalty.

FLORENCE M. LAZIER,
Chairman.

WHITE'S YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION.

The opening meeting of the White's Young People was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson. The Scripture was read by Bill Westfall.

The business for the evening was the election of officers, and the following were elected for the coming year:

President, Bill Westfall; vice-president, Helen Ketcheson; secretary, Cecil Jeffery; treasurer, Marjorie Steeves; organist, Helen Ketcheson; conveners, Christian Fellowship, Bert Bonisteel; Christian Citizenship, Elena Westfall; Christian Missions, Miss Foster; recreation, Bill Falconer; press reporter, H. Ketcheson.

The remainder of the evening was spent by playing croquinole; the prizes being won by Marjorie Steeves and Bert Bonisteel.

Lunch was served and the meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

DOMESTIC USERS GREATLY EASE POWER PROBLEM

Musicipal Systems Highly Praised for Part They Serve in Conservation

Toronto, November 16. (Special) — Voluntary co-operation on the part of domestic consumers in conserving electricity has already greatly "eased" Hydro's power shortage problems.

This fact was made known by Hon. W. L. Houck, vice-chairman of The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, and his fellow commissioner, J. Albert Smith, who joined in expressing warm appreciation to domestic consumers for "this whole-hearted and magnificent effort".

The references to power conservation were made by both members of the commission when speaking at the annual meeting of District No. 4, Ontario Municipal Electric Association in the Engineers Club, Toronto.

While the results to date have been "highly gratifying", the speakers made it clear that complete data on conservation will not be available until the darkest days in December or January when the greatest demands will be made upon Hydro's power resources. If, however, present indications can be accepted as a criterion the commission will be able to take care of these demands created by Ontario's ever-accelerating war production program.

In peacetime, Mr. Smith stated, it was comparatively easy to forecast power loads, but in time of war planning was much more difficult. "To begin with", he said, "we have war loads piling up at irregular intervals, and these must be taken care of as well as the normal trend. We obtain the most reliable information we can from Ottawa, regarding the establishment of new war industries and the nature of their load, and try to plan ahead. But the government, naturally, cannot always tells us twelve months in advance of each new development. New war plants often come into operation ahead of the date scheduled, and at other times they may be several weeks late, with the result that our planning runs into many complications".

Mr. Smith explained that in wartime they had to estimate not only the peak of maximum demand at a given future time, but also the amount of everyday energy in kilowatt-hours.

Both Mr. Smith and Mr. Houck paid tribute to the municipal Hydro systems for the part they had played in the conservation program. Their response, the speakers declared, was deserving of the highest praise for they had shown a willingness to do everything possible to relieve the burdens on the Commission.

COUPLE HAPPILY WED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. William Doxtator, Shannonville, Receive Congratulations

Congratulations are in order today for Mr. and Mrs. William Doxtator, Shannonville, it being the occasion of their 53rd wedding anniversary. The day was spent quietly at their home, owing to the illness of Mrs. Doxtator, who has been in ill-health for the past two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Doxtator were married in Milltown on November 16th, 1889, by the late Rev. Mr. Lewis of the Methodist Church of Shannonville. Mrs. Doxtator is the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Kellar of Milltown. For many years Mr. Doxtator was in the employment of the Canada Cement Company at Point Anne, but is now retired. Mr. Doxtator is now 78 and his wife is 73.

Eight children were born to the happy union celebrated 53 years ago, but only one daughter, Mrs. Cecil McCarthy of Shannonville, survives.

Mrs. Fred Yorke Pres. Gilead W.M.S.

The November meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ralph Lawrenson with an attendance of sixteen members and four visitors.

Worship service was conducted by the president Mrs. Jas. Huffman assisted by Miss Florence Huffman and Mrs. Fred Balcanquel. Mrs. Walter Treverton read the Scripture lesson. Prayer was offered by several members.

A short program was then given when Mrs. Wilfred Clare sang a solo and Mrs. Hubel gave a reading which was followed by Mrs. Fred Yorke singing "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" as a climax to the reading.

The National Anthem and the benediction closed the meeting after which the election of officers was conducted by Mrs. J. Huffman. Mrs. Lawrenson served lunch. Red Cross work was distributed by Mrs. F. Balcanquel. Following is the list of new officers for the next two years:

Officers:

President—Mrs. Fred Yorke.

Vice-President — Mrs. Orland Bertrand.

Rec. Secretary—Mrs. Ralph Lawrenson who is also Press Secretary.

Treasurer—Miss Florence Huffman.

Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. James Huffman.

Christian Stewardship and Finance—Mrs. D. Hubel.

Strangers Secretary—Mrs. Guy Leavens.

Missionary Monthly Secretary — Mrs. W. Treverton.

Pianist—Mrs. E. Yorke and Assistant, Miss Annie Clare.

Temperance Secretary — Mrs. Gerald Swan.

Group Leaders—Mrs. John Ross and Mrs. Wilfred Clare.

Girls in Wartime Washington Find There's No Time for Reflection—Official Order Removes Mirrors.

Among the girls who came to Washington to help win the war, there is a growing feeling that Uncle Sam has become harder than necessary.

The girls stood up well under the loss of the metal lipstick container when the old gentleman said, "Nothing doing in metal for your pouting lips. That's needed for combat purposes." Depriving the girls of mascara came next. But the boy friends assured them that sweeping lashes looked better without the beeded effect.

But this last "outrage" is too much. Uncle Sam has actually removed mirrors from the ladies' rest rooms in temporary buildings occupied by the War Department. Rumor says every mirror in every government department will follow.

The Public Buildings Administration, which is in charge of the structures, removed the mirrors at the request of the War Department and now Washington's various wartime agencies have become so many Wailing Walls.

"Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned," says the proverb—and the ultimate limit of scorn is to deprive a woman of the means of putting her makeup on straight. What if one cheek blooms like a wild rose and the other one is redder than a Winter apple? Perhaps her Cupid's bow mouth is hitched high on one side, conveying saucy laughter, and is down-hearted on the other. Has she forgotten to powder her nose or has it been dusted to sepulchre whiteness?

Rumors concerning the withdrawal of the mirrors are thicker than those which have to do with the national war effort. One circulated report says the reason for mirror-removal in the War Department building is that the work accomplished by women did not measure up to the time expended. So they got in one of those fiends in human form—the efficiency expert! Then came the order: "Remove all mirrors and stop the preening."

Chorus of indignation swelled to a mighty crescendo. The mirrorless ladies of Washington have begun to have the slightly cock-eyed look that is synonymous with modernstic art.

A second rumor cooked up quickly declared that, to win the war, the Government needed the quicksilver on the backs of mirrors.

Still, the Wailers at the Wailing Wall declined to believe. Then a sanitary expert undertook the business of pacifying them. He said the mirrors were taken down because the pipes in the building were getting clogged up with hair and bobby pins, "creating intolerable sanitary conditions."

Whatever the reason for the removal, many young ladies in our National Capitol are discovering that beauty is as beauty does — and it's not done with mirrors.

What Form of Name on Your Christmas Cards?

You are going to order your Christmas cards?

Before you go you should do some definite thinking as to what you want your Christmas cards to mean to those to whom you are going to send them. If you are going to order only one kind of card, as the majority of people do, this decision is particularly important.

Before you go to order your cards, you should decide what form of name you wish to use—whether the formal or the informal name—and you should know when it is correct to use the form of name you choose.

Also before you go, remember that the tendency nowadays is definitely away from sending formal Christmas cards, and toward sending informal cards, which, because they carry the informal first names, are appropriately personal for the interchange of the greetings of friends. A formal Christmas card, engraved or imprinted with the formal name — Mr. and Mrs. John Formalpeople—has a perfunctory air that lacks the warmth of close friendliness.

Then, when you go, choose a formal card with a formally-worded message, if you've decided to use your formal name; and choose an informal card with an informally-worded message if you've decided to use your informal name. Don't be so unwise as to think that because you see a certain form of name imprinted on the particular sample card you have chosen, you must follow that particular form for your name. You'll see hundreds of informal cards imprinted with the formal name; don't be misled by this and order the cards "as is", when you really want to use your informal name.

When your relatives and friends, and even acquaintances, open your informal Christmas cards, to be greeted with your informal message and your informal name, they will have the feeling that you have sent them a personal little note with a friendly handsake to accompany your good wishes.

If you really want your Christmas cards to achieve this friendly personality, choose the card that appeals to you—a card with an informal message. Have your informal name imprinted at the end of the message . . . Mary and John Holiday, or Carol Holiday, or Peter Holiday. This is all natural, and friendly, and undoubtedly expresses your relationship to those to whom you are sending Christmas greetings.

This is the important thing to remember: when your card and the message on it are informal, you use the informal name after the message, like the signature at the end of a letter. This name is your signature — and a signature has no title before the name. This rule holds true whether your name is engraved or printed, or is an imprinted facsimile of your signature (a very popular form)— or is written by hand.

When the informal names of a married couple are imprinted on Christmas cards, the wife's name usually is first—Mary and John Holiday. This sequence seems more courteous to the wife, and that is why it is usually chosen, even tho' the form "John and Mary" follows the Mr. and Mrs. form.

Instead of using the first names for a husband and wife card, you might like to choose the increasingly popular form for informal cards—"The John Holidays." When children's greetings are included this is a friendly form: "The Holidays—John, Mary, Tommy and Joan". (When children's greetings are included, the father's name comes first.)

Fashion Flashes

IT'S SWELL to stay home if a gal can climb into an elegant yet comfy dinner pyjamas suit. A wonderful model, cut on slim lines, comprises plain black jersey slacks, a pale blue jersey blouse and an all wool ribbed jersey jacket edged with sequined circles.

THERE'S NOTHING so smart and comfortable as the furred tuxedo coat of woolen. Nice to wear over frocks or a suit is a slim coat in natural color fleece with big notched collar, and wide tuxedo front of beaver.

THE REVIVAL of taupe gives us another grand background shade that is unobtrusive and smart. A splendid suit of taupe woolen made on easy lines with one button closing just to the centre of the waist has long rolled revers of matching velveteen, and curved inset panels on either side from under the arm to the hipline.

LOOK OUT for those new blouses that are both pretty and warm. There's a grand shirt in Tattersall checked flannel, its collar and revers down to the waist edged with black Irish crochet lace.

SIMPLY SWELL for cold nights is the verdict anent those pretty woolly shawl scarves. A pretty shawl is a triangular model knitted of purple wool yarn edged with a knitted design of purple wool flowers accented with gold thread.

HEALTH CHATS

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN
President, Chicago Board of Health.

Eliminate Complications by Following Doctor's Advice When Measles Occur

Measles is not a serious disease in itself, except in young babies, but if the doctor's orders are not followed, complications may develop due to other germs waiting to attack the weakened body. Infections with streptococcus and pneumococcus may produce complications that are fatal.

Measles is one of the most contagious of all the diseases and most often affects children from two to five years of age. Newborn babies apparently do not get this disorder very often until to the time they are six months, providing the mothers have had the disease.

Most of those authorities who have investigated measles think that it is caused by a virus so small that it cannot be seen under the strongest microscope. It seems probable, too, that the measles virus gets into the body through the nose and throat and is carried by droplets coughed or sneezed out by a person with the disease. By the time the measles rash appears the disease is apparently no longer contagious.

Measles usually being about ten or twelve days after exposure. The symptoms are like those of any cold. There are sneezing and coughing and the eyeballs are reddened and congested. Tiny spots known as Koplik's spots can be noticed on the lining membrane of the mouth for a day or two before the rash appears. These spots are white and have a red area around them. The patient's temperature at the beginning of the disease is usually about 101 or 102 degrees, and it may get as high as 104 as the disease progresses. The coughing and other symptoms become gradually worse until the rash develops, which is, most often, about three or four days after the start of the disease.

The rash first starts around the hairline and behind the ears. It then spreads to the face and neck and finally to the chest and remaining parts of the body. The spots gradually increase in size and finally large patches form.

Infection of the middle ear is one of the most common complications of measles and mastoid infection also may occur.

There is apparently no vaccine or other substance which will bring about permanent protection against measles. However, if a child, particularly one under two years of age, is exposed to measles, he may at once be given an injection of convalescent serum, that is, blood serum taken from a person who has recovered from measles, or a substance known as immune globulin may be used. This will either prevent the attack or at least make it much milder.

During an attack of measles, the child should be kept at rest in bed. The room should be quiet and well ventilated. It should not be too brightly lighted, but there is no need to keep the room in total darkness. The sulfanimide drugs, which have been found so helpful in other conditions, seem to be of no value in the treatment of measles, but probably are of some help in preventing complications of this disease.

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Association of the United Church at Shannonville, met at the home of the president, Mrs. Sam Elliott, on Wednesday, November 11th., with seventeen ladies in attendance. Mrs. Everett Stratton, group leader, was in charge of the meeting. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Claude Clarke and Mrs. E. Stratton read lesson thoughts. A reading was given by Mrs. C. Boulstridge. Mrs. E. Stratton gave a reading on the new world order and offered prayer.

Mrs. Elliott took charge of the business and welcomed the members and visitors. Mrs. W. D. Robertson, secretary, read a letter of thanks from Mrs. Stickney at the time of her sister's death. Mrs. Elliott expressed thanks for the card sent at the time of her nephew's death. Plans were made for the annual bazaar to be held at the church hall and the ones who helped last year are asked to do the same work again. Collection amounted to $2.94 and for the card fund 81c. After the closing hymn the W.A. benediction was repeated in unison. The hostess and her assistants served delicious refreshments and a social time was enjoyed. The thanks of all present are due Mrs. Elliott for her kind hospitality.

HER STRANGE WAKING-UP FROM A 'DREAM ROMANCE'

The experts tell us most women cherish male 'ghosts' they wish they'd married (a composite of Henry Ford, Clark Gable and Casanova) and in this case the pretty blonde said she found she'd married a 'dream man,' but he had a double chin!

By LILLIAN VERGARA

1—When Glory, today, above, finally discovered she had literally been living two lives, she blamed it on amnesia. She didn't remember her husband No. 2.

IN HOLLYWOOD, blonde Glory Weller Miller, drives her car along a dimly-lit boulevard, suddenly jams on the brakes and, looking wildly about her, asks herself with startled amazement:

"Who am I?"

Subsequent events developed not only the episode of her identity but the fact that she has a double-chinned husband whom she said she couldn't recognize, at last not right away, and whom she insisted she couldn't remember marrying . . .

In New York, another attractive woman finds herself in a divorce court, listens with seeming astonishment as her husband describes her jaunt with another man.

"I can't remember a thing about it," says raven-tressed Beverley Croft. "I was in a trance."

To many, the whole idea is startling . . . That a woman could live in the marital state for six months and not know it! That a woman could tour the country for days . . .

And yet, when one listens to the mind experts, there's nothing fantastic about it. For where their love lives are concerned, these brain experts tell us, many women live more or less in a dream world. And, if you'll take the word of that internationally famous psychologist, Dr. Thomas L. Garrett, their emotional journeyings frequently make kindergartners out of the puzzled and puzzling Glory Millers and the Beverley Crofts of the world.

Of course, the good doctor admits, the greater number of the bemused females who live in their "dream worlds" don't use such terms as amnesia or schizophrenia or any of the other scientific phrases which come to mind in such discussions. As a matter of fact, in most cases they're hardly aware that they're living a "dual existence." But Glory Weller Miller was different in that respect. Not that Glory had anything to conceal. Far from it. It was just very confusing.

Here was Glory, as we said a while back, driving peacefully along in her car when, suddenly, as she explained later, something inside her "seemed to snap." She realized, she said, that the car she was driving wasn't her own, that her luggage wasn't her own and that . . . but what was her own, anyway? Who was she? It was disconcerting.

Glory solved the first step in her problem by driving until she reached a tourist camp. There she stopped and asked the help of a somewhat startled manager. But he couldn't help for, of course, he didn't know her from Eve. He suggested, however, that she rest and when she did so, he telephoned the police. Then the excitement really began.

Glory, it seems, answered perfectly the description of a Mrs. Betsy Miller, reported missing by her husband 24 hours previously. So a couple of nice officers hustled down to get her and gallantly escorted her to her waiting and worried husband. And that's when Glory discovered, she said, that she didn't know her husband! Mr. Miller, who's a photographer by profession, couldn't get this picture at all.

After a while, however, Glory did manage to clear up a lot of things which she didn't know she had forgotten. For one thing, she could remember that ten months before, she'd been widowed by the death of H. Pierce Weller, husband No. 1, a retired newspaper publisher, from Binghamton, N. Y. Weller, she said, had shot himself over her but she wouldn't say why. And then everything went blank. For ten months she'd lived in another world—a dream world so to speak. But, insisted photographer Miller, it was no dream to him and he had married her—out in Las Vegas, Nevada, and on May 1, 1942, as the records would prove. Later Glory was convinced, but at that moment she made a classic feminine remark:

"But he has a double-chin. I can't imagine myself marrying him."

Glory didn't add: "In my right mind." But if you fill in that little gap for her, you have the clue to the female dream world.

As one noted woman writer put it recently: "No woman ever marries the man of her dreams. For if she did, he would be a happy combination of Clark Gable, Job and Henry Ford"—with possibly a touch of a reformed Casanova. The writer stated further that "every woman has her dream husband who doesn't even remotely resemble the gentleman to whom she is wed." Which makes it kind of difficult for the fellow who's paying the bills and sharing the breakfast coffee. But there it is, husbands, even if it is somewhat like living with a spook.

Dr. Garrett attributes this dream lover business to emotional immaturity.

"In very young girls," he says, "it

Less than a year after her strange "tour in trance," there was a reconciliation between Beverley Croft, left above, and her wealthy husband, William H. Croft, Jr. It all happened when William came out a window, above, and landed in a lilac bush three stories below. Beverley found him there and was constant at his side during his hospital stay.

2—Glory, at right, could remember that ten months before she had been widowed by the death of H. Pierce Weller, at left, a retired publisher of Binghamton, N. Y. She could remember nothing at all of her life as Mrs. H. Miller.

3—Then Glory announced that her second husband, Henry Miller, above, had proposed all over again.

is not a serious matter. Every teenage youngster has her 'ideal.' He may be a combination Robert Taylor, Tommy Harmon and General MacArthur—in other words, an impossibility. But as she matures emotionally, she comes down to earth. The 'ideal' is forgotten for a flesh and blood reality.

"It's when she doesn't, after marriage, 'come down to earth,' however, that the trouble begins. Then it is that the 'dream lover' becomes more real than the reality, with the result that marriage becomes a nightmare."

As far as this writer knows, no State has yet found in the hallucinatory lover a ground for divorce, but we do know that in New York, at any rate, judges don't approve of young women going off on extramarital trips while "in a trance." That was proven in the Beverley Croft case of two years ago.

Beverley, the records showed, was married at the time to wealthy William H. Croft, Jr., and was the mother of a year-old daughter. Despite this fact, however, the claim was made that relations in the Croft menage were at the breaking point and, according to an affidavit later filed by Beverley, she entered a sanitarium in Milwaukee because of "distress and strain."

There she met William H. Stewart, second lieutenant, young aviator and one day, "on an impulse," the testimony had it, the pair decided to "go places." They were gone for eight days before Beverley "came to," she related, in a New Orleans hotel to find that her husband was serving her with divorce papers.

Later there was much testimony about drinking and taking sodium amytol tablets but Mr. Croft simply refused to believe her (he put into the court records) when Beverley insisted that the whole trip was "like a nightmare or like watching a moving picture of someone else."

And Supreme Court Judge Sidney Bernstein, who was listening, wasn't very sympathetic either. Young married women, he said, had no business getting into trances.

An aftermath of the strange case was the reconciliation which took place about a year later, after Beverley's husband had allegedly fallen out of a window, so hubring himself that he had to remain in the hospital for several weeks. Beverley herself took the magnate to the hospital and remained constantly at his side. Six months later she departed for Reno, however.

But for Glory Weller Miller everything turned out all right. Despite the fact that she had married her husband during a period of distinct forgetfulness, latest reports have it that she accepted him all over again when he proposed anew.

Double Victories by Three Teams Highlight Weekend Of Fine Hockey in N.H.L.

Wings, Hawks and Bruins Defeat Canadiens, Leafs and Rangers

DETROIT FIRST

Double victories by three teams highlighted the National Hockey League's crowded third weekend of competition.

Detroit Red Wings profited most by the exchanges, defeating Montreal Canadiens 5-2 at Montreal Saturday and 3-1 at Detroit Sunday to slip back into undisputed possession of first place. Chicago Black Hawks climbed to second spot two points behind the Wings with a pair of close triumphs over Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-3 at Toronto Saturday and 5-4 in the wild return engagement on their home ice Sunday.

Boston Bruins rode to their season's first successes, trampling New York Rangers 5-3 in a Saturday home game and repeating the dose 4-3 at New York last night. The double triumph moved Bruins into a fifth-place tie with their beaten rivals.

Former Leafs Star

While Leafs lost ground by their two weekend defeats, players who formerly wore Toronto livery featured three of the six games.

Flash Hollett and Buzz Boll, erstwhile Leaf regulars, fired telling shots in Boston's two-ply killing. Boll scored the fourth and fifth goals in the 5-3 Saturday triumph over Rangers and assisted on two others. Hollett's third-period goal broke a 3-3 tie in the Sunday contest.

Hamill Really Hot

At Chicago the winning goal in Hawks' 5-4 Sunday victory was counted by Bill Thoms, another former Leaf. Toms tallied one other goal while two of the Chicago tallies were sniped by Robert (Red) Hamill, one of the league's hottest scorers so far this season.

Gaye Stewart lessened the gloom somewhat for Leafs by scoring two brilliantly-executed goals, one in each game. Both were the best individual efforts of each game and served to strengthen Stewart's already strong claim for rookie honors.

Veteran Mud Bruneteau sparked Red Wings to the 5-3 triumph over Canadiens Saturday. In the Sunday game the crack Detroit line of Don Grosso, Sid Abel and Eddie Wares showed signs of oldtime form, collecting a goal apiece for the 3-1 verdict.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.)
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Nov. 16. (AP)—Ever hear how Germany Schulz, Michigan's great centre of 1904-08, made an All-American player out of Bill Hollenbach? . . . This is the way Harvard's Dick Harlow tells it: When Penn played Michigan in 1908, Schultz knocked out both Penn centrse in first half. Sub lineman was hurriedly instructed how to pass the ball on five plays, and to make sure the quarterback would not try any others, the coach chalked the numbers of those five on the seat of the new centre's pants. . . On the first scrimmage, Schulz made the centre sit down hard, and when he came up, only one number was legible. . . The quarterback had to keep calling that one —an end run by Hollenbach—and Bill looked so good that he won All-America fame.

Get up and let's celebrate". . . "Celebrate H—" moaned the coach. "I really got hit".

O.R.F.U. PROPOSES EAST-WEST FINAL ON DECEMBER 5

Suggested One Team in East "Bypass" Usual Playoffs

REPERCUSSIONS

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A glimmer of hope for an East-West final emerged from the football committee-rooms today in the wake of an unprecedented suggestion that one Eastern representative "bypass" the usual intersectional playoffs for a semi-final against the Western champion Winnipeg R. C. A. F. Bombers.

In a surprise move, the Canadian Rugby Union announced last night it has proposed that Winnipeg meet the Ottawa City League champions at Ottawa Nov. 28, with the winner to oppose the Ontario Rugby Football Union champions Dec. 5, presumably at Toronto. This would be billed as a Dominion championship contest, even if the two Eastern teams qualified.

The C. R. U.'s action followed a meeting of the O. R. F. U. at which Ontario Union officials said it was found impossible to accelerate Eastern schedules sufficiently to meet the Dec. 1 dealing set by R. C. A. F. authorities for Air Force participation in football.

There were repercussions from all sides, as usual. In Ottawa, an Air Force spokesman said the Dec. 1 deadline was "final" and could not be changed. A Winnipeg club official, meanwhile, said a meeting will be held in Winnipeg today to consider the C. R. U. proposal.

President Denies Charges

In Edmonton, C. R. U. president A. W. Matthews said he had communicated the C. R. U. proposal to the Winnipeg club and then assured a lengthy statement denying charges he said had been made by Andy Lytle, sports editor of the Toronto Daily Star, that the C. R. U. had "ignored warnings of the R.C.A.F. authorities" in failing to telescope Eastern schedules.

Matthews also suggested that "granting there is always the possibility of special military circumstances . . . nevertheless, the opinion seems to be held in a number of quarters that in this particular instance the decision announced so suddenly in Ottawa last week may not have been prompted entirely by the reasons given out."

(In announcing the Air Force ban on football after Dec. 1, an R. C. A. F. headquarters spokesman in Ottawa said last Wednesday that "training requirements" of the R. C. A. F. prompted the deadline.)

Situation Muddled

On the football fronts, the situation is just as muddled. Winnipeg has qualified as Western representatives, but the Ottawa City League terminated its schedule Saturday with Rough Riders and R. C. A. F. team tied for first place. The Ontario Union will complete its schedule next Saturday, and until then its second playoff representative is still in doubt. Toronto Balmy Beach could join R. C. A. F. Hurricanes in the sudden-death eliminations Nov. 28 by defeating Toronto Oakwood Indians. But if Beaches lose, Toronto Navy could take second place with a victory over Hamilton Wildcats. A Beach loss and a Hamilton victory, on the other hand, would leave these two teams in a second-place tie.

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)—Wuxtra! Wuxtra! The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association bars apparently are down. Professionals may obtain reinstatements by the day, week or year at C.A.H.A. wickets. Puzzle: What is a professional?

Bill Gooden, winger with Portage La Prairie's junior hockey champions last season, signed a professional contract with New York Rangers and opened this National League campaign in Toronto. But, although Gooden is reported militarily exempt because of defective hearing, selective service delayed granting him a permit to play in United States. Pending negotiations, Rangers left Bill in Toronto. Then what? Gooden scored the only Niagara Falls goal as Port Colborne beat the Cataracts 3-1 Friday night in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association—an amateur (?) league.

Billy Hewitt, C.A.H.A. registrar, explains Gooden was reinstated by the C.A.H.A. as an amateur for Friday night's game only. And, says Billy, Gooden is still a professional and still with Rangers. Friday amateur, Saturday professional, Sunday amateur, Monday wash day, Tuesday—what? Syl Apps nas tonight off with Toronto Leafs and maybe the Beaverton Rockets could use him for that game with plum coulee.

Ty Cobb Helps Sell Victory Bonds

Detroit, Mich.—Baseballs representing the glamour periods of the Detroit Tigers, contributed by William A. Kuenzel, head of the Detroit News photographic staff, netted $50,000 at a Victory Bond rally here. Ty Cobb, who was in Detroit at the time, autographed five of them.

The balls were salvaged from the 1934, 1935 and 1940. The horsehides World's Series of 1907, 1908, 1909, of more recent Series were liberally autographed but those from the early century bore no signatures, as folks in those years were not autograph-conscious.

Cobb was asked to ink his name on the balls of the Series of 1907, 1908 and 1909, in all of which he played dramatic roles and he also autographed one of more recent vintage which bore the lone signature of Babe Ruth. The latter was purchased for $25,000 in bonds.

TORONTO INDIANS BEAT HURRICANES IN BIGGEST UPSET

Beaches All Alone in Second Place by Lacing Navy

WILDCATS WIN

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Annis Stukus outdid Bill Stukus Saturday — which is something, even or Annis.

There is no hard feeling between Annis, who is captain, quarterback, backfield coach and main driving force of Toronto Oakwood Indians, and brother Bill, an Aircraftman second class who calls the signals for Lew Hayman's Royal Canadian Air Force Hurricanes. But since Bill generally is regarded as one of Canada's top footballers, Annis must have derived extra satisfaction from the way he put brother Bill to shame Saturday.

Indians smothered the hitherto undefeated Hurricanes 15-6 at Varsity Stadium in the season's biggest upset, and all Annis did was collect two touchdowns, a placement, a single and a convert for all the Indian points. Until Saturday, the big, blond Lithuanian had been a little worried by the prospect that he might go through the season without a touchdown for the first time in eight years.

At that, Big Stuke didnt carry all the mail. He had plenty of support from Mickey McDonald, the Mimico-Brampton lacrosse star who tore gaping holes in the R. C. A. F. line every time he carried the ball; from Earl Selkirk, who consistently outkicked Cpl. Fred Kijek and from Doug. Pyzer and Jim Cumming on the halfline and from all the other members of an Indian team which stalled Flyers by the sheer savagery of their tackling. PO. Jack Alexander plunged a yard for Flyers' only touchdown and Kijek added the sixth point in the third quarter.

Beaches Down Navy

The unexpected display of the fifth-place Indians against the leading Hurricanes took all the lustre from the second game at Toronto Saturday — the meeting between Toronto Navy and Toronto Balmy Beach. A Navy victory would have sent them into the Ontario Rugby Football Union's playoffs against Hurricanes, but Beaches rallying behind Bob Cosgrove's stout defensive work and Sammy Sward's long kicking, threw the playoff picture wide open with a 6-0 conquest.

Sward made it a great day for one-man scoring performances by tallying all six Beaches points. He burst through to block OS. Bill Balmer's kick in the third quarter, scooped the ball up on the first bounce and carried to 35 yards for a touchdown. He added the sixth point in the final quarter when his attempted outside kick went for a single.

Wildcats Win

Hamilton Wildcats laced Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers 20-1 at Hamilton in Saturday's third game to add a little more confusion to the playoff race. Two touchdowns by quarterback Hardy Awrey, one by Gordie Miller, two converts and Al Lenard's field goal accounted for the Hamilton points. Doug Smith kicked a touch-in-goal for Kitchener's lone point.

Taking a deep breath, here is the player picture as the teams enter the season's final week: Beaches will play one against Hurricanes if they can beat Indians next Saturday. But if Beaches lose, Navy could take the second place berth by trimming Hamilton. On the other hand, a Beach defeat and a Hamilton victory would leave Wildcats and Beaches in the second-place tie. Oh, well . . . .

BUFFALO BISONS SET HOT PACE

Score Seven Victories in Nine Starts and Lead by Four Points

(By The Canadian Press)

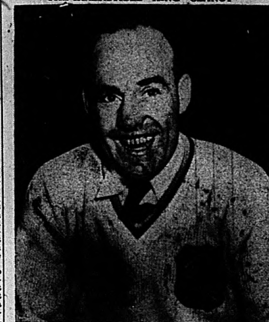
With a record of seven victories in nine starts, Buffalo Bisons are setting a scorching pace in the American Hockey League and lead the circuit's western division by four points.

The Bisons marked up their seventh victory last night, beating New Haven Eagles 4-2 as their best line of M. Rimstad, Fred Kraiger and Max Bennett scored all the goals. The game, played at New Haven, drew a sellout crowd of 4,000.

Meanwhile, Providence Reds walloped Washington Lions 9-5 in the highest-scoring game of the season. The Reds tallied in every period, with Ab Demarco, Pete Horeck and Jack Forsey netting two apiece.

In the third game on last night's card, Hershey Bears barely clung to their eastern lead by playing Indianapolis Capitals to a 1-1 tie. Both goals came within three minutes of each other in the third period. Hank Lauzon scored first for Hershey and Adam Brown netted the equalizer.



In the three games played Saturday night Providence beat Cleveland 5-4, Hershey nosed out Indianapolis 2-1 and Pittsburgh stopped Washington 7-5.

There are no league games scheduled tonight.

Casual Comment by K.J.C.

IT'S CONGRATULATIONS TO the Stirling High School gridders, 1942 senior football champions of their section of the senior Interscholastic COSSA group. Coach Good's Stirling kids dethroned Tweed High School, 1941 Bay of Quinte senior Interscholastic champions, with a sweeping 17 to 0 final game win last week. Coach Good has a courageous band of senior gridders, who have now challenged Albert College for the six-man rights in the COSSA. also and Paul Goyette, district football convener, announced today a sudden death game would be played at Albert College on Tuesday afternoon. Whether or not Stirling's claim to a complete COSSA championship will go unchallenged is not known, but no senior Interscholastic football was played in the Lake Shore nor Georgian Bay districts of the COSSA this fall, so unless Belleville Collegiate rise up and challenge Stirling, Coach Good's twelve naturally become senior COSSA rugby champions for 1942.

HOWEVER, IT'S A DIFFERENT ulcture in the abbreviated six-man game, with Albert College claiming the senior title, and Stirling not letting the issue go unchallenged. Early in the season the Stirling kids, playing their first six-man game, battled Paul Goyette's sextette to a 13-all exhibition draw here, but Bob Taylor wasn't booting 50-yard field goals, nor was Zeke Ballantyne tearing holes in the "northerners" line in the same manner they vanquished Belleville Collegiate. The challenging Stirling squad has a threatening quartette in Ralph Vandervoort Bert Bastedo, Don McIntosh and Doug Patterson, but they'll doubtlessly find strong line opposition in Bob Rankin, Bill Lougheed, Don Ridout and Bill Ardiel to test their grid iron strategy. At the time of writing Tuesday's game seems to be the climax of Interscholastic football in the Quinte area and should attract a goodly patronage, as a holiday is being declared in Stirling so the good people of that village can attend.

IT IS RUMOURED FROM Tweed the Stirling kids use the "Sally Rand reverse" as their pet offensive. This play requires a speedy right halfback, as the quarterback receives the ball from centre and starts what appears to be an orthodox right end sweep. However, the right halfback preceeds him for five or six steps, then suddenly turns and takes the pigskin striking out alone around the opposite or left end. All others continue to draw the defence line and secondary toward them giving the ball carrier a clear field. It's a pretty piece of ball carrying when executed properly, but such ground attack in six-man football usually doesn't cope with a prolific aerial attack, as possessed by Coach Goyette's Alberts. Tuesday will provide the answer.

5-Year-Old Boy Victim Of Brutal Assault; Suspect Apprehended

Trenton (Special)—A five-year-old boy was brutally and criminally assaulted in a box car at the rear of the C.N.R. down-town station by a tall brown five-thirty and six o'clock on Saturday afternoon. He was found by a local resident, who was returning to his home from work and talking a short cut across the railway tracks. Police were called and they rushed the child to the office of Dr. F. J. Farley, where he was given immediate attention, and later taken to his home, where the doctor stated that with good care he would soon be on the road to recovery.

All police were notified and a search was immediately instituted and it was only a matter of a few minutes, when they received a second call a few blocks from where the first assault took place. There a young girl of sixteen was grabbed by a would-be assailant but managed to wrench herself free and escape. The girl gave the police a description of the assailant, and shortly after this incident Constable Morgan picked up a man and detained him. Since then police have been busy gathering evidence in both cases.

Dr. J. B. McKay, pathologist of Belleville, made a hurried trip to Trenton in connection with the child who had been assaulted. It is understood that he is making the necessary laboratory tests. Having a pathologist in this locality is a great assistance to police.

In talking with the head of the Trenton police force he was loud in his praise of the splendid work done by constable Morgan and other members of the police force as it was just about ten minutes from the time the child was found until the assailant was apprehended.

Hoover Advocates Agriculture Secretary As Food Administrator

Philadelphia, Nov. 16—(AP)—Appointment of the agriculture Secretary Claude Wickard as United States Food Administrator with complete control of a "more and more production" program are advocated by former President Herbert Hoover in a letter made public today.

"The lack of co-ordination and the conflict between government bureaus are now inciting and will even reduce rather than increase our animal products," he said in the letter to editor Wheeler and Millen published in the December issue of farm, journal and farmer's wife. The former President stressed he is "not discussing personalities, but the complete necessity to consolidate functions and authorities."

Hoover, who won international recognition as Food Administrator during the first great war said that "while our grain supplies are ample there must be unified and strong action if supplies of meats and fats generally are to be maintained in ample quantities. Their greatly-increased production is as imperative in the battle of war as are guns and ships."

RESERVE ARMY

Sources of Legal Authority

Some time ago Defence Minister Ralston said there was no political or legal obstacle standing in the way of compulsory service for the reserve. The two sources of legal authority for his application are the Militia Act and the National Resources Mobilization Act. Under either one men can be required to serve part-time in the reserve just as they can be required to serve full-time in the Active Army, officials said today.

For months past the reserves have been carrying on active recruiting campaigns in an effort to bring all units up to full strength. Because of physical fitness, domestic obligations, or matters of employment, are not open to the call to the army.

Many reserve units have reached full strength by such recruiting but many others are still short of quota.

One of the problems to be settled, when and if conscription is decided upon is the method of selecting the men to be called, the reserve army does not need and cannot handle anything like the number of men who are suitable for service in it.

Some system of picking the number of men required to fill up the different units, in the areas in which the units operate, will have to be worked out.

Farmers Likely Largely Unaffected

The reserve army is not interested in men who live at a distance from units, and it was said farmers are likely to be affected to any great extent.

It is possible the names of the men who are declared eligible for service in the reserve in each area may be put in a hat and the number of names required may be drawn. If instead of a lottery system a selective system should be chosen, the names might be turned over to the officers commanding units requiring men.

These officers could then select the men they wanted.

Under the intensified training program now in effect throughout the reserve army, men are required to attend training parades two evenings a week, a two-week camp during the summer, and occasional Sunday or week-end manoeuvres.

They are issued with uniforms and are getting an increasing amount of training equipment, including trucks, machine guns, mortars and other weapons. They draw pay during the first year of $1.30 per day for a private soldier and are provided with meals when on day-long parades.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on our front steps with pop before supper and old Admiral Trickett started to go passed carrying 2 bagsfull from the grocer for his wife.

"Say, Admiral, how are you? In good health, I trust, he said.

"I am very well and always expect to be, but I dont advise you to take no one just now, I'm so and I'm not fit to be talked to, Admiral Tricker said, with pardonable pride.

"Say, Admiral, I see where you are piling young man just sold me these groceries, a fine looking chap just the type to be bearing arms in his country's defence. Yes here he is, gaindly paddles a quarter pound of tea across a counter, and it makes every drop of patriotic blood boil in my veins, he said.

Yes, there's enuirely too many lea pushers still out of uniform, probably, pop said, and Admiral Trickett said the country is cluttered with shirkers and slackers of the wrist caliber, and what do the people in authority do about it? Nothing, absolutely nothing, and I ask you why? he said.

Because they're in authority, no doubt, pop said, and Admiral Trickter said, I only wish I had a son to sacrifice for my country, but at least I have a nephew, and I've personally seen to it that he's in the thick of things. He's a perfect specimen of manhood with more muscels in his back and shoulders than most men have in their whole body. He's given up his good job in the Mc Guffy Health Center and now he's traveling around from camp to camp exhibiting his muscels to the soldiers and giving them talks on clean living. He spends most of his time in Canada, although they're very subject to colds, but he does it cheerfully and I'm proud of him, Admiral Tricks said.

And he kept on going still looking proud, and pop said, That old man always gives me a queer empty feeling, let's go in and see if supper's ready.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Devil Bat"

(First Belleville Showing)

"Devil Bat" which was awarded the Chicago Horror Club's gold medal as "best horror film of the year" is a sensational spine-tingling thriller, now playing at the Capitol, wherein Lugosi as a vengeance-bent genius develops the "Devil Bat," a hideous killer, to seek revenge on his enemies. Cities everywhere are unanimous in their praise of this production and Lugosi himself confessed that he believed it far superior to "Dracula" in suspense and horror.

In the film, Lugosi not only creates this monstrous blood-sucker but in it, inculcates a fear and hatred for the scenic of certain perfumes, then sprinkles his victims with the tell-tale perfume. The "Devil Bat" does the rest. How an intrepid reporter and his photographer pal take up the trail and finally bring the madman to justice, makes one of the most thrilling and interesting moving pictures of the year.

"Escape"

"Escape," the Ethel Vance best-seller which held thousands of readers enthralled by its suspense, comes to the Capitol screen as one of the most gripping adventure stories of all time, its collective cast headed by Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor, reaching the peak of their performances in the dramatic characterizations.

Miss Shearer has never done finer work than as the world-weary Countess von Ostrau, a beautiful butterfly involved in the attempt of ex-actress Emmy Ritter (Nazimova) to effect a death sentence in a concentration camp. The suspense of the following intrigue will hold you spellbound to the last fade-out.

AT THE BELLE

"Desperate Journey"

As timely as the headlines on the pages of this newspaper is the complete, thrilling adventure film which opened Saturday at the Belle Theatre, Thursday, "Desperate Journey." It tells the story of five members of a British Flying Fortress crew who are shot down in Germany and their adventurous journey across Europe toward safety.

The leading roles are Errol Flynn and Ronald Regan, both of whom give excellent performances. The heroines of Reagan combined with the dash of Errol Flynn lends the film a bristling quality that keeps one's avid interest throughout.

The other members (beside Flynn and Reagan) of the crew who are forced down in Germany are played by Alan Hale, Arthur Kennedy and Ronald Sinclair. They are taken to an intelligent officer, played by Raymond Massey, for questioning. Reagan plants a right on Massey's jaw, knocking him cold, and they all make a getaway. When Massey recovers he gives out orders which starts a vast manhunt.

The five travel only at night and make very slow progress. By subduing some Nazi guards and taking their uniforms, they make their progress less conspicuous and it is in this manner, plus some luck that they are able to board a private car attached to a hospital train that is bound for Berlin. An angry Nazi officer, discovering them, kicks them off in the suburbs of the largecity, and is himself severely reprimanded for not having recognized the Englishmen.

Being in a strategic position, and knowing that they might never again have the opportunity, Flynn leads the men on a very dangerous mission. They enter and set fire to the factory that makes Germany's incendiary bombs. While making their escape from this inferno, Ronald Sinclair is seriously wounded.

Flynn, whose knowledge of German has gotten them out of many tight places, locates a doctor through the help of a young German girl, portrayed by Nancy Coleman who comes through with another grand performance and thus lives up to the heaps of praise she received for her "Kings Row" portrayal.

Another woman patient overhears the whispers between Nancy, who hates everything connected with the Nazis, and Flynn. She notifies the Gestapo, who lose no time in wrapping the plan. Although Sinclair dies through the loss of time and blood, the rest get away.

Through the continued aid of Nancy, they manage to elude the Gestapo, even going so far as to steal their own car and driving across the Dutch border where they steal a reconditioned British bomber and head for England.

All interesting newsreel and a clever cartoon, precede the feature attraction.

Glamorous Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas, co-stars of the new romantic-comedy, "They All Kissed the Bride," at the McCarthy Theatre; in addition to the fever-to-be-forgotten thrill hit, "Submarine Raider," featuring John Howard.

AT THE McCARTHY

"They All Kissed the Bride"

The current trend in Hollywood seems to be toward more license in comedy.

With people seeking escape from the grim realities, movie studios are going all out in an effort to give film fans something else to think about.

A pertinent example is Columbia's new comedy, "They All Kissed The Bride," now at the McCarthy Capitol with Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas, in which Director Alexander Hall pulls out all stops and lets everything go.

For instance, he re-popularizes necking. Joan is kissed by practically every male member of the cast in all, there are 78 kissing sequences set to Hall's "Keep 'em short and make 'em snappy" formula.

At other periods in the picture, which effectively combines tender romance with broad comedy, director Hall shows attired in a negligee which might have been constructed for an elephant; Miss Crawford wears a pair of Douglas' pajamas; a Bitterbug contest is held and Rochard Young sings a washer's role aboard a New York subway.

Billie Burke, Allen Jenkins, Andrew Tombes, Helen Parrish and other members of the cast are similarly provided with gay comedy roles in the new film, which is based upon a P. J. Wolfson screen play.

"Submarine Raider"

Also now at the McCarthy Theatre, "Submarine Raider," a never-to-be-forgotten thrill hit of warfare against Nazi U-boats, featuring John Howard and Marguerite Chapman, makes a two-feature program that will give every theatregoer a perfect evening's screen enjoyment.

Tubing invented by a Milwaukee man for fluorescent lights can be bent in any shape without interfering with its effectiveness.

CHAPTER 17
IN PRISON

When Brad Herrick found himself in Sing Sing prison, he was still uncertain as to the right or reason of his being there.

At times he was clear-headed and acutely conscious of the situation. Then he had lapses into that strange wondering mood and asked Bliss what it was all about, and failed utterly to understand what was meant by automatic appeal, and held for trial. He would look blankly at his partner and then make some reply far wide of the mark.

But that phase passed in a few days, and Chadwick was greatly relieved to find his young client becoming rational and able to realize where he stood and what he was up against.

He said little regarding the McCleod tragedy, but was alert and alive to the details of his own business, and had long confabs with Bliss, which amazed that young man by the wisdom and perspicacity with which Herrick seemed to be newly imbued.

To his lack of comforts or convenience he appeared utterly oblivious.

Chadwick, on his first visit, spoke casually of the McCleods.

"How is the old man?" Brand said, rather perfunctorily. "And Hugh?"

"Angus is about the same; Hugh is holding himself together with effort, I think. His sister nearly drives him distracted. When Alma was there Emmy could not interfere much, but now she pesters the life out of her brother. Wade is don't get there much. Wade is there occasionally, still running over Alma's will book."

"What's a will book?"

"It's a notion many women have of jotting down in a little note book, various belongings of theirs, which they wish to have handed over to various friends after their own decease. Such a book has no legal value, but a lawyer feels bound to take care of it for a departed client. Wade and Hugh McCleod are doing their best to follow Alma's directions, and Linda helps them a bit. I have seen many newlymade widowers, but I tell you, Herrick, I have never met such downright grief as McCleod is suffering. Not that he says anything; he is careful to show no emotion, but I can see him clench his hands when I can see his face almost livid with agony as some word of her is spoken or some of her intimate belongings appear suddenly."

"Who does he think did it?"

"I don't think he suspects you any more than the others. But he's pretty sure it was one of Alma's friends. Now, Brad, we are going to save you, if you will help to save yourself."

"I will, Chadwick. Don't think I'm going to let this thing get me. But I do admit I have to adjust to it."

"I know. You are, as yet groping in the dark. You must be shown what to do."

"Can you show me?"

"No; but I propose to get some one who can."

Herrick looked at him curiously. "Why are you so good to me?" he said.

"Perhaps I'd better tell you," Chadwick looked at Brand with a glance almost affectionate.

"There are two reasons," he went on. "One is the simple truth that you are a promising young lawyer, and likely to become an ornament to the profession I follow. Unless you are speedily cleared of this false accusation, it will be a bad thing for you in many ways. The other is the memory of your mother. We were schoolmates when we were about 16 or 17 years old. We were—or thought we were deeply in love, and we told each other that we loved with a love that was more than love, in the words of Annabel Lee." That was in Zhilti's Corners, Michigan."

"Why, that's where my uncle lives!"

"Your great uncle, yes, Jason Welch. His sister Lucy married a Brand, and their daughter Catherine was your mother, Herrick, sweetheart. But—my people moved to New York and her people stayed out west, and fate decreed that we should never meet again. I heard, later, that Catherine Brand had married a Herrick, and you, her son were named Brand because it was your mother's maiden name."

"My mother died when I was 12, and I was sent to live with her sister in Chicago. I remember my mother as being a beautiful woman—

"I remember her as a girl, and as a child. It is because of her memory I am anxious to be friends with her son, and—I want to make you realize that your position is serious. So far I can't see a defence."

"I can do nothing about it. Clarence Bliss, my partner, is ready and willing to do anything in the world he can for me. But he cannot keep our law firm going and at the same time, take steps to find out if I am here on a false accusation or not. You must see that."

"I do see it, Brand, and that is what I'm here to talk to you about. I can get a few favors for you from the authorities. I want something definite done in your case. Not just advice from lawyers, but more active and expert procedure."

"Detective work?" Brand looked up, with a sudden gleam in his eyes that implied hope.

"Yes, just that. And the best."

"Then you mean a private investigator."

"I certainly do. And I believe the one I have in mind would make short work of your detention here."

"Chadwick, you give me a thrill!" "With your permission then, I will get Fleming Stone."

"With my permission? With my unbounded gratitude! And I shall pay you, you know that, even if by instalments!"

"At your leisure. I know success waits for—Kitty Brand's son."

"I have a bit laid by. I feared no disaster, so long as Bliss and I kept together."

But for him alone

"Never mind that, now... And, anyway, I'll give him a lift when he needs it. Now I'm going to the warden's office and telephone Stone and get my wire-pulling. And see where we stand. My boy, we will get you out of this!"

"You're a brick!"

Chadwick had never married. It pulled his eccentric idea of sentiment to save from a possible miscarriage of justice the son of his boyhood love. Besides, he liked the chap. Everybody liked Brand, until it put one, when he was not himself.

Chadwick's coming was at the psychological moment. Never before had Brand needed that sort of friendship and never before had he appreciated it.

He had been dazed, really, by the fact that he was arrested for killing Alma. Chadwick's suggestion of Fleming Stone was like a sudden dazzling confidence to a half-blinded man.

He sat in his forlorn cell, his spirits cheered by the positive belief that he would soon be out of it, and the awful fear would be gone forever.

x—x

Fleming Stone didn't want to take the case that Chadwick offered him. He was worn out with secret service difficult and dangerous work he had been doing lately, and his doctor had told him if he didn't go to Bermuda or some other delce far nlente region, he would be in a hospital before he knew it.

But Stone had not forgotten that about a year ago, he had had an obscure problem to work out and Chadwick had been able to give him information that led to the solution of the puzzle, and Chadwick had gone out of his way to do it. Chadwick had not referred to this in his urgent pleading, never so much as hinted in the slightest degree that Stone was under obligation to him, and so Stone told the lawyer he would look into the matter.

Of course, Chadwick said he didn't want Stone to injure his health, and Stone said he'd take a chance on that, and what were the circumstances.

When Chadwick began to tell him the circumstances Stone said he'd rather not, doesn't; but he up he'd rather not, doesn't; but he up his neck in his double-business because, after all, there's a chance for you of Brand's innocence, but himself."

"And you."

"Yes, but I can give you only conjecture, not facts."

"So Stone went to see Bliss that evening, to save his daylight for him.

"I want'a at the party," Clarence told the detective. "I don't know Mr. McCleod, and since Herrick is—not with me, I have been advised by my counsel that I spend some of the evidential details and know more of any sidelights. I am profoundly thankful you are on the job, Mr. Stone, and I can tell you that it is impossible that Herrick could have done that thing. I don't suspect any man myself, nor another man couldn't do this or that, because really no one did. But Brand Herrick is a superior sort. Few know him as I know him, but, have lived at ed worked with him for four years, and every day I've been learned more fully his fineness and his strength. But I am sure you will find him straight and you will soon see for yourself that I speak the truth."

"Good for you, Mr. Bliss. That's the sort of description of the man I want, now shall I approach him? I don't want to waste time floundering. He be be afraid of me?"

"No, but you may be afraid of him. Sometimes he is ferocious. Thought of gruesome manner, he can hurl six-foot anybody when he chooses. However, I have a notion he'll welcome you as a drowning sailor does a raft. And whatever he says to you, believe it. Because of his leaning toward weggery, he has an uncanny ability to tell lies with a sincerity that compels belief. But this is only in lies. Herrick would no sooner lie in an important matter than he would cut off his right hand. You will see him tomorrow morning?"

"Yes, I think that will be arranged."

Fighting French 'Taking No Part' In Negotiations

London, Nov. 16 (CP). — Gen. Charles De Gaulle and the Fighting French Committee which he heads announced today that they are "taking no part" in Allied negotiations with Vichy representatives in North Africa.

The statement followed a conference between De Gaulle and Prime Minister Churchill. It added that the Fighting French would not accept decisions made by the British and American military leaders in North Africa "should the negotiations result in arrangements which would in effect confirm the Vichy regime in North Africa."

De Gaulle and the committee issued this statement:

"Gen. De Gaulle and the French National Committee announce that they are taking no part whatsoever in and are assuming no responsibility for negotiations [with] Vichy in North Africa with representatives of Vichy.

"Should the conversations result in arrangements which would in effect confirm the Vichy regime in North Africa such decisions could obviously not be accepted by fighting France.

"The unity of all French territories overseas in the struggle for liberations should be achieved in conditions consonant with the will and dignity of the French people".

The Prime Minister's talks here with the fighting French leader followed the announcement that a British diplomatic advisers had reached North Africa to help clear up the confusing situation arising after Darlan one-time collaborationist and Fighting French leader had been entrusted with French civil functions.

From Vichy came a broadcast in the name of Marshal Petain declaring that Darlan had been dismissed from all public functions and all military authority, which was in contradiction to Darlan's own contention that actually his authority came from Petain.

The fighting French are known to be cool toward recognition of Darlan who, they say failed France at a critical time when he decided to the French people which he can never repay.

Police Rescue Quebec Couple

Manlwaki, Que., Nov. 16—(CP)—A married couple whose names Quebec Provincial Police said for release were rescued Sunday by officers from a half-open, tumbledown shack in the bush 24 miles north of here today.

The couple, who had only one loaf of bread to eat during the preceding week, were found by Detective Claude Bernard and two guides. They were treated for exposure in hospital here.

It was learned that a week ago they had moved into the bush from a settler living three miles away, and took with them only a loaf of bread. Neither had enough clothing or sufficient strength to make another trip through the bush for food.

Three of the shack's windows were missing, and the roof leaked. A small stove supplied the only warmth.

Asked why they had stayed there, the police said the couple hoped to "plough it out" until he obtained work in the bush, but food ran out before he got a job. His wife is 37.

Hospital officials said the man had not been physically fit for work for some time past, and expressed amazement that he and his wife had been able to live as long as they had.

$500,000 Damage In Fire at Pontiac

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 16 (AP) — Two firemen were injured and damage estimated unofficially at more than $500,000 resulted from a fire that destroyed the building and stock of the Chase Department Store, this morning.

Some damage also was done to an F. W. Woolworth store adjoining when part of the roof of the five-storey Chase building crashed through the roof of the Woolworth structure. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

WAR SHIPMENTS TO RUSSIA TOTAL $100,000,000

Over Half is in Tanks, Says Hon. C. D. Howe, Munitions Minister

CANADA'S PRODUCTION

By J. P. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 16 (CP).—Canadian shipments of war supplies to Russia total $100,000,000 with tanks alone making up half that figure, Munitions Minister C. D. Howe said here today.

Here to attend the first meeting of the combined production and resources board since Canada was elected to full membership, Howe said Canada will reach peak wartime production in 1943.

He said manpower shortages are approaching in the lumbering industry, base metal mines and steel mills but, by and large, Canada is making full use of the women in war plants.

Canada, he said, is spending in excess of 50 per cent of her national income to finance war effort. The output of munitions is divided roughly as follows: 30 per cent to Commonwealth needs; 30 per cent to British theatres of war, including Russia; 30 per cent to the United States and Pacific battle zones, including China.

Canada in 1942 will reach $2,500,000,000 and in 1943, $3,500,000,000 worth of munitions, Mr. Howe said. The war supplies, from planes, tanks and guns to ammunition and explosives, from chemicals and steel to vast quantities of base metals, the minister added.

One million tons of merchant shipping will be built in Canada's shipways this year and the 1943 program calls for 1,500,000 tons. This is in addition to the destroyers, corvettes, mine sweepers and other naval vessels being constructed in the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and along the Great Lakes.

As an indication of the importance of this industry to Canada, about 40 per cent of all the escort work in the Atlantic, between North America and Great Britain and Russia, is done by the Canadian Navy in Canadian waters.

$60,000th Vehicle

Canada will turn out its 500,000th war vehicle this year. Only 11 per cent are being retained for Canada's own forces, Mr. Howe said. The remainder are shipped overseas to every theatre of war, including Russia, the Middle East.

Many types of aircraft are being built in Canada, the monthly rate of production being 650. The aircraft program involves the expenditure of $209,000,000 this year, largely for plant construction and machine tool trainers to combat planes, with assembling of 1,000 bombers and training boats, the 1943 program calls for the expenditure of $385,000,000.

Canada makes few shipments direct to Russia, Mr. Howe said, except to Canadian forces stationed there. As a rule, shipments go direct to the United States for the account of the $100,000,000 worth of tanks and other supplies sent to Russia but the total is reflected in British shipments because Canada is fulfilling a part of Britain's promise to Russia from its original Moscow protocol. The financing has been arranged between Moscow and Ottawa.

As one illustration of how Canada has stepped up production of metals, the minister said aluminum production has increased nearly from 95,000 tons before the war to 300,000 tons today. Canada's fabrics of the $100,000,000 worth of tanks and other supplies sent to Russia but the total is reflected in British shipments because Canada is fulfilling a part of Britain's promise to Russia from its original Moscow protocol. The financing has been arranged between Moscow and Ottawa.

Changes Expected

How and when changes in there would be many changes in Canada's war production as a result of his conferences with Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the United States War Production Board, and Oliver Lyttelton, the British minister of production, the two-members of the combined production and resources board, was expected the Canadian program would be changed to bring it more conformity with the strategic needs of the United Nations as a whole, and only in the production of finished munitions but of raw materials as well.

The combined production board, now composed of representatives of Canada, the United States and Britain, will give way to a tripartite joint Canadian-American production board, he said, which will deal not only with integrating the wartime industries of the two countries.

Shepherd transferred to the Royal Canadian Air Force being formed by the Canadian Army.

Does Not Show Up On Any Pay Day! Puts Pay in War Bond

Chanute Field Ill., Nov. 16 (AP)— When pay day rolled around for Private Jack Lee, army air forces technical training command school here, he didn't show up for his money.

Officers questioned Brantner, a former lumberman and stunt flier from Portland, Ore. He explained that the army clothed and fed him, he didn't drink or smoke, so there's so what did he want with money?

At the officers' suggestion, he purchased war bonds with his accumulated $100 in pay and allotted almost his entire future pay also to war bonds.

A Word to the Wise

Shop Early For Christmas

Carry Away
A Gift A Day
From Eaton's

This year, as never before, there's a definite necessity behind the suggestion, "SHOP EARLY FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS."

Early shopping will help relieve transportation facilities restricted by wartime requirements.

Early shopping will help regulate our service to you at the most difficult period of the year—at a time when so many salespeople and store service people are away on war service, or otherwise engaged in wartime jobs.

Early shopping will assure you best selection at a time when deliveries from producers are not as dependable as during normal times.

Watch our advertisements for suggestions for useful and seasonable gifts for your men in the services, for other members of your family and for friends whom you wish to remember and really do your Christmas shopping early this year.

U.S. NAVY SMASHES JAP ARMADA IN SOLOMONS

23 Nipponese Ships Sunk, 7 Damaged In 3-Day Battle

Possibly 20,000 To 40,000 Jap Troops Lost in Swirl Of Sunken Transports

CLOSE-RANGE FIGHT

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Navy Secretary Frank Knox said today the United States clearly had won "round two of the battle of the Solomon Islands, but that it "must not be forgotten" there may be a round three.

He called last week's American naval victory, which cost the Japanese 11 warships and 12 other vessels sunk and seven ships damaged —a major action, but yet a decisive one.

"We have at the moment," Knox said in response to a press conference question, "clear supremacy around Guadalcanal."

He declined to claim more advantage than that strategically, but, commenting on the over-all result of the engagement, said it leaved American forces "in complete and undisputed possession of the (Guadalcanal-Tulagi) area and of the island of Guadalcanal and the airfield there, and has cleared the enemy very severe losses both in ships and personnel.

Hurtful to Jap Navy

The effect of these losses, Knox said, obviously will be hurtful to the Japanese navy, but he declined to say the Japanese navy had been crippled.

"No doubt," he said, "the processes of attrition operate more against them than against us. I remember that we built faster with our greater resources than they did, and remember also that the Japanese operate pretty much in home waters and strike from there. Our navy is spread all over the seven seas. The Japanese navy has suffered severely to date it is still operating in comparatively narrow waters."

Asked whether, if the Japanese come back to the southeastern Solomons with a strong naval force, United States forces would again defeat them. Knox said "we will defeat them—I don't know when or in what action."

Knox said that the enemy had had numerical superiority in the theatre of action during the period of the battle ending last week and "I can not speak too high praise of the qualities displayed by the navy in this action," the secretary said.

Nimitz, Halsey, Callaghan and others not only met and drove from the island numerically superior force but also they employed the most daring type of strategy to accomplish that result," he said in naming the admirals largely concerned.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz is commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, Vice-Admiral William F. Halsey is commander of the South Pacific area, and Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan, former White House naval aide, was one of the commanders in the battle. He was killed in action.

Solomons Victory Gives Australia Much-Needed Relief

Canberra, Australia, Nov. 17 (CP)—Norman J. M. Makin, Australian Navy and Munitions Minister, said today the United States navy's victory in the Solomon Islands is a momentous event and will relieve Australia of the needed relief from the possibility of invasion.

"This is but the first round of what may be a much-extended fight for freedom in the Pacific area," Makin said, warning that, while the new victory "should be the most encouraging" since start of the war, the Japan, Australia nation should not be lulled into complacency.

At Melbourne, Prime Minister John Curtin said he is "grateful to the United States for the magnificent forces used in this important theater" of the war.

GERMANS "DRIVEN BACK"

London, Nov. 17 —(CP)— Reuters quoted the Algiers radio as reporting the Germans "are being driven back in the first clash between the British and Axis reconnaissance forces in Tunisia.

Enemy Forces Either Destroyed or Driven Back Says Admiral Of Pacific Fleet

WILL EXPEL JAPS

(By WALTER B. CLAUSEN)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Pearl Haror, T.H., Nov. 17 (AP) —Japan's naval hordes swept down on the Solomon Island 13 days ago in their effort to smash United States power in the South Pacific.

Full details of those bitter sea engagements northwest of Guadalcanal Nov. 12-15 are not known.

"I think they brought everything they had", said Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet.

"As a result, all the enemy forces were either destroyed or driven back and a major victory was obtained by our gallant forces".

"As a result, he said, he is certain the victory will result in the immediate strengthening of the hold of the United States and its allies on Guadalcanal and the eventual expulsion of the enemy from that strategic island.

"The Japanese on Guadalcanal, he said, are suffering from lack of two things: food and ammunition.

They have lands of men in the upper reaches of the island with radio equipment, which gives them the advantage of having reports on everything we do, all our plans and ship movements and almost complete data on our operations and forces", he told newsmen.

Canadian Army Asks More Letters For Servicemen

Ottawa, Nov. 17 (CP) — The Canadian (Active) Army, noting that "many relatives are neglecting a patriotic duty to write frequently," said today it has asked the Canadian Chaplain Service to enlist the aid of churchmen in "combating the fear of "writeawhile" letters to servicemen.

"Keep your letters cheerful," was the effort, the army's advice to correspondents.

"It's the little things at home that make the soldier's interests, outside his military duties," it suggested, as possible letter topics, questions like: "Who's the goalie on the hometown hockey team? What's doing on main street? Has the pet cat dived on the farm? And, who's running for mayor?"

DRIVE TO POSTPONE U.S. GAS RATIONING

Washington, 1 ov. 17, (AP)—A concerted drive to postpone the rationing of gasoline throughout the United States, scheduled for December 1, was reported by its backers today to have gained momentum in Washington.

Rationing now is in effect only in 17 Eastern States.

(Gasoline rationing has been effective throughout Canada for some time.)

Even if Mirth is Ironic, Bitter, Norwegians Are Laughing Anyway

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 17 — (CP) — It is hard to laugh in German-occupied Norway — unless you are a German. Yet, the Norwegians are laughing anyway, even if their mirth is ironic, bitter, at times.

The pent-up emotions of a people who have been long depressed, and who are seeing their cherished monuments of hand and brain trampled under foot by the Nazis in the mudding and befouling of their country.

The new humor of Norway, say spokesmen of the Royal Norwegian Government in England, has arisen because of, and revolved around, the German occupation.

"The new humor is aimed at the whole infectious farce of the 'new order' which promised the 'golden era' but which has provided only grinding poverty and misery and death that the spirit of man is confounded," said a spokesman.

They tell of a minor clergyman, a follower of Vidkun Quisling who was appointed "Bishop" of Bergen and who was ordered to preach to his former friends refused to greet her any more, one of them was fined for "impoliteness."

Now, so the story goes, the whole population of Bergen greets her. She cannot appear on the streets without being greeted by seeing devoutly; she enters a bus all passengers jump up and pay profound obeisance. There has been a big scale of arrests in Norway because say government officials, that all of the Nazis have become embarrassing to remain free. The humor, it is said, gives rise to this story, told in cafes and meeting places, of a man who wanted to be arrested because so many of his friends were in prison and had, because of that, become elderly and dear.

This man cried: "Long live the King" on a train. All that happened was that the conductor told him he need not pay his fare.

PORT OF DERNA, MEKILI OCCUPIED BY BRITISH ARMY

Rommel's Shattered Forces Stretched Along Road From Bengasi to Agheila

BOMBERS GROUNDED

Cairo, Nov. 17 — (AP) — British troops occupied the port of Derna, 180 miles short of Bengasi, and Mekili yesterday and other units of the British 8th Army swept by to pursue the broken army of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel along the Libyan coastal road, it was announced today.

The position of Rommel's shattered forces was not given in today's short communique, but they were last reported stretched out along the road from Bengasi to El Agheila with the mass of his battered trucks and equipment apparently in the El Agheila area, some 400 miles from the main Axis base at Tripoli.

Bad weather interrupted the strafing and bombing activities of the R.A.F. but 15 enemy aircraft were destroyed in aerial combats and the Allied troops apparently enjoyed their first day of rest from aerial attacks in more than two weeks.

Junkers-88 Shot Down

In the only aerial activity reported, a German Junkers-88 was shot down by British fighters off Port Said, at the entrance to the Suez Canal, the British aircraft was lost during this fight.

The communique indicated that the main pursuit of Rommel continues unabated, British forces are taking their prisoners and have captured positions in Libya thoroughly before extending themselves too much. Mekili, occupied yesterday, is about 45 miles inland from Derna, and no export made almost useless for even small ships by continued bombing.

There was no further indication of the progress of the regrouping to make a stand in the El Agheila region as suggested earlier by German sources, but there was a big indication whether the Axis forces had completed their evacuation of Bengasi, which was still under aerial attack Monday.

Axis forces still in the Bengasi region face the possibility of being cut off by land.

The whereabouts of Rommel's remaining airplanes — if any — are not known, for United States Middle East headquarters said its fighters and bombers of Desert skies yesterday without finding a sign of an enemy plane.

BOTH CARS DEMOLISHED ON RAILWAY CROSSING

Middletown, Ind., Nov. 17 —(AP) —Mary Ginger owned both automobiles—a "jalopy" he drove to the factory and a new Sunday "hustler." His sedan stalled, so he went back for the "jalopy" and started on his way to his sedan home. The old car stalled at a railroad crossing in the path of a fast express with the tracks. Clinger jumped to safety, then threw down along and demolished both cars.

Germany Enters Third Winter of War Under Burden of Scarcities

The following article by Edwin Shanke, analyzing the Nazi position on the home front as the start of another winter, Shanke is a former member of The Associated Press staff in Berlin and now is stationed in London.

By EDWIN SHANKE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 17 — (AP) — Allied blows in North Africa struck Nazi Germany at a time when it was entering the grimmest winter of the war.

From the standpoint of five determining factors of war—military, economic and political strength, tenacity of Allies and morale—Germany is at a crossroads.

It is not a question of a turnip winter" like that in 1917 which prepaged the fall of Imperial Germany. Goering has told the world the suppressed peoples will starve before Germany does.

But Germany has eaten through her reserves despite the stringent rationing. The year's overall harvest is reported to be only 80 per per cent of normal, although the German army is now killing 1,000,000 more acres than last year when the harvest was 15 per cent below average.

Disorganized by war, flood, drought, peasant hoarding and guerilla warfare, the rest of Europe is producing only 80 per cent of total wheat production is down 500,000 tons to 6,000,000 tons. Germany has ordered the French to double their deliveries to the Reich despite the recent loss of African supplies. Italy can barely squeeze through with its 1,000,000 tons.

The Balkans, supposed to be the Nazi granary, will have barely enough food for themselves.

Redefine From Ukraine

The Nazis are claiming nothing from the Russian Ukraine this year. Finland, Poland, Belgium, Norway and Greece are Europe's black spots, with young and old sinking under food deficiencies and disease.

The war in Russia has proved a tremendous drain of economic reserves for Germany and blockaded Europe, instead of filling the reservoir as the Nazis had hoped.

The North African occupation has cut off Germany's access to phosphates —irreplaceable as' fertilizer—oil, vegetable oils, manganese, antimony, wool, cotton, fresh fruits and vegetables. Besides it has closed at least in the blockade through which Hitler was getting his eastern exports such as rubber."

Hitler has exhausted his own labor. Six million foreigners—one in every four workmen—are engaged in Germany, but they are mostly of low efficiency. The strain of back to back wars in France where Frenchmen have declined to help the Nazis.

Long Hours Telling

Meanwhile, with the Reich sunk in long hours, R.A.F. raids and war conditions on the decline and standards of the industrious German workers is beginning to tell in decreasing efficiency and output.

An iron and steel shortage in the Ruhr district are estimated by the Germans to be at 1,250,000 tons in Germany's steel production.

The quality of the steel the quality is being diluted. After four years of high-speed war production, machinery is beginning to balk, due to normal wear and tear and lack of parts to make replacements.

Anti-war talk, especially among soldiers, always has been forbidden. A German anti-Nazi station said Hitler can no longer win the war. He can only prolong it—and prolongation spells ruin for us Germans."

RED ARMY KILLS MORE THAN 3,000 GERMANS IN DAY

1,500 Lives Spent in Futile Effort to Retake One Position

TRANSPORT SUNK

Moscow, Nov. 17, (AP)—The Red Army killed more than 3,000 Germans in fresh fighting while holding solidly all along the wintry front and taking the initiative at many points, Russia's early war communique reported.

The official report said the Germans in the last two days spent 1,500 lives in futile efforts to retake an important height on the Volzhov front in the Leningrad region, which they occupied in the second the initiative and advanced after a long period of static warfare.

In the number of Nazis were sacrificed Monday in renewed attacks at Sladgorod on the Volzhov sald, and the invaders made no headway either there or on the Stalingrad entered its 13th punishing week.

The Russians even reported that minor gains pursued as a result of a set a few days ago in one part of

SUB WARFARE BIGGEST PROBLEM

First Lord of Admiralty Says Britain Has So Far Succeeded in Keeping Ocean Lines

London, Nov. 17 (CP)—A. V. Alexander, Sea Lord of the Admiralty, declared today that submarine warfare is "the greatest of all our problems. . . But we have so far succeeded in keeping our ocean lines

Alexander said in an address that the Axis is concentrating "to a large extent on this form of attack and is capable of a great onslaught on our trade and threat to our shipping."

He warned that it would not be right "because we have made so great a war effort in the last three weeks for anybody to assume that there are not still greater tribulations for this nation to come."

BRITISH MEMBER CRITICAL OF DEAL WITH DARLAN

Harris Says It Has Been Bitter Pill for Those Loyal to France

MYSTERIOUS EPISODE

London, Nov. 17 —(AP)— Reginald Paul Harris, Liberal member of Li.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff, British Army officer, who opened general debate in the House of Commons today.

Saying that the "strange appearance of Admiral Darlan on the scene" has been a bitter pill to those loyal to France under the leadership of Gen. de Gaulle to swallow.

"The demand arose after Clement Attlee, Labor Party member, informed the House that arrangements with the Supreme Defence minister, now co-operating with Admiral Darlan in North Africa, had been made "with a view to the immediate military situation in that area."

Able to Delay Pursuing Army

London, Nov. 17 — (CP) — The remnants of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's army, failing back to the west from Bengasi, are able to delay the pursuing 8th Army enough to prevent the Germans and Italians from delivering the coup de grace, British military sources believe.

These sources said the delaying action is born in the heat, dust, short rearguard actions and the fact that Rommel has a mined to slow the pursuit.

What forces Rommel has left now are scattered all the way from Derna to El Agheila along both the coast road and the Mekili-Msus shortcup across the Libyan hump, these informants said.

It was pointed out that it is impossible to say the Axis main force is concentrated at any one place.

The informants said they are "reliable information" of Rommel's personal whereabouts.

GEN. MACARTHUR DIRECTS BATTLE FROM THE FIELD

Allied Troops Within Heavy Cannon Shot Of Japanese Base At Buna

ONLY COASTAL TOEHOLD

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Nov. 17 (CP)—Led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, personally, Australian and American troops forged within heavy cannon shot of Buna today, ready to fight the Japanese for that key Papuan base of late in the defensive.

The Commander-in-Chief of the southwest Pacific went into the field himself to direct the campaign and with him were Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, Commander of Allied land forces, and Gen. Clowe, Commander of Allied air forces.

Today's headquarters communique said Australian patrols had reached the vicinity of Awala, only 30 miles by trail from Buna, with Australian and American forces closing in rapidly from the west and south and Japanese forces fighting either a last-ditch stand or an attempt to flee by the north coast where they could hold in Papua but up the New Guinea coast they have strongholds at Lae and Salamaua, some 150 miles away.

Gen. MacArthur last was in the field during the battle of Bataan to direct allied operations.

Bomb Retreating Enemy

Allied bombers and fighters strafed and bombed the retreating enemy columns and supply dumps in Central River. Japanese, fleeing toward the coast in canoes going down the Kumusi River, were bombed. In the northeast of Buna thrice were the barges of Allied planes.

At Awala the advancing Allies were over the hump from the Japanese were to Port Moresby last September when their thrust across the towering Owen Stanley mountain range reached its high-water mark at Ioribaiwa, 21 airline miles from the Allied base on the south coast.

The Allies also have gained superior-attacking in the Ioribaiwa area Sept. 26.

While the Australians outdid the enemy at his own infiltrating type of fighting and have back along the invasion trail, American soldiers fight and push on in the open, slugging it out through coastal jungles from the Australian base at Milne Bay until the Australians last weekend.

Today's communique reported that Australian troops had struck at Japanese ship formations in the Buna-Gona area, two of the southern Solomons, damaging a destroyer and a transport.

NORWEGIAN VESSEL SUNK

Washington, Nov. 17, (AP)— A medium sized Norwegian merchant vessel has been torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine in the Atlantic ocean, 1,000 miles east of North America in mid-October, the navy announced today. Survivors have been landed at United States east coast port.

Advanced Feats for Aviation Predicted In New Book "Wings Over America"

By JAMES T. CARTER
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 17 — (AP) — Supersonic speeds will fly from the crest of Tibet to universities in Vladivostok, and fly back to their native villages in a single day.

"Breakfast in New York and dinner in Paris on the same day."

"Instead of a car in every garage there will be a helicopter . . ."

"Huge cargo-carrying sky trucks will tow trains of cargo-carrying gliders . . ."

"Glider trains, towed by a passenger-carrying plane with 100 persons aboard, will drop gliders carrying local passengers at airports in every city and town . . ."

Harry Bruno predicts these and even more advanced feats for aviation.

And he predicts them for the next 10 years.

In his book "Wings over America," published today, Bruno says aviation will make greater strides in the coming decade than it has since popular as a result.

Bruno, who served with the Royal Flying Corps in Canada during the First Great War, has lived and breathed aviation for three decades, as one of the top aviation publicists of the United States, he grew up with American aviation and its heroes.

He predicts the big planes of 1952 will soar through the stratosphere at 400 miles an hour or more; that they will have sealed, oxygen-supplied cabins carry more than 200 passengers with the luxury and comfort afforded by the modern Pullman and the Normandie in their heydays.

Bruno is hot on the subject of helicopters, those curious-looking flying machines powered by four horizontal blades that can ascend straight into the air and sit down on a dime.

"The name of Igor Sikorsky will be as well known as Henry Ford's," Bruno says, "for his helicopter will all but replace the automobile in cities as the new means of popular transportation."

He predicts as "the great transportation medium of commuting" when used as family cars and for air cargo carriers, transporting everything but the bulkiest slow freight.

Highly-Important Battle Appears Only Hours Away

French Population Eagerly Awaiting The Arrival of The Americans

ITALIANS FRIGHTENED

(By E. C. DANIEL)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 17 (AP) — A German report that British and American motorized forces have reached the Algerian-Tunisian border early today suggested today the Allies might be aiming two armored spearheads into Tunisia, one toward Bizerte and Tunis along the coast, and the other through desert and mountain trails directly toward Gafsa to trap the Axis forces in North Africa.

There was no word from Allied sources that the battle yet was joined, but German broadcasts said German planes bombed British and American mobile columns along the coastal road from Algeria to Bizerte and in the southern border areas of Tunisia.

It was meant by the southern border area was not defined, but it was reported here that as early as the middle of last week an American force from Algeria was reported moving southeast on the Bou-Saada road in the direction of Sousse Tunisia and a short-cut to Tripoli.

Nothing Reported

Nothing has been reported from this column, since.

Other trails, it was noted, lead to southern Tunisia from the Lake Chad region where French forces have been reported gathered in the north of French Equatorial Africa. It is reported 1,000 miles from the Lake Chad country to the Tunisian border, however.

Meanwhile bad weather over the Mediterranean curtailed aerial activity, and an American communique from Cairo said reconnaissance planes patrolled the desert without encountering the enemy. British reports also suggested that Field Marshal Rommel's withdrawal to Mersa el Brega had been made in be not a candidate for the party nomination in the Dec. 8 leadership, also is expected to Dec. 8.

Sugar Supplies Are Still Slim

Montreal, Nov. 17 — (CP) — S. R. Noble, sugar controller, in an interview here Monday said that the sugar situation of 1943 will depend entirely on the availability of shipping but that the present complicated changes shipping will be available only for our absolute minimum requirements and after it is clear that we have done everything possible to produce ourselves."

He said it was "most important and urgent" that the maximum production of beet sugar should be maintained.

Growing Anxiety Felt in Italy Incidents Reveal

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Additional hints of anxiety in Italy are detected by the British Broadcasting Corporation which, listening to Italian broadcasts, has recorded numerous efforts to stiffen the morale of citizens.

One BBC report heard here yesterday by the CBS listening station, quoted a Roman commentator as saying:

MAJ.-GEN. BROWN VISITS LOCAL UNITS

Major General B. W. Brown, director general of the Reserve Army of Canada, arrived in the city this afternoon in accordance with his itinerary of visiting reserve army units across the Dominion.

General Brown will speak to the officers of the 34th Field Battery (R) R.C.A. and the Argyll Light Infantry (Militia) in the Armouries Mess at the Armouries tonight, on matters pertaining to the reserve forces.

Prior to his talk, he will be entertained at dinner by senior officers of the garrison and prominent civilians. A similar army head was in Picton this afternoon with officers of the 32nd Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

NOT ALL HUNTING PARTIES GET THEIR COUNT OF DEER

Deer hunters returned from the northern haunts of the district during varying tales of the autumn bag.

Parties generally got their quota but there are same stories of big bucks seen.

The city nimrods headed by Jim Van Blaricom, got a fine supply of only two bucks falling to their shooting prowess while their wives included Fred Deacon got their entire allotment of deer.

Winter settled down in the deer sections during the last few days of the hunting season, sojourning in the vicinity of Wawickonsh Lake were forced to be on their mettle to get game.

The Van Blaricom party, according to Joe Shortt, saw the finest deer of the entire hunting season yesterday while they were driving home. The animal came down over a fence bordering the highway and crossed the road ahead of the car. It leaped over the fence and over the opposite fence and to safety.

TWO PERSONS BITTEN BY DOGS ON MONDAY

Two cases of persons being bitten by dogs in Belleville on Monday were reported to Thos. Thorne, inspector for the Humane Society. Both cases occurred on Foster Avenue.

Seven-year-old Diane Yongman, 170 Foster Avenue, was bitten on the back by a fox police dog necessitating medical attention. Inspector Thorne investigated and learned the dog belonged to Grant Kerr, 179 Foster Avenue.

Mrs. McCann, Madoc, was bitten severely on the right arm by a dog belonging to Albert Hall, 16 South Foster Avenue, Inspector Thorne reported. The pain attributed by Mrs. McCann was of such a deep nature that a serum treatment was injected by Dr. L. B. Matthieson.

Both dogs were ordered to be secured nine days for observation.

DRUGGISTS DISCUSS HOURS OF BUSINESS

Tuesday plans for the observance of shorter hours were laid today by druggists of the city at a special meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. this morning.

The meeting was held in compliance with a governmental request to co-operate in the matter of observing shorter hours.

Nothing definite was adopted at the meeting but preliminary plans formulated today are expected to go into effect at the beginning of the week. Most of the druggists of the city were represented.

BRITISH ARMY LIFE RELATED BY SPEAKER

Humorous anecdotes of traditions and life in the British permanent army were related to the members of the Rotary Club by P/L. A. C. Hinton, of No. 5 Initial Training School, at their fortnightly meeting held at the Quinte Hotel last evening.

P/O Hinton, who has served several years with the British and Australian relished many amusing and embarrassing incidents, which occurred during his lifetime as a soldier. He also gave a short synopsis of the traditions of several British regiments, all for the edification of the Kinsmen. The speaker was introduced by Kin Bill Daniels and personally extended the thanks of the club by President Buster LaBarr.

DRESSED BIG TO BE RAFFLED

A dressed pig will be raffled at the Smith's Corners on Wednesday evening by the Worship Mayor Hubert Wannamaker. The pig has been donated by Jack Clarke and Charles Tolvenstad and the proceeds will be given to the British War Victims' Fund, sponsored by a Toronto paper. This pig was purchased by the two men last week at the fair and has been tied to a point, where it will weigh approximately 160 pounds dressed. Numbers have been sold on the animal.

LITTLE ACTIVITY IN POLICE CIRCLES

Police circles were productive of little startling news, though on the city force was busied during the last 24 hours with routine investigations. At 213 Albert Street complaints that mischief was being had caused a screen door result-ed in the means of the culprits being reported to the police.

Two juvenile lads, who had been playing truant from Bowmanville Boys' Training School, were taken into custody by Belleville police and returned to that institution on Monday.

William H. Craig Dies at Tweed

William H. Craig, a pioneer resident of Hungerford Township and well known throughout the County of Hastings, died at his home in Tweed this Tuesday morning. He was in failing health for some time.

The death of Mr. Craig will cause sincere feelings of regret to be entertained by a large number of friends who have resided in the Township of Rungerford where he spent the greater part of his life and in the village of Tweed where a large share of his business was a man of sterling character, friendly in disposition and throughout his long and useful life he was pleasant to everyone.

He was born in Hungerford Township and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Craig, who came to Canada from County Armagh, Ireland, one hundred and more years ago and settled a short time after reaching this country in Hungerford Township. His mother's name was Mary Ann Elliott, whose parents also came to this country over a hundred years ago from County Fermanagh, and also settled in Hungerford Township.

Deceased's young manhood Mr. Craig applied himself seriously to the business of agriculture which he loved and in which he was engaged throughout his life. He retired and took up residence in Tweed.

On March 31st, 1880, Mr. Craig married Miss Mary Ann Orr, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Graham and of this union, in 1940, he and his wife celebrated the diamond anniversary of their wedding.

During the years Mr. Craig resided in the village he was an active member of the Lodgeroom Methodist Church, now the United Church and was a trustee of the church for many years. In municipal and educational affairs he took a keen interest and served as township councillor for two or three years and for over twenty years he was a trustee of Tuttle school.

Since living in Tweed Mr. Craig took an active interest in the affairs of the village and was a valued supporter of the United Church, being a member of the Board of Stewards and also Secretary of the Cemetery Board. He was also the efficient Secretary-Treasurer of the Men's Bible Class which he attended regularly when health permitted. He was also for a time a member of Tweed Orange Lodge for 58 years and was probably the oldest Orangeman in Eastern Ontario. For forty-two years he was a member of the Royal Black Knights of Ireland, Tweed Preceptory, Grand Master Eastern Ontario and held for a number of years the office of Director of Ceremonies in the Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario West and a member of Tweed Masonic Lodge since 1909.

For many years to come many friends, old and young, will retain pleasant memories of their associations with Mr. Craig and he will be much missed by those who were near to him.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his wife and daughter, Florence, wife of Mr. George H. Stokes, M.P., Belleville.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

Lt.-Col. Merritt, V. C., Pays Tribute, In Letter Home, To His Comrades For Their Great Bravery at Dieppe

Distinguished Soldier Writes That He Was Wounded In Shoulder By Sniper's Bullet—Says "Action Was Thrilling Yet Not Terrifying"

LT.-COL. MERRITT, V.C.

WANTS RED CROSS PARCELS

"I would like you to remember and notify the regiment of the grand leadership of Captain Oates, and Lieutenants Mooney, England and Nesbitt, and indeed all the subalterns, and Sergeant Smith, S.S.M.; Sgt. McIntyre; Sgt. Snowdon and Sergt. Upcott in particular the great bravery of Corporal Keys who manned a Bren gun on the cliffs to cover the withdrawal under constant fire and remained there returning fire for 15 minutes and stopping only when an several bullets he could not continue. He is a prisoner of war and will recover."

With these words, Lieut.-Colonel C. C. I. Merritt, V.C., paid his personal tribute to the men of the South Saskatchewan Regiment who stormed the heavily beaches at Dieppe with him on the memorable Aug. 19th.

First Letter

Canada's first Victoria Cross winner wrote the story in the first sealed letter received by Mrs. Merritt since his capture after the epic struggle. The letter, passed by German censors, was sent by air-mail to Canada and was received here Monday morning by Mrs. Merritt.

Mrs. Merritt also requested his wife to "notify the navy people that Lieutenant-Commander Pike, the beach-master, behaved throughout the action very coolly and completely disregarded enemy fire although he was also in an exposed spot. His should be decorated, as should be Keyes."

The letter was written on August 24th, just five days after the Dieppe show. Thus far Mrs. Merritt has received no word from her gall' nt husband in the effect that he knew he has been awarded the Victoria Cross. She has received several cards and letters, but no mention of awards is to himself or men has been made.

Enjoyed the Fight

The Dieppe raid was termed by Col. Merritt as "we did a little action on the French coast and I for one didn't get back to the boats again. I got a bullet through the shoulder which did no great harm. Naturally there is little I can say about the action except that until the end I enjoyed it a lot. It was a thrilling and yet, not at all terrifying."

The Canadian prisoners have been moved around. Col. Merritt wrote: "We are being looked after adequately, but without suggestion of luxury. Jerry's food is two bits away from the cooked hosts. Jerry is O.K. I do hope you have been told I am a prisoner of war and not dead. I am fairly well and hope it would have caused you H I had been 'reported killed'."

"Actually" wrote Col. Merritt, "I went everywhere during the battle and finished up unscathed until the last half-hour when a sniper caught me."

Many Played Heroic Part

So many men played a heroic part in the battle, the V.C. said, "that it is impossible all their names".

"Get in touch with the Red Cross, and see that they send the parcels promised!! At present I will take anything and everything."

"Give a big hand all the boys (Peter and Cecil) and tell them to keep fighting. Also remember me to Mary and Jim."

Mrs. Merritt, when seen Monday, was at a loss to understand the delay of the above letter, She has received several other field cards from her husband which were written later than the date of the one above letter. There was no date on the envelope which was marked by the German censor "DBC 306". The only date was "Aug. 24th" written at the top of the letter by her husband.

Tribute Paid to Mrs. Clarence Holmes On Her Election to the Presidency Of Women's Institutes of Ontario

Many friends of Mrs. Clarence Holmes, R. N. 3, Belleville, Ont., both here and in many other parts of the province, will extend congratulations on her election recently as president of the 1233 Women's Institutes of Ontario. It has been pointed out that this is a signal honor, as it is the first time during the 45 years of the existence of the Federation that a Belleville member has been elected to the office of the most helpful combination of women in Canada.

Without any doubt, Mrs. Holmes has been honored because of her merits, ability and devotion. The following record speaks for itself:

(1) Mrs. Holmes has been a member of Ontario Women's Institutes for seventeen years and has occupied progressively the following offices: President of her local Wallbridge Institute; the President of the West Hastings district; (c) chairman of the Belleville area convention comprising Northumberland, Hastings and Prince Edward counties; (d) member of the Provincial Board for two years; (e) also a Director-at-large of Women's Institutes for Ontario.

(2) Mrs. Holmes is a graduate of the former Belleville High School and also of Peterboro Normal School.

(3) Mrs. Holmes has a very pleasing and influential personality. Moreover, as a farmer's wife she knows at first-hand the problems of the rural people of Ontario.

(4) And she is one of the best public speakers among the noble women of Canada.

(5) Members of the many institutes, but many friends in Belleville wish Mrs. Holmes splendid success in her highly important office.

(The above is written by one of Mrs. Holmes' former High School teachers, G. M. Jamesi

Labor and War Subject of Talk At Study Club

At the first meeting Monday evening of the Belleville Lecture and Study Club for this season officers for the coming year were elected. Mr. R. B. McCulloch was unanimously chosen as president, succeeding Dr. A. O. Leith. The slate of officers is as follows:

Honorary Presidents — Mr. J. O. Herrity, Mr. W. S. Turner.

President — Mr. R. B. McCulloch.

Vice President—Mr. F. R. Rainsberry.

Secretary—Miss Stewart Mason.

Treasurer — Mr. Kenneth Bill.

Executive — Mrs. Hammond, Committee — Mrs. Heard.

Members of Executive — Mrs. D. Bews, Mrs. A. R. Cameron and Miss E. Templeton.

The report of the treasurer was read by Mr. McCulloch and showed a balance on hand. The secretary's report.

The address of the evening was delivered by Mr. C. B. Wade, Queen's University, whose subject was "Labor and the War." In order to ensure victory in the shortest possible time every available labor resource should be drawn into production, in agriculture, in manufacturing of consumer goods and in armament production. The International Selective Service was organized with this aim in view but the speaker thought that there was still no harmony that ensured that every woman possible was drawn into industry. The creation of credits was a step in this direction.

Lack of Representation

The speaker referred to the lack of representation of labor in the National Selective Board, locally and nationally, and said the same was true of it in every department of the government. This was deplorable in view of the fact that in the shortest possible time, Labor is unorganized, generally, in Canadian industries and when it was organized through trade unions the speaker felt that production would be significantly increased. This had been found true in England.

The aim of trade unions was not entirely a matter of obtaining higher wages. It was for assuring good working conditions, higher standards of living and the maintainance of the dignity of the worker. It was by making them feel that they are democratically participating in the war effort and in the life of the country. Production would soar with organization, the speaker said, pointing out that one of the secrets of resistance shown by the people of Russia was that every man, woman and child is doing their bit.

The first task of trade unions is the formation of Joint Production Committees for better shop technique and training and Labor-Management Week classification and development of a spirit of co-operation were part of the trade union plan.

Proposing a vote of thanks Mr. Wade dismissed company unions which employers organized when labor was failing toward unions in the shop. Such company unions, management-directed, tended to achieve the purpose of trade unions. Trade unions have always been out of favor with employers since their first organization in the eighteenth century. The daily press reflects this attitude, the speaker continued. The majority of business and professional men with trade unions could do much to give labor the standing it should have in industry and in politics.

More closely knit organization might have prevented the war, the speaker said. The policy of Munich was not the policy of the people of England, but of the big men in industrial workers and the farmers who constituted the majority in England. They had no channel of action to put their opinions into, they had. Churchill would have been its power long before he was, the speaker said. It was been an alliance with the U.S.S.R., a collective security pact, that would prevent the war.

The address of the speaker was followed by a lively discussion.

Regulation of Consumer Rationing

It is likely to be an inevitable consequence of curtailed production, Marshall Acland told rationing boards at strategic centres in Canada are being organized. Consumer rationing, he pointed out, is essentially a plan to ensure equitable distribution of available supply rather than a means to control over-all monetary deprivations.

The price ceiling was designed, he explained, to prevent inflation and facilitate the fullest and most efficient diversion of manpower and materials toward fighting the war.

Wages and Salary Ceilings

Wages and salary ceilings were essential because wages are a measure of the level of production and uncontrolled would have resulted in an inordinate rise in prices. They have added to pressure of unsatisfied demand for consumer goods.

To avoid an undue extension of the subsidy system the Board has established a program of economics and simplification in civilian production and methods of distribution. Its objectives are to reduce distribution costs; to conserve materials and labor and to limit the most efficient use of the materials and labor which remain available for the production of non-essential goods.

Ration Supplies

Concurrently with these activities the Board has taken steps in a number of fields of rationing and ration supplies. In a large number of lines of merchandise manufacturers and wholesalers can no longer supply the full requirements of retailers. Under the new regulations the supplier must allocate his supply among his regular customers to whom he sold merchandise last year.

Mr. Marshall was introduced by Rotarian Art Francis while the vote of thanks was moved by Rotarian Enos David. A feature of the meeting was the vociferous welcome given Rotarian Sandy Runions who was present for the first time since his accident several months ago, President Lloyd Hicks was in the chair.

The address given by Mr. Marshall was given to the Elvania Club at their regular luncheon in the Hotel Quinte today.

School and Home Club Hears Talk On "Nutrition"

The regular monthly meeting of the King George School and Home Club was held in the school auditorium Monday evening, with Miss Morton presiding. Miss Acland, teacher at the Belleville Collegiate addressed the meeting on "Nutrition".

Miss Grout claimed that despite the fact there was plenty of food people of Canada were undernourished. She stressed the fact that the civilian population must be fed before the forces must be well-fed if the Allies are to win the war.

Cognizant of the fact that epidemics are often prevalent during the period of world conflict, Miss Grout warned that proper precautions be taken to prevent the outbreak of contagious disease after the present war. She declared that the value of proper food and diet as a means to combat disease cannot be overestimated.

Mrs. Nighswander acted as chairman for the evening in the absence of the president of the home and school club, Mrs. Cornell. Reports were read and adopted after which Miss Grout was awarded the attendance prize. Thanks to Miss Grout and Mrs. Valens and Mrs. Kells to the club for cards received during the illness of Mrs. Nighswander entertainment for the evening was in charge of Mrs. Valens, one song by a trio of companist for a period of community singing and she rendered a piano solo. The guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. Charles Brennan with appreciation of the club being expressed by Miss Alice Hamilton.

A doll donated by Mrs. Fraser was won at the draw by Mrs. Ross J. M. Wood, College Street, being the lucky ticket. Over fifteen dollars was realized from the sale of tickets, this amount to be turned over to the Red Cross.

Expansion of War Production Must Come at the Expense Of Civilian Industry, Rotary Told

"Canada's manpower situation is now such that any further expansion of the war effort must necessarily come through deliberate transfers and limitations of civilian activities," Mr. Douglas Marshall, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, representative here told the Belleville Rotary Club on Monday.

The government has accordingly decided that non-essential civilian production should be curtailed or eliminated and has given the WPTB authority to put this policy into effect.

It is the intention of the WPTB, Mr. Marshall stated, that the program of curtailment will proceed in an orderly progressive manner having regard for the speed required by the war process. The needs of the armed services are urgent and non-essential industry will have to contribute its full quota of these operations that will not have all the required materials it might be desired.

Actual methods to be used will include the limitation of supply, production, distribution and labor restrictions. The supply and price record along the lines of curtailment of goods and services, by way of control of materials, supply and distribution. The withdrawal of labor from one industry to another will be under the direction of the Director of National Selective.

Action Already Begun

Action on the above is in the making, the speaker declared, and will begin almost immediately. It is the ultimate effort to win the Victory.

Extention of consumer rationing is likely to be an inevitable consequence of curtailed production, Marshall Acland told rationing boards at strategic centres in Canada are being organized. Consumer rationing, he pointed out, is essentially a plan to ensure equitable distribution of available supply rather than a means to control over-all monetary deprivations.

EARLY AGREEMENT ON AIMS OF WAR WILLKIE'S PLEA

Must Encourage Utmost Amount of Discussion Among Allies

SPEAKS IN N. Y.

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—With a plea for early agreement among the allied nations on the aims of the war, Wendell Willkie says "every one of us" is obligated to speak out "freely and frankly across the ocean".

"Unless we have a similar idea of what they are thinking in England and in the Commonwealth, there can be no hope of agreement," he told the New York Herald Tribune Forum last night.

"We must know what the people of Russia and China aim for and we must let them know our aims.

"It is the utmost that is at last short of suicide—to take the position that statesmen of any country should hold their tongues for fear of causing distress to the immediate allies and sometimes tortuous politicales of their leaders", he continued.

"In order that we may win a real victory we must encourage the utmost amount of discussion among ourselves and with our Allies".

Criticizes Churchill

Willkie, who recently made a tour of the global war front, criticized Prime Minister Churchill for his assertion last week that "we mean to hold our own".

Churchill said in an address to the London Lord Mayor's dinner November 10: "Let however, make this clear, in case there should be any mistake about it in any quarter: we mean to hold our own. I have put because the King's First Minister in order to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire."

"We should work today," Willkie said, "to create a realistic assembly to all the United Nations and when the war is over, to all the world, access to the materials indispensable to constructive self-government.

"This cannot be accomplished by mere declarations of our leaders, as in an Atlantic charter, particularly when one of the two principals to that instrument has in the last few days seemingly defended the old imperialistic order and declared to a shocked world, 'we mean to hold our own'.

"Its accomplishment depends primarily upon acceptance by the peoples of the world".

Finds Fine Unified Will

Willkie said that unless the people of the United Nations express themselves immediately on their purposes, idealistic hopes such as the Atlantic charter and the Atlantic charter "will live merely to mock us" as he said Woodrow Wilson's points did.

"The four freedoms", he added, "will not be accomplished by the declarations of the statesmen of the United Nations. They will become real only if the people of the world forge them into a unified and practical internationalism will not accomplish them. Real freedom must rest on economic international-

The Coal situation is CRITICAL!

When You Waste Heat

You Waste Coal - You Waste Money

GET MAXIMUM HEAT FROM EVERY SHOVELFUL OF COAL

Generate Heat Efficiently

1. Learn how to operate your furnace properly.

2. Keep your furnace clean at all times. A dirty, choked up furnace wastes a surprising amount of coal.

3. Have your heating system checked by an experienced service man.

Watch Your Temperatures

1. Avoid excessive temperatures. Overheated homes are bad for your health as well as your pocket-book. Maintain an even steady heat of 68° or less.

2. Watch the humidity. Keep your humidifying fans and equipment filled with water, and you will feel comfortable at a lower temperature.

3. Turn off all heat that isn't absolutely necessary and, eliminate all needless ventilation. The temperature should be 65° or under at night.

Reduce Heat Losses

1. Don't try to heat sunrooms, garages, attic, or other rooms not lived in.

2. Keep fireplace damper closed when the fireplace is not being used. Otherwise, the draft will draw the warm air out of the house.

3. If you are a fresh air fiend and like to have your bedroom window open, turn off your heat and keep the door closed. Avoid chilling the whole house.

4. Take care of your hot water tank. An insulating jacket will save heat. Also, don't waste hot water. Replace washers on taps when they leak.

5. Use weather-stripping on all doors and windows. It gives added protection and saves coal.

6. Insulate your home where possible. It will take less coal to heat it, as less heat will be wasted.

Every time you SAVE a shovelful, you are helping to forge more weapons for Canada's fighting men. Without coal, there can be no tanks. Without coal, THERE CAN BE NO VICTORY!

Canada's coal is needed in ever-increasing quantities in every phase of our vital war programme. So, buckle down! Get your furnace into the fight—and keep it fighting!

PLANS TO SAVE MILLION DOLLARS

Economy to be Made in Government Office Furniture and Supplies

By C. B. Blackburn
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 17—(CP)—A survey now is under way throughout Canada's vast war machine, public service to round up and inventory all surplus office furniture which may be used to fill orders for new offices or replace worn-out equipment.

This is the latest move by Col. John Thompson, director of the recently-created government offices economy control, in his drive to save at least $1,000,000 a year in the cost of office equipment and supplies.

The survey is being made by 60 government officials scattered throughout the government services.

Col. Thompson is making a spicial drive to cut down on the cost of office furniture. In the past, attention has centred on the cost of furnishing government offices has been from 1 per cent to 2 per cent, or $100,000 a year to a wartime total of over $10,000,000 annually.

The economy drive reaches down through every type of furniture used by the civil service furniture to paper clips. Offices will be stripped of non-essential typewriter desks, chairs, filing cabinets, office machines and stationery.

Printing will be restricted drastically to the absolutely bare minimum and issuers of publications are asked to review all printing lists to make sure that nothing is sent out unless the recipient wants needs and is entitled to it.

Col. Thompson said there were instances where government supplies of matter was being sent to people long since dead or removed from the address used.

CZECH STUDENTS HOLD MEMORIAL

Pay Tribute to Memory of Students Killed in Prague by Nazis

By The Canadian Press

Students at Canadian universities today will join the universities of Great Britain and the United States in commemorating the massacre of Czech students in Prague and the closing of Czech universities by the Germans two weeks after the outbreak of war.

Today has been proclaimed an International Students' Day throughout the world. In most universities a two-minute silence will be observed in memory of the Czech students killed or persecuted by the Nazis.

Dr. F. Pavlasek, the Czech Minister to Canada, was present at a preliminary ceremony at the University of Toronto yesterday. He declared the Nazis had permanently attempted to destroy the Czech nation, "but in the light of the great battles won in Stalingrad and North Africa we know the Czech nation will live again."

Attack on Youth, Intelligentsia

A statement by Dr. Pavlasek said that the Germans in occupying Czechoslovakia directed their first blows against the nation by attacking the youth and the intelligentsia. From Nov. 15 to Nov. 17 they murdered hundreds of students in Prague, kidnapped thousands of others and dragged them into concentration camps in Germany.

Dr. Pavlasek's statement contained the record of atrocities and brutalities in Czechoslovakia in which women and students were the chief sufferers. It added: "The students of the free world in honouring their dead colleagues remind themselves of their greatest duty: to go against this barbarism, to go to the help of civilization. They not only remember their dead Czechoslovak colleagues, but they prepare themselves against the fate of those in Central Europe who hold on high the banner of Democracy, truth and human rights. The dead, the murdered, the tortured Czechoslovak students warn them."

Drunken Driver Given 12 Days

Exchanging benches for the day, Magistrate J. B. Garvin of Kingston, presided at local police court today, while Magistrate J. A. Lloyd held court in Kingston. Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson conducted the prosecutions arising in today's court.

"I want to get straightened up," suggested John King of Peterboro, after pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication.

"A very good idea, fourteen days in the common jail," obliged Magistrate Garvin.

James Takai, proprietor of the Bells Billiards, paid $10, and costs after being convicted of permitting minors to play pool in his establishment at 364 Front St.

Given Twelve Days

Kenneth Tallman, Smithtown, appeared on a charge of drunken driving and pleaded guilty. Chief Proleger, who investigated the matter testified Tallman had been driving his motor car on Dundas St. last Saturday and after losing control, mounted the curb and struck a telephone pole, breaking it off at the base. "We later found him six blocks east of the accident trying to repair a damaged bumper. He did not remain at the scene", stated Chief Probert.

His Worship sentenced Tallman to twelve days in jail, impounded his motor car for three months and assessed costs amounting to $19.05.

Pleads Guilty to Charge

Carl Woods, Belleville, was fined $10, and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct, while James Burns, also of the city, was convicted of the same charge and assessed $2.00 and costs, while a woman who was implicated in the altercations paid two dollars and costs when she came out of a case of fisticuffs at the corner of Front and Campbell Sts. on Saturday night, Nov. 7th.

Three inebriates paid drunk fines before court and did not appear to answer to their misdemeanours.

Capt. and Mrs. Hewitt of Salvation Army Receive Word of Transfer

Trenton, —(Special)— Friends of Captain and Mrs. Fred Hewitt, as well as his parishioners and all other Trenton citizens, are sorry to learn of the Captain Hewitt's transfer from Trenton Salvation Army.

Captain Hewitt who was born in Toronto and educated in Toronto, England and the Canadian West, came to Trenton three years ago after having spent ten years in Calgary as an officer in the Salvation Army. He and Mrs. Hewitt have endeared themselves to all with whom they came in contact during their sojourn in Trenton and have worked zeal and diligently to help in every good work of the Salvation Army and the town in general. Just a few months ago the first-born child of Captain and Mrs. Hewitt, a baby girl, Ruth Bertinde Hewitt, was dedicated to the Salvation Army here. Guests at the dedication ceremony being Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Spooner of Toronto, senior Divisional Officers of the Salvation Army, and Adjutant and Mrs. Moulton, of Toronto. Ruth is said to be the first child born to Salvation Army officers while serving in Trenton.

Have Done Splendid Work

Since coming to Trenton Captain and Mrs. Hewitt have done a splendid work among the service forces, particularly the men of the R.C.A.F. They were instrumental in establishing the Red Shield Centre where men of the forces may go to pass time and spend their leisure hours. There they will find a neatly decorated reception room, with books, magazines, easy chairs, radio, piano, writing facilities and all that makes life like home. In addition a canteen has been set up where men can buy hot and small articles so much needed and appreciated. At various times special entertainments have been provided for the men and all in all some thousands enjoy the Red Shield every month of the year. Last Christmas Captain and Mrs. Hewitt were hosts to nearly fifty airmen for dinner as well as entertaining many others during the festive season.

Captain Hewitt has not yet learned of where he is to be transferred but expects that he is to be at duties in connection with the armed forces.

Farewell services will be held for Captain and Mrs. Hewitt next Sunday at the Salvation Army Citadel.

Thrown Risen Injures Boy

Sunday afternoon Lawrence Farrar, age 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Farrar, Cathcrine St., was struck in the nose by a stone thrown by a small boy with whom he was playing at the time, Dr. Byrne was called and stated there might be a possible fracture of the nose, however an X-ray would be necessary to determine the extent of the injury.

Lieut. W. G. McLean Returns From Overseas

Picton, Nov. 17 — Lieut. W. G. McLean was one of the men to arrive home from overseas last weekend. He will act as an instructor in Canada. He was accompanied by his wife, an English girl, whom he married in England.

Milford Anniversary Services

Rev. J. F. Reycroft conducted anniversary services at Milford United Church on Sunday.

Members of the Royal Air Force gave an excellent program at Cherry Valley Hall before a capacity crowd Friday night. Sponsored by the Women's Institute the proceeds will be used to send treats to men of Athol township who are serving overseas.

Donald Kemsley, R.C.N.V.R., Halifax, is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kemsley.

A large auction sale was held Monday at the farm of George Lovell at Wellington. Good prices were realized.

Shooting will close here on Monday next, according to C. S. L. Smith, B. J. Collier. Three more big freighters are expected. The season has been a busy one with hundreds of thousands of tons of canned goods being shipped out. Factors in the district, outside of Prince Edward County, brought goods here for shipment.

Nine tables of euchre were in play at the home of Mrs. George Owens, Friday night. Proceeds were for the Presbyterian Tobacco Fund for men of the church overseas.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Calnan, Mrs. J. H. Walmsley and Mrs. F. J. Webster spent the weekend in Toronto.

Word has been received here of the safe arrival overseas of Lieut. Tom Lewis of Belleville.

Barbara Bennett, Reported Missing Was in Rest Home

Beverly Hills, Calif., Nov. 17 (AP) — Barbara Bennett, whose name for a little rest caused Southern California police officers to lose a lot of it, is safe at home and says she can't understand what all the fuss was about.

While the widespread search for her was on she said she was in seclusion in a rest home and knew nothing of the alarm her absence had caused. She was reported missing Saturday morning by her husband, Addison Randall, screen cowboy.

Miss Bennett, former wife of singer Morton Downey, left her apartment Friday morning, presumably to keep a dinner engagement at the home of James Deane, actor's agent, and Mrs. Deane.

"I changed my mind," Miss Bennett explained, "and didn't go there. Instead I went to Arnoldo Krieg's home and played with the Doanes that I wouldn't be at the dinner.

"I decided I needed a rest, so I went to a rest home where I registered under an assumed name.

"The first I knew of the excitement was Monday morning," she continued, "when I bought a newspaper and read that I had been reported missing. I telephoned Mr. Randall at once that's all there is to it.

"I can't understand all the fuss I seem to have started."

Mr. Randall filed his missing persons report at police headquarters Saturday but said she was "somewhat intoxicated" when she left their apartment Friday night.

Randall denied reports they are separated but said he is going to San Francisco to take a theatre engagement.

"Miss Bennett is staying here," Randall said. "There is no formal separation, although it might come to that."

Randall and Miss Bennett were married in Mexico in June, 1941, a few days after Downey was granted an uncontested divorce in Bridgeport, Conn., together with custody of their five children.

She later tried to obtain the children's custody, but a Bridgeport court denied her plea last month.

THE TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

The Tyendinaga East Women's Institute held its monthly meeting Nov. 13, at the home of Mrs. M. Husband with five members and several visitors present. A letter of thanks was read from a member for the gift received while in hospital.

It was decided to have the usual exchange of Christmas gifts, also a bazaar at the December meeting with each member donating a small gift. Current events were given by each member. The "Four Point Time Automobile" was given by Mrs. Husband. Mrs. Delbert Hayes read a poem, "Memorial Day," Molly Provins gave a reading, "The First Bath Tub." Mrs. Mc-Math moved a vote of thanks to the hostess for the very pleasant evening.

Industrial Power of the U.S.

The massive industrial power of the United States which is being poured into the war is shown by the increase of the lease-lend aid to the Allies. More than $915,000,000 was the October outlay in this cause.

Aid to the other United Nations is climbing despite the fact that the United States is also paying out billions to bring the fighting power of the Republic to its peak of effort.

The growth of British production too at the time when Germany is feeling the drain of resources on men and materials as well as on morale and strategy must have a very potent effect upon the enemy.

The rising tide of Allied manpower and material power can have only a debilitating effect upon the Italian and Fascists. The surprise of the American invasion of French North Africa and the speed with which the occupation program is being carried out have nonplussed the enemy. This great expedition is the evidence of this power.

And President Roosevelt expects for next year a steady increase of lease-lend aid.

Revolt in W. Croatia

News from Yugoslavia is always of a kind to rouse the intensest admiration for the people who have a fiery spirit of freedom and have initiative and energy that in spite of Axis oppression and terrorism they have been able to keep an army in the field which has made life miserable for Italians and Germans.

Yesterday's papers carried the story of an extensive revolt in Western Croatia in which from ten to fifteen thousand guerrilla fighters are holding two towns as well as the district.

This is an example of the endurance of these people—they have thrown themselves against the enemy and have made history which will find the full light of day when war secrets may be revealed and events unfolded.

General Mihailovic of course has the great fighting Yugoslavian army which has been harrassing the Axis ever since the enemy invaded their country.

The Bells of Britain

Sunday's peal of bells from the church towers and belfries of England, Great Britain in praise and thanksgiving for the victory of British arms in Egypt was more than an interlude in the bell-silent period of the war. In the hours on Sunday during which the bells were rung Britain honored the men and women who had carried through so bravely and released some of the pent-up feelings of the people. Minds went back to the heroic airmen, the men of the other services who showed Hitler it was futile for him to continue the attempt to conquer Britain. And it was a foretaste of the victory to come. The definite turn of the war has been marked and the lifting of the restriction on the ringing of bells on Sunday had an inspirational effect.

In the land of churches, the bells rang and clanged at Westminster Abbey, at the tower of the Coventry cathedral, at St. James' in Belfast and in Wales at Caerdiff, bells rang in towns, villages and in the country.

The bells of the curfew tower at Windsor Castle joined with the others music.

There was rich significance in the ringing—there was the spiritual effect upon the people. It will not lessen their zeal and devotion because the bells pealed for the Egyptian victory. But rather from the thousands of indistinct notes so majestically borne on the air will ring echoes in the hearts of the people of Britain until that day comes—the day of final victory.

Hitler could not quell the stout hearts of British oak and he could not silence the bells. The sounds which to Britain meant thanksgiving for the recent victory of British arms would, had Hitler heard them, have sounded like the strokes of doom for the Hitler Nazis, the Mussolini Fascists and the war-fomenters of Japan. The bells had their revenge on Hitler on Sunday for his infamous raids upon the churches and homes and political institutions of the British Isles and they plainly foretold that they will be ringing with joy and praise again the notes of freedom, long after Hitler and his kind have ceased to disturb humanity.

FRIDAY, THE 13TH : . .

Some people are just naturally scared to death of the spectre of Friday the 13th.

They will shy at black cats; refuse to throw their hats in the air; open an umbrella in the house; walk beneath a ladder, or face the mother-in-law on that eventful date. One hotel in an American city had to erase the figures "13" from one of its rooms because of a superstitious clientele.

But there's nothing to be worried about.

Take those gallant hunters Malcolm McIntyre and Edward T. Symons, two as gallant bird-hunters as ever knocked a Plymouth Rock from a neighbor's roost. They're not superstitious. Not any more.

They left their camp on Friday last, which happened to be the 13th., walked thirteen miles in the woods and had just thirteen shells between them. At thirteen minutes after one p.m. (1300 hours, if you're in the army) they sat down for exactly thirteen minutes.

Peering through the brush the two Rotarian birdmen spotted a couple of feathered friends perched on a tree-branch about thirteen feet away.

They reached for their guns. The woods rang with the salvo and two crows keeled over to the ground. A bend over to where Ed lay rubbing his shoulder. "Shucks," groaned the Irish half of the Scotch-Irish duo, "I missed 'em by thirteen inches."

"What's that mean?" asked Mac. "You knocked both of 'em down with one shot."

"O yeah!" comes back Ed. "Well how do you think that big limb over there was knocked off? I did it with my own little gun, Papa Washington."

"Izzatso," wisely commented Mac, the Scotchman. "Well, I forgot to release the safety catch on my gun, and I didn't fire at all."

They arose and inspected the kill. Then they stopped and stared in amazement. About thirteen feet farther on, eleven small birds lay in a cluster on the ground. That made the score thirteen for the day.

And if you think these two hearties aren't thirteen-minded, just count the letters in their names.

Then another example is the Great Seal of the United States. It stands out all over it . . . 13 stars, 13 stripes, 13 arrows, 13 olives, 13 letters in the motto, E Pluribus Unum."

That seal was, in the main, designed by Thomas Jefferson, who was born in April 13, and who so liked the number that he commonly signed his name "Jefferson" so as to limit his name to the lucky figure. In fact, Jefferson seemed to have been rather "daft" about 13. He even wanted to put thirteen bars on the flag and thirteen shields united with 13 links; earlier he had suggested as a symbol for the Confederacy a harp with 13 strings.

Not only the number but the first official flag of the new Republic boasted the "unlucky" numeral. That banner contained 13 stars, was approved June 13, 1777, and flew from the Capital dome at Washington, for the first time on Jefferson's birthday, April 13, 1818. The song that glorifies that flag, "The Star Spangled Banner," was composed September 13, 1814.

The superstitious might well take note of the fact that American history is liberally adorned—and blessed—with this magical 13. Andrew Johnson, Andrew Jackson, Zachary Taylor, James Buchanan, and Ulysses S. Grant, all occupants of the presidential chair, each had 13 letters in his name, while Washington, in order to conform to the standard of good luck, reduced his first name to Geo.

Columbus first sighted the islands off the coast on Friday and he left Europe on Friday; left the West Indies for the return trip to Spain on Friday; arrived at Palos Friday, March 13th; returned to land for the first time on the actual American continent Friday, November 22, 1492; discovered Cuba Friday, June 13, 1494; and South America Friday, August 3rd.

So might the lucky history of 13 run on indefinitely. Throw fear to the winds. Friday, the 13th, might be your lucky day.

The "Sonora," large fishing boat, and also engaged in the freight traffic, owned by Capt. John E. McQuaid of this city, was totally wrecked in a storm on Lake Ontario, four miles west of Colborne early yesterday morning. The boat was returning light from the American side and was in charge of Capt. Al. Wilson with George Keegan and James McInnis. The men were forced to take to the water and eventually reached the mainland. The boat was wrecked upon a huge rock near the shore and the heavy seas slashed the boat against the rocks all night, punching her full of holes and making her back.

Peril of Axis Army in Africa Real, Imminent

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.

The peril of the Axis army in Africa is real and imminent. The consequences for Hitler, if it is not quickly and completely liquidated are too grave to assume that he is resigned to the indecisive fate of war's duration. Some bold if risky Nazi attempt at a military action must be in the making.

The authors of the North African butcher-stroke, Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, make it clear they expect vigorous enemy reaction. They do not believe Hitler can be crushed or up or broke the power to strike back. The Axis still enjoys inestimable advantages. It has a single command and a seasoned staff to execute, as it has before, miracles of military logistics. It has inside communication lines, vulnerable only to long-distance Allied air attack.

There is some indication that in Nazi war books the Allied battle now joined in Tunisia is primarily a secondary theatre of operation. Whether to permit Rommel to find a short line for a stand or to attempt the shattered army's sea evacuation, it seems vital that the weakened Axis air force be cracker be slowed up.

The Allies have all against prolonged successful resistance by the Axis in Tunisia. Whatever their numbers there must be some limit to the heavy fighting equipment of Rommel's retreating army.

Hundreds of miles still gape between the British pursuit of Rommel from the east and the Allied push by-passing the Libyan bump, and Eisenhower's advance guard in Tunisia. That they ultimately will meet seems forwordained unless Hitler moves more troops there than he yet has to avert it. And his chance of forging a huge army in Africa does not seem good. There are plain signs of an Allied submarine screen in the Central Mediterranean to supplement land based planes from Malta, Algiers and Bone. Transports and Bengasi which are a deadly menace to movement.

The Hitler alternative would be a diversion attack somewhere else to divert or draw off some part of the Allied nutcracker forces. Conjecture inclines the eastern Mediterranean or a stepped up air attack on Bengasi and Tripoli as possible. That seems to leave only Turkey and Spain as possible Axis diversion areas.

Both would involve heavy risks. Even if Germany can fight back—and there now is every reasonable assurance that she would—a vast extension of front and communication lines would confront the Germans and the Allies. Any reverse in Russia and the west would have to be further and dangerously thinned. There is no assurance an attack on Turkey could halt the Allied surge northward to the eastern North Africa of the foe.

Spain would be safer, but less threatening to the Allies although the Spanish Mediterranean and Spanish Atlantic coast could be a grave new threat to Anglo-American sea communications. The estimated Nazi occupation of Spanish Morocco in the year of Franco's reign is almost to be invited, and the nutcracker might be installed.

The only certain factor is that Hitler must move somewhere and soon. The initial stand stage on the Continent and admit he has shot his offensive bolt.

TYRANT PEACE TERMS

And is it worth the price we pay?
Just kick at Norway's plight today,
And, France and Holland and the rest,
With tyrant yokes about their necks,
Or think of something worse, perhaps;
Our women in the power of Japs.

Should freedom lose its final stand,
Horror will stalk throughout the land.
Remember Lydice? They came
And put the lovely place to flame.
Slaughtered its people, one and all,
The old, the young, the babies small.

They've left no hope; no way for us
Of compromising to discuss.
They've made it plain in starving Greece
How gruesome are their terms of peace.
They've boasted that our land shall be
More than one shattered Lydice.

They've left no easier way to choose
No doubt of "what it we should lose."
They've shown in Poland and in France
How they subdue where they advance.
They've shown us all too well the fate
If ever should this war be lost.

GREAT OAKS

The use of the oak as a symbol of steadfastness, of power, and of manliness dates back to the days of the Druids, who were the priests in Gaul, Britain and Ireland, held the oak in particular reverence, considering it the mistletoe, which grew on it, a gift from the gods. Indeed, the Druids built their altars under its branches and often performed their sacred and mysterious rites in the midst of an oak grove.

A golden oak leaf with a silver acorn superimposed upon it is the official sign of the U. S. Navy Medical Corps.

The insignia of a major in the Army of the United States and of the U. S. Marine Corps is a golden oak leaf; that of a lieutenant colonel is two oak leaves, a silver oak leaf.

In the American army the Oak-Leaf Cluster is awarded in place of duplicate decorations to signify that the wearer has performed acts of merit or heroism in addition to those honored by the Medal of Honor, the Distinguished Service Medal or the Distinguished Service Cross.

The oak has been the symbol of strength since ancient times. It was the tree of Jove and Thor, Scandinavian gods, and the Bible show clearly that the oak was regarded as sacred by the ancient inhabitants of Palestine. "Oaks," wrote Willam Penn, "are the natural recorders of the perfect image of the manly character."

Besides its use as the emblem of strength, the oak is also the emblem of the healing art.

This arose from the fact that the Druids, who men of the early Celts in Gaul, Britain and Ireland, held the oak in particular reverence, considering it the mistletoe, which grew on it, a gift from the gods. Indeed, the Druids built their altars under its branches and often performed their sacred and mysterious rites in the midst of an oak grove.

Another slight Russian gain was reported in the mid-Caucasus area southeast of Nalchik where only a few miles from the Axis threshold to effect a major break-through toward the great depot and stores.

Dislodged Quickly

Northeast of Tuapse, along the Black Sea coast, the Germans made advanced slightly but was dislodged quickly by a Red counter-attack and thrown back to his initial positions, the report said.

In addition to lengthening the Axis death list, the communique told of fresh enemy losses in material losses in the costly struggle of attrition. These included an 8,000-ton German transport reported sunk in the Barents Sea, two tanks, six guns, 17 trench mortars, 11 machine-guns and seven ammunition dumps in the Stalingrad area; five German planes brought down in the Tuapse zone; and four tanks lost near Nalchik.

Today's mid-day communique reported that Germans and Finns pulled last night at one point in the prolonged struggle elsewhere in the city the Russians were actively engaged and satisfactorily destroyed four invader strong points north-west of town.

HEALTH CHATS

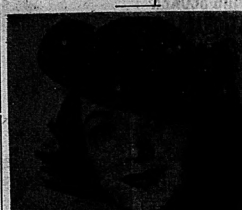
DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN
President, Chicago Board of Health

It is to be expected that the suffering caused by drugs which are taking thousands of lives daily should be tried out for many different kinds of disease. Unfortunately the discovery of these drugs it has been reported, has been in no other manner than doing much for ordinary colds. Some physicians, however, believe that giving the sulfonamide drugs to patients with colds may help control complications, such as pneumonia, ear infections or bronchitis. These drugs include the new preparations as sulfathiazole, sulfaguanidine, sulfadiazine and others.



Dr. Morris Siegal of New York City carried out some studies of a number of children to determine what might be the effect of sulfadiazine in preliminary colds and infections of the upper respiratory tract. He divided children into two similar groups, there being more than 50 in each. One group of children was given the sulfadiazine while the other was not. The results were noted over a period of about three months. The outstanding symptoms of the infections were running nose, sneezing and coughing. In some cases the infections developed into severe bronchitis or pneumonia developed. Of course, it was impossible to prevent all of the colds.

It was found that with the use of sulfadiazine at the onset of the sickness most of the patients improved within twenty-four hours. In a few cases, when the drug was stopped too soon, the fever returned after 72 hours. In some instances, no improvement was noted.

For the first twelve hours after treatment was started, there was often no noticeable difference in the children who received the drugs and in those who did not. Within twenty-four to thirty-six hours, however, improvement was usually observed in those receiving the sulfadiazine. The temperature dropped to normal and remained there. The patients appeared less sick. Their appetites returned, they were no longer listless, but were brighter and more alert. In most cases signs of the infection, such as sneezing and coughing continued but the infection appeared to be cleared up. Most of the patients showed no return of the infection while the drug was stopped after four days of treatment. In those cases treatment beyond four days was required, particularly when the children were seriously ill at the onset of the disease.

Judging from these results, according to Dr. Siegel, sulfadiazine can be employed with advantage early in the course of many acute respiratory infections. In some instances, the drug will be helpful in overcoming the infection present. In other cases, it may help prevent more serious condition from developing. Of course, a drug of this type should be used only as the physician directs and never unless he has a reason to believe that it is necessary.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mother Will Change

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 19 years old and have been going steady with a young man of 22 for almost two years, but we have to do it secretly. My mother forbids me to date him, although she really has nothing against him. He's educated, doesn't drink or smoke, and has tried many times to make mother like him. She's very pleasant to him, but when he's out of sight she tells me not to date him.

We want to get married, but if my mother found out we are to live with each other, she would send me away or never let me out of her sight. I'm just an average girl, though Mother seems to think I should marry a rich man or prince. I wouldn't trade my boy friend for anyone.

Wilma

At 19 you're still young enough to have a little patience and wait for the tide to turn in the young man's favor. As most of the kings and princes have been toppled off their thrones during the past few years, your mother will see eventually that it becomes more and more difficult daily to find a suitable husband for you. In which case, she will probably agree to let you marry the young man.

Too Young to Accept Diamonds

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My boy friend is 19 years old and I'm 17. We're going with him for the past fifteen months. I'm 16. Although he is not inclined to marry until I graduate from high school, he has given me a diamond ring. My mother disapproved but she is willing to take your advice on this matter.

Unhappy

Sixteen strikes me as too tender an age at which to accept diamond rings. What kind of a job has he? Is he capable of supporting you? And how about the draft? Don't you think that it would be wiser if, instead of considering marriage at this time, you began to prepare yourself for some sort of job after graduation?

As for that diamond ring, I think one ring decision in the matter is up to your mother.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

What Form of Name on Your Christmas Cards?

I have already discussed the difference between personal and informal Christmas cards and I urged you to decide, before you go to order your Christmas cards, whether you want to have your Christmas cards register formality or informality and, most particularly, whether you wished to use your formal or informal name on the cards.

That article was chiefly concerned with informal cards with the use of formal name imprinted on them—cards that have a warm and personal feeling.

Now let's consider formal Christmas cards.

If you (uninfluenced by the "models" shown you in the card samples or the card-samples books!) have really decided that you want to use your formal name, then you should know exactly what kind of card such a formal name is appropriate.

Naturally, if you are to use your formal name, you should purchase a card that has a formal appearance.

A strictly formal card has the message worded in the third person. And the formal name is used before the message, as on formal invitations and announcements.

This is the typical form:

Mr. and Mrs. John Formal wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

You can also achieve formality by the use of formal-looking cards with, for example, the word "Greetings" as the first page. Cards are especially beautiful cards of this kind this year) or with "Merry Christmas" "Christmas Greetings" or "The Season's Greetings" on the first page, and with no message on the inside pages. On this type of card you can correctly have your formal name engraved or imprinted on the third page.

If you have a wide circle of relatives and friends and acquaintances, it's a sensible plan to order two varieties of cards: one appropriate to send to people whom you do not know intimately, and for business acquaintances; and one for relatives and close friends. The first group could each have your name imprinted on them, perhaps with your formal name. For the second group you could choose informal cards with your informal name imprinted on them or buy the "blanks" and write and sign your own friendly Christmas wishes.

Proposals, Counter-Proposals By East and West Executives Fail to Bring About Solution

West Willing to Participate in Final Doc. 5 if They Can Use Doc 4 Players

STILL A MUDDLE

(By The Canadian Press)

Proposals and counter-proposals by eastern and western Canada football executives over the playoff of a Canadian football final so far have failed to bring about a solution to the mix-up.

The western Canada champions, Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers, have announced they are willing to participate in a sudden-death final but Dec. 5 if they are allowed to use R.C.A.F. members of the squad.

The Canadian Rugby Union, however, has announced that an eastern champion will not be decided until Dec. 5, the date set for the playoff between the winner of the Ottawa Senior City League and the Ontario Rugby Football Union and that the Canadian Northwest final would be Dec. 12.

Coupled with these announcements is the order issued last night by R.C.A.F. officials at Ottawa stating no airmen would be allowed to participate in football matches after Dec. 1.

The Winnipeg club yesterday suggested that eastern teams engage in mid-east play on an effort to declare an eastern champion sooner.

To Approach Brasdor

If such an done, an official of the Winnipeg club said today, and the eastern titlist was declared Nov. 28, the Canadian final could be staged Dec. 5 and C.R.U. officials could approach Air Marshal Ralph Manning, chief of the R.C.A.F., staff at Ottawa with a proposal that he allow airmen to participate in the national final.

The tangle, however, still remains unsettled, as the O.R.F.U. has told C.R.U. officials it is impossible to speed up their schedule.

Late last night Harold Bailey, Secretary of the O.R.F.U. brought new light on the tangle, stating that the O.R.F.U. has a team in mind which we think is feasible."

Depends on Games Saturday

He added, however, that much depended on the last scheduled games in Toronto Saturday when the O.R.F.U. playoffs in the regard to playoff dates. The O.R.F.U. and "we won't be able to do anything until after those games."

Officials of the Ottawa Senior League decided last night to stage a sudden-death final between Rough Riders and the R.C.A.F. for the city title. It was decided, however, to hold a two-game total-point series for the championship.

Last weekend, the C.R.U. suggested that Winnipeg play the winners of the Ottawa League in a semi-final match with the winners meeting the O.R.F.U. titlists. The western champions, however, turned down the proposal, stating if they won, away from their duties such a game would keep them out at least two weeks, and that this was out of the question.

He held the title until 1912, when he retired.

Champion McCready Faces Big Problem

"The Champeen!"

Yes, when Earl McCready makes his next bow at a wrestling audience it will be at the Hume Arena on Thursday night when he meets that ultra-clever of the padded ring, Pedro Martinez. The last marks the first ring appearance of McCready since he wrested the British Empire title away from John Katan, the Palermo giant, last week. McCready has been angling for a bout with any grappler boasting of the Empire crown and chuckled with glee when Promoter Frank Tunney signed him for this important tussle.

However, there's another fly in the ointment — in the semi-final bout appears John Katan, the determined champ, who is nursing ill-will against McCready and has threatened vengeance either inside or out of the ring. The fact there's a bad blood between Katan and McCready dates far back in wrestling history and the Palermo villain can be expected to materially assist Martinez if and when the situation arises here Thursday night. Katan meets Waller Sirois while in the opener Jan Gotch and Pat Fraley haul and pull.

Gooden Must Play With Portege Terriers

Port Arthur, Nov. 17 — (CP)— Frank Sargent of Port Arthur, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced last night sanctions of Bill Gooden, retired this year to play with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, cannot play with any other club in organized hockey than Portage la Prairie Juniors, the club he was with last season.

Sargent and Eddie Patrick, manager of Rangers, had asked for the re-instatement of Gooden to play with Niagara Falls Seniors but that the Rangers sold and the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association refused to grant him a transfer.

Gooden played one game with Rangers last year. Sargent refused a passport to enter the United States. It was following this that Patrick asked for his reinstatement.

Sargent announced also the reinstatement of R. Martel and S. Levine, both of Vancouver, and Earl Roche of Montreal.

GORDON DRILLON LEADING SCORER IN NATIONAL LOOP

Former Leaf Giving His All for His Former Coach, Dick Irvin

HAS 12 POINTS

By The Canadian Press

Gordon Drillon has broken swiftly from the barrier in his eagerness to prove that Toronto Maple Leafs pulled hockey's biggest boner when they sold the big right winger to Montreal Canadiens this fall.

Shortly after the Toronto management announced the transfer, Drillon took inventory, vowed the change of scenery was "the best thing that could happen to me," and said he welcomed the chance to play again under coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens.

Irvin coached Leafs in 1937-38 and Drillon was star pupil, tallying 21 goals and 15 assists to lead the National League scoring race. Recalling that accomplishment, Drillon said: "I did it for Dick once and I think I can do it again."

He may be right at that. In six games to date, the 28-year-old Moncton, N. B., boy leads all N. H. L. scorers with five goals and seven assists. His new linemates, Buddy O'Connor and Ray Getliffe, are listed among the first scoring trios with 10 and nine points respectively.

Prediction Stands Up

Drillon made another pre-season prediction that has stood up well so far. He declared that Sylvanus Apps, his linemate with Leafs, would miss "me but as much as I miss him." Apps has been floundering in early games and Toronto critics are already clamoring for a shakeup of the line he centres (Bob Davidson and Mel Hill are the wingmen.) In fact, when Leafs bowed to Chicago 4-3 Saturday, the cry "We want Drillon" was heard for the first time.

Drillon has another chance to pad his scoring averages tonight when Canadiens meet the revived Boston Bruins in the only N. H. L. game Tuesday. Canadiens have an over sole possession of second place behind Detroit Red Wings with a victory, tie or loss to go and a three point pace with Boston and Leafs in their lows.

Both teams will be understaffed. Bruins have been short of material all season started and Montreal will be minus four regulars who are unable to obtain passports for games in the United States. Terry Reardon, Maurice Richard, Elmer Lach and Emile (Butch) Bouchard, Boosbard, Incidentally, will be out of the game for some time because of blood poisoning.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Notes on a heavy weekend in the sports writing business:-

Friday's football night at the Garden, and sometimes you wonder why you keep going there week after week . . . Of course you see some good scraps—and some bad ones, but it's one sure place to pick up the odd bit of news or gossip to use in a column . . . last Friday there was an undercurrent of excitement as the ringworms gathered for Sam Angott's sudden ambition of the lightweight title and the probable effect upon the Beau Jack-Allie Stolz affair they were about to see and several of them stopped by boxing Commissioner Phelan's seat right behind you to confirm Sammy's retirement.

The fight was pretty good while it lasted, too. . . . And with some satisfaction you remembered that piece a couple of days ago about how different boxing styles made good or bad scraps.

Saturday it was Baker Field for the Yale-Princeton game, with a bitter wind whistling through the almost unprotected press box . . . You just sat there and shook . . . Even on the field the wind did strange tricks with the ball and spoiled the players, but mostly it was pretty good football.

Sunday's a hockey night and it seemed queer to be expecting a poor game between the Rangers and Bruins . . . always in the past these meetings had been the season's highspots . . . But rookies and a new form like rookies and they put a lot of action into it even if they did lack skill. . . . And that kid Bill Chill had quite a night with the Bruins. He'll get in the game the second period because his clearance papers hadn't arrived in Canada soon enough. They're celebrated his professional debut by scoring a goal and wound up with a five-stitch cut on his ankle after smashing into a goalpost . . . The press room after the game the reporters continued to talk football and how good they had been, then someone asked what had been heard from Jim Burchard, who was president of the Hockey Writers' Association last year . . . Finally came out that the army had sent him to Africa—a strange place for a hockey scribe.

(By CHARLES EDWARDS

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 17.—(CP)— The Quebec Senior Hockey League rule limiting to four the number of former National Hockey League players permitted on any O.S.H.L. team was bound to bring repercussions . . . Jack (Cornwall Standard-Freeholder) Park reports a move to raise the limit to five and, with Cornwall established as one of the most dangerous teams, Parks asks: "Can it be that they have unearthed some new talent which they hope may put a crimp in the Cornwall program?" Park says the League's four service teams all have their quota of four . . . Commandos—Ken Reardon, Alex Shibicky, Neil Colville, Jim Henry; Montreal Army—Jim Smith, Gordie Bruce, Allan Kuntz, Red Geogrie; Montreal R.C.A.F.—Pete Morin, Ken Mosdell Jim Haggarty, Normie Burns; Cornwall—Jack Church, Nick Knott, Frank Mario, Jerry Brown.

Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick also mentions possible "loosening up on the N.H.L. player." . . . Westwick says Fred Thurier, with Brooklyn Americans for a time last year and early scoring leader of the American League this season, has left Buffalo Bisons for the army in Montreal. Bill adds a touch of interest . . . Dan Kerr, who is moving up to Americans may not be recognized as having played with an N.H.L. team".

Supreme Reverse

Figures presented by Vic (Richardson Record) McKenny deal with results within the Ontario Hockey Association of the policy of permitting wholesale players' movements—the hockey tourist industry. He points out an O.H.A. record book "The championship season of 1921-22 . . . was a remarkable one in many ways. While the Senior series, as in 1920-21, was confined to six teams, there were 30 intermediate teams, 10 more than the next largest year, and 78 junior, which beat the previous season by 17."

McKenty comments: "If that one paragraph doesn't tell an eloquent story of what the 'Wide open Door' policy has done to O.H.A. hockey, you can't see us. Last year, if memory serves correctly, there were seven Senior Clubs, six Junior "A" teams and not more than half a dozen first-class intermediate aggregations over the province. . . . If that reverse pace is maintained another 20 years it'll probably be impossible to make a comparison at that time, and the reason why is obvious".

by K.J.C.

FOR THE SEVENTH CONSECUTIVE year Dr. "Sandy" Barrows has been named to the executive committee of the Ontario Hockey Association. Back to the fall of 1936, when Mr. Barrows first entered politics in the O.H.A. body, he led the electorate polls for several seasons, but there is to be no election to offices to the O.H.A. for the 1943-43 season, all officers being returned by acclamation. "Congratulations, Sandy."

Secretary W. A. Hewitt announced today that P. W. "Dinty" Moore, former York Colleges goal-keeper, has been named president of the Oshawa Shopping Centre, succeeding Rose Cleatons, of Hamilton. With "Dinty" McGrath of Oshawa and "Sandy" Burrows of Belleville on the executive, practically every radio will be well represented on the governing puck body of the province when they meet at their annual meeting in Toronto on Saturday.

RUGBY FOOTBALL STILL lingers locally with Albert College defending the C.O.S.S.A. senior title; rain plights here versus the Stirling High School kids today. The quintet entered from Albert College and their squad than Coach Paul Goyette's group completed. Albert has had the introduction of forward passing into football and highly lauded it as a leveller and lighter terms. In the old days, when forward passing was not at, a squad of heavy brutners could steam-roll over a lighter team by sheer prolific number, but today any team with a good passer has a chance to win, as was proved when the supposed class of opposition and the best proof of this is the number of upsets which mark each football season. Albert has been a pupil to the intricacies of football has been more accepted by the fans than the forward pass, and has opened up the game and gave the patrons a better idea of what it was going on during the execution of rapid-fire football.

MORE FOOTBALL — COACH Jack Doran's St. Michael's Academy huskies, the champions of the junior section of the Bay of Quinte group in the O.R.S.A. are to be banqueted at the Hotel Quinte, Quinte Hotel on Wednesday evening. The coach of the local chapter of the Knights of Columbus, the 1942 grid champs will come in for their share of eulogy and presentations and credit for the most dramatic of their victorious football achievements. The St. Mikes "trio" completed their 1942 season of four games undefeated, but where held to a tie by Albert College.

REMEMBER WHEN BOBBY Jobes, king of amateur goldom, abdicated his throne? Remember it today? The 26-year-old Georgian, winner of 33 National titles—including four "majors" in 1936—quit the amateur ranks to make a series of motion pictures.

WHEN THE MAJOR BASEBALL leagues convene in Chicago next month one of the paramount questions will be whether to increase or decrease the player limit of major league clubs in 1943. The player limit being quoted is in favor of going as low as 23 men. However, others take an opposite view, arguing each club should be permitted to carry more than the now-authorized 25 during the season, retaining the 25 only for emergencies, and to cut out a team making a practice of loaning players to the armed forces within a short span.

Regardless of the outcome, limit is set, it seems certain that few players will be sent from the minor loos to the minors, except on options to those with no player rights. Baseball Commissioner Landis has frowned on 24-hour notices in the past, but the player limit is increased, the clubs may insist on the practice being reopened.

THIS AND THAT—THERE IS A rumor floating around Chicago indicating Charley Grimm may be replaced as manager of the Chicago Cubs. . . . And Del Baker is being placed at the helm of the Detroit Tigers, don't be surprised if he doesn't get the appointment. . . . Leo Durocher and Bragab Rickey are slated to get major league baseball managerial terms for the 1943 Brooklyn Dodgers and Rochester Red Wings from St. Louis, Leo's home town, is that he'll enter the United States Marine Corps if he and Rickey don't click. . . . Toronto Maple Leafs obtained Bucky Jeffrey from report by the name of Herb Crompton. . . . He was a star in the Ontario talk. A mention was passed that report of nominating committees be accepted.

A vote of thanks was expressed to Mrs. Raymond Chambers for her faithful service as president of the society for the past two years. A hymn was sung and meeting closed with prayer by the president. The hostess served apples and grapes.

AT THE BELLE

"Desperate Journey"

The Belle Theatre's feature attraction is the Errol Flynn-Ronald Reagan starring film, "Desperate Journey." The picture, produced by Warner Bros., is now showing.

"Desperate Journey" tells the stirring story of how an RAF bomber team, flying above the heart of Germany after a successful raid, fought its way back into England, leaving a trail of death and destruction behind.

Outstanding in the supporting cast are Nancy Coleman, as a member of the German Underground; Raymond Massey, as a Nazi officer; Alan Hale, Arthur Kennedy and Ronald Sinclair, as other members of the crew.

The Belle News of the Day and a color fun cartoon complete the program.

"Calro", Musical Romance

Jeanette MacDonald gets a new screen partner and has a fling at comedy in M-G-M's "Cairo", coming next to the Belle Theatre.

The red-haired singing star teams with Robert Young in the adventure romance paced with laughs and melody.

Her role in "Cairo" is quite a departure for Miss MacDonald. For one thing, she goes completely modern. Her wardrobe is as up-to-date as today's newspaper headlines. Kalloch, noted M-G-M- designer, styled several eye-catching outfits for the star, in contrast to former roles calling for hoopskirts and crinolines.

A color fun cartoon, "Little Billy Wolf," and "The Further Prophecies of Nostradamus," the master seer of the 15th century, whose uncanny predictions will enlighten, mystify, and entertain the spectator, complete the program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"They All Kissed the Bride"

Joan Crawford returns to the type of romantic comedy characterization which led to her original success, joyfully returned to the McCarthy Theatre yesterday in Columbia's "They All Kissed the Bride," a tender and warmly human love story with Melvyn Douglas delightfully co-starred. Alexander Hall directed the film, whose stellar cast includes Roland Young, Billie Burke and Allen Jenkins.

"They All Kissed the Bride" presents Miss Crawford as a million dollar doll who is surprised to learn she discovers she's playing with fire; Douglas as the young lawyer who believes there's nothing wrong with a woman that a good spanking can't cure. Told in delightful comedy under the expert direction of the maker of "Mr. Lucky" and "Topper," Douglas, the new Columbia film is a happy combination of rapturous romance and giddy gaiety, with neither characterization overshadowing into one glorious entertainment whole.

Douglas and Miss Crawford effectively prove that love is a funny thing, as Joan plays the part of Cathy theatre audiences want to cry a little and Douglas is destined to laugh a great deal more than usual. For "They All Kissed the Bride" is one of those rare movie pictures, in which a gay gallery of grand people move blissfully through a romance to remember. In addition to the stars, Roland Young appears as a lawyer who prefers to practice on women; Billie Burke is seen as a delicious dowager, and Allen Jenkins again portrays a rough diamond who cuts a smooth rug!

J. J. Wolfson penned the love-and-laugh screen play, which finds room for the comedy exploitation of another of Miss Crawford's many talents, the ability as one of Hollywood's foremost dancers. Appearing in her second film since her return, Miss Crawford in the normal course of hectic events, finds herself competing in a jitterbug contest. Posing as a female jockey who only now is mulling before the male volcano portrayed by Douglas, her participation as a "cat" is attributed to her complete inability to keep up with the foot-flinging Jenkins, her partner.

Lesser players in the cast include such other comedy favorites as Helen Parrish, Andrew Tombes, Nydia Westman, Mary Treen, Gordon Jones and Roger Clark.

"Johnson Raider"

A splendid second feature "Submarine Raider" featuring John Loder, Marguerite Chapman and Bruce Bennett, rounds out a program of entertainment that discerning patrons will most certainly remember a long, long, time.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Devil Bat"

Bela Lugosi himself, confesses that his role in "Devil Bat", now showing at the Capitol, is the most spine-chilling role he has ever had. And that is saying a lot, considering his other celebrated "Dracula", which gained him world-wide fame.

"Devil Bat" deals with a mind-crazed scientist, who invents a monstrous bat to further his vengeance on friends—whom he believes have wronged him. The cast includes Susan Kaaren and Dave O'Brien.

"Escape"

The new romantic team of Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor, surrounded by an outstanding a cast of favorite players, have been ensembled for any film, brings Ethel Barrymore's best-seller, "Escape" to the screen with electrifying force.

Here is a story that combines almost unbearable suspense with vivid, soul-searching characterization that should live in film history.

Moira

Services are withdrawn from this week's program on Sunday owing to anniversary services to be held at Eggleton which is the place to be held on this circuit this year. Rev. John McKenzie will conduct the meeting with hymn 253. Scripture lesson was read by Miss Grace Hinroy and Miss Boland and Elmer Thompson. The senior room under the direction of their teacher Miss Hairiman, conducted with a chorus "In Finders Fields" was then given by Mr. Beverley Foster, followed by more readings by Miss Ida Thompson and Mrs. Angus Mumby.

The topic Remembrance Day, was also duly given by Mr. Gordon Foster, who stated that if we had fought as hard for peace during the last twenty-one years as the soldiers fought in the First Great War, we wouldn't have been this second Great Conflict being fought now for the last time. Amen.

Gordon then conducted a musical contest with the harmonica, and the meeting closed with hymn 177.

The piano machine was used for its final visit in these parts and a very bountiful harvest was reaped by the owner of this locality.

Fall ploughing is nearly completed by most of the farmers.

Some local hirmolds have returned from the hunting grounds. Mr. Nelson Welch was fortunate in getting his deer.

The Red Cross meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Foster, Moira, on Tuesday. A good attendance of ladies were present. A quilt was also quilted. A number of pairs of pyjamas were distributed and the next meeting of the light lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

TRY RETAIL POOL DELIVERY PLAN

Experiment Will be Given Trial in St. Catharines and if Successful Will be Extended

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 17 (CP) —An experiment in Wartime Delivery, a retail pool delivery plan—will be inaugurated here Thursday, with the possibility it may be extended to embrace other cities throughout the Dominion.

If the St. Catharines "guinea pig" test proves the feasibility of such a delivery service, consideration will be given by the Wartime Prices and Trade Commission. The experiment—one delivery service for each two grocery stores—has been organized at the request of the Board of Trade in this Canadian Garden City as a test city.

Organized by a special committee of the retail section of St. Catharines Chamber of Commerce, more than three hundred merchants who use delivery trucks have joined in the co-operative arrangement, under which it is hoped to save hundreds of thousands of tons of rubber and gasoline for war power.

Reduce Truck Mileage 78 Per Cent

H. W. Fox, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said it is anticipated that truck mileage will be reduced by 78 per cent; the number of trucks on the road by 73 per cent; and the number of trucks entering the central business district operation by 34 per cent. Operating expenses also would be greatly reduced.

"Co-operation is the essence of

"If the public gets behind the plan the whole matter", Mr. Fox said, "as with the same spirit which has been shown by the merchants, the plan will succeed and St. Catharines will have made still another notable contribution to the war effort."

The plan of the co-operative delivery service is to have general merchandise purchased up to three o'clock in the afternoon delivered on the following day and to have foodstuffs purchased up to 11 o'clock in the morning delivered the same day.

Little Benny's Note Book

My sister Oladdis and Harvey came around to spy on my birds, and Oladdis was showing me her finger nails, claiming she had a new polish on which that was the newest out, when she took it off, and hardly even then, and pop said, my, my, Harvey, I wonder what a man from Mars would think if he arrived on earth and saw all the women painting their nails and their faces every conceivable shade except the original natural colors?

He'd probably have quite a laugh, Harvey said. And imagine his shock when he saw all the girls with lovely smooth hair paying ten dollars to have a permanent wave put into it, while all the ones with beautiful natural waves were paying ten dollars to have them permanently ironed out, he said.

Pop said, and that high-brow what would he think when he saw men walking with their feet shaved down at an angle of 45 degrees? And their mouths all bare, but their chins all set among hundreds of strangers and he fed the animals to the zoo by, keepers with their waiting to and fro among the tables? what would the man from Mars make of that? pop said.

Winner of Hart Trophy Is in the Army Now

"Cowboy" Anderson Among N.H.L. Stars, Over Eighty in Number in Armed Forces

There are now over 80 athletes in the armed forces of the Dominion of Canada and the United States, who were either regulars with National Hockey league teams, or on the reserve of negotiation lists, of major league clubs.

One of the most interesting enlistments is that of "Cowboy" Tommy Anderson, Calgary star, former for the now-defunct New York Americans. Tommy Anderson is in the Canadian army, attached to the west unit, Camp Krubi, one of Anderson's mates on the Americans is now in the R.C.A.F., and so is another former American, Ken Mosdell, in addition to those listed.

Added to the list of entrants into military, those who discarded National Hockey league uniforms to take on blue, or blue, is Allan Kumte, of the Rangers. He is now in the R.C.A.F., after playing hockey for the Pilots in the Quebec senior group. Les Chisholm, who played for some seasons with Toronto, is in the army bringing Toronto's contribution up to 15 men in all. Johnny Mariucci, one of the stars of the United States players who made the grade in the National is in the United States Coast Guard. Mariucci, a great national athlete, continues to distinguish himself with the Coast Guard football and hockey clubs.

TOMMY ANDERSON

A Fine Player

Anderson was one of the most popular and effective players in the National league. Anderson closed his last season in a burst of speed as the leading scorer among the league's defence players, with 12 goals, 11 assists, 23 points. He was tenth in the league's scoring list for 1941-42. This broke the remarkable record set by "King" Clancy, now a referee of the National league. While playing for Toronto Leafs, in 1928-30, Clancy scored 17 goals, registered 23 assists, for a total of 40 points. Next to that came Eddie Shore with a record with Boston Bruins. In 1932-33, Shore had eight goals, 27 assists for 35 points.

Over a period of several seasons the broke into the National Hockey league with Detroit, in 1934-35 Thomas Linton Anderson has been one of the consistently sound and steady players on the major loop.

Anderson is a real Scot, born in Edinburgh, like Charlie Gardiner, the famous Chicago Black Hawk goalie. He got into hockey in Drumheller, Canada, with the team from which the Bentley brothers sprang to stardom with Toronto.

Kents Was Find

Rangers got two veterans as the two Colvilles and Shibicky, a complete and well-established forward line, the veteran defence star, Earl Seibert, and Kumte, a star goaler, "Sugar Jim" Henry, in the army too, was a youngster of the Rangers' future. Left wing was one of the finest new forward lines developed in the National Hockey league last season, Kumte got into double scoring figures in his first season with 10. Kumte left-winged the combination of Smith, Watson and the Calder trophy rookie-winner, Grant Warwick, and with a line that played an important part in the successes achieved by the New York club. In fact, it was only when this line was formed and set and stuck to stride that the Rangers began to roll in earnest.

When last season opened, Kumte was trotting in Brockville, Ont., for the Canadian army commission but received leave of absence Nov. 1 to play hockey. The reprieve was granted by Major Thompson outstanding for Washington Recruiting Station in Rockefeller Centre. He played with the Guelph, Ont., juniors, before Rangers got him to their Philadelphia farm-team.

CHAPTER 10
Stone Talks Shop

"Then will you give him these two letters. It will save my going up there. Good Lord, Mr. Stone, you will save the boy, won't you? To think of that splendid fellow in danger of his life! Is there no justice in this world?"

"If there is we'll find it. I'll see you again, Mr. Hilla, after I interview the friend you esteem so highly."

Next morning Fleming Stone came to Herrick's call.

Brand greeted him with a fine courtesy and a smile so palpably forced that Stone disregarded it and looked into his client's eyes. In their depths he had much grief and sorrow as he had seldom if ever met before.

"Sit down, man," he said gently, "and tell me all about it."

"There isn't much, to tell—it's only that somebody made a mistake," Brand laughed.

"Let up on that lighthome attitude and forget to try to smile," he added.

"This betters it," he said, as Stone realized that Clarence Brand had been right when he said Herrick could look ferocious.

"No, no. That's not right, either. I want you to look as Fatima looked when Sister Anne said, 'Fatima, I see your brothers coming. Try it."

And because of the assurance in the speaker's voice and manner, and smile, Brand, without effort, gave the look asked for.

"You're the medium," he said fervently.

"Now you're for it," he told Brand. "How much have you to tell me?"

"Not much do you know already?"

"Very little. So tell me all and be as brief as possible."

Herrick did it well, giving a slight description of the paltry and a fuller report of the police detective's inquiry which had brought about the arrest.

"Doesn't seem to be there was enough evidence to arrest you, Stone said, thoughtfully.

"I had that notion, too," Brand agreed, "but they acted so little for my opinion."

"They would. As you detailed the situation, discovery of the murderer seems to me to depend on the order in which you young men filed through that coat room."

"And that is just finding out. I've tried and tried. You see, I've no idea who went out as I came in, or—who came in as I went out."

"Opposite doors, eh?"

"Yes, and the room was a general thoroughfare and meeting room. The place is just one room after another—must be a dozen on that floor and as many more downstairs. We didn't count the ladies' dressing-rooms, but they added our coat room."

"And Mrs. McCleod was in that room while several of her friends came in, stopped, let us say, to speak to her and then as someone else appeared, left her?"

"Yes, and the four of us say we were there, yet each denies killing Alma. Now, if we four filed through, and if one of us did the killing, it must have been the last one."

"Not necessarily."

"Why not? If anyone had followed the killer, he would have given the alarm—as Doris Day did later."

"He might have and he might not. Suppose he was afraid to, lest he be suspected?"

"You mean it might not have been any of us four?"

"No! I don't mean that. I mean that it need not have been the last one of four. The last one of you may have been the one who saw her dead and kept silent."

Herrick thought for a moment. "I can't say it," he said. "All I know for certain, is that Mr. McCleod was not the last, and that I was not the last, because someone came to that room at one door just as I left at the other."

"Why did you hurry out?"

"Because Alma told me to. She said she thought it was her husband and I'd better go. But it was not her husband. He was up with his father."

"You're sure of that?"

"Oh, yes. Miss Murray vouched for the time, and she is very exact about everything."

"And Mrs. McCleod didn't want her husband to see you with her?"

"I shall have to tell you, I see. I have nothing more than friendliness for Alma, but she had shown of late to prefer my company to the others. It is but a passing fancy and perhaps she was piqued because I did not meet her advances more eagerly, but believe the tragedy that night, I had been dancing with her and she had come through a side hall to a little automatic elevator that ran up to her room, as a test, she slipped a catch that locked us in the car and pretended it was jammed and we couldn't open the door. That annoyed me, and I showed her I was angry, and opened the door herself. We were upstairs then, and she led me to the coat room, and went in with me, and sat down on one of the chaise lounge, and drew me down to her and begged me to kiss her. Ordinarily I would have done so, but she had been so very ardent I was afraid of a trick, and she said suddenly, 'Sam, Brand, I hear someone coming! Maybe it is Jack. So I jumped away from her and went out one door and a somebody came in at the other."

"Do you know who it was?"

"It was Sam Dyke Staples."

"Do you think he would be capable of murder?"

"As capable as I am. I believe every one is capable of murder, given sufficient motive and opportunity."

"That may be, but there's no way to prove it. Then I take it Haynes was more in love with the lady than you were."

"I was not in love with her at all. Her too desperate flirtations disgusted me."

"Now, let us get this program right. We are grouting that Mr. McCleod went up to his father's apartment as his sister says, and after that, you four young men were more or less with his wife in the coat room and we are trying to find which of the four is responsible for the death of the lady."

"Right."

"You went with her from the elevator to the coat room, and after her a short scene, she told you to run away. lest someone come in and see you two together. And she said it might be her husband. Now, where did you go?"

"Right across the hall from the coat room, there is a little writing room. I went in there and stayed to think things over. I wanted to go home, but didn't think it right to go without saying good night to her. I just sat there and smoked for a while. The door was wide open and I sat all the cured smiling about. I saw all the fellows go in and out of the coat room, and a few girls too."

"What did you notice of the ones we are most interested in? The ones who were with you at the police inquiry, when you were arrested?"

"I saw Murray and Martin Delevan go into the coat room. I did not see Van go in, but I saw him in the hall once or twice. Well, anyhow, I decided to go in the room, say good night to Alma whether anyone was with her or not, and then go home. I went in and she was alone and she began vamping me again, and she was lying on the chaise lounge, and she put her arms around me the next and drew me down to her, and that must be when I grasped at the back of the couch, as the frame is chromium—and I probably left finger-prints. And then I unclasped her arms and I'm afraid heard someone at the door, and I jerked myself away from her, and said, 'Good night, Alma,' and fled. Alma was mad to luring men, and usually, I think they were glad to be fled. One of the waiters, for some reason lost his head—and perhaps to prevent her screaming — he put the big pillow over her face, and held it down longer than he meant to. I don't believe he meant to kill her, but when Alma gets in a tantrum she screams."

"And it may have been Haynes?"

"Yes, it may have been. I seemed to think I heard his voice that said, 'Are you here, Alma?' But I heard Jack Haynes at Van's voice or one greatly like it."

"Where did you go then?"

"I had my hat and coat and I went downstairs, intending to go right home, but there was quite a fun going on in the bar and they called me to come in. The band took my things and I went in. So I was still there when Doris Day gave the alarm."

"Now, if that was Haynes who came into the coat room as you went out by the other door, and if he did have a stormy session with Mrs. McCleod, would he have had the opportunity to lift her off with the pillow, unseen? Weren't there other people coming for their coats or other girls coming in?"

"There wouldn't have been such a chance, except that just when that stunt was on down in the bar, it was a well-known impersonator who was doing his stuff. He's a famous fellow, and as soon as it became known that he was down there, everybody quit eating and down to see him."

"Was Mr. Haynes down there?"

"I saw him there for a while. But I don't know how long it was after I came down, that he came down. The actor was claiming all our attention. It was fully half an hour after I came down that I saw Haynes."

"Well, this is sure," said Stone, after a pause. "Haynes went into the room where Alma was after you had left her there alive."

"Yes—if that was his voice I heard. I couldn't swear to it; but I knew it more from the way he pronounced her name. We all say it Ahlma. But Van says it like the first syllable of Albert, Al-ma. And whoever came in, that door, pronounced it Ahlma, I'm sure."

"Mr. Herrick, that sounds to me like progress. I'm going to say, I fear the authorities will not accept it as anything of value. What bothers me is that your memories of people coming and going, people being somewhat vague, have no timing by the clock. I suppose you do not know the exact time or even approximate time that any of these men went in or out?"

"No, I don't."

"So you remember anybody, perhaps not of your own crowd, coming for his coat, or any one in the writing room? He might give us the time."

"Paul I can't be very definite. I remember seeing two or three of the older men, Mr. McCleod's friends, but they mostly stayed in the hall, looking over the balcony rail at the dancers below. And, too, I doubt they could tell the time."

"Well, I'll do what I can, if anything, to learn from other witnesses. The servants might help?"

"Dickson, the valet, was around off and on. He'll probably know something. And Foo Chow, the butler, was upstairs occasionally. Yes, they may be helpful. But if you get a complete time-table, how will it name the murderer for you?"

"There will have to be sleights of evidence. And I must be going now, I want to talk with Mr. McCleod."

Obituary

JOHN MUIR

John Muir died at his home, 24 Pitts Street, this Tuesday morning, after a short illness.

The late Mr. Muir, who was in his 86th. year was born at Woodstock, Ontario, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Muir. Seventy years ago he came to reside in this city and made his home here continuously since that time. He was a locomotive engineer since the year 1878 and was in the service of the old Grand Trunk Railway and later the Canadian National Railways for over fifty years. For fourteen years he was the engineer in charge of the locomotive which hauled the train between here and Montreal and for seven years he was the engineer on the same train from Belleville to Toronto. In the discharge of his duties he was faithful and efficient and was well esteemed by the railway officials in this division and by his fellow employees.

He retired about eighteen years ago. He was the oldest member of Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in this city.

In religion Mr. Muir was one of the oldest members of Bridge Street Methodist Church, having joined during his active years he took much interest in the work of the church and was highly regarded by many friends. Fraternally Mr. Muir was one of the oldest members of Moira Lodge A.F. & A.M. No. 11, having joined the Order in the year 1863, and of Belleville Lodge, I.O.O.F., No. 81, since 1866. Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Mary Stinson; two daughters, Mrs. T. H. Norton, Belleville, and Mrs. R. M. Hall, Kingston; two sons, Mr. H. J. Muir and Mr. V. M. Muir, both of Belleville; one brother, Mr. William Muir, Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE MRS. RAYMOND MOORE

The funeral of the late Mrs. Raymond Webb, 182 Moira Street, took place this Tuesday afternoon from the residence of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Lapierre, 74 Pinnacle Street, to St. Michael's Church, where Requiem Mass was celebrated at nine o'clock by the Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, V.G.

The bearers were V. G. Clare, J. Lapierre, William Harvey, Jr., Peter Miller, C.S.M. Carson and Guest. Interment was made at St. James' Cemetery.

SHIP LAUNCHED IN THREE DAYS

Kaiser Shipyard Builds Tank - Landing Craft in Short Time

Vancouver, Wash., Nov. 17 (AP) — A Henry J. Kaiser shipyard claimed another record today — a three day ship launching.

A tank-landing craft slid into the Columbia river from his yard last night, just two days, 22 hours and 40 minutes after keel-laying.

Map of the vessel was not announced, the United States navy saying only it was smaller than the 1,900-ton Liberty freighters from which Kaiser previously set construction speed records.

Kaiser Richmond, Calif., yard holds the record, four days, 15½ hours for a Liberty ship launchings.

The previous record for small vessels was set last week by the Pacific Bridge Company Alameda, Calif., shipyard which launched the Very, a 4,000-ton cargo carrier, in three days, eight hours.

CAPT. F. T. PETERS DIES IN N. AFRICA

He and Brigadier Vogel Killed in Plane Crash While on Mission

Nelson, B.C., Nov. 17 (CP)—Capt. Frank Thomas Peters, who died in North Africa was announced Sunday night from Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied headquarters in Algiers, is believed to be Capt. Frank Thomas Peters, a brother of Mrs. R. E. L. Dewdney of Nelson, B.C. Capt. Peters and Brig. Vogel of the British army were killed in a plane crash, while carrying out a mission.

Capt. Peters was the son of the late Frank Peters, a former Premier of Prince Edward Island. He was born on Prince Edward Island at Cardigan, Kings county, and was a brother of Premier Peters of Prince Edward Island and of Mrs. Dewdney of Nelson. His mother is living with Mrs. Dewdney here.

Capt. Peters was a Rhodes Scholar, Capt. Peters was educated at Oxford and served in the Willoughby Meteor, and was in action at Dieppe and Bath. He was awarded a D.S.O. for his part in that engagement. Later he commanded the destroyer Montcalm and was given the D.S.C. for sinking German U-boats in the Mediterranean. Captain Peters was 31 years old and unmarried.

Inspector Gardner Joins Hunt for Lost Hunter

Augmenting the posse searching for 51-year-old Charles Wanamaker, missing hunter, who has been lost in the woods north of Bancroft for four days, Provincial Police Gardner and Provincial Constable Robt. Duncan of Provincial Headquarters, Toronto, Provincial Police here joined the search today. Inspector Gardner left on the northern trip in North Hastings when he received word that the search last week ago Wednesday. Despite the fact posses headed by Fire Ranger and provincial police have been active every day and night since, no trace of the missing man has been reported up until noon today. Little hope is held out for the safe return of hunter's life owing to the severe wintry-like weather that has gripped the Bancroft area for the past week.

U. S. Naval Victory Highly Praised By British Press

London, Nov. 17 (CP)—London newspapers headlined the story of United States naval victory over the Japanese in the battle of Guadalcanal today as the "biggest sea battle of the war" and the Daily Telegraph and Morning Post drove to be the decisive action of the whole campaign.

"The long-expected all-out Japanese attempt to land overwhelming reinforcements on Guadalcanal has been met and smashed", wrote H. W. Lucas, Daily Telegraph editor of the Express.

"At the same time, if the Japanese ever shrunk themselves back into the narrow lines of the Henderson Field-Lunga Trap, they will be met by even stronger United States forces.

"These close range night battles reverse the bitter tragedy on the night of Aug. 9 when four American cruisers were surprised and sunk by an enemy battle cruiser force".

LINDSAY COUPLE BURNED TO DEATH

Aged Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scott Victims of Early Morning Fire

Lindsay, Ont., Nov. 17—(CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scott, aged Lindsay couple, were burned to death in their small home, 90 St. Patrick Street, early today. Coroner Dr. G. Collison states an inquest will be held.

Flames from the small frame dwelling were first noticed about five a.m. by Lloyd McMullin and Cecil Morden, drivers for a local dairy. The two men were a half-mile distant from the fire when they noticed the flames in the sky. Arriving on the scene they woke up the next door neighbor Mrs. J. Bishop, a daughter of the aged couple.

Knowing that her parents, both over 80 years of age, must still be in the house, Mrs. Bishop frantically tried to gain entrance. Assisted by Police Constable Percy Hart, the two milkmen broke open an upstairs window but were driven back by the complete mass of flame.

The house was gutted before the fire was finally extinguished by Fire Lindsay fire crew. Body of Mrs. Scott, who has been ill, was found near the door. Body of Mr. Scott near the doorway as if he had been trying to escape from the flames. Both are believed to have started from overheated pipes.

Japs Increase Forces in Burma

Chungking, Nov. 17 — (AP) The Japanese have increased their forces in Burma by "a few divisions" bringing the total "to six—perhaps 90,000 men — army spokesman said today.

Of military activity in Manchuria, he said: "The general situation has not changed," but he added that the Japanese have built a narrow-gauge rail line north from Paotow, in Suiyuan province, to military purposes, and had enlarged an airdrome there.

Mrs. Roosevelt Returns Home

Washington, Nov. 17 — (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned to Washington today from a wartime trip to Britain.

The president's wife (who left New York Oct. 21, arrived at a nearby airport early this morning and was met by the President.

In Britain she was the guest of the King and Queen and carried out an arduous inspection of military and civilian projects.

The White House said she would hold a press conference at 11 a. m. E. D. T. tomorrow.

When Mrs. Roosevelt left Britain and Ireland she followed returning war not disclosed.

Bonuses May Boost Old Age Pensions, Mothers' Allowance

Port Arthur, Nov. 17 — (CP) — Alderman W. R. Bryden of Port Arthur, Chairman of Thunder Bay Section Conant of Ontario, told a delegation from Port Arthur City Council and Lakehead municipality that his government plans increases in old age pensions, mothers' allowances by means of some form of post-war bonuses.

Mr. Conant, who spoke here and at Port William over the week-end, and Mrs. Conant, left Monday for Toronto.

Told by a member of the delegation that British Columbia and Alberta governments were paying pensions $25 a month, compared to $20 in Ontario, the premier said provincial governments were in poor financial shape and he had "no intention of letting Ontario get that way too."

Ald. Brown said the Fort William delegation also spoke to the premier on the question of employing Japanese labor in the district and that Mr. Conant would issue a statement on the subject at an early date.

Charles A. Schneider, French Across Magnagte, Dies at Age of 74

London, Nov. 17 (CP)—Charles Eugene Schneider, 74, France's greatest arms magnate, died at his Paris home today, the Vichy radio announced in a broadcast heard in London.

Schneider headed the armament plan at Le Creusot, target of the R.A.F.'s biggest daylight assault of the war on Oct. 19 when 94 Lancaster bombers hurled two-ton bombs on the factory.

With the recent conversion of a new section of electric power 74.4 per cent of the Swiss Federal Railways became electrified.

23 NIPPONESE

In a three-day conflict that sent the foe's battered naval remnants limping hidden, 23 Nipponese ships were sunk, seven were damaged and possibly 26,000 to 40,000 Japanese troops were lost in the swirl of iron transport.

First report of the battle that raged from November 13 to 15 were issued by the navy last night. Already the victory is hailed by naval officers unofficially as the greatest of the war thus far, and perhaps of modern times.

Partial reports listed the sinking of a Japanese battleship, three heavy cruisers, four light cruisers, five destroyers, eight crowded transports and four—cargo ships. American losses were given as two light cruisers and six destroyers.

192 Ships Sunk in 11 Months

Thus, in 11 months of war, Associated Press records show that 303 Japanese ships have been sunk, against 34 American vessels, including those at Pearl Harbor. Of these losses, 118 were Japanese warships and 30 were Allied.

Much of the sea fight was fought at close range and in darkness as do furious was the action that at one time two of three large Japanese units that converged for an attack on Guadalcanal Island "seemed confused by the night and "were firing at each other."

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, said at Pearl Harbor last night he believed that Japanese thought down everything they had."

"As a result," he added, "all the enemy forces were either destroyed or driven back and a major victory was obtained by our gallant forces."

Battleships Take Part

While battleships took part in the ghastly naval engagement, the Japanese brought no airplane carriers to bear. No mention was made as to whether American carriers participated.

The navy's description of the battle, fought under the direction of Vice-Admiral William F. Halsey, told of the discovery early this month of heavy Japanese shipping concentrations in the New-Britain-Northwestern Solomons area. This was the beginning of an attempted major assault by reserves Hideo Gernon Airfield and other American positions in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi region.

The Japanese offensive was under way November 10 with their naval forces steaming to the attack. One group approached the southeastern Solomons from the north. The other detachments, counting many transports, closed in from Rabaul and Buin, where they already had felt the lash of bombs from Allied planes from Australia.

Spearhead Appears Nov. 13

The foe's spearhead—two battleships of the Kongo class, two heavy cruisers, four light cruisers and about ten destroyers — went into the Guadalcanal battle zone after midnight of November 13.

An intended bombardment of the airfield preparatory to a large-scale landing of troops was thwarted by arrival of American warships. It was in this close-range battle that the Japanese vessels slammed away at each other.

The reinforcement also brought the death of Rear-Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan, formal naval aide to President Roosevelt. His flagship, which blew up an enemy cruiser at second 18 hits on a battleship and sank a destroyer, finally took several 14-inch shells. The bridge was wrecked and Callaghan was killed.

Daylight brought retirement of what remained of the Nipponese fleet. Unified States aircraft pick-ed off crippled enemy transports left behind as the foe retreated northward.

Stubbornly, the Japanese tried again to land heavy reinforcements for their forces on Guadalcanal. That afternoon 12 transports loaded with troops and heavily guarded by warships were spotted moving on to the island from the Bougainville area.

Shortly after midnight Nov. 14, the Nipponese warships fired rounds after round at positions on the island. Then the transports closed in for a landing.

American planes struck quickly and viciously. Torpedoes and bombs smashed into the heavily-loaded transports and eleven were sunk, the four others eluded the barrage and maneuvered toward Guadalcanal. Destroyers and cruisers spokesmen claimed in short-wave radio broadcasts the American fleet had been annihilated again.

The Federal Communications Commission reported in New York yesterday that Tokyo propaganda-dists asserted "the battle of the Solomons" is proving fatal to the American Navy; that "the Japanese have the sea completely where they want them and mean to keep them there until no American warship is left in active service."

The figures, as reported by the United States Navy, however, show the Solomons conflict has resulted in destruction of 35 Japanese ships with five others probably sunk and 71 damaged. The American losses were given as 24 vessels sunk and at least five damaged.

U. S. Fighter Planes Attack German Soldiers in Europe

London, Nov. 17 — (CP) — United States fighter planes attacked German soldiers and German installations in occupied Europe Monday, and all planes returned, Maj.-Gen. Carl Spaats, Chief of U. S. Air Forces in Europe, announced.

Trucks loaded with German soldiers, military outposts and gun emplacements were among the targets. Machine-gun and cannon fire scattered the Nazis, inflicted casualties among them and destroyed materials, the announcement said.

SHORT NAP COSTLY

Beaverton, Ont., Nov. 17—(CP)—A Winnipeg man decided to take a short nap in the public waiting room while waiting for a train to take him on to Ottawa. When he woke up 15 minutes his overcoat and a pair of shoes, which he had dutifed for comfort.

ENEMY FORCES HIGHLY

Eliminate Observation Patrols

"Our problem is to eliminate these observation patrols so we can do something without being seen. We know the enemy is greatly disappointed he didn't get Egypte and Suez yesterday and he is especially lacking in beans and bullets at present. We know we have plenty of men there, and that they have enough to do the job we set out to do—expel the Japs—and that our men have the proper punch to do it."

For the offensive the Japanese assembled at Rabaul all the forces they could from powerhouses in the east. Western Pacific, the Admiral said, adding that "part of this was destined for Guadalcanal and part for New Guinea, but it looks as if they were disappointed in both cases".

Japs Without Base Carriers

Battleships of both sides participated in these brief, bitter fights, the night engagements and one early morning affair, but the Japanese were without airplane carriers, he said.

"Either they didn't have any left, their theory being greater in the October 26 engagement than we estimated, or they were afraid to risk them," the Admiral said.

Bombers from Henderson Washington said Japan lost 22 ships, including a battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers, eight fully-loaded transports and two cargo ships. American losses were given as two cruisers and six destroyers.)

Transports "Jammed Full"

Nimitz estimated between 20,000 and 40,000 enemy troops went down on the sunken transports, which he said were "jammed full".

If he were a Japanese commander, he said, "I'm sweating and bleeding if I had to explain such a loss."

Over-all loss of United States personnel was relatively small while that of the foe was tremendous, he said.

With a further note of optimism, Admiral Nimitz recalled that some months ago Japanese spokesmen were behind the eight-ball" but now "things are looking up all the time."

Chinese Have Won Important Victory

Chungking, Nov. 17 — (AP)—The Chinese have won an important victory in the foothills of the Yi mountains in Shantung province, where more than 1,000 Japanese have been killed or wounded, the Chinese High Command announced Monday night.

Escaped Aliens Being Hunted By Prov. Police

Provincial Police today are conducting an extensive search of Hamilton and Northumberland districts seeking the possible capture of nine escaped alien internees, Lieut.-Col. Martinus Telling and Willem Sieke, both 39, who escaped from the Beechrocks, Que., internment camp last week.

On Monday Provincial Constable Grayling, at Campbellford, received information that two men answering the description of Telling and Sieke had been seen leaving Havelock en route to Campbellford. Subsequent investigations resulted in the Provincial Police throughout the district have been notified to be on the alert.

Telling is described as being a person of medium standing about five foot six inches, while Sieke is a stout person, about five foot nine inches. Both are natives of Holland, but had been interned by the government following investigations into their activities prior to the war. No word of their capture had been received by the Ontario Intelligencer at noon.

BRITISH MEMBER

Sir Percy declared the government's statement in explanation test the Darlan incident harm Allied relations, and expressed the prior assertion that nothing more could be said on the subject for the present.

Attlee said he would leave a full discussion on Darlan's position to Prime Minister Churchill. Gen. de Gaulle yesterday denounced the French National Committee from London, Attlee added.

When Sir Percy wryly remarked that Darlan had "a most attractive personality," there were shouts of "No! No!" from the members.

Calls Darlan a "Traitor"

Ottawa (CP)—Professor Andre Philip, Commissioner of the Interior in the fighting French National Committee in London, said in an interview here last night that Admiral Jean Darlan was a "traitor" with whom the National Committee would never negotiate.

Prof. Philip said if the people of France took seriously the possibility that Darlan becoming their leader's choice as leader of France it would be a catastrophe for France and for Anglo-American prestige.

They laugh at the idea now," said Prof. Philip, but if they took it seriously, it would mean turning France into a Quisling regime."

French Communists were strongly organized at present only in Paris and its suburbs.

Prof. Philip left unoccupied some five months ago to become Commissioner of the Interior in the National Committee after that body, representing the combined resistance movements in France, had endorsed Gen. Charles De Gaulle as the chief of the movement.

He has been in the United States to give information on the resistance movement and is on the same mission in Ottawa where he interviewed Canadian officials and fighting French representatives Monday.

Says Explanation Required

"It may be," the Liberal member added, "that he is not the Quisling we were led to believe but if he is not, this is one of the most mysterious chapters in the history of this war and of all countries."

He added that the absence of an explanation from the government would discourage the Fighting French and offer a premium to Quislings to change their course with impunity.

Efforts to bring all French opposition to the Vichy regime under one leadership working for Allied victory were reports by Fighting French sources who emphasized that Gen. De Gaulle did not care who that leader was provided he was consistently anti-Axis.

Both the BBC and the United States office of war information gave prominence to De De Gaulle statement denouncing the Fighting French from Eisenhower's recognition of Darlan.

Most London morning newspapers expressed the belief the Darlan recognition was only temporary. The political correspondent of the Times said "Eisenhower's chief concern (after the cease-fire order) was to establish order in Morocco and Algeria and push on to Tunisia . . . Apart from Giraud, Eisenhower had at that stage no man in mind who could take over temporary, provisional civil administration."

A Times editorial called the selection of Darlan "unexpected," but stated "there is much to be said for convenient solutions which meet urgent military and administrative requirements and carry no committal into the future."

Member Asks Question

Ernest Granville, Independent, asked if the Allies were discriminating between military necessity" and the cause for which we are fighting."

"We are playing for very high stakes and we should play with clean hands," he said, "The prize was the French fleet, capitulation of French armed forces, and government in French North Africa. We landed not the prize but Darlan."

Granville said further: "It is quite obvious that for the past few days American and British press have flown the Darlan kite to see it it would come off, 'It has come to earth labelled 'Quisling.' Whatever may be going on behind the diplomatic scenes the view of a large number of people in Britain is Darlan must go."

May Be a Trap

At his press conference Prof. Philip described the development of the resistance movement in France. He said 95 per cent of those in occupied France and 85 per cent of metropolitan France were supporting De Gaulle and placing their hopes upon him."

Prof. Philip said he believed the American-led Allied forces in North Africa were setting a trap for Darlan, and for others, whom he described as traitors in France, who were reported to be in North Africa.

These included Pierre Etienne Flandin, one time premier, and Fernand Pinchen, former minister of the interior. "Perhaps it will be Laval tomorrow," he said.

He suggested it would be a good idea to get all those "who sold France" together in North Africa where they could be kept under surveillance.

Of Gen. Giraud, the French official said: "He left Vichy in time to help French forces in Africa to co-operate with the Allies. Prof. Philip said "He is a good Frenchman and the De Gaullists can negotiate with him."

ENOUGH COPPER FOR FOUR MILES OF WIRE GOES INTO ONE BIG BOMBER

. . . And one machine gun in action for only four minutes uses enough copper for a mile and a half of telephone wire.

Those are just two of the reasons why copper and other materials needed for war equipment can't be used now to build new telephone lines.

Right now, Long Distance lines are often overcrowded, especially to key war centres.

Won't you help by cutting down your Long Distance calls to these points to an absolute minimum?

Call by number when you can—plan in advance what you want to say, in order to save "telephone time".

JAPS ADMIT LOSSES IN SOLOMONS NAVAL BATTLE

Frankest Tokyo Statement Since Beginning of War

Admits Battleship Lost, One Damaged And Also the Loss Of One Cruiser

SAY 41 PLANES LOST

New York, Nov. 18—(AP)—Japanese headquarters admitted today the loss of one Japanese battleship, the damaging of another, the loss of one cruiser and three destroyers and damaging of seven Japanese transports in the third Solomons' naval battle.

It said the Japanese also lost 32 planes which dived into the enemy and nine other planes did not return.

This marked the first Japanese report of the loss of a battleship.

The United States Navy already had announced two days ago that American naval forces in the Solomons in the most recent battle sank a battleship and damaged another.

Exaggerate U.S. Losses

The Japanese claimed their forces sank eight cruisers and four or five destroyers and heavily damaged two battleships, three cruisers and three or four destroyers in the battle from Nov. 12 to Nov. 14.

They also claimed they sank one transport and heavily damaged three transports.

This contrasts with the Navy's announcement that the only United States naval vessels reported sunk in actions Nov. 13, 14 and 15 were two light cruisers and six destroyers while details of an engagement during the night of Nov. 14-15 were yet to be received.

Weighing against the Japanese admission of heavy losses, the frankest by Tokyo in the war thus far, however, was the Navy's report that they were even greater.

Rumanian King Says Charges Are Ridiculous

Mexico City, Nov. 18 — (AP) — King Carol of Rumania, named yesterday as the man who gave $13,000 to two Rumanian priests and an editor indicted for espionage, said the charges against the trio "surpass my understanding."

He indicated the three, indicted by a Detroit Federal Grand Jury, are members of the Free Rumanian organization which he heads, although he did not say so directly.

In a statement, the refugee king said the movement has existed for nearly two years and "has never ceased to make the greatest effort in sustaining the cause of the United Nations."

To accuse such a movement of being the agent of an enemy government, his statement continued, "is not only an outright lie but also completely ridiculous."

Carol protested the accusations against the Detroit men, which he said "are based on the lowest of intrigues and on interests which are completely different from those of the United Nations."

Roosevelt Says Deal With Admiral Darlan "Temporary Expedient"

Washington, Nov. 18. (AP)—Free and fighting Frenchmen have President Roosevelt's categorical assurance today that political arrangements made with Admiral Jean Darlan in North Africa are "only temporary expedient", dictated by military necessity.

In a statement obviously designed to allay mounting unrest over the part being played by Darlan, who was a Vichy collaborationist until he was captured by American troops the President said the "present temporary arrangement" in North Africa was "justified solely by the stress of battle".

"I thoroughly understand and approve the feeling in the United States and Great Britain and among all the other United Nations", Mr. Roosevelt said, "that in view of the history of the past two years no permanent arrangement should be made with Admiral Darlan. . . .

"We are opposed to Frenchmen who support Hitler and the Axis".

Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the fighting French, had declared in London that he and his followers could not accept any arrangement that would "in effect" set up a Vichy regime in North Africa.

(President Roosevelt's statement that political arrangements with the French in North Africa are a temporary expedient "will be most welcome by all fighting Frenchmen", Andre Philip, commissioner of the Interior in the fighting French National Committee in London, said at Montreal last night.

("We can only applaud the American President's condemnation of any permanent arrangement with Admiral Darlan, and I firmly believe I am expressing all fighting France's opinion in saying so," he declared.)

Daughters of Former Canadian War Ace Enlist in R.C.A.F.

Ottawa, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Two daughters of Capt. Roy Brown, Canadian air ace of the First Great War, have joined the R. C. A. F. (Women's Division). Capt. Brown, who was in the Royal Naval Service, shot down Von Richthofen, one of Germany's best airmen.

The two attractive girls, red-haired Barbara, 19, and Margaret, 20, are in training at Rockcliffe Air Station near here. They hope to qualify as clerks operational, who handle important work in operations rooms.

Their father's record in the last war had nothing to do with their decision to enlist, they said.

"Dad doesn't talk at home about what he's done," said Margaret. "I hear he has two decorations—he's never even told us what they are. Capt. Brown now is a farmer, living at Stouffville, Ont., near Toronto.

"We joined the Air Force because of all the women's services in offers the most opportunities to girls," said Margaret, who left the university of Toronto to enlist.

JAPS CONTINUE TO FALL BACK TOWARD BUNA

MacArthur's Forces Now Only 30 Trail Miles From Main Japanese Base

MERCHANTMAN FIRED

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Nov. 18—(AP)—Japanese forces continue to fall back toward Buna but their Air Force has re-emerged in an effort to harass Allied columns closing relentlessly on that Papuan base, today's communique disclosed.

Latest reports from the New Guinea front said advanced Allied ground units, now directed in the field by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, are pushing on toward the coast from Awala, only 30 trail miles from Buna, without meeting serious opposition.

In their first attempt in some weeks to challenge Allied air command over New Guinea, a formation of 18 bombers and fighters attacked advanced Allied ground units Monday in the Buna area and sank two trawlers along the coast.

But the Japanese airmen got better than they gave as Allied bombers and fighters twice swept over the enemy airfield at Lae, northwest along the coast from Buna and destroyed seven bombers and seven fighters on the ground and one zero that attempted interception.

Heavy bombers of the southwest Pacific command again carried the attack to Japanese bases in the Solomons theatre, setting fire to a large merchantman at Rabaul, New Britain, and destroying three enemy aircraft on an airdrome runway in the Buin-Faisi area of the northern Solomons.

In the northwestern sector of this war theatre, medium bombers attacked the enemy-occupied towns of Maobisse and Bobonaro on the island of Timor.

Will Study Operation Civilian Flying Schools

Ottawa, Nov. 18 — (CP) — M. A. Seymour of St. Catharines, Ont., president of the Canadian Flying Clubs Association, accompanied by J. L. Apedail, financial adviser for civilian flying schools in the Air Ministry and C. R. Troop, general superintendent of school for Canadian Pacific Air Lines, have arrived in England, it was learned today.

All are interested in the operation of civilian flying schools for the R. C. A. F. They propose to study the operation of similar schools in England, from the training, financial and other angles. They will be away about two weeks.

FO. Geo. Pepper, D.F.C., Believed Killed in Action

Cable From Flier's Wife Says "Worst Has Happened To George, Nov. 17"

WAS NIGHT FIGHTER

Flying Officer George T. Pepper, D.F.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pepper, 90 Chatham Street, is believed killed in action on Nov. 17th., according to information received by his parents early today.

The message was sent by the late Flying Officer's wife in England and stated "Worst has happened to George, Nov. 17. Letter following". There were no other details.

The former Canadian motorcycle champion was rated as one of Britain's best night fighter pilots and had a distinguished career in the Royal Air Force. He, with his Observer Pilot Officer Joseph Toone, shared in their squadron's credit of 18 enemy planes shot down.

Their most remarkable achievement was the shooting down of three Dornier bombers in a sensational air battle over Britain three weeks ago. Flying Officer Pepper was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross last August for "exceptional bravery". His observer, then a Flight Sergeant was given the Distinguished Flying Medal on the same occasion.

Joined in 1940

He joined the R.A.F. in 1940 and received his commission the next year. From that time until his death, George flew the night skies of Britain, and his exploits and those of his observer, were the toast of the little village of East Malling which had adopted him as its "son". The villagers proudly displayed large posters after each "Pepper" victory, on all buildings in the little community.

George comes from a fighting family. He has three brothers in the service of their country. Frank with the Royal Canadian Navy; Jim with the R.A.F., and who recently returned from Russia to Britain after fighting in the Battle of Moscow, and Bill, with the Royal Canadian Air Force. He married a Surrey girl, a year or so after his arrival in England, a few years ago. Also surviving are besides his parents and brothers, three sisters, Bessie, Mrs. R. G. Laidlaw, Ottawa; and Helen and Grace at home.

Modest Manner

The late fighter pilot was born in this city thirty years ago, and was well-known in school and sports circles. He enjoyed a well-deserved popularity in all walks of life and his modest unassuming manner was one of his outstanding characteristics.

At an early age he displayed a strong tendency toward things mechanical and he soon turned to what later proved to be his favorite hobby, motorcycle riding. Thoroughness and a marked aptitude in this line resulted in his arriving quickly at the top and in 1936 he achieved a boyhood ambition when he was crowned the 200-mile motorcycle champion of Canada following a sensational race here, that attracted crack riders from all parts of the continent.

Instructor in England

Later he went to England as an instructor in motorcycle racing and his ability as a rider earned for him a high place in motor bike circles in the northern part of the country. He was attached to many clubs and won a host of trophies and cups.

When the war broke out he wanted to join the R.A.F. but his mechanical knowledge and ability were needed in another sphere of war activity and he was made superintendent of a Spitfire manufacturing plant. But his ambition was not to be denied and in 1940

ROMMEL LOSES 485 OF 500 AXIS TANKS IN EGYPT

British Army Within 70 Miles of Bengasi And Pursuing Enemy On Wide Front

NOT KNOCKED OUT

(By PAUL KERN)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cairo, Nov. 18. (AP)—Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander-in-chief of British forces in the Middle East, said today that only 15 of 500 Axis tanks in Egypt escaped destruction or capture by the British 8th Army, but he predicted that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel shattered forces would make a stand near El Aghelia, Libya.

As Gen. Alexander spoke, the 8th army was within 70 miles of Bengasi and pursuing Rommel on a wide front, the Cairo communique reported.

The Commander said Rommel has "strong prepared defensive positions" in the El Aghelia area and is "most likely to make a temporary stand" there.

"Of 500 Axis tanks estimated to have been in the battle area only 15 escaped", Gen. Alexander said.

He warned there may be further heavy fighting in North Africa and said "the enemy is groggy, but not knocked out".

Must Be Knocked Senseless

"The battle will not be ours until the enemy is lying senseless," he declared. "He is a good fighter and will keep up his rearguard action in an effort to hold us back as long as there is a possibility of his getting reinforcements by air and sea."

Doctor Appointed As Lt.-Governor Of Nova Scotia

Ottawa, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King today announced appointment of Dr. Henry Ernest Kendall of Windsor, N. S., as Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia.

Dr. Kendall succeeds Hon. F. F. Mathers who, for personal reasons, asked to be relieved of the duties of that office.

Mr. Mather's resignation has been accepted by the Governor-General.

Dr. Kendall practised medicine in Newfoundland and Sydney, N. S., until the outbreak of war in 1914 when he joined the Canadian Army Medical Corps. He served during the whole war and rose to rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

On his return to civilian life, Dr. Kendall did not resume medical practice but took up farming near Windsor, N. S., where he has lived up to now.

Strategic Points Taken as Allied Armies Converge

Rommel Reported In Tunisia to Make 'Last Chance' Try To Stay Advance

SITUATION EXCELLENT

London, Nov. 18 (CP)—Allied parachute troops floated down on Tunisia and its border last night to grab airports and other strategic objectives as two determined Allied armies—some 900 miles apart—drove toward each other across the lip of Northern Africa to eject the already humbled Field Marshal Erwin Rommel and his Axis forces from all Africa.

Rommel himself was reported to be in Tunisia for a "last-chance" attempt to stay the Allied advance and save some part of strategic North Africa for the Axis.

A Reuters News Agency dispatch from advanced Allied headquarters in French North Africa said Rommel is "making a desperate effort to organize Axis forces" in Tunisia to meet the British 1st army and United States forces moving into Tunisia from Algeria.

Another dispatch said American parachutists were dropped in force in the space of 40 seconds upon an Algerian airfield near a small town on the Tunisian frontier. It was the same group which parachuted to earth at Oran in the early stages of the landings there.

Germans Boast They Will Fight For Bizerte Against Advancing Allies

TUNIS OFF AIR

By ROBERT BUNNELLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 18 — (AP) — The Germans boasted today they were established and ready to fight for the important Tunisian naval base of Bizerte against a powerful Allied force whose advance guard was already deep in Tunisia, where British parachutists had landed at key airdromes and American parachutists were poised on the frontier.

(The BBC said Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson, Commander of the British 1st Army, had declared himself satisfied with a "very good start" in his forces in their eastward thrust from Algeria. The broadcast was heard in New York by CBS.)

The Tunis radio went off the air after giving the explanation Monday morning that its silence was intended to save power, and this suggested a possibility that parachute operations might even have been brought close to the Tunisian capital which the Axis announced was in its hands.

No Mention of Tunis by Paris Radio

Using the Nazi-controlled Paris radio as their mouthpiece, the Germans said today they had captured Bizerte and established themselves firmly there. The broadcast said nothing of Tunis, occupation of which along with Bizerte was reported in Axis communiques two days ago. And the use of the word captured seemed to refute the Nazi propaganda line that they moved in "to defend their French compatriots in Tunisia," and met only co-operation from the French.

The Germans, squeezed into a 820-mile strip of North African coast with Allied armies closing in on either side, chose to regard the occupation of Bizerte as a victory. "Following the occupation of Bizerte, the initiative nows is in the hands of the Germans and Italians in Tunisia," one German broadcast asserted.

British parachutists were taken to their Tunisian airdrome objectives in American transport planes escorted by fighters. Reuters news agency said some of the parachutists landed "close to an important key town in Tunisia," but none of the reports identified the positions seized.

American Chutists Land

American parachutists—the men who helped take the Algerian naval base at Oran—were said to have landed in a swift operation at an Algerian airfield near the Tunisian border.

ONLY FEW YARDS GAINED BY HUNS IN COSTLY FIGHT

Picture of Stalemate Costly to Axis Armies Stalled in Russia

RED GAIN REPORTED

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Nov. 18 — (AP) — At the end of the first week of renewed offensive thrusts into siege-torn Stalingrad, the Germans today had gained only a few yards in persistent and costly efforts to occupy the northern factory district for winter quarters.

The army newspaper Red Star said the Nazis had been concentrating their attack on a sector less than 400 yards wide, trying vainly to break through to the Volga.

Although ice floes in the river have complicated the Russians' supply problem temporarily, the defenders have been holding their lines generally and taking a heavy toll of Nazi lives and equipment, it was reported.

Germans on Defensive in Caucasus

The Germans have been held largely on the defensive for the last week in the Caucasus, where the Russians have been harassing them with counter-attacks in the Nalchik area and with scouting-raids around Tuapse, battle dispatches said.

Generally the broad picture of a stalemate costly to the stalled Axis armies holds from day to day with the minor changes in the lines tending to offset one another.

Paying with 1,000 casualties, the Germans in a series of attacks advanced slightly in a factory sector of Stalingrad, the midnight Soviet communique said.

FDR INDICATES TURNING POINT OF WAR REACHED

Tempers Analysis of War With Cautious Phrases

CAN BE NO COASTING

Washington, Nov. 18 —(AP)— President Roosevelt sized up a fortnight's "good news" from the battle zones last night as indicating the turning point of the war has been reached.

But he tempered his analysis, presented in a radio speech to the New York Herald Tribune's annual forum, with cautious phrases. He said it would continue to be an uphill fight—"all the way"—that there could be "no coasting to victory," and that it was no time for exultation.

"There is no time now," he said, "for anything but fighting and working to win."

He described the encounter between Japanese and American warships Nov. 13-15 as "one of the great battles of our history." At a press conference earlier he had said that the engagement, in which the navy listed enemy losses at 23 against two United States light cruisers and a half a dozen destroyers, represented a major victory.

First Time Word Used

It was the first time he had used the word "major" in referring to any of the battles in the Pacific theatre.

Despite this crushing blow administered to a numerically-superior Japanese fleet, the President said in his speech that a "gigantic job" remained to be done. He said battle lines stretching from Kiska to Murmansk and from Tunisia to Guadalcanal would

New Medicine, Which Stops Bleeding Almost Instantly, Used by Fighters

New York, Nov. 18 — (AP) —Prize fighters are using a new medicine which stops bleeding almost instantly.

The medicine is the fastest blood-clotting substance ever found, and the ring, in adopting it, is one of the first agencies to prove the advantages. The medicine is made from rabbit's blood but the remedy could as easily be made of lion's blood, if lions weren't so expensive.

It is a whitish powder, extracted from plasma, the portion of blood remaining after the red corpuscles have been removed. The rabbit plasma is the same portion of whole blood as the human plasma now collected by the Red Cross for military transfusions.

Out of this rabbit plasma a little more than a year ago Dr. I. A. Parafentjev, of the Lederle Laboratories, obtained a globulin, which is one of the important proteins in blood.

The globulin had remarkable blood-clotting powers.

One part of the extract would clot 60,000 parts of blood in three seconds. Moreover, the blood so clotted contained citrate, a substance which should have prevented clotting.

The explanation is that Dr. Parafentjev found the substance in blood which apparently has the main role in initiating the natural process of clotting.

Flying Fortress Fights Off 30 Nazi Planes Shooting Down Four to Eight

London, Nov. 18—(CP)—Here's the story of eight men who fought off 30 German planes, shot down four to eight of them and brought their Flying Fortress home with a wingtip rolled up "like a sardine can," an engine dead and rudder controls half frozen.

Maj.-Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of American Air Forces in the European theatre, disclosed the feat today.

The Fortress had completed a bombing assignment over Lille, France, its fourth mission over the continent, and was headed home when a formation of 30 Focke Wulf-190's jumped the flight, quickly knocking this plane out of the bomber formation and making it an especially attractive target.

"When they put a bullet through our propeller and knocked us out of formation I knew we were in trouble," said Lieut. Robert L. Riordan, the pilot.

"And when they slammed two cannon shells into our rudder controls I told the boys to get ready to bail out. He were lucky, I guess."

Staff Sergeant John T. De John was banging away at the enemy from his tail gunner's position when a German fighter put a 20-millimetre cannon shell "right in his lap," spraying steel fragments down his left side and knocking out one of his two guns.

Despite his multiple wounds, the former professional baseball player kept on firing his lone gun for 10 minutes and was credited with one plane shot down.

When De John finally admitted he was wounded, Riordan sent the navigator, 2nd Lieut. George J. Spellman, back to help. The young officer dragged the wounded gunner into the radio room, covered him with his own flying coat and then, coatless and gloveless, fought with the tail gun in 20-below cold until his hands were blue and almost frozen.

As the running fight went on, a cannon shell blew a hole "as big as a cabbage" in the fuselage right beside the waist gunner, Staff Sergeant Anthony L. Santoro.

After 25 minutes the Nazis gave up and veered off as they saw Spitfires coming out to shepherd the wounded ship home. The pilot set her down with hardly a bump.

The King later saw the shell-pocked Fortress and marvelled that it had come back.

Coffee Allegedly Thrown Into Face Of Cafe Waitress

Alleged to have thrown the contents of a cup of coffee into the face of a waitress at the Esquire Grill late Tuesday afternoon, Pte. Gerald C. Ramsay, formerly of Bancroft and now stationed at the Deseronto Aerodrome camp, was arrested on charges of assault causing bodily injury. The arrest by Marion Phillips, 34 Hillside St., sustained scalds about the neck as the result of the hot coffee being thrown in her face.

Restaurant employees informed police that two soldiers had entered the Esquire Grill both being allegedly under the influence of liquor. One of the soldiers approached a waitress, where Miss Phillips was sitting drinking a cup of coffee. After making some remarks which she alleged to have picked up the cup containing hot coffee and hurled the contents into her face. Outside the police apprehended the soldiers and Ramsay was identified as Miss Phillips' assailant. He denied the allegation and resisted arrest before police finally arrested him by force. Today Ramsay was arraigned before a justice of the peace and remanded in custody on a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

Lost Hunter's Dog Returns to Camp Without Owner

Little Hope of Finding Aged Hunter Alive in Northern Woods

Bancroft (Special)—At 9.30 the dog which accompanied him into the woods eight days ago failing to establish any lead, that night all hope of recovering Jones or finding Mr. Charles Wannamaker, 78-year-old Frankford man, alive, was banished almost to the vanishing point today.

The aged Frankford resident disappeared from his hunting camp near Jones' last Wednesday and has not been seen since. When he left camp Mr. Wannamaker was carrying a 22 rifle and was accompanied by a dog. The dog returned to the camp on Tuesday and hopes were high that the night had found its master.

Over 100 men, including police, forest rangers, lumbermen, local residents, hunters and friends of the missing man have been combing the woods in the Gunter district since last Thursday but no trace of the missing man has been found. The search still continues but no hopes are entertained by Wannamaker's discovery until it is too late.

With the search continuing hunters in the Gunter district revealed to police that they heard several shots from a 22 rifle last Wednesday afternoon but attached no significance to the reports.

Mr. Wannamaker's dog was first found by Gunter-district hunters but appeared wild and could not be approached. Later it approached Mr. Dugan, when he turned up at a house formerly occupied by the missing man. Tuesday afternoon the dog led police a distance of two miles into the bush where he lost them, and ran abruptly.

Two Stockdale men, Walter Tweedy and Leslie Carter, were among the first searchers to find the dog with Mr. Wannamaker was a member. These two men have been untiring in their efforts to locate the missing man.

Good Prices Realized At Farm Auction Sale

Picton, Nov. 18 — The auction sale at the farm of George Lovell, Wellington Road, Monday, drew a large crowd and high prices prevailed. It is understood that more than $5,500 was realized. There were twenty-five head of cattle and one sold as high as $175. There was a keen demand for machinery and a milking machine went for $80. Corn sold at 45c a bushel. Hay being plentiful, the price for it was much lower than usual.

George Bartley was the auctioneer.

Mr. Lovell has been forced to give up farming on account of illness and the shortage of labor.

The R.A.F. sergeant had the time of his life at a party Tuesday night.

Mrs. Harold Monroe, paratrooper, Helena Montana, is spending leave with his family here.

Squadron Leader Wright, Padre at the R.A.F. station, leaves this week for Mount Hope where he will have charge at the Padre station there. His successor will be Squadron Leader French who comes from Moncton, N.B.

Padre Wright has made many friends in Picton during his stay and all wish him well in his new post.

J. O. Herlihy Addresses Masons

"We must always be on guard against shallow optimism which is more dangerous than pessimism" declared J. O. Herlihy, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, Belleville, speaking at Prince Edward Chapter No. 31 R. A. M., here Monday night. "Shallow optimism causes us to disregard warnings that might make adequate preparations for what lies ahead. Optimism is an excellent trait when under control. We do not want a spirit of defeatism, rather one of realism. This would cause us to work with all our might and prosecute the war to a triumphal conclusion" said Mr. Herlihy.

The occasion was the official visit to the chapter by Rt. Ex. Comp. J. W. Kinney, Belleville, Provincial Superintendent, Royal Arch Masons.

"Patriots are traitors who should not be allowed at large," declared Ald. W. G. Mikel, K.C., of Belleville. They are, he said; "the cupe of Canada. He condemned" Miss Agnes Macphail for her attempts in parliament to curtail war expenditures and cuts in training. "In the last 3500 years the world has had wars 92 per cent of the time," said Mr. Mikel. "With a record like that, who in God sense is to say we will not have any more wars?" he asked.

Mr. Mikel urged Canada be prepared for war and all times. "We have got to get rid of the foolish idea that there will be no more wars. We are all caught by selfishness and greed. Selfishness is behind every war. Until that evil is taken out of human nature we will have wars," stated the speaker.

Other speakers were Rt. Ex. Comp. Thomas, Ex. Comp. H. B. Tulley, Rt. Ex. Comp. W. J. Bloomfield, Ex. Comp. Houston, First Principal of Moira Chapter, Belleville. Rt. Ex. Comp. J. C. Cooper, First Principal of Picton chapter presided and all enjoyed a dinner which included venison supplied by him.

LATE MRS. ERNEST E. BURN

The funeral of Mrs. Ernest E. Burn, late resident, at Chatham street, took place Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 17th, from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street. The service in the funeral and at the graveside in Belleville cemetery was conducted by the Rev. H. O. Sweet, pastor of Bridge Avenue Baptist Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Robert L. Orr, Joseph Blackburn, Allan Hall, Ernest Burn, E. V. Smith and W. E. Dunphine.

MRS. MARGARET FORESTELL (Adam)

Mrs. Margaret Forestell, widow of Adam Forestell, died on Tuesday evening, Nov. 17th., at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John Mack, 75 Madoc Township. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

MATHEW A. WILBEE

(Permanent resident of Belleville)

Mathew A. Wilbee, a former resident of Belleville, died in Ottawa on Tuesday, Nov. 17th.

The late Mr. Wilbee was a locomotive engineer for many years, with the old Grand Trunk Railway and later the Canadian National Railways. He moved to Ottawa from Toronto in the year 1881, was made an engineer in 1886 and retired on pension on his birthday, Feb. 29th, 1916. Many interesting stories were passed in Belleville and he was well thought of by the officials of the Grand Trunk, who at times, it seemed by many friends who will regret to hear of his passing, moved immediately upon his retirement to go to the Pacific coast to live.

Surviving him is his wife, formerly Miss Mary Adamson.

The funeral announcement is also elsewhere in this issue.

RICHARD O'CONNOR

Marmora, (Special)—The Township of Marmora lost another highly respected resident when Mr. Richard O'Connor, pioneer residents in this district. With the exception of several years spent in Calgary, Alta., as a carpenter, he had lived the life of an honest citizen in and of this community. He was of a very friendly disposition and was highly regarded in high esteem by his many friends. He was active in every way until his health became impaired about two years ago. He was a deacon and Sunday School teacher of Sacred Heart Church. His wife predeceased him in 1938. He is survived by nine children, Earl, Marmora; Mrs. Charles, Cobourg; Per Cliff; Crawford, Lochalsh; Hugh, Copper Cliff; Patrick, Hastings; Leo, Mrs. Westminster, B.C., with the Royal Rifles of Canada; Tom, with the Canadian Regiment in England; Mrs. George Forsyth (Veronica), Marmora; and Mrs. William Meehan (Anna), Marmora. He survived him as two brothers and two sisters, Michael, Marmora; Edward, Marmora Township; Mrs. Mary McGrath, Marmora and Mrs. Edward Keating, Toronto.

The funeral was held on Wednesday morning from his late home to Sacred Heart Church, where High Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. Farrell. Interment was made in Sacred Heart Cemetery.

JOHN E. SHAW

(Madoc Special)

Madoc, Nov. 18 (Special)—John R. Shaw died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Hamilton, Eldorado, on Sunday morning, Nov. 15th, at the age of 79 years and seven months.

The late Mr. Shaw was in failing health for some time. He was born in 1863 the son of the late Wm. Shaw and wife, Ann Hamilton. On February 15th, 1888 he was united in marriage to Katharine Post and to his union were born three children, one son and two daughters, all of whom survive, to mourn the passing of a loving father.

The funeral service was held in the United Church on November 18th, and was conducted by Rev. Redding and Rev. Ralph. Interment took place in the Eldorado cemetery.

Surviving him are his daughter, Mrs. George Hamilton, Eldorado; two sons, Fred at Eldorado and Bert of Bancroft; ten grandchildren, Lewis Shaw of Alberta, and Joseph Shaw, Eldorado, also five great-grandchildren and four great grandchildren. A sister (Alice) predeceased him some years ago.

The bearers were James Bailey, Ed. Hamilton, Fred Blakely, Fred Chambers, C. M. McCann, Percy Carman.

COLLINGWOOD CARMAN (Eldorado)

Madoc, Nov. 18.—(Special)—Collingwood Carman died in his home in Eldorado on Friday, Nov. 13th. The Carman family has been in Madoc Township seventy-four years ago and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Carman. All his life was passed in the district, where he was born and has been engaged in farming. In religion he was a member of the United Church and when health permitted he was active in church work, being an elder and superintendent of the Sunday School for many years. Fraternally he was a member of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends. A most estimable man he was highly esteemed.

Surviving him are his wife, who was formerly Miss Alberta Blakely; seven sons, Arthur, Percy, Delbert, of Marmora Township; Ross of Stirling; Howard, Bernard and Everett of Madoc Township and Ezra at home.

The funeral took place on Sunday, Nov. 15th, to the Union United Church cemetery where impressive service was conducted by the Rev. Ralph, Rev. Crabbe and Rev. Nickle.

Interment was in Eldorado Cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Albert Empey, Hugh Empey, Bert McCrary, George Hall, Jr., John Chambers and James Nickle.

Work of Kinsmen Club Lauded By Sgt. Holway

Lauding the work of Canadian Kinsmen Clubs in the provision of milk for the children of Britain, Sergt. Bill Holway, a former member of the Belleville Kinsmen Club now serving overseas, assured the local club the efforts of Kinsdom was more than appreciated overseas.

"The Belleville boys took forward to the Canadian cigarettes supplied by the Kinsmen Club, as fags are referred over here," wrote Sergt. Holway to Kin Matt Currie, chairman of the local Kinsmen Club recently.

Turning to the Kinsmen "Milk for Britain Fund," Sergt. Holway added: "I feel sorry for the youngsters over here, as I've seen some pitiful sights and the good work of the Kinsmen Club, as fags are referred to, is greatly appreciated. However, I get a great kick out of giving the kiddies candy, as away to the kiddies as they don't get much in the line. Such things are rationed, you know. We are trying to arrange a kiddies Christmas party for our mess again this year and such little things are really appreciated by the youngsters, so keep up the good work and hoping that the boys of Belleville will have a very good old giving spirit; cheerio." Kin Bill.

The above is an excerpt from a letter received by the Kinsmen Club, who this week shipped individual packages of 200 cigarettes each to G. E. Barnett, F. O. Bellaby, J. D. Bettz, Horace Bowler, R. H. Carr, Frank Cherry, Wm. Cook, F. E. Fairman, F. Fletcher, D. H. Frink, J. Graham, Thomas Graves, H. M. Green, J. H. Hubbell, Ted Hughes, J. D. Hurst, Morley Jamieson, Ray Jamieson, J. A. Lasier, P. U.S. Gives Japs' Losses

In the series of engagements beginning Nov. 13, but not counting the unreported details of the fight the night of Nov. 14-15, the Navy's Nov. 16 communique said the Japanese losses were:

One battleship sunk; three heavy cruisers sunk; two light cruisers sunk; five destroyers sunk; eight transports sunk; one battleship damaged; six destroyers damaged; and four cargo transports destroyed.

Today's Japanese claim as broadcast by Domei news and propaganda agency follows:

"Imperial headquarters announced at 3:30 p.m. today that Imperial naval forces in the third Solomons' naval battle from Nov. 12 to Nov. 14 sank eight enemy cruisers and four or five destroyers and heavily damaged two battleships, three cruisers and three or four destroyers."

Communique Issued

The announcement reads:

"Imperial naval units continuing hostilities since Nov. 12 carried out a fierce attack on the enemy air base on Guadalcanal Island the night of Nov. 13 and inflicted heavy damage on the airfield and its facilities.

"On Nov. 14, while escorting our transport fleet in the face of a fierce counter-attack by enemy aircraft, Imperial naval forces encountered an enemy reinforcement fleet with two battleships and more than four large-size cruisers at a point northwest of the island and at night, after a heated encounter, destroyed the major part of the enemy auxiliary units and heavily damaged two large battleships, routing the enemy fleet in a southern direction.

"Composite war results from Nov. 12 to Nov. 14 so far as are known and our losses and damages for the same period follow:

"Firstly, losses and damages of enemy warships: Sunk—eight cruisers, including three new type. Five of these cruisers were instantly sunk. Four or five destroyers. One transport. Heavily damaged: Two battleships three cruisers, three or four destroyers; and three transports.

"'Secondly, losses of enemy aircraft—63 planes shot down and more than 10 (others) destroyed.

"'Thirdly, our losses and damages: One battleship sunk; another battleship damaged; one cruiser sunk; three destroyers sunk and seven transports damaged. Thirty-two planes dived into the enemy and nine (other) planes failed to return'."

CIVILIANS AVOID

Ottawa, Nov. 18—(CP)—Transport Controller T. C. Lockwood has urged Civilian Canadians to avoid travelling for pleasure from Dec. 21 to 23 inclusive and Dec. 28 to 30 inclusive so as to leave railway facilities available for the thousands of sailors, soldiers and airmen who are granted leave at Christmas and New Year's.

The railroads would also be handling during the holiday period a "very large amount of war materials in virtually every part of the country." These shipments moving by freight could not be delayed because of abnormal holiday passenger travel, he said.

BLITZED HAMBURGER
A Delicious New Wartime Dish
GRIND UP finely 2 lbs. of round steak; add 2½ teaspoons of salt and ⅛ teaspoon of pepper; blend in 2 eggs, first beating them well. Then add 1 tablespoon of H. P. Sauce. Make sure that this mixture is well blended, then shape into 10 patties, each about 3½ inches wide. Cook on grill, turning them over until done. Serve in toasted hamburger buns.
The tablespoon of H. P. Sauce will add a delicious flavour to these hamburgers. H. P. is a thick, fruity, famous English type sauce and is a grand appetizer for many kinds of food including meats, fish, eggs, salads, stews, soups, relishes, gravies and sandwiches. Use it in the kitchen and on the table.

STRATEGIC POINT

They were landed at the frontier airdrome by parachute because communications between the town and that was considered the best and the coastal belt are not good means of getting them there. They were flown to the objective in American transport planes, sometimes less than 100 feet above mountain tops, because of cloud formations. No enemy planes were sighted, the dispatch said.

Advance 80 Miles in Day

Far across the Libyan desert, the British 8th Army advanced some 80 miles in one day to reach a point only 70 miles from Bengasi and further close the gap between the main body of Rommel's retreating forces and the British pursuers.

The Allied advance in Libya is being made on a "wide front," today's communique from British headquarters said, indicating that while some units were following the coastal road into Bengasi, others were cutting across the hump in an effort to trap straggling enemy units.

As British forces approached the once-important supply port of Bengasi, Allied bombers roared in at a low level and set fire to a number of barges in the harbor, which apparently were intended for use in withdrawing elements of Rommel's army.

There was no report on the present whereabout of Rommel's main remaining forces, but they were said to be in the El Aghella region earlier and it was believed a stand might be made there.

(Whereabouts of Rommel himself is a matter of conjecture. Reuters news agency reported from advanced headquarters in North Africa last night that he was in Tunisia. The dispatch quoted well-informed sources as saying he is "making a desperate effort to organize Axis forces" to resist the Allies advancing from Algeria.)

British observers expressed the belief a clash between the Anglo-American forces coming from Algeria, and the Axis forces clustered about Bizerte and Tunis is imminent. The same sources said the African corps, routed in Egypt, probably is preparing positions for a new stand at El Aghella in Libya.

Huge transport planes, escorted by fighters, carried parachute troops deep into Tunisia. The parachutists, said to be mostly Londoners, were reported to have reached their objectives without opposition.

Headquarters Silent

The headquarters of Lt.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower remained silent about operations in Tunisia, but widespread Allied and Axis reports indicated that combined Allied forces are operating both in north and south Tunisia.

The Allied forces were pictured as driving both for a head-on clash with the estimated 10,000 Germans in the Bizerte-Tunis area and in an enveloping arc to the south which would cut the road to Libya, perhaps at Gabes, and thus divide the Axis forces.

This southern column was reported advancing from Tebessa in western Algeria toward Gafsa, Tunisia, a small military post less than 100 miles northwest of Gabes which is also connected by rail with the Tunisian port of Sfax.

Moving Swiftly

Reuters said some parachutists landed "close to an important key town in Tunisia and were moving swiftly eastwards to carry out important reconnaissance."

The planes encountered no difficulties on their flight into Tunisia and "the crews of the transport planes saw people rushing out of their houses and waving at them as they sped toward their base," the dispatch said.

The German air force was reported massing, however, in Sicily and Sardinia and in southern Italy and Crete. The best British estimate was that around 1,000 German planes now are in these areas in addition to Italian machines. Tremendous air battles are expected to develop for control of the mid-Mediteranean.

Reports continued of clashes between advanced French patrols and German reconnaissance groups operating out of Bizerte. The word at Allied headquarters was that the French patrols did not engage the Germans but reported back to headquarters.

Major Battle Pending

One report from radio Algiers said however, that German patrols had been driven back in a skirmish. Through the deep silence enveloping the Allied operations there came definite indications that a major battle is about to begin.

Gen. Eisenhower and Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson, British commander of the combined Anglo-American forces moving into Tunisia, have had to conquer tremendous problems of supplying the advancing troops, establishing forward bases and finding airfields capable of accommodating the fleets of Allied fighters and bombers.

A delayed dispatch from Monrovia, Liberia, far down the African west coast hinted the strategic Vichy naval base at Dakar, long regarded as a possible Axis threat to South America, might fall to the Allies through negotiation.

The port is strongly defended by Vichy French army and naval units.

The Monrovia dispatch said a military mission from Dakar is on its way to Allied-occupied North Africa.

ONLY FEW YARDS

Far to the north the Nazis were reported striking repeatedly and recklessly in an effort to re-take a village recently captured by the Russians in a thrust to relieve siege pressure on Leningrad. Six fierce charges were broken up but the enemy returned again and succeeded in breaking into the outskirts of the village where they were engaged in bloody street fighting, the communique said.

But the communique told also of lively Soviet offensive operations southeast of Nalchik in the mid-Caucasus where the enemy was driven out of fortified positions near a town identified as "I".

In the only other active section of the front, the invaders were reported thrown back with 400 killed in an effort to pierce Red lines northeast of Tuapse along the Black Sea coast.

Bleeding Axis White

Pointing up their arguments that this sanguine push-and-tug along the winter-beset front is bleeding the Axis white while the tide of Allied power rises steadily, the communique told how prisoners recently taken from German motorized and tank regiments acknowledged losses so heavy that many companies (normally about 100 men) were left with only 10 or 15 effectives.

The morning communique continued the running story of a stabilized front with the Germans stabbing away at the Red lines with scant success.

During the night more Nazi attacks were reported repulsed in the Stalingrad area with no further advances made and six invader tanks knocked out and 250 Germans killed.

A tank-supported German regiment struck southeast of Nalchik but was repulsed with heavy losses, the official report said.

Northeast of Tuapse Soviet scouts raided the enemy's rear but no major fighting developed here or elsewhere along the front.

Picton and District

Council Gives H. and S. Club Permission To Operate Three Rinks

Picton, (Special) — A pre-nomination meeting of the Town Council was held in Shire Hall on Monday evening.

Mr. A. F. Brown, Public School Inspector, P.E.C., addressed the council on behalf of the fathers of the H. & S. Assoc. He asked that the council would furnish three men, who are on the payroll for town work, to flood and help clean three open-air rinks that the H. & S. Assoc. propose to operate for the school children of the town, one on the Collegiate grounds, one behind the United Church and one in Delhi. The fathers of the association will take turns in supervising the rinks every evening except Sunday until nine o'clock.

Mr. C. Rutter explained that the association will light the rinks. A small fee, perhaps 25c for the season, will be charged, and what is left from this money will be used to operate a playground next summer, if possible.

Mr. F. Webster pointed out the moral value of the project in taking up the time and energy of the young people. Attention was drawn to the fact that at present there are only three prisoners in the town gaol, the oldest under 15 years of age.

Mrs. F. Webster spoke for the delegation of women members of the H. & S. Assoc.

On motion of McGibbon-Moore the request of the H. & S. Assoc. was granted with the understanding that the cost of the care of the rinks should not exceed $15 per week.

Action Deferred

A meeting of the Police Committee was held on Nov. 13th, when the three applications for traffic officer from Walter Boyer, Allan Van Cott and Geo. Pitt were laid over until the January meeting.

Geo. Miller was granted a junk dealer's licence.

A group picture of the council was presented to each member by Mayor McKibbon who also extended to each an invitation to attend his annual dinner. In reply each member felicitated the mayor on his splendid leadership and an air of good fellowship pervaded the council chamber.

On a motion of McGibbon-Warren, the town solicitor was instructed to advise the Dumo Textile Co. that the council has no authority to do anything in the matter of a fixed assessment on their property and that it will be necessary for them to apply for and have a vote taken by the public.

According to One Source Resignation Has Been in 48 Hours

NO COMMENT

Toronto, Nov. 18 — (CP) — The Globe and Mail in a special despatch today from Ottawa says:

"Elliott M. Little, rumor here tonight (Tuesday) says, has quit as director of national selective service. An earlier rumor that Mr. Little had been asked for his resignation as a result of the bogging down of the selective service machinery was said to be 'not true.'

"Asked about the rumors last night, Mr. Little told the Globe and Mail he had nothing to say.

"Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell could not be reached at nine o'clock tonight. (Tuesday).

"Two selective service officials refused to speak to either rumor.

"According to one source, the Little resignation has been in for over 48 hours."

The Globe and Mail story says the "blowup," which was "expected yesterday when the labor minister returned to his office after a month in England, actually occurred on Sunday when no one was around to see or hear."

Paper's Story

The paper adds:

"If the silence on both sides denotes a period of reconsideration, then the rumor is wrong in one particular. As the story goes, director Little's resignation makes no allowances for reconsideration or compromises. In it the director was claimed to have said that it was impossible for him to serve under labor minister Mitchell — and why . . ."

The Globe and Mail's story mentions an "earlier report" that when Mr. Mitchell went to England he left Mr. Little "sitting with a detailed program and no power to do anything."

"The inference then was that Mr. Mitchell had rejected the plan; would find one of his own in England. Oddly the Little plan was developed, with the advice of a highly placed British consultant, on loan from the British government and who had been in Ottawa several weeks before Mr. Mitchell took his trip . . ."

Last weekend Ottawa observers looked for consultations between the minister and selective service officials aimed at a clear-cut demarcation of authority between Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Little. It was then believed that one question would deal with the relative position of the unemployed insurance commission and national selective service. In the administration of national selective service, offices of the commission actually are field offices charged with the responsibility of enforcing the civilian end of the selective service program.

Transfer of the callup for compulsory military service to national selective service is scheduled for Dec. 1.

FDR INDICATES

lengthen as United States forces advance.

Assailing "loose talk" and what he considered politically-inspired criticism of the United States war effort, the President said persons without access to all the facts almost inevitably speak from guesswork.

Do Not Know Facts

"They do not know the facts and, therefore, the value of their statements becomes greatly reduced. Nor, must we in the actual progress of the war, lend ears to the clamor of politics or to criticism from those who, as we know in our hearts, are actuated by political motives.

He said he had tried to keep politics out of the war but confeased to making one mistake. That was in permitting announcement of the loss of an unidentified aircraft carrier in the Pacific late last month when the Japanese did not know her fate.

A great issue had been raised in Congress and elsewhere, he said, over suppression of news from fighting fronts, and he yielded to clamor.

He said he did so partly because, if the sinking had been disclosed two or three weeks later, it would have been charged publicly he had suppressed the news until after the election.

Navy Minister Criticizes C.C.F.

Winnipeg, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Navy Minister Macdonald criticized the C. C. F. party in a speech here last night and asserted that the party's aim was to control Canada—a Socialistic control that would "ultimately lead" to a dictatorship.

Mr. Macdonald spoke at a rally in support of Konnie Johannesson, Liberal candidate in the Winnipeg North Centre Federal by-election May. 30. Other candidates for the seat made vacant by the death of Hon. J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, are Rev. Stanley Knowles, C. C. F. and Cyril E. Rice, Labor-Progressive.

The Navy Minister said that in 1933 the C. C. F. issued a pamphlet stating the party opposed any capitalistic or imperialistic war, and three years later opposed in the House of Commons a grant for cadet training and the next year the defence estimates totalling $35,000,000.

Speaker Makes Charge

Asserting the C. C. F. is "heavily tinged with pacificism," Mr. Macdonald said the party "says 'we will allow conscription of men,' and they say that reluctantly. 'If we have conscription of natural resources and wealth,' whatever that means.

"The C. C. F. are for conscription with a great many ifs . . . the C. C. F. defied public opinion and voted against bill 80 . . ." The bill gave the government power to conscript for overseas service if any when the government deemed it necessary.

M. J. Coldwell, now C. C. F. leader, said in 1937 that not a dollar should be spent on national defence until "we know what makes that defence necessary," the minister continued. "Yet in 1942, this is the man who wants to run Canada's war effort."

A C. C. F. youth movement conference in 1940 which Mr. Macdonald said was held at Regina, approved a resolution urging the government to recall all Canadian troops sent overseas. While he realized it was a youth movement it nevertheless was "essentially" the C. C. F. policy for seven years, he said.

ROMMEL LOSES

Gen. Alexander said the Sherman tank is "grand and as good as any on the battlefield—our troops love it".

Referring to Rommel, although he did not use his name, Gen. Alexander said:—

"He will hang on. He always does. He's a good fighter, that fellow. He's trying to hang on and reorganize.

"When he gets to Tripoli and finds it too costly then he may attempt to get out—a sort of Dunkerque".

The slender, alert commander-in-chief, sunburned and handsome in his battle dress, exuded, optimism but tempered it with caution. The present British and Allied problem is one chiefly of supply as the Libyan chase extends to the west, he remarked.

Advance 400 Miles in Week

"We have advanced 400 miles in a week, and that's terrific", he said. "We were pushed back from Tobruk to the El Alamein position in a fortnight, I believe—it happened before I arrived—but when our push started we sent him back in one week, twice as fast.

"If anyone deserves the blitzkrieg title we do on that performance".

Moves By Coastal Road

The General said British casualties in the big push had been 13,600. The Germans and Italians lost more than 30,000 in captured alone and scores more are being picked up daily, he said.

"The best opinion of my experts" places the total Axis losses, killed, wounded and captured, at 75,000, Gen. Alexander said.

Returning to the question of tanks, the General said that Rommel "may have got in some more via Bengasi" while some in repair shops in the rear area might have been made useable, "so it is very difficult to say exactly how many tanks he has at present".

Gen. Alexander said the enemy apparently was moving westward through Libya by the coastal road instead of the shortcut across the desert below Bengasi because not much of his equipment is "desert-worthy".

The advance to within 70 miles of Bengasi placed the 8th army 80 miles farther along Rommel's trail than has been reported the previous day.

As the ground troops approached Bengasi, bombers attacked the city and port from a low level and barges in the harbor were set on fire, the communique said.

Six Axis transport planes were shot down by Allied fighters and at least six others were destroyed on the ground in the Bengasi area, the communique said. No Allied fighters were lost in these operations.

SENTENCED TO DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

White Plains, N.Y., Nov. 18 — (AP)—With a smile on his lips, Edward Haight, 17-year-old convicted killer of two little sisters, stood in County Court Tuesday and heard himself sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison.

Haight was convicted by a jury of six men and six women of luring Margaret Lynch, 7, and Helen, 8, into a stolen station wagon, Sept. 14, trying to rape one, maltreating the other, and tossing both into Westchester waters to drown.

TUNISIA FIRST BATTLEGROUND BETWEEN U. S. AND NAZIS

With Allied forces racing eastward across Algeria and the Germans in a desperate to reinforce their troops in Tunisia — that North African protectorate becomes the battleground of a clash between American land forces and Hitler's vaunted army in World War II. Meanwhile strategic Tripoli in Italian Libya was imperilled by the eastern prong of the giant Allied pincers movement as Axis forces fell back, abandoning Tobruk to British General Bernard L. Montgomery's westward moving Eighth Army. This Central Press Canadian map shows how Tunisia lies, a magnificent prize, between the closing jaws of the converging Allied forces. Once Tunisia has been overrun by the Allies, Italy will be in mortal peril.

Japanese Must Attack Again To Save Face

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

The full fruits of the great United States naval victory in the far Pacific are yet to be revealed in Japanese military reaction to the blow, but navy opinion that the foe must strike again at Guadalcanal, if only to have face, seems well justified.

Neither Japan, recoiling from a new defeat, nor Hitler, menaced by active second-front positions in North Africa, dare surrender the initiative. To do so would be to acknowledge failure of the Axis dream of world conquest.

The Achilles heel of a philosophy of power politics, of rule by force of arms, is that its practitioners cannot stop. Aggression is their only watchword. To revert to a defensive role is to accept auguries of defeat.

Thus the next move is obviously up to Germany and Japan. Even so there are certain unchallengable new war factors resulting from the staggering rebuff dealt Japanese sea power in the Solomons. They have a bearing on the war in Africa as well as the war in the Pacific.

Waiving the psychological byproduct — which could prove vastly important—the factual and practical result achieved are highly encouraging. They lend a color of realism to Allied hopes that the tide has definitely turned against the Axis everywhere; that years may already be lopped off the probable duration of the war.

Of supreme importance even before the full score of the Solomons battles comes in is the cumulative attrition of Japanese sea power. On navy books a ratio of better than four to one has been established against Japan in ship losses since and including the Dec. 7 attack on Pearl Harbor.

Unofficially the figures are set down as 365 Japanese craft of all types, combat and auxiliary, put out of action, as against eighty-five American. That, too, despite the dispersion of American fleet units on other war business in the Atlantic, the Mediterranean and elsewhere. Sea power hangs no less on cargo than on combat tonnage. The unfavorable odds at sea for the United States in the Pacific produced by two-front war are being whittled down relentlessly.

That must influence sea odds in other oceans. The Solomons victory was decisive enough to make it virtually certain that no American warcraft need be recalled from other seas to the Pacific. It is the Japanese, not the American fleet, that must grope desperately for replacements.

Air Losses High.

The absence of Japanese plane carriers from navy reports of enemy ships sunk or damaged is highly significant and unexplained. It seems obvious that Japanese air power losses must be even greater in proportion and more telling in effect that ship losses to date. Lack of scouting and attack planes may have been the key to the Japanese defeat.

The other aspect of the Solomons sea victory that strongly impresses this observer is the evidence it gives of co-ordinated and effective army-navy staff work. Allied army planes from Australia had much to do with the victory naval ships won off Guadalcanal.

American forces in the Far Pacific have learned co-operation in a hard school; but the proof is clear in that shattered Japanese armada that it has been learned.

History probably will trace the sea victory of Guadalcanal more to good scouting and combined staff work than to its individual genius shown by any officer in the fight, daring as Halsey's plan of battle was. That daring must have been founded on assembled and digested advance information of enemy dispositions to warrant the risk.

3 Stores Burn In St. Catharines

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 18 — (CP) — Burning out of control for four hours Tuesday fire gutted three S. Paul Street stores and a fourth was extensively damaged by smoke, water, and some fire causing damage estimated at $150,000.

Fire Chief L. Arthur Burch said the fire was under control at 12.30 o'clock that afternoon. The alarm was sounded at 8.37 a. m. Approximately 100 firemen from the St. Catharines department, A. R. P. Auxiliary Fire Brigade, and Thorold and Merritton volunteers battled the fire.

City police, A. R. P. police wardens, and Board of Parks police were hard pressed to control the hundreds of spectators who flocked to the scene.

The fire started in the basement of Tamblyn Drug Store and spread to Potter and Shaw Drug Store and J. H. Cummin's optical and photographic store, gutting all three premises. C. Wallace and Co., women's and children's clothing store, was slightly damaged by fire which spread to the second floor at the rear, but the chief damage will be from smoke and water.

The extensive financial loss is greatly augmented by the loss of large supplies of drugs, wearing apparel, and photographic equipment and supplies which because of wartime conditions are virtual irreplaceable.

Speed and Might

The record-breaking which had taken place in United States' shipyards this month has gone one better with the lowering of the time between the laying of the keel and the launching of a tank-landing craft at the Henry J. Kaiser yards on the Columbia River. It took but three days less twenty minutes to turn out this vessel.

The United States is doing things on a vast scale, in size and numbers and with unprecedented speed. So are all the United Nations.

It is not yet a year since Pearl Harbor and in that time the Republic has thrown large numbers of troops into the theatre of war and sent powerful armadas against the Japanese in the Pacific and into North Africa.

The United Nations are answering the Axis with no small effort but with the great force of their power. Hitler and the Japanese who boasted of their resources and strength have found these Powers striking at them in a mighty way and in an effective way.

They are flinging the full fury of their power against the aggressors.

Sea Power's Value

This week and last week have again demonstrated the importance of the freedom of the seas. Hitler was surprised by the news that a mighty armada of troops and implements of war had landed in North Africa under the guard of the United States and Royal Navy warships. One of the heaviest blows at Japan has been dealt in this third great battle in the South Pacific, the battle of the Solomon Islands in which Japan lost 23 warships and transports to the United States' eight ships, the Nipponese losses including many thousands of troops aboard the troop ships. This last battle has been called the greatest sea battle since the last war, greater than the battles of the Coral Sea and Midway Island, in all of which the Japanese were unpleasantly surprised.

Britain and the United States in their very nature are ocean-going nations. Trade takes these great Powers to all quarters of the world. They have great fleets of merchant ships and great navies.

Despite Hun and Jap and the marine effort of Italy, over two thousand British ships ply the oceans every day and hundreds of these Allied and British ships are in service. The war has been going on for three years and more and the Hun is no nearer his goal. Less than one ship has been lost out of 200 or less than one half of 1 p.c. of those convoyed by the British Ministry of Information.

The world goes on with the enemy hemmed in by the warships which do effective work in throttling the aggressors.

It was recently remarked that Britain was pinning her faith on the sea for the sea is the link which holds the world together.

The importance of the British Navy and the American Navy is indicated by the attention which the Germans give to submarine warfare. Today, submarine warfare is the greatest of all our problems, declared the First Lord of the Admiralty. "But we have so far succeeded in keeping our ocean lines."

Everyone remembers the days following the fall of France and realizes how heavy was the burden that fell on the British Navy. It stood guard over the world, kept back the great land aggressor Germany until the full might of the Allies could be thrown against the enemy.

The seas and oceans which bear the trade of the world remain free because Britain in her wisdom realizing the necessity of maritime power for an island people has linked herself to the world by water routes. The United States is a great land power herself but also feels the need of sea power. Therefore she has a powerful merchant fleet and navy. The sea breathes the very spirit of freedom and independence in these two peoples and in the world of peoples with whom they come in contact.

The constancy of sages is nothing but the art of locking up their agitation in their hearts. — Rochefoucauld.

TAKING THE CAKE

("Plainer cakes at controlled prices are stipulated in an order made by the Ministry of Food which will be enforced on October 26."—News item.)

The Plainer Cake, the Plainer Cake
Prepare to bite on it and make
No further error or mistake.

Be wise in time; resolve to shun
The sugared and voluptuous bun.
Bite not at all; it is not done.

For plain—O plain as A B C!—
The cake confronting you and me.
And gosh! how plain such cakes can be.

Plain as our present path, all struggly,
Plain as hardtack not sweetened smugly;
Plain to the point of sheer plug-ugly.

Plain as the track in this our race;
Plain as the nose on Adolf's face
(And that's a pretty plain disgrace).

Plain as the moon when moons are high,
Plain as the bombers in the sky;
Plain as the choice of Do or Die.

When cakes—or paths—are plain as that
It needs a fairly purblind bat
Not to know what he should be at.

Look to your choice—no cake, no crown.
Each to his task in shire or town.
So get your cake (and Adolf) down.

FOOTBALL GOES TO WAR

A friend of ours who spends his Saturday afternoons listening to one of his favorite radio programs, when he is not putting up storm windows, mowing the lawn, beating carpets, walking Junior and the family Airdale, thinking up excuses for his Sunday golf, trying to beat the family budget, cleaning the cellar, or catching up on the week's lost sleep, bemoans the fact that clean sweet Saturday afternoon air is being cluttered up with "flying wings, left kicks, punt formations, seventy-yard runs," and all the other favorite gridiron terms dear to the heart of the football fan.

It appears, however, that Junior did a "Fibber McGee" with the wiring of the family radio during one of his numerous tours of exploration, with the result that the Saturday afternoon program sounded something like this:

"The British Eighth Army, advancing swiftly, was stopped short of Navy's fifty yard line . . . Tale, attempting to kick, failed to grab on Rommel who is said to be in Benghazi . . . Slishwosky, Notre Dame half, converted fourteen tanks and three enemy aircraft caught in a desert pocket . . . Forward Lack kick off from Detroit just inside the Libyan border R.A.F. bombers on a daylight sweep, circled Army's end to a large gain . . . General Thoma tackled hard from the rear and brought down heavily on a Japanese base on Guadalcanal . . . Striking swiftly from jungle fastnesses, Japanese infantry was thrown for a loss by Michaelovich of the Golden Bears . . . "This will mean," said Mr. Eden, "that stricter rationing will be forced on the Harvard Crimson when it crosses the goal line." . . . The troopers and three gliders convoyed the fleet Princeton half who was brought down in the shadow of the goal posts by a land mine which exploded near Rommel's headquarters," . . . and so on into the shades of late evening.

NOT ALL WASTED

One Saturday night, Macpherson, accompanied by his son, trudged to the tavern, where he handed over a jar and asked for it to be filled with whisky. (This was before the war!)

When this had been done, he found he had left his money at home, whereupon the landlord poured out the whisky again.

"What an awfu' shame," remarked the son when they were on their way home.

"Dinna worry," replied Macpherson blithely. "Jist wait till we get hame an' ye see me squeezing out the sponge."

TOMORROW

Always and ever tomorrow,
The day of our hopes and our dreams;
The end of all failure and sorrow,
How close and how far off it seems!

Tomorrow — the goal a day nearer,
Tomorrow — one day farther on!
The way just a little bit clearer
And some old discouragement gone.

Always and ever before us
Tomorrow holds promises fair;
Life just a bit easier for us
And lighter its burdens to bear.

Tomorrow — then loosened some better,
Some evil of old set aright,
Life richer and surer and better,
Its wrongs more nearly to right!

Tomorrow, with beauty of morning
And evening and nightime and noon,
Tomorrow — the better day dawning
For all of us, later or soon.
Long yesterdays, dim and ended,
Lie down with the past in the grave,
But forever to victories splendid
Tomorrow will welcome the brave.

Political Consequences of Military Victory

New York, Nov. 18.—The news from the Southern Pacific cape the climax of a tremendous effort—has brought military results that are fundamental and astonishing. The much-abused slogan of the "turning of the tide" is actually true.

The discussion of the whole year centred around the question: Shall we retreat in the Pacific in order to save this lameness, this lack of any long-range political view, in contrast to the grandiosity of the military conception.

In fact it looks as if General Eisenhower not only had to conduct a military campaign but create a political modus vivendi in a vacuum.

If this political modus vivendi is not satisfactory, one certainly can not blame General Eisenhower. Our political leadership, the State Department, for instance, cannot hide behind the military. Political debates are not a military matter, though they have to be made in a military situation.

The military reconquest of Europe is complicated enough. It is impossible for the head of the military that they be equal to political situations which West Point does not prepare them for. The military may properly consider the winning over of commanding posts and commanding officers, but the atmosphere and surrounding such officers is no concern to them.

Yet, in a war involving such fundamental ideas, and in a world lacked the brilliance, imagination, consistency, and vision of command that marked the military tactics. Despite the long period of opportunity afforded our political representatives in North Africa for the reunion of Vichy, our political policy, unlike the military, bears every mark of improvisation. What is disturbing many thoughtful people in the United Nations is just this lameness, this lack of any long-range political view, in contrast to the grandiosity of the military conception.

In fact it looks as if General Eisenhower not only had to conduct a military campaign but create a political modus vivendi in a vacuum.

If this political modus vivendi is not satisfactory, one certainly can not blame General Eisenhower. Our political leadership, the State Department, for instance, cannot hide behind the military. Political debates are not a military matter, though they have to be made in a military situation.

The military reconquest of Europe is complicated enough. It is impossible for the head of the military that they be equal to political situations which West Point does not prepare them for. The military may properly consider the winning over of commanding posts and commanding officers, but the atmosphere and surrounding such officers is no concern to them.

Yet, in a war involving such fundamental ideas, and in a world where the masses of the people are so determinant for every outcome the lack of a clear political strategy can, in a moment of military victory, create a vacuum into which political personalities and interests move.

Bankrupt politicians, for instance, have a notable tendency to take refuge under a victorious flag. Thus we see the very funny spectacle of Flandin and Pucheu, the very political culprits of the Axis appeasement which brought on this war, seeking, under cover of our victory, an asylum from which to rebuild their power. Asylum is one thing; rebuilding of power is another.

Political leadership must assume its full responsibilities everywhere. Otherwise military victory can be accompanied by political chaos.

GERMANS IN NEW WORLD

It is estimated that between 25 and 30 million persons of German or some German blood in their veins, live in the United States, reports the Times. There are now 8,527,000 persons of German birth or parentage in the United States.

Of these, 1,227,772 were foreign born and 3,300,000 were born of German or part German parentage.

The census figures taken in 1940 show that there were 90,780 persons in the United States who use the German language as their mother tongue. As used by the census bureau, "mother tongue" is defined as the principal foreign language, if any, spoken in the home of a person in his earliest childhood.

Although individual Germans settled in America as an early as 1608, the first community of Germans in the English Colonies was established at Germantown, Pennsylvania, in 1683. Yet today Pennsylvania is far from being the New York, Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin in the size of its population of German stock. New York has more than a million inhabitants of German stock, Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin each have more than half a million. Pennsylvania is fewer than half a million.

Persons born in Germany or with one or both parents of German parentage constitute 11 percent of the total non-British stock in the United States, exclusive of Negroes, and they are by far the largest element in the population of any state in the union, that origin to some part of the British Isles.

There are about 1,750,000 persons of German stock in Canada.

It is estimated that the number of persons of German stock in Latin America is one million, between one half and one hundred thousand of whom are in Brazil.

Between the first and second generation Germans in the United States decreased 34 percent from 1830 to 1940.

Wisconsin, with 15 percent, has the highest percentage of first and second generation Germans in its total population. This group comprises 20 percent of the population of Milwaukee, which has a higher percentage of persons of immediate German stock than any other large city in the United States. New York City, however, has about half a million first and second generation Germans, or a little more than five states — Michigan, California, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Iowa — have each more than 30,000 first and second generation Germans.

When the first census was taken in 1790 persons of German descent constituted 8.6 percent of the population of the original thirteen states.

All of which proves that the Germans are a fine people, as the country called Germany and not with people by Germans.

Do What Your Doctor Does If Child Is Listless

Because the tongue is the upper end of the digestive tract, it often shows the first signs of trouble. So when an ailing child is listless, doctors say, look first at the tongue and then give it a thorough cleaning as a warning of an upset stomach, liver or bowels.

Don't use mild laxatives—look at your child's tongue. If coated, give Fletcher's Castoria and help get rid of the cause of the trouble. Be sure to read Dr. Fletcher's directions. Over 5 million bottles of Fletcher's Castoria have been made especially for youngsters from infancy to age 12. Buy it at your druggist today. Only 25 cents per bottle. Genuine has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on wrapper.

Get a package of Fletcher's Castoria today. Follow the label directions and watch your child's tongue clear. Then you'll know your trouble is over. Remember, Fletcher's Castoria is the same safe, dependable relief that millions have used for their babies and children for more than 40 years. Insist on Fletcher's Castoria.

Must Eat and Sleep for Beauty

Gene Tierney believes in eating at regular hours

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHAT will your glamour beauty questers like to hear and talk about, besides lipsticks, rouges, flaming lipstics and rosebud ringlets. One can understand Princess Elizabeth's Mr. Darcy's all for decorations of one kind or another. And why not? The mere act of looking glass is a close companion; her regard is constant.

They sink into a state of apathy when an older person starts chinning on health subjects. They think nothing is going to slow down their activities. They are wrong.

Many a high school girl suffers from nervous tension, fatigue, loss of sleep. Shadows come under the eyes, the complexion is pale, the pals that the rouge compact is not much of a help.

Engine Needs Fuel

We want to talk to girls who think the rush, the rush, up late at parties or to do their home work. Also we want to talk to young ladies that an engine can't keep going without fuel, that they should eat properly, sleep, slow up on nourishing food, eating at regular hours.

Finicky eaters, not getting all the food elements they need, suffer from all manner of beauty ills, blotched complexions, falling hair, brittle fingernails, lackluster eyes.

Can't Disguise Fatigue

No girl, or woman, should fancy that a freshly laid flagstone, a touch of rouge and a heavy smear of lipstick will disguise fatigue, most of us overestimate the value of make-up. Cosmetics are a wonderful aid, but they should come after proper background, which consists of vitality, and appearance of freshness.

Monsters talk and talk and what good does it do? Our modern daughters are making a determined, smarter than their mothers were at their age. But few of them are mindful of the importance of health. Which is just too bad.

Tea, Coffee Rations Will Not Be Raised

Ottawa, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Any quavering hope that tea and coffee rations might soon be eased was dulled Tuesday by the statement of food supply officials that supply conditions are no better than when rationing was imposed last August.

Continuation of the ration of one ounce of tea or four ounces of coffee a week reflects world difficulties common the world over.

Tea purchases for the United Nations now are being made by the United Kingdom, and from London allocations are made to countries requiring supplies. Arrangements for purchase of tea from the common pool have been made by the United States, Britain and Australia which available on supplies for coming months indicates no increase in the present ration will be possible.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Service Distinction

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am confused about the difference between the terms "United States Army" and "Army of the United States" used after a name. Is it correct that I received an invitation to a wedding invitation with the first name used, and several others where the second form was used.

J. T. S.

There is a definite difference. "United States Army" is the proper designation for men in the Regular Army. "Army of the United States" is the service for the duration of the war.

"The Jonsees"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to order my Christmas cards soon, and I would like to use the form of name that you recently suggested in your column — that is, "The Jonsees" for the plural of our name.

But our name ends in "s" ... for example, like Jones. And so I am not sure what form to use for the plural. Would an apostrophe be correct? Or what form should I use?

R. L.

An apostrophe is incorrect.

Even adding an "e" to "s" is added. The correct form would be "The Jonsees."

No Tip

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

I have been invited to a large dinner that is to be given after a church wedding. Should I tip the waiter on such an occasion?

Tom

No. All the expenses of the wedding dinner, including the tips for all service in connection with it, are paid by the bride's family.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Flight of Soldiers' Wives leads to Formation of War Brides of America

At Fort George R. Meade, Maryland, not far from Washington, D.C., a new alphabetical organization was started this summer. It is known as the W.B.A.—War Brides of America.

A senior at Hunter College, New York City, started its new war organization. Its purpose is to keep the young brides happy between her soldier husband furloughs.

While visiting her husband at Fort Meade the plight of soldiers' wives began to appeal to Mrs. Kashuk, who learned that brides were in the habit of writing doleful letters to the husbands, with disastrous effects on the soldiers' morale.

Mrs. Kashuk hit upon the happy idea that if the brides could meet and talk with other young women in themselves, the feeling of isolation and uselessness would be alleviated, at the same time, the meeting of the W.B.A. would give the girls something interesting or exciting to write to their absent lords.

The society was started last June with exactly one member, but it grew with astonishing rapidity. Now there are new large chapters in Boston, Baltimore and other East Coast cities. In Canada, Claire Wallace, a radio commentator, started a sister organization.

The War Brides of America chapters are conducted by wives and their fence activities of their communities a day. Sometimes they have forums and lectures on topics of interest to young housewives.

The type of work in which you engage depends largely on what type of war bride you happen to be. Some chapters learn to cook, to knit, to keep household accounts, to market. Other chapters are interested in literature, buy books and run lending libraries. Still another chapter has a revolving fund for needy members, some of whom, it seems, these are particularly happy chapters, especially when a visit from the stork is anticipated.

Whether you are enrolled as a W.B.A. or not, please do not write letters with a view to encouragement in them to "Himself," as the beloved Irish call the head of the house. Remember that those men are jailed to face. Don't destroy their courage with even the feeblest whine.

Allan Mills

Allan Mills — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wellman are spending a week in Toronto with Mr. and Mrs. C. Kew.

Mr. Ben Anderson had the misfortune while hunting, on Wednesday to fall and break some ribs.

About 75 friends of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Brown gathered at the Standard Corners Hall on Friday night with gifts and an address. Mr. and Mrs. Brown, after forty years' residence at Stanwood, are moving to Havelock.

Mrs. Roger Lain has returned home after spending some time visiting at the home of her brother, Mr. Cecil Lancaster, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Rowe spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. S. Kellar.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Brown visited Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Madill on Sunday.

Miss Susan Wright of Peterboro spent the weekend at her home.

Mr. Chester Irwin is clear hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Stenburg visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lain on Sunday.

Mrs. Margaret Bakes, of Toronto, and Mrs. Catharine Oakley, of Campbellford visited their sister, Mrs. Ida Lancaster recently.

AC. Don McKeown of the R. C. A. F. at St. Johns, Quebec, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKeown.

Mrs. Fred Abrams was the speaker at the meeting of Rylestone Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. Fry on Thursday afternoon. The meeting was under the Agriculture department and the roll call "A Gift for a Soldier Boy" met with a good response. Mrs. Abrams' address on "A Gift my bit as I feel I ought", outlining the necessity of conserving foodstuffs on the part of the women folk in war work. Dietitians, of course, sum up, such as the increased load borne by the women because of the shortage of manpower, she said, we must remember the sacrifices of others and try to aid accordingly.

The motto for the meeting was "Let us give thanks". Mrs. R. Arnold, Mrs. Jas. Barnett, Mrs. Chas. Stewart, Mrs. F. M. Rutherford and Mrs. W. J. Abrams were appointed to have charge of the salvage this week. Mrs. F. M. Rutherford and Mrs. R. Irwin reported on the Belleville Area Women's Institute Readings given by Mrs. Roy Fry, and Mrs. Lillian Anderson.

On Thursday evening a number of friends of Miss Evelyn Petherick gathered at the home of Mr. Neil Hooper to honour the bride-elect. Miss Petherick on the occasion of her approaching marriage to Mr. Harold Hooper took the form of a kitchen shower. The rooms presented a very unusual kitchenware gifts, all in shades of blue and red, which she appreciated very greatly.

An enjoyable afternoon was spent playing cards, dancing games and concluding with a contest which was won by Mrs. Arthur Russel. Mrs. Ed. Smith presented gift the "booby" prize. The guest of honor, Miss Petherick was then asked to take the chair while an address was read by Mrs. K. J. Fraser, and signed on behalf of her lady friends in Sydenham. Mrs. Chas. McArthur and Mrs. Neil Hooper, the latter presided, thanking one and all and extending an invitation for them to visit her in her new home. All joined in singing "She's a Jolly Good Fellow", Lunch concluded the delightful afternoon.

Vitamin B Complex Delays Fatigue of the Nervous System

Physicians who have followed the history of the vitamins will recall that Vitamin B was one of the first vitamins to gain fame as it was found that scurvy could be prevented by eating foods rich in Vitamin C.

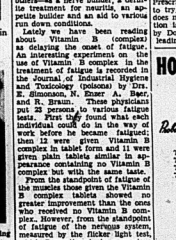
Later came the very great interest in Vitamin D because it prevented rickets and decayed teeth. Yet at that time had been widespread. Today one rarely sees a case on misshapen legs in children due to rickets.

Still later came the knowledge of the benefits derived from Vitamin A: Antiinfection, growth and sight blindness preventer.

Finally came Vitamin B, with its family—B1, B2, B complex and others—as a very healthful, curative treatment for neuritis, an appetite builder and an aid to various skin disorders.

Lately we have been reading about Vitamin B complex as delaying the onset of fatigue. An interesting experiment in the use of Vitamin B complex in the treatment of fatigue is recorded in the Journal of Industrial Hygiene and Toxicology (Poisons) by Drs. R. Bruce Dodge, Paul E. Bacr, and R. Bruin. These physicians put 23 persons on "fatigue" tests. First they found what each individual could do in a day of work before he became fatigued; then they gave each person B complex in tablet form and 11 were given pain tablets similar in appearance but containing no Vitamin B complex but with the same taste.

From the standpoint of fatigue of the muscles those given the Vitamin B complex showed a much greater improvement than the ones who received no Vitamin B complex. However, from the standpoint of fatigue of the nervous system, measured by the finger light test, which I mentioned in a previous article, considerable difference was shown. Of the 12 given the B plex" First they kept a careful budget, a record of all expenditures. Then they made a record of shopping lists, sales slips, even the brown paper bags on which they chose totals and figures.



And they were amazed at the number of things that had slowed up in just one month's spending. Mrs. Brown, for instance, had what she called "money in the bank" right away, especially when a visit from the old gad-about, their easy budget plan makes early possible.

Then they estimated their annual expenditures in detail among FOOD, CLOTHING, SHELTER, and so on, using the Total Budget as a guide.

To protect their RECREATION allowance they created a fund for EMERGENCIES. Thus they don't have to borrow from it or juggle bills set up vacation savings.

Finally they started with a budget. Our 33-page booklet tells how to divide your money to get what you want most. Includes tips on buying and ruled pages for a year's accounts.

Many Skin Diseases Traced to Diet

There is increasing evidence that many skin diseases are caused by the lack of certain substances in the diet. Much has been written about this subject so a person with a skin rash often may blame the rash on acid foods or sweets. Then he may mistakenly change his diet in an effort to overcome the skin eruption without doing the real good. In addition this sort of "hit and miss" treatment usually gives the patient no idea into which of the right kind of food and as a result there is a food deficiency.

It is true that diet may be a factor in producing certain skin rashes. For example, a baby may be sensitive to some food as eggs or oatmeal, and grownups often have hives or eczema from eating chocolate, eggs or shellfish, or many other foods. In these instances, elimination of the offending of the food to which the person is sensitive will usually be the best way to clear up.

In the case of urticaria or hives, some physicians suggest that it may be a good idea when it first occurs to give the patient a fruit only juice diet for twenty-four hours. Then it may be well to keep the patient from the diet sea foods, eggs, chocolate, tomatoes, pork, spices, coffee and alcohol, because it has been shown by long experience that one or more of these foods which most commonly contribute to the development of hives. Also, of course, no salt is added to food. In addition, it is suggested that the patient take a potassium chloride in the proper dose by the mouth.

Another skin disease which seems to have responded to a change in the diet is an infection of the skin with staphylococcus or streptococcus. For many years it has been believed that in these types of skin infection the diet should be low in starched, such as bread and cereals, as well as in sugars.

In tuberculosis of the skin a diet high in fat and protein, such as meat, fish, and eggs, and low in breads, cereals, potatoes and sweets, with some restriction of the amount of water and salt taken has been found of help.

In psoriasis a diet low in fats has been recommended and has been found helpful in some cases.

In any skin disease keep in mind that it is the physician who will decide what diet you should follow and so that no food deficiency will result.

Fashion Flashes

BRIGHT AND CHEERFUL is a tailored robe in printed challis, a blue, red and green floral print with white with cord pipings in blue.

TYPICAL of the sort of frock liked just now is a dainty dress of navy blue wool jersey with a suede finish. Bands of black fancy stand the neck bodice and edge the little round neckline and there are jet buttons. Navy skirt with soft front fullness.

LESS EXPENSIVE than an impressive fur hat and muff to tone up a simple black frock is a large and big muff both of flame colored coq feathers. But such accessories need super carriage and plenty of assurance, plus perfect grooming.

VERY STRIKING clothes are usually those done in black with splashes of vivid color. A slim black jersey dinner dress has a tropical flower design from shoulder diagonally to the hemline on the opposite side. This is done in white, fire red and green sequins.

DRESS UP time finds many women wearing either the coats of heavy black velvet trimmed with silver fox. The black velvet coat trimmed with mink is a big seller all over the country, judging from reports.

FIRST FAVORITE with customers this season is the black velvet sheathed beaver greatcoat made with inverted pleat on each hip rating, tapering lines, generous fullback cuffs and capacious pockets. A grand coat to wear over dresses and over suits, for dress, casual or gaming wear. Usually seen at present in bronze brown Alaska sealskin.

COLLEGE HILL WOMEN'S GROUP

The November meeting of College Hill Women's Group was held at Mrs. Pine's home on West College Street. Fourteen members were present, Hymn 143 was sung, followed by responsive reading and Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Parmenter read the Scripture Lesson and Theme song was sung. Minutes were read and approved and Treasurer's report given.

Mrs. (Dr.) Baker gave a talk full of helpful thoughts on every day living and Rev. Mr. Farnsworth sang.

A complete letter and several articles of clothing were forwarded for the Red shield. Plans were made as well as to entertain the Legion. The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction and a social time was spent.

Albert College Wins COSSA Senior Title by Defeating Fast But Light Stirling Team

Green and White Squad Had Too Much Power for Lighter Opponents

SCORE 15 31-10

Racing through and over for an initial period advantage Coach Doug Gopsill's Albert College group champions added further gridiron laurels to their 1942 scalps by downing Stirling High School 31 to 10 in a sudden death game for the senior COSSA six-man football title here yesterday. Inclement weather and a high wind seemed hampered the senior Interschola-tic finalists somewhat as the rival champions led 13-5; 19-5; 25-5 and finally finished at 31-10 in quarter scoring figures, as other secondary schools entered in the COSSA senior rugby football for 1942, the Albert College squad annexed a title and only had their goal line crossed twice all season, Coach Good's courageous and youthful Stirling kids having that distinction.

With Bob Taylor pacing the way the Albert's scored early, when Taylor booted for a point. Stirling tried two ground plays before Lougheed broke through to block a kick on the visitors' 21 yard stripe. A second play saw Taylor pitch a long pass to Lougheed, who scored standing up and later Taylor booted another singleton making the count 7-0 for Albert. "Red" Rankin tossed Sid Stirling's pass as the heavier Albert squad rolled to another touchdown after individual runs around the sticks and Taylor raced through a rough-shod for a 19-5 count as he then plunged to Ballantyne for the convert as the score mounted to 13 to 5 in the first seven minutes of play.

Stirling Squad Light

A lighter squad, but full of courage, the "northerners" rallied and went to the air for an attack which saw Coach Good's sextette romp 60 yards in all for a touchdown. In succession Ballantyne, the fleet-footed of the visitors, pitched successful and unerring passes to Patterson, Haslill and Eggleton, the latter scoring a major count, converted. Play was rather even in the second stanza, the only scoring coming when Freddie Abood plunged through left end for a touchdown that was converted making the half-time count 25 for Albert.

Sensing an advantage of a sort attacks McIntosh fired to B. Basteds for a substantial gain for Stirling on the second play as the last half opened. Doug Patterson cracked for yards, but Zeke Lawrence got an abrupt stop to the Northerners' threat, when he intercepted a forward pass to put the ball well into the visitors' territory. The heavier Goyette-coached machine bucked, kick for secondary gain, that was culminated with the most perfected executed forward pass of the year, when Bob Taylor pitched 30 yards into the outstretched arms of Bill Ardiel, who raced over for a touch, converted and the count ended 25-5.

Took to the Air

Jack Wright moved the sticks twice for Albert's to open the last session before the homesters fumbled. In desperation Stirling moved out with a prolific aerial attack and an extended ground play that moved them into scoring position and McIntosh fired to B. Basteds, who took the pigskin, Albert's nine and Patterson cracked the right end for a pleasing touchdown. . . . Then Stirling their tenth and last point. A fluke forward taken by a timely catch by Rideout helped Albert in their last scoring attempt, which was made with Ballantyne heaving to Lougheed, who side-stepped the Stirling safety man and scored. The convert was made by Ballantyne pitching to Ardiel, who was unprotected. The final play of the game saw Patterson move the ball to Albert's nine, but the "no" bell sounded.

Bob Taylor and Zeke Ballantyne shared the honors as individual performers for the 1942 senior Interscholastic COSSA championship, while Don McIntosh did yeoman work at both booting and pitching passes for the smaller and lighter Stirling squad. Albert College attempted 16 forward passes, completing nine, while Stirling completed 18 via the aerial route and completed nine. Jack Lougheed handled the punting over for two of Albert's five major scores, Taylor getting one and three single points, Eggleton and Patterson scored for Stirling with Don McIntosh being their high-point-getter for the day.

The line-ups: Albert College — snap Rankin, wings Lougheed and Ardiel, quarter Rideout, halves Taylor and Wright, fullback Freddie Abood, Bacon and Wright. Stirling High School—snap Eggleton, wings B. Basteds and Haslill, quarter Van-Nostrand, halves Patterson and McIntosh, subs Read, Jackman, D. Basteds and McLaren.

Referee: Burt Townsend.

Umpire: Eddie Schrieder.

Hockey's Big Seven

Buddy O'Connor's third period goal at Boston last night gave him the necessary point needed to return him to second place in the National Hockey League standings. O'Connor moved into a tie with Lynn Patrick, each with seven points. Gordie Drillon, who is leading the league, did not score in the game, but his lead was unimpaired with Patrick, his nearest rival, remaining idle.

The leaders:

May Consider Reducing Limit

Boston, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins said last night that the Board of Governors of the National Hockey League will be asked to meet next week to consider the question of reducing the player limit, from 18 to 13 men.

Ross explained that most of the league's clubs have been hard hit by calls to the armed service and that a reduction of the limit would equalize the league strength.

FLASH HOLLETT HAS UNCOVERED SCORING KICK

Boston's Rearguardsman Now Leading Defencemen of Loop in Scoring

CANADIENS BEATEN

By The Canadian Press

William (Flash) Hollett has uncovered an old scoring kick which seems destined to place him among the National Hockey League's top rushing defencemen. His season to his early playing days with Toronto Maple Leafs, the 30-year-old North Sydney, N.S., native was regarded as an outstanding frontline prospect, but somehow his promise always exceeded his performance. This year things may be different. Hollett scored the all-important first goal last night as Boston Bruins defeated Montreal Canadiens 4-1 before 7,500 fans at Boston Gardens to move into a third-place tie with the Habitants.

It was Hollett's third goal in three games and, coupled with a third-period assist, brought his season's total to seven, better than any other defenceman in the league. He scored the game's first period ended on a 40-foot shot from the right boards. Centreman Johnny Crawford, drew the assist to consolidate his early scoring spree with brilliant point-getting defencemen.

Bruins never were in danger after that. Murph Chamberlain made it 2-0 in the second period on a pass from Herbie Cain and Art Jackson added another counter before Buddy O'Connor, heading a three-man rush, beat Paul Bibeault in the Habs' goal. Montreal goal Harvey Jackson converted Hollett's passout from behind before the final whistle to complete the scoring.

O'Connor's goal proved the past Mac Bentley of Chicago Black Hawks into a second-place tie in National Hockey League scoring with Patrick of New York Rangers. Coincidentally, Bentley's hat-trick straight win after four earlier defeats and the third straight victory for Canadiens. Flying Frenchmen played without Maurice Richard, Elmer Lach and Terry Reardon, who are unable to obtain passports to cross into the United States. Bruins lacked the services of Bill Shill, youthful centre of Boston's kid line.

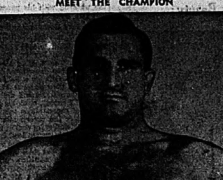
Japs on Kiska Is. No Large Hazard, Are Hemmed In



Toronto, Nov. 18 —(CP)— Wing-Lieut. Vandusen, public relations officer for the Pan American Air Ways, said in Chungking in an address view that Japanese forces on Kiska Island no longer constitute a hazard to this continent.

"The Japs," he said, "are hemmed in by a vigilant and efficient force of Canadian and American service men."

Speaking to the young men's section of the Board of Trade Monday he said the air transport services of the U.S. army and navy are carrying 16,000,000 tons of cargo monthly and predicted this figure would be 10 times as great within six months' time.

Headaches of a Fight Manager:

Possibly taking a tip from the Joe Louis-Billy Conn merry-go-round, Vancouver's Ken Lindsay, now a shipyards worker, told newsmen he netted $1,200 in 1940 because he wanted one more big fight "in order to square up with the income tax department". . . The story was published and Ken's manager, Arnold Bertram, rushed to explain Lindsay was only kidding. "How would he ever owe $1,200 for 1940 anyway?" asked Bertram. "That was the year he won the amateur title. He didn't even turn pro until March. I wish he would quit kidding folks." It'll bet he does, what with the income tax inspectors reading newspapers so carefully.

Training Plane Forced to Land

Lowville, N. Y., Nov. 18 — (AP)— A Royal Canadian Air Force training plane, piloted by an unidentified pilot from Ottawa, Ont., was wrecked today when it ground-looped after a wing struck a snow bank. The pilot was not hurt.

The plane was blown off its course during a snowstorm Saturday and landed on open farm land here. It was piloted then by William G. Nail, jr., of Wallaceyr, Cheshire, England. Hale was not hurt. A pilot and mechanic found were flown from Kingston to try and get the plane into the air.

They lost all their clothing. Tapsell was in the north hundred, but rescue work was accomplished by his brother, Delbell, his wife and children.

A plastic food grater has been invented lacking sharp points and edges to injure users' hands.

ST. CATHARINES IN FIRST PLACE OF SENIOR GROUP

Easily Defeat Niagara Falls 5-3 in Best Game of Season

HAMILTON WIN 5

St. Catharines Saints moved into first place in the Niagara Peninsula group of the Senior O.H.A. Ontario Hockey Association last night when they handed Niagara Falls Cataracts a 5-3 set-back at St. Catharines in the most spirited game of the young season.

Hamilton Majors trounced Port Colborne Sailors 9-4 in the other Senior "A" contest last night. No games were scheduled in the Toronto section.

A quartet of Juniior stars from Western Canada made their initial appearance of the season with the Niagara Falls club. Elmer Stewart, Regina; Jimmy Ward, Moose Jaw; Bert Meade and Don Mendie, Saskatoon, Calgary Stampeders, all received their passports from military customs Tuesday afternoon playing their first games last night.

Steve Pughy, the star-starred last year with Port Arthur Bearcats, looked like a steal for the Falls as Cooper, his linemate who turned down an early-season offer to play for Toronto Leafs, scored and assists on all three Wooky goals. Ward, Stewart and Meade also made the first and third periods but lapsed in the second session and failed to score. It was the goals that gave them the edge.

Ed Kea, former Hamilton Majors won a clear-cut decision. Ahead 2-1 at the end of the first period they added three goals in the second, while all Sailors could do was add a lone counter. Centreman Colborne 3-2 in the final period.

Hamilton Majors opened the big gun of the Major victory. He scored four of the Hamilton goals, one in the first and three in the second periods. Doug Rumiona was another potent factor in the Majors' attack, getting two goals and an assist.

HERSHEY BEARS NOSE OUT BARONS

Team Adds Two Points to Their First-Place Margin

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey Bears added two points to their first-place margin in the eastern division of the American Hockey League with a 5-4 last night in Cleveland.

It was the only game played in the circuit and by losing the Barons dropped into a seventh place tie with Indianapolis Capitals for second place. Both have 10 points in the league.

Cleveland had a 1-0 lead going into the second period but after 30 minutes had passed the score stood 3 to 3.

With the assistance of Les Cunningham, Hershey Bears set up the Barons one goal ahead at 2:30 of the final stanza.

The Bears tied the count at 4-4 at 14:40 on a goal by Bruce Ridley. One minute and 45 seconds later, Wally Kilrea drifted home with the goal that won the game.

Providence Reds, who now are trailing the Bears by three points, will play at the Hershey rink while Hershey will try to extend its streak at the expense of Washington.

Buffalo Bisons, western half leaders, do not see action until Thursday night when they tangle with the Cups at Indianapolis.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 18 — (CP)—The common theory that those who do much for sport are quickly forgotten doesn't hold true—at least in the case of Dan Sullivan and Jimmy Wilde.

Dan, in 36 years as a boxing promoter, made many famous matches and ran his competitions in that unsurpried much talent. He gave Jimmy his first chance, 21 years ago and the Wallopping Welshman rose to become world flyweight champion.

One of the most popular sport figures in Britain, Wilde now is recreational director of a British war factory and a ringside spectator at any big boxing card. Sullivan has received hundreds of letters from distant parts of the Empire asking for books and papers dealing with sport and for second-hand boxing gloves. Most of the gloves go to prisoner-of-war camps.

Dan has sent many of the writers a day-by photo of himself, taken with Jimmy, reminder of the once-famous boxing arena in London's Blackfriars Road. Jimmy, now 50, won his first match there in the first round of the first night of his career at the same time.

Sullivan's letters are about how his frail appearance and suggested it would be fatal for him to attempt to give him more fights. Dan demurred, however, because he knew of Wilde's uncanny strength and of many contests he had won precariously, including the one recorded while with a travelling booth in South Africa.

Now the association has been reversed and Dan and Jimmy are travelling together to many parts of the world—on a postcard.

The old Norman-French tradition in the age of Bath are being sacred dressing rooms for the city's golf clubs. Many of the ancient dressing rooms and bath stands have been destroyed to make way for what was almost decided to - abandon golf. New York, Nov. 18. (AP)—Football isn't all Fun Dept.:—A few weeks ago when the Woodward, Iowa, High School Football Coleh entered the United States Army the town person took over his coaching duties. . . . Now comes a letter from Carl (Dad) Kreamyre reporting that after Woodward had a fair season, came on the sag-at old rule requiring a coach to teach two other subjects. Since the person merely was working for the money, paying absence to the lives of some of his other duties and nursing more sore muscles than most people have good use, he couldn't fill that requirement. . . . As a result, all of Woodward's games were ordered forfeited and even the three years that beat Dad's school lost credit for it when the official scores were changed 1 to 0. . . . Maybe rules is rules, but it seems from here that such technicalities had better be disregarded in the interest of letting football in its place as nothing more than a swell game.

"The War—and Your Underwear"

While we are doing our best to provide good underwear for our retailers and consumers in every city, town and village in Canada we would like to remind you that good underwear is more precious than ever. This, of course, is because the needs of Canada's gallant fighting forces must come FIRST. Furthermore it must be remembered that our collaborations of wool, cotton and practically everything entering into the making of good underwear are limited by government restrictions.

For this reason we ask STANFIELD'S distributors, retailers and consumers not to buy any more underwear than they actually need; and to consumers particularly we suggest that they take good care of the underwear they now have on hand. In order to help you do this please write for our new folder: "How To Make Your Underwear Last Longer." The folder covers instructions for the underwear worn by men, women, children and infants.

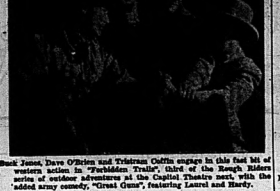
THE OLD ADAGE THAT GOES "something like..." a good little man can't beat a good big man"—was once again proven Yesterday when Albert College rolled to a 31 to 19 win over Stirling High for the senior COBSA Interscholastic football championship. Coach Cook's smaller Stirling kids had plenty of courage and a fine leader in Don McIntosh, but they just could not hope to cope with the experience and power of Coach Paul Gerow's 1941 champions. Two early Albert rolled to a 13 to 0 advantage with Bob Taylor either feeding the ball, carrying it or booting the pigskin for points. However, the Stirling kids accepted the only rule of modern football, when a fighting team gangles with a heftier outfit, and used a shortlived and successful aerial attack when McIntosh fired three successive forwards for a subsequent touchdown, but the Albert "gridmen" deviated from the air, they were thankful.

TODAY PAUL GOYETTE'S Albert College seniors are champions of the senior Intercollegiate C. O. B. S. A. and all power to them. However, this newsboy would have liked to have seen players like Skipper Goyette has at his disposal, put their ability against other editions of the Central Ontario sons, as we feel Albert has a highlight senior six-man team in Ted Taylor and Zeke Ballantyne. Skipper Goyette has two potential all-stars, Taylor only having to learn to catch the ball to gain fame as an Interscholastic standout. The real strength of the Albert squad was never better displayed than the Stirling High can throw their cheers out in vain, when the only squad ever to cross the Albert goal line in 1942. Naturally the Stirling attack was crippled when at conventional 12-man football, were all a handicap to any eleven, but it was a straight case of power, ability and experience that the Albert what they deserve—"CHAMPIONS."

THE HOOPSTERS UP AT NO. 8 Initial Practice Tuesday. Seeking exhibition basketball games and would like to contact rugby teams in Kingston, Peterboro', Oshawa or intermediate points with games scheduled each meetings. The local "Flyers" have a strong intermediate squad and should draw well in other centres. In other basketball circles Mr. Short, physical director at the Y. M. C. A., has two cage loops in operation these days, a six-team house loop, and an employed boys' league in the senior section, and two juvenile squads, from the personnel of which will ultimately be selected the Intermediate entry to the Ontario Basketball Association juvenile play-downs.

IF JOHN KATAN KEEPS HIS promise to "slug it out" with Earl McCready when ever he sees him next, local rasslin' fans may be in for a little extra shenanigans at the Bluma Arena Thursday night. True enough Katan is slated to appear in the semi-finals and McCready in the main bout, but it wouldn't be the first time a semi-finalist entered the ring to cause disturbances in a main attraction. Of course McCready still has his hands full taking care of that pugnacious Montreal Polish Marquess, so worry about Katan's thoughts or actions, but it's liable to blossom into something more than appears on the surface. Blood flowed freely the night McCready wrested the British Empire crown from Katan, with Earl presenting the champ with a nice right eye and Katan wiping the claret from his mouth with some fast playful follows, these grunt and groaners, eh what?



REMEMBER WHEN PETE Henan, star backfield leader, for the Winnipeg Blue Bombers to their third successive Western Canada grid championship three years ago today? The Bombers downed Ottawa Rough Riders at his Stirling High squad in Doug Gerow's absence, and scored a couple of more willing kids possessing plenty of ambition, but nothing nothing the Stirling High men-power in the game when the bombers defeated the Ottawa Rough Riders 8-7 for the Dominion title December 11th the same year.

THIS AND THAT — ASIDE from Don McIntosh, Coach Cook had some good material to draw on his Stirling High squad in Doug Gerow's absence, and there are a couple of more willing kids possessing plenty of ambition, but nothing the Stirling High men-power in the game when the bombers defeated the Ottawa Rough Riders 8-7 for the Dominion title December 11th the same year.

LEO DUROCHER NOT YET CHOSEN TO LEAD DODGERS

Rickey Tells Baseball World Answer Will be Given Thursday

LONG CONFERENCE

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Nov. 18 —(AP)— It won't be long now until Leo Durocher, the say-nothing of the rest of the baseball world will know whether the manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers next season is to be he.

In fact, tomorrow Branch Rickey, the new Dodger president will have a definite answer for Durocher and a few thousand anxious baseball fans, as well as anyone else who might be interested.

Branch the brain and Leo the lip huddled for something like three hours today and worked out a number of problems, but the Durocher problem apparently wasn't one of them.

Durocher, finding himself mad, chief of all, non-contacted, in the art of conversation, had little to say when the conference ended, but Rickey promised he would come to a decision tomorrow.

Perhaps the most significant development to come out of yesterday's confab was in Durocher's part Durocher might be asked to return to the active list.

Admired as Player

"I used to think he was a corking good shortstop," Rickey said in discussing the conference later, "and in my judgment he still is a good player, if he would only think so. That could be a part of the question before us."

Durocher, now 37, did not play at all last year—his fourth as Dodger skipper—and not much the year before. But one Rickey admired, he declared: "sure, I can play—if I have a try."

Rickey admitted that one of the points under discussion was Leo's personality, his way of handling the sometimes rowdy Dodgers.

"I know Durocher," Rickey declared, "and that goes double. He knows me. The President continued:

"A manager, either in the Major leagues or the Minors, needs to know some fundamental things. He needs to know the game. He needs to be sound in discipline. He must be himself—that's true. He needs to be industrious on the choice of players. Another business said to have related that the baseball man was divided on the question, also, to follow the German army into designated occupied territory.

Three of the companies, he was quoted as saying, would be assigned to the Russian front and the fourth to Africa. The latter was said to be in Naples "waiting for a chance to be transferred to Africa."

Among Russian historical places said to have been looted were palace in suburban Tsarskoe Selo, including the Grand Palace of Empress Catherine. Chinese silk tapestries and gilded carved ornaments were reported stripped from walls and an ivory throne "of historic" first century in three starts.

In the second game of the double-header, Air Force defeated Canadiens 4-3.

Jerry Turner, Montagnards goalie, turned in a star performance in the opener to hold Hull to one goal in the first two periods but the Volants overwhelmed their opponents in the final frame to tally seven times.

Stan Pratt, who played for Senators last year, got one goal and assist in the action-packed third period.

Albert Lemay got two goals and an assist for Volants and Tony got an assist.

R. C. A. F. had to come from behind to take the second game. The first period was scoreless. Pumple scored for Canadiens in the second but Sgt. Jim Aitmon found their scoring punch in the final frame, with goals by Hellyer, Robins and Lloat.

CORNWALL ARMY TEAM STILL TOPS IN QUEBEC LOOP

Defeat Powerful Ottawa Commandos at Home by 8 to 4 Count

THIBEAULT STARS

Cornwall, Nov. 18.. (CP)—Cornwall Army team still on top of the Quebec Senior Hockey League last night after thumping the Ottawa Commandos in a torrid game. The win maintained Cornwall's home winning string and was the first loss of the season for the powerful Ottawa squad.

The Cornwall soldiers came back after an early deficit to build up a big lead, but they had to go all out all their power to stave off the Commando rally in the closing frame.

Sgt. Jerry Cooper had given Ottawa lead in the third minute of the opening session, Lt. Cook's College mates tied the count without a reply to hold a 6-1 lead at the end of the second. Ottawa made their bid in the third to score three times and make the count 6-4 at one stage. But Cornwall nipped the rally and in the win, another couple of markers before the final bell.

Pte. Larry Thibeault was the head man of the goal-hungry Cornwall squad, chanking in with three counters, L. Cpl. Nick Nott came through with a pair and singles went to L. Cpl. Punch Imlach, L. Cpl. Jerry Lalonde and L. Cpl. Jack Riley.

Jerry Cooper Pte. Johnny Inglis, Pte. Wilson Gamble and Pte. Billy Drouin were the Commando snipers. The game was a rough and tough bell to bell. Cornwall walked away from the Commandos in the early part of the battle and only spectacular netminder by Pte. Sugar Henry kept the score from running much higher. They made their bid on the third thirty minute. The final two Cornwall markers were from breakaways.

L. Cpl. Bas Bastien played a great game in the Cornwall cage with Pte. Jack Church and Lieut. George Richie playing brilliantly. Thibeault Knott and Mario were the pick of the front liners.

Paul Seguin was the most effective attacking Commando. Pte. Jacques Bastien, another husband game on defence, but Henry was the big man in the early stages.

INDICATION SUBMARINE WITH SABOTEURS ABOARD WAS SUNK OFF FLORIDA

New York, Nov. 18 — (AP) — An indication that the enemy submarine carrying Nazi saboteurs from France to Florida last June was bombed en route was given today at the treason trial of Anthony Cramer, German-born machanic, charged with aiding two of them.

Cramer, himself a self-confessed spy, testified that he obtained such information from Walter Thiel, one of the executed saboteurs.

HULL VOLANTS, AIR FORCE, WINS

Ottawa, Nov. 18 — (CP) — Reinforced by the addition of the Lemay brothers, Albert and Tony, Hull Volants whipped Montagnards 8-3 last night in the first game of an Ottawa senior city hockey league double-header. It was the Volants' first victory in three starts.

Nazis Organized To Loot Nations' Art Treasures

Moscow, Nov. 18 — (AP) — A Soviet information bureau communique issued Tuesday quoted a captured German officer as saying he was a member of a "Special Service Battalion" organized by Nazi Reichsleiter Joachim Von Ribbentrop for the purpose of stripping conquered countries of their historic and scientific treasures.

The information, supplied by the Moscow radio, identified the officer as Maj. Normann Foerster and indicated he was captured in the Caucasus. Foerster explained that his battalion was divided into special companies, each to follow the German army into designated occupied territory.

Three of the companies, he was quoted as saying, were assigned to the Russian front and the fourth to Africa. The latter was said to be in Naples "waiting for a chance to be transferred to Africa."

Among Russian historical places said to have been looted were palace in suburban Tsarskoe Selo, including the Grand Palace of Empress Catherine. Chinese silk tapestries and gilded carved ornaments were reported stripped from walls and an ivory throne "of historic" first century was dismantled and shipped back to Berlin.

Offers Facilities Of Hospital to Treat Son of Adolf Dunlan

Minneapolis, Nov. 18 — (AP) — Mayor Marvin L. Kline in a letter to Tommy Dunlan Roosevelt offered the facilities of the General Hospital and the Higher Kenny method of treatment of infantile paralysis to the son of Admiral Jean Darlan, political leader of French North Africa.

Darlan's son is in Algiers stricken with poliomyelitis. This is believed to be the reason why Darlan went to Algiers.

It was suggested to the President Sunday night that a gesture of good will toward the French would be the offer to send a treatment plane to Algiers to bring the son of Darlan to the United States, where he might be given treatment.

Sister Kenny said that she was her "heartiest support" to the plan.

AT THE McCARTHY

AT THE MCCARTHY etc -

They All Kissed the Bride

The big shot lady manager of a metropolitan transport company has a weakness for society wedding crashing by an apparently jilted suitor of the bride's; she is dragged into a jitterbug contest by a company driver already in the good graces of the company for not adhering to rules. The driver is fired for his efforts and then followed by the lady manager when his escapades brings romance.

These are only a few of the highlights in the rollicking comedy that first flashed on the screen in the current attraction at the McCarthy Theatre, "They All Kissed the Bride." Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas are cast in the leading roles of the feature in which directors have pulled the stops and regimentated nothing.

Crawford as the hard-boiled transport manager who hasn't her eyes above board on the continual jump whether on business bent or in social activities, is superb, while Melvyn Douglas is the fresh lance writer who has pointed the finger of suspicion against the transport company for his article on the "abuse" of drivers.

Efforts on the part of the company heads to "pay off" the writer develop into an avalanche of laughing hilarity, sequences guaranteed to keep the audience in uproar.

Mary Wickes, Allen Jenkins, Andrew Tombes, Helen Parrish and Donald Meek complete the cast given provided with gay comedy roles quite in keeping with the hilarious trend of the series.

"Submarine Raider," thrill-bit of wartime against the Nazi U-boats, assures a fine dual-feature program making perfect screen enjoyment.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Rough Riders"

A true westerner although he was born in Indiana, Buck Jones when he was less than a year old was taken to his father's 2,000-acre ranch at Red Rock, Oklahoma. He did not leave the district until, as a young man, he went on the road as featured rider and roper with a wild west show. Jones came to the Capitol Theatre next in "Forbidden Trails," the Monogram western drama in which he is featured with Tim McCoy and Raymond Hatton.

Laurel and Hardy

It's Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy who are the nitwits in khaki in Hal Roach's Century-Pix's new comedy, "Great Guns," which is due to open next as the added feature at the Capitol Theatre.

These two compadians have the Army balmy in this blitz on those which Sheila Ryan, Dick Nelson and Edmund MacDonald. Carl as two high-hatted buck privates, Laurel and Hardy mix up the army, the generals and even the setgeants — it's a comedy riot.

A colored cartoon "Flying Fever" and the second chapter of the new serial "The Perils of Nyoka" complete a great weekend bill for the entire family.

AT THE BELLE

"Cairo"

Brimming over with melody and mirth, "Cairo," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's newest musical film, starring Jeanette MacDonald, is now at the Belle Theatre screen.

Robert Young teams with the singing star for the first time in the romantic comedy poking fun at Hollywood's conception of spy capers in which Jeanette and Ethel Waters act and sing, has a fresh appeal to it.

Miss MacDonald has a made-to-order role. She plays Marcia Martin, a famous American movie star who is stranded in Europe when war breaks out. Young is a small town newspaper reporter sent abroad to cover the war. He meets Miss MacDonald in Cairo where the singer is giving a concert for British soldiers. The plot is given an amusing twist when Young begins to believe Miss MacDonald is a spy and she thinks the same about him. He is hired as her butler and the hilarious situations come thick and fast. All the time-worn devices of movie spy dramas are hauled out by Director W. S. Van Dyke II, who lets his stars lampoon them for all they are worth.

Expertly Weven Story

Expertly woven story woven into the gay, frothy story are the musical numbers sung by Miss MacDonald and Miss Waters, who plays her maid. The red-haired star sings the haunting "The Waltz Is Over" and the beautiful title song, "Cairo." Miss Waters pleases further with her renditions of "Buds Won't Bud" and "A-Woman Without a Man."

Miss MacDonald and Young are perfect in their light comedy roles while Miss Waters is a joy to watch.

The supporting cast includes Reginald Owen, Edward Ciannelli, Mona Barrie, Lionel Atwill, Grant Mitchell, Larry Nunn and Dooley Wilson.

A short fun cartoon "The Bilts Wolf" and "The Further Prophecies of Nostradamus" complete the short section of the 15th century, whose uncanny predictions will intrigue, mystify and entertain the spectator.

"Those stones would be priceless at this very moment if they could only teach you their significance, pop said. Do you know how those pebbles were made? he said, and I said, no sir.

They were made by time, pop said. Lots and lots of time. Why do you think Nature is so marvelous and gets so much done? he said, and I said, Because she has time.

Because she takes time, pop said. She's got lots of time, but most of us dont take it, thats the difference. Nature rides time peddling against each other on the seashore for hundreds and maybe thousands of years. Naturally the rest of us haven't got so much time as Nature, but we've all got enough for our own purposes. The important thing is to apply it where it will do the most good. Even Nature cant make pebbles when she has not spends time. Time and wind and rain and sun, pop said. Oh, why no, I haven't had time. I've been busy giving Benny a little instruction before he's a very important matter. I'll do it right now, he said.

Oh, never mind, I'll do it myself, pop said, and I did.

Which she did, proving your mother is the only one that always has time for everything.

Rear Admiral, Norman Scott, Killed in Action

Washington, Nov. 18 — (AP) — Rear Admiral Norman Scott of Kirkwood, Mo., 53, and Captain Howard Young, 48, of Coronada, Calif., were killed in the night naval battle in the Solomon Islands, on Nov. 13, the United States Navy Department announced today.

Scott was in command of a naval unit in the engagement and Young, holder of the Medal of Honor for heroism at Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, was Commander of Rear-Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan's flagship. The death of Callaghan was reported by the navy Wednesday in announcement that American naval forces had scored a major victory over the Japanese armada.

AIR MARSHAL IMPROVES

Montreal, Nov. 18 — (CP)—Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., is "progressing favorably," it was reported today from hospital here where he has been undergoing treatment for more than a week for an acute appendicitis.

"Some major signs of his illness persist but his discomfort is diminishing," an official statement said.

Announcement to This Effect Made by Club President

San Bernardino, Calif., Nov. 18. (AP)—Frankie Frisch will manage Pittsburgh Pirates next year, William E. Benswanger, president of the Club, said Tuesday.

The Pirates will do their Spring training here again at California and Benswanger indicated they probably would start Camp with a week in Si Gentre and complete the training in San Bernardino.

"Some of the material we have obtained since the close of the season should help us" he said, "but the only thing I can be sure of is that we will have a team."

MURDER ON THE AVENUE

By CAROLYN WELLS

CHAPTER 19

Uncle Jason's Will

"It's McCleot an affable sort!" Fleming Stone asked.

"Perhaps that isn't just the word," Herrick replied, "but it is fair enough. And if he thinks you can discover Alma's murderer, he will be more than glad to see you. I think he is pretty sure I am the villain; for he is impressed by the finding of my finger-prints, and I know he considers that circumstantial evidence."

"You don't want me to tell him how you were snared by his wiles?"

"He wouldn't believe it and if he did he'd be after me with a shotgun. Better not allude to Alma's overtures."

"I'll see you soon again; and, oh, by the way, here are a couple of letters Mr. Bliss asked me to hand you. He says he can't see you until evening."

"Thank you. Oh, I say! Here's a letter from Michigan! Do wait a minute—he may be dead!"

"Who, may?"

"Why, my old uncle—and, I say! He is dead!"

"Is it going to break you all up?"

"Not emotionally, I haven't seen him for years. He's my great uncle. And here's a copy of his will! But —what's it to me?"

Brand threw the legal looking paper aside and looked again at the envelope he came in.

"Clarence knew!" he exclaimed. "Miss knew by the postmark what this letter probably meant. He must be wild to know what it's about!"

"Remarkable man, your partner," Stone said, already deeply engrossed in the letter.

"He's all of that," Brand returned. "Well, has old Uncle Jason cut his off with or without the shilling?"

"Neither. Can you stand a splash of good news?"

"Only one thing can be good news for me—my walking papers from this place!"

"And there, my boy, I hope to give you. I supposed these old fashioned freak wills went out with side-whiskers, but your relative from Ebbitt's Corners has given us a severe splendid specimen!"

"I prophesy you won't be here when this will is probated. How much do you know about your great uncle's heirs?"

"I know the family tree. My great Uncle Jason Webb made an enormous fortune in timber, His father began the business and Uncle Jason carried on. He was one sister, Alice, who was my grandmother. She married a Brand and Lucy's daughter, that is my mother, married a Herrick. I am an only child, but Uncle Jason had a daughter, who is, I suppose his heiress. Expectantly speaking, I suppose I have played up to the old man, but he was crotchety and ill-natured and showed no desire to be friends with me. He can't say I ever asked for any financial help."

"I'll bet perhaps get it, though. Listen here:

"On far as I know, Brand Herrick, my great nephew, is my only living heir. Genevieve Wiley, is living, to her daughter's child, but my daughter, Jane, is dead, and I have no idea of the whereabouts of Genevieve, if, indeed, she is alive. My step-daughter married John Wiley. She eloped with him, and I always forbade all right or title to her home. I disowned her and I will never willingly see John Wiley.

"Now, this is my last will and testament. My nephew, Brand Herrick, lives in New York, and can be easily found. If he finds Genevieve Wiley and marries her within three months of my death, he will inherit two million of my not-so-hard-earned dollars. If he cannot find this girl he is to receive one hundred thousand dollars and the rest of the money is to be paid to the above mentioned Board of Trustees, to be used to improve Ebbitt's Corners, to change the name to Ebbittsville and to erect suitable public buildings and schools. The details of this bequest will be forthcoming if, as and when it is admitted by Brand Herrick that he cannot find Genevieve Wiley."

"Should Brand Herrick learn positively that my granddaughter is dead, he will receive one hundred thousand dollars as aforesaid. I have no interest in the fortunes of my son-in-law, John Wiley."

There are other small bequests," Stone said, watching Brand carefully. "But that is all that concerns you. I am sure you will want her's advice, and I advise you to talk first to Mr. Chadwick. But perhaps you are not ready to talk about it at all. It is a strange will, from a present-day point of view, but it was drawn many years ago, and in those Western states, then, freak wills were not uncommon. What about it?"

"I think you must realize, Mr. Stone, how bewildered I am over the matter. I am not face the condition of marrying a strange girl, for the sake of a fortune. Nor do I believe I could find her. Nor do I know that I would be allowed to marry while awaiting my trial for murder, nor do I believe any decent girl would marry me. All these conditions must be considered, but I cannot see them entering in my favor. I want to engage you to look into the business, and I want Mr. Chadwick as my legal adviser, but—what's the use?"

Stone spoke slowly. "I'm going now. I shall stop at your office and tell Bliss about this. Shall I?"

"Yes, please."

"And he and I will see you here this evening."

Clarence Bliss was in his partner's private office. He was wondering whether he could take care of Herrick's unfinished business without blunders. Papers were neatly docketed and carefully arranged; Miss Ripley could tell him much about them, but there were knotty points.

Fleming Stone, going in at the noon hour, found Bliss in a despairing mood.

"Did you know that a letter you gave me this morning to give to Herrick was from Michigan?" Stone asked.

"Yes. Is his old uncle dead? There was no black edge, but the thing had a legal look."

"It was from a lawyer. Jason Webb is dead. There are complications."

"There would be!" Bliss scowled. "Complications are what I have got too many of. But sit down, Mr. Stone and tell me all about the passing of Jason Webb. How does it affect Brand?"

Fleming Stone read the eccentric will.

"That all?" Bliss said as Stone finished.

"That's all. Now, Mr. Bliss, what are we going to do about it?"

"Somebody's got to go to Ebbitt's Corners. As Brand is not—er—footloose at present, it looks as if I should have to go."

"You're a quick thinker, sir. And I think you have come to the right conclusion. And about this office?"

"Mr. Stone, this office will have to be closed. It need not mean dissolution of firm of Herrick and Bliss, but our business must be discontinued—I hope, temporarily."

"Can you manage your important cases?"

"They won't all be disgruntled. Many will be not only decent about it all, but anxious to help. The rambunctious ones will have to be dealt with. Miss Ripley can help a lot. She is a most capable woman, with unlimited tact. Anyway, Brand must be brought out first. Don't you see trouble ahead, unless we act quickly? To be sure, we have three months to work in, but we are at the disadvantage of distance from the seat of war. For it's going to be in the village of Ebbitt's Corners has long been hoping for a bequest from Jason Webb's will. Now, they see it is only if Brand Herrick can't fulfill the absurd conditions laid down for him."

"But can he fulfill them?"

"With your detective ability and my legal knowledge don't you think we can hope for success?"

"If you go to Michigan and cope from there, and I stay here and cope, surely we must accomplish something. I call Harry now and you I would see him tonight. Then you and he can settle about closing this office. Right?"

"Right. But when I think of Brand, under this new load of responsibility—"

"Do what you can with the impressive cases, arrange with other lawyers to take over many of your individual clients, and get Miss Ripley on her way. I hope to get Herrick out of that place. But the only way he is to discover who really did do the murder, and that will take my time and attention, Brand will have to have a lawyer, and I think a good investigator you can't take carr of that, and you could not be allowed to."

"I know. Don't you think Chadwick would look after him?"

"Chadwick is McCleot's lawyer."

"I can't see how that matters. There won't be so much to do for Brand, and I fancy there's not much to keep Chadwick busy with McCleod's affairs."

"I'll be glad to have Chadwick on the job. I'll ask him today. You know he has a personal interest in Herrick."

"Yes, I know. And he knows Ebbitt's Corners, and all the folks."

"I'll see him then. So long, Bliss, you have my sympathy."

"I know, Mr. Stone. See you tonight then."

Left alone, Clarence Bliss sat at Herrick's desk and bowed his head on his arms.

He was not a weakling, but he was unaccustomed to responsibilities and the thought of closing the office was just about all he could stand. And now, to be suddenly faced with this news about Jason Webb!

It was his place to look after Brand's interests in that little two by four hamlet, and go he would. That is, of course, if Brand agreed to the plan.

He had a session with Miss Ripley and was amazed anew, to find how wisely she had lost the situation, and promised to do her part in arranging the temporary closing of the firm of Herrick and Bliss.

"But he must be got out of that hole he is in," she ejaculated.

"As confidential secretary, she had been to see Brand and had been shocked at his surroundings.

"The eternal fitness of things," she went on, "is all out of kilter if he has to stay in that! Will Mr. Chadwick get him out?"

"I hope Fleming Stone will get him out. Mr. Chadwick can't do it. (To be continued)

"Crash Will be Investigated" London, Nov. 18 — (CP Cable)— Capt. R. H. Balfour, air undersecretary, today told the House of Commons a court of inquiry will investigate the Gibraltar plane crash in which Gen. Sikorski, Polish leader, Canadian Spitfire ace, was injured and 15 persons were killed.

General Brown Approves Voluntary Organization of Non-Permanent Active Militia

"I like to think that the non-permanent active militia of Canada stands as a voluntary organization in the service of its country. It has always been that and I like to think of it in the same light today, and that no one should be forced to join it. It may come to that, but I do not know any more about it than you."

So spoke Major General B. W. Brown, D. S. O., M. C., director general of the Reserve Army to officers of the militia forces in the city and district and a representative group of business, industrial and professional men at the Armouries here Tuesday night.

General Brown was accompanied by Brigadier F. Logie Armstrong, O. B. E. officer commanding Military District No. 3, and Major Angus Bennett, Liaison officer of the Reserve Army and Militia, Dept. of National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa.

The Reserve Army head stressed the fact, that the non-permanent active militia has always been a volunteer organization.

"I know what a lot of you are thinking," General Brown said, "and I know a lot of you want to join the Reserve Army and that the Reserve Army will be adopted. I do not know that. I am only here on government policy. I merely carry it out. Compulsory service would be a last resort, I assure you, but that compulsory law is enforced it will be. There is no method of recruiting. I have no idea of what the government thinks should be done."

"The Reserve Army has a definite job to do. It is a big job. It is a great need for it and it has to be trained and efficient in order to do that job when we are called upon to do.

"Men today must realize the situation and its seriousness." General Brown declared. "There is no time to go by Christmas, as one man puts it. It may be over by Christmas but I do not know which one."

Reserve army units need intelligent men in its ranks, he said, in urging business and industrial men to get behind the units and aid them in reaching full strength. "Every man, R.C.I. is eligible should be a member of one of these units."

Promises Co-operation

General Brown promised the fullest co-operation with employers of labor from whom the Reserve Army already has had the finest support.

"If employers find that certain of their men in the Reserve Army are needed in some branches of industrial duties, satisfactory arrangements will be made. The Reserve Army will not take men to camp who are necessary to the job of production in war industry".

He concluded his address with an appeal to business and industry to see that the ranks of the reserve army have been recruited to full strength.

General Brown spoke to Reserve Army officers and civilians in the Officers' Mess of the Hastings and Prince Edward (R.H.P.). Present were Lieutenant Col. A. B. Gribble of the A.I.C., Lieut. A. E. Sward, officer commanding the 34th Field Battery; R.C.A. (M); Lieut. Col. B. G. Donnan, officer commanding the 2nd Field Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment; Major MacDonald R.C.A., Kingston and Major Bennett, R.C.A., Ottawa. Officers of the three units were introduced to the guests by the Commanding Officers of Hastings and Prince Edward, as well as the city of Belleville.

Prior to his address, General Brown saw the Argyll Light Infantry in various phases of its training. Later, the Reserve Army officers were guests of Col. P. R. Roy, D.S.O., at the "Thrasher" Club earlier in the evening.

He was accompanied by Lieut.-Col. Gribble who also spoke of the urgency and need for recruits for Reserve Army units and asked co-operation of the business men of the district in helping to fill the ranks of the various units.

Earlier in the day, General Brown and party visited companies of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Picton, Wellington, Trenton and Madoc, for which they motored thoroughout on another phase of his Dominion tour in the interests of the Reserve Army.

Record Set When 175 Employees Of Reliance Aircraft and Tool Co. Enlist En Masse in Argyll Regt.

What is believed to be a precedent in army recruiting circles was established here Tuesday night when 175 employees of the Reliance Aircraft and Tool Company joined the ranks of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) (R.P.). They will form C Company of the unit. It is not expected their officers and non-commissioned officers will ultimately be drawn from their own personnel.

In a special ceremony held at the plant the new recruits were officially welcomed into the ranks of the Argyll Light Infantry by Major-General B. W. Brown, D. S. O., director general of the Reserve Army who at present is visiting Units in Military District No. 3. The 175 signed attestation cards were formally handed to Lieut. Colonel A. B. Gribble, officer commanding the Argyll Regiment, by Mr. Morris, president and general manager of the company.

650 Employed

The Reliance Aircraft and Tool Company employs 650 war workers, 30 per cent. of whom are women and are working on day or night shifts. Mr. Morch stated that he expects a total of 300 of his male employees will be part-time soldiers within the next few months.

"This is an example to all Canadian industry," Major-General Brown recruits following the ceremony. "Considering that you are war industry, that you are doing a splendid job, your action in offering also to become part-time soldiers in the few leisure hours at your disposal, is the inspiration of the highest order. I am sure the government will do your action. You have done a grand job, sir."

With General Brown was Brigadier F. Logie Armstrong, officer commanding M.D. 2. Brigadier Armstrong stated that the same enlistment was a record this year for employers of labor will find difficulty in locating.

Official Early Visits Plant

The plant, which is the first company which was held before approximately 1,000 persons, assembled in the night shift were Col. P. H. Wills, Major Angus Mowat, Reserve Army liaison officer, Lieut.-Colonel H. Thomas, National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa, Lieut.-Colonel B. C. Donnan, Officer Commanding Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment's Second Battalion and others.

Col. Wills, in address to the employees previous to the ceremony, stated that the plant, which was proud of the gesture made by his men in the Argyll Light Infantry voluntarily offered their services as part-time soldiers, was the result of co-operation had come into force. "I am not patting you on the back because you did this," he said. "You have shown a splendid spirit to the interests of Canada."

J. A. Linzie, assistant general manager of the plant, offered the remarks at the conclusion of the ceremony, which were then applauded by the officials and personnel of the company for the visit of General Brown and his staff to the plant.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)—Industrials and base metals posted gains on Toronto exchange today.

Due to heavy action in two or three of the issues, volume soared. Gold Eagle, volume was heavier, Gold Eagle traded shade over 50,000 shares and weakened a fraction to 2 3-4. Steep Rock was active on an advance of ½ cents to 1.45 and International Nickel and Pend Oreille gained fractions.

Soft spots in the golds were Kerr-Addison, Preston, Teck Hughes, Broulan and Macassa.

Prices were a bit stronger for senior oils, banks and steels and steady for other industrials. Aluminium and Consolidated Paper were down slightly.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 18 —(AP)—Stocks had no definite direction today although a number of issues were a little better supported after Tuesday's general decline.

Price variations were fractional in most cases. Exceptions were a scattering of Aircrafts and Coppers, including modest gains near the fourth hour.

Canadian issues moved at the close in slightly-easier levels, with Hiram Walker, Distillers Seagrams and Lake Shore off fractionally. Canadian Pacific and Dome Mines held unchanged.

In improved positions a good part of the time were B. Fisher, Bethlehem, Douglas, Goodrich, United Aircraft, Boeing, American Telephone, International Nickel, Kennecott, Texaco Co., Standard Oil (NJ), Sears Roebuck, General Electric and Santa Fe. Dow Chemical slipped about 2 points and moderate declines were registered in Reduction, Westinghouse and Montgomery Ward.

Considerable Force Moves North From Lake Chad Region

Travelling Directly Across the Desert Trails in Direct Route to Tripoli

AIRDROME CAPTURED

By E. C. DANIEL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 19 (AP)—Three of the toughest armies assembled by the United Nations since start of the war converged on the Libyan-Tripoli-Benghazi triangle today in fighting contact with Axis forces while Allied planes and parachute troopers built up air power in preparation for the final drive to wipe the Germans and Italians from North Africa.

As British and United States troops squeezed the last Axis toehold from east and west, a motorized column of fighting French was reported driving up from the Lake Chad base 1,200 miles to the south to put the Germans out of fighting in France into the battle along with the British Eighth Army and Allied garrisons which have joined with the Allies.

Sweeping back outlying Axis patrols, Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson's 1st Army—the soldiers of Flanders—drove on into Tunisia from Algeria at several points in a thrust intended to trap and crush the German-Italian air-borne army reported digging in at Tunis, the capital and Bizerte, the big naval base, against pre-Allied French reinforcement.

'Christmas Seine Airfields

Leaping ahead of Anderson's ground forces, British and United States parachutists were seizing vital airfields far to the south today units of the R.A.F. and United States army air forces which were gunning their way through the Axis aerial screen.

The R.A.F. laid down a bomb barrage for the advance, while veteran battle-of-Britain squadrons escorted Axis bomber flights, and United States flying fortresses struck at their bomb-sights upon the Axis-held Biserte airfield.

From the east the British 8th army overtook the rearguard of Field Marshal Rommel's broken Africa corps south of Benghazi—well within 60 miles of El Agheila line where the Nazi commander is expected to try a new stand.

Allied Ships at Tobruk

Reuters News Agency said the Morocco radio reported that Allied supply ships, meanwhile, had arrived at unnamed Tobruk to help new force into the 8th army's Libyan drive. The broadcast did not specify whether the supplies were shipped from the west Mediterranean or came the long way around Africa and through the Suez Canal.

A Cairo communique reported a raid Tuesday night on the airdrome at Tunis, and indicated the air war had been resumed again over a front where it said a German bomber was destroyed.

Four Italian Planes Down

Reuters reports from North Africa that four Spitfires attacked a flight of six Italian Savoia torpedo planes near an Algerian port, shot down four of them and drove the others away before they could discharge their torpedoes against an Allied convoy.

Although the Allied communique did not identify the points at which columns had driven into Tunisia, information here suggested that these followed the main road and rail routes from the Algerian airport of Bone along the coast thru' Tebarca, Souk Ahras and Tebessa along a rail line from Tebessa, Algeria, toward Tunis; and also further south, along a trail which runs from Gafsa to Kasserine where better roads lead on to Sfax and the coastal rail line to Tunis.

Rail Line Destroyed

Progress of these drives was not disclosed, but pro-Allied French forces were reported making a fighting withdrawal to join the oncoming British and American forces, while their compatriots from Algeria advanced to points closer to Gen. Anderson's army.

Observers said the advance from Lake Chad might use a striking base the Fezzan Oasis, which is 900 miles south of Bengasi and which the Fighting French seized from an Italian garrison eighteen months ago.

Forces in the Chad region were reported here to be of considerable number, with equipment and support by South African and R.A.F. squadrons.

DEFEATIST JUNTA SAID TO AIM AT ISOLATING HITLER

Foreign Source Says German Aristocratic Military Group Realizes Hitler Cannot Win War

ROMMEL'S DEFEAT

By ROBERT BUNNELLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 19.—Germany's foreign diplomatic source, who cannot be further identified, said today that an important Junta of aristocratic German military leaders, convinced Hitler cannot win the war, has begun to "isolate" the Fuehrer in hope of establishing themselves favorably with the Allies in the event of a stalemate, peace or victory.

The foreign diplomatic source, who said he believed his information is reliable, declared that the Junta group is included Field Marshal General Walther Von Brauchitsch, recently dismissed as army commander-in-chief last winter after command disputes with Hitler over campaign against Moscow; Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock, who was ousted in the midst of the drive against Stalingrad this fall, and their followers. Both these generals are reported to have disagreed with Hitler's strategy.

Also included in the Junta, it was reported, are Gen. Franz Halder, on the Von Bock wanted to withdraw the Southeastern German army miles before the Russian winter hit was too late this fall Gen. Fritz Erich Von Manstein, Field Marshal Gerd Karl Rudolf Gerd Von Rundstedt and Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz.

Oppose Nazification

Advices from usually reliable quarters inside Germany and occupied countries, the informant said, indicated that the Prussian military were behind the formation of the defeatist Junta. — Increasing dissatisfaction with Hitler's intuitive and erratic strategy, and his steady Nazification of the army and high command.

Some members of the Junta were said to be "personally provoked" Hitler's tre so as to be dismissed or retired to private life, disapproved liability in order to be able to blame him directly for the disastrous last winter of the war.

They were said also to hold him responsible for the failure of the Marshal Erwin Rommel in Africa on the ground that it might have been averted if Hitler had given Rommel the extra supplies and reinforcements he asked for.

The informant said the military group was betting on these alternatives:

1. In case a stalemate or peace by the Allies, they would negotiate with Allied blessings and perhaps establish another government, possibly monarchistic.

2. In case of outright German defeat they will be in a position by isolation of Hitler to ask the Allied to accept the lumber class as the nucleus of a new government.

TURIN, ITALY BLASTED BY RAF IN HUGE RAID

British Bombers Cross English Channel In Continuous Stream For 70 Minutes

RAID WITHOUT LOSS

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—Britain's heavy four - motored bombers streaked across the Alps last night and delivered a new heavy blow at Italy, choosing the big Fiat works at Turin for their chief target, the Air Ministry announced today.

With clear skies to aid them, the R.A.F. bombers accomplished "good results" on this, the fifth big raid on Italy this month, without the loss of one plane, the announcement stated.

Fast night aircraft of the bomber command attacked the Fiat works and other targets in Turin. The sky over northern Italy was clear and the crews report good results. None of our aircraft is missing," the communique said.

The Italian high command reported "considerable damage to civilian property, several fires in Turin, 24 dead and 53 wounded. The communique made no claim of shooting down any of the raiders. It said the fires were quickly extinguished.

Trip Uneventful

Five members of the R. C. A. F. serving with the R. A. F. reported that Turin this was uneventful and that their first view was starting when they arrived at the target.

Pilot Officer Ian Officer Don Kent of Radisson, Sask.; Sgt. A. F. Turner of (128 16th Ave.) Calgary; Flt. Sgt. Herb Ewing of Donald, Alta.; Flt. Sgt. Bill Gardiner of Sydney Mines, N. S., and Flt. Sgt. Ron Duke of Edmunston, N. B.

Kent said the trip, his 141st, was the best he had ever made.

Duke spotted a Nazi nightfighter but was unable to get a shot at him "but he made no attempt to attack us."

Gardiner said the flak was not heavy.

Turin is an airplane, motor car and machine producing city on the Po River, 75 miles west of Industry in Italy. It was raided four times in 1940 and twice in succession, Oct. 22 and 23.

The Royal Arsenal, the Fiat engine factories and a branch of the Caproni works are among military targets in Turin, which have been attacked 20 times during the war.

The raid by home-based British bombers entailed another 1,500-mile round trip and low crossings of the Alps.

Of the four previous raids in November, the largest was Genoa, northern Italian naval base and industrial center, on the 9th. Its part in supplying the Axis forces in the French North African campaign.

Even before announcement of the latest raid, Air Ministry sources in Geneva and Lausanne, Switzerland, reported the R.A.F. was abroad, Swiss anti-aircraft guns were in action.

Southeast coast observers reported heavy bombers had crossed the English channel there in a steady procession for 70 minutes last night.

Returned Laborer Tells of Privations, Humiliation Suffered in Hun Plants

London, Nov. 19 (CP) — Privation, humiliation, threats and thefts are what returned laborers from Nazi workers who agree to slave in war industries in Germany, "La Marseillaise," French weekly published in London, declared today in a dispatch written by a Portuguese labourer.

Resident of France since 1929, the Portuguese returned to his native country in 1940 to spend a 3-month contract as a mechanic in a Reich plant. He accepted the contract, he said, "to eat and see things."

Employment officials in Paris told him the trip to Germany would be made in comfortable railway coaches and that it would not be necessary to bring food for the trip, however, was made in decrepit wooden coaches and the only food issued during the entire trip was a slice of bologna, a piece of black bread and a bowl of soup.

Robbed by German Customs

Waylaid by comrades of looting by soldiers during customs at the border, robbed on the train carrying them to Germany, stripped of personal belongings, Nazi officials ordered these transferred to the baggage car and to most passengers later complained they had been robbed of some of their property.

Among those awaiting the New Yorkers at Berlin were "frenzied-faced Frenchmen" who had hopes of exchanging articles for food that they wanted to amass the 1,500 francs asked by "smugglers" who promised to bring them to France before the end of their contract.

Accident Cause of Death Of FO. George Pepper, D.F.C.

London, Nov. 19 —(CP Cable)— "Pepper and Salt," the gallant nightfighter team of Flying Officer George T. Pepper of Belleville, Ont., and Pilot Officer J. H. Tyson, his English observer, have been killed in a flying accident while on active service, the Air Ministry announced today.

(PO. Pepper's death was disclosed by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Pepper, at Belleville yesterday. The fact that his constant companion died with him in the accident, Nov. 17 became known today after next of kin had been notified.)

The pair were well known "Pepper and Salt" throughout the R.A.F. which knew them as one of the best nightfighter teams in Britain. Both were decorated, Pepper holding the Distinguished Flying Cross and Toone the Distinguished Flying Medal, won before he received his officer's commission. Their citation said they showed "perfect teamwork and initiative."

OBSTRUCTIONISM GIVEN AS CAUSE FOR RESIGNATION

Elliott M. Little, Director of Selective Service, Leaves Post

STATEMENT GIVEN

Ottawa, Nov. 19—(CP)—Resignation of Elliott M. Little, Director of National Selective Service, a day faced Labor Minister Mitchell with the task of finding a successor for a position in which Mr. Little said he experienced "friction and obstruction" resulting in "virtual paralysis" of the organization he headed.

In a 700-word letter dated Monday which he made public last night Mr. Little voiced blunt criticism of the government, of Mr. Mitchell and of the War Services Department. Shortly afterwards Mr. Mitchell issued a brief statement saying Mr. Little's resignation had been accepted, adding: "Appointment will be made public his letter of reply to Mr. Little, written yesterday.

Mr. Mitchell's statement said he felt the Selective Service director left his post "mainly due to certain misconceptions on his own part and that his relations with Mr. Little had been most cordial." In his letter, Mr. Mitchell said he had done everything in his power to "give support Mr. Little's efforts."

Mr. Little in his letter, which he termed "frank," made detailed complaints which he said had forced him to resignation, among them:

Sixty-Six Italian Divisions Are So Far Destroyed

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—Sixty-six Italian divisions, totalling more than 594,000 men, have been destroyed in Africa and Albania since Mussolini entered the war, a military communique said today.

He explained, that a division which by the Italian army averages about 9,000 men, is considered destroyed in a military sense when it is so severely mauled it must be regrouped or reformed.

Some of Italy's 39 white and 27 native African divisions listed as destroyed were completely wiped out.

The commentator grouped Italy's losses as follows:

Albanian campaign—11 metropolitan divisions.

East African campaign (Britea, Ethiopia, Somaliland)—5 metropolitan and 25 native African divisions.

North African campaigns — 16 metropolitan and two native African divisions.

Italian losses in Russia were not calculated, he said, but reported certain Italian divisions are operating there.

RAF Bombs Burst On Tunis Runways

London, Nov. 19 (CP) — Reuters News Agency reported from Cairo today that R.A.F. fighters made a low attack yesterday on the Axis-held Tunis airdrome despite difficult flying conditions. Bombs were said to have burst across runways and among hangar buildings, causing fires.

RUSSIANS TAKE INITIATIVE ON TWO WIDE FRONTS

Soviet Army Extends Its Job of Bleeding and Blocking Nazis

HEAVY NAZI LOSSES

Moscow, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Extending their job of bleeding and blocking the German armies, the Russians have taken the initiative in Stalingrad and in the Caucasus, today's battle reports showed.

The Red Army communique reported no major changes anywhere but said that during the night "our troops launched active operations and captured several enemy fortifications" in southern Stalingrad.

The Red Army unit also was credited with a fighting reconnaissance northwest of the city in which enemy trenches were broken into, 40 Germans killed and others captured.

In a factory area of the Volga stronghold, wrapped for two days in fog, the Germans returned in force Wednesday but the Nazi drive were driven back with 200 killed, latest reports said.

Soviet troops also were reported in active operations which scored advances northeast of Tuapse along the Black Sea coast in the Caucasus. A counter while 300 of the enemy were said to have been killed in a battle-happy engaged in infantry attack southeast of Nalchik in the mid-Caucasus.

The defenders also struck out in the factory area at Stalingrad yes-

'Be As Careful Of Information As of Loaded Gun'

Hamilton, Nov. 19 (CP)—"People of this country, such of us, must learn to be as careful of information as we would be in the handling of a loaded weapon," declared Hon. C. W. G. Gibson, Minister of National Revenue, in an address before a service club (Rotary) here today.

Gibson warned of the danger of circulating untrue and unfounded reports and "spreading rumors" where vicious lies had emanated from mischief-makers with sound war effort.

Rumors, he said, could be classified in two groups. "deliberate" and "spontaneous." Both were damaging. "It is not enough to refrain from spreading rumors; if possible, they should be brought into the light and refuted," urged Col. Gibson.

DICTATORIAL POWERS GIVEN PIERRE LAVAL

Holds Powers of Life And Death Over People of France Backed by Nazis

NAMED BY PETAIN

London, Nov. 19. (CP)—Backed by German troops, Pierre Laval held powers of life and death over the people of unhappy France today through the Vichy government's latest gesture toward the Nazi conquerors.

It was disclosed last night that Marshal Henri Petain, Vichy Cabinet meeting designated the swart little Germanophile his heir apparent as chief of state and gave him powers to write his own laws and decrees.

The German-controlled Paris radio said Laval would transfer the government to Paris. The announcement quoted a statement by Marcel Deat, collaborationist publisher as saying:

"Vichy has become a symbol of all that is reactionary. The government must be stripped of the barely-camouflaged De Gaullism which reigned in Vichy two years."

British political observers were quick to see extended powers for Laval—whose fortunes and life are guaranteed by Germany's belief in an ultimate Axis triumph—were a "logical development." They said it showed definitely that Petain has "confidence in the hands of the Germans and they put La-val in".

In the Vichy announcement, the 86-year-old Marshal praised Laval for "unselfish and forceful" work, explained that the Chief of Government had been granted given extended powers.

Much Coal and Water Required by Engines

Winnipeg, Man., November 19 — Coal and water are essentials for transcontinental trains some of the long runs operated by the Canadian National Railways, Vice-President Donald Gordon told the Winnipeg Rotary club today.

Gordon was in charge of the establishment of the tender. From Winnipeg to Jasper, 764 miles, one tender has hauled the "Continental Limited" the transcontinental express operating daily between Vancouver and Montreal. During the journey coal and water are taken at twelve points. The eighteen engines, all varients of the 6400 class, used in this service are fitted with Winnipeg with from 615 to 19 tons of coal and 12,000 gallons of water. Gordon said defenders also struck out in the factory area at Stalingrad yes-

FLEEING AXIS

Men of Armored Brigade Save Ship After Collision by Heroic Work

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent
With Canadians in England, Nov. 18 — (CP Cable) — The slogan and bywords of Canadian armored men of the Canadian 3rd Armored Brigade are "Steady does it" and "Keep calm and lifeboat."

These were the words of the Officer Commanding his ship Lance Corporals E. P. Hogan of Nelson, B.C., and Johnston of Mallardville, B.C. with troopers J. M. Ewing of Medicine Hat, Alta., and J. F. Cook of Ste. Ste. Marie, all members of headquarters squadron of the third armored brigade, landed at Bridgeport, others of this squadron, five from Regina, eight recruited at Edmonton 27 company of the forestry corps slaved like niggers on the decks, cutting lumber and hauling it down the narrow corridors to the engine room.

For those in the chain locker there was always danger the bulkhead would give way and they would be drowned. In that event, they ship probably would have sunk. They had to work on a pile of chains and cables and foul air and while the sea was fairly calm the ship was pitching heavily on account of her damaged bow.

Royal Air Force Takes Heavy Toll Of Axis Planes

8,000-Ton Enemy Tanker Fired By Direct Hits of Naval Aircraft

AIRDROMES BOMBED

By (STEPHEN BARBER)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cairo, Nov. 19 (AP) — Vanguards of Britain's 8th. Army have reached a point about 30 miles south of Benghazi and 15 miles from the eastern shore of the Gulf of Sirte, overlooking the main coastal road to between Benghazi and Agedabia, it was disclosed today.

These forces apparently were the southern wing of the British pursuers of Marshal Rommel's broken army. The communique said they had made contact with the enemy south of Bengasi yesterday while Allied troops advanced more east than Libyan port.

The advance placed the British van in the region of Antelat, close to the highwater mark of the first westward drive across Libya, and indicated that at least part of the 8th. Army had by-passed Bengasi and was threatening the only avenue of land escape for any holdout garrison Rommel might leave in the port.

Several Fires Seen

When heavy bombers raided Benghazi at dusk yesterday several fires were seen in the target area, rising as high as the Axis was beginning demolitions of the last goods harbor left to it east of Tripoli.

At the harbor mouth two burning wrecks lay exposed at low tide. They looked to the fliers as if Rommel might be trying to block the channel.

Other Allied air operations included a successful attack on the airdrome at Tunis where fires and explosions were started among hangars and runways.

The height of the main Allied air effort, however, was against enemy transport planes flying south to reinforce and supply the El Agheila region where Rommel may try to make a last stand. The communique commands a ecstatic bottleneck between the Gulf of Sirte and salt marshes 400 miles east of Tripoli.

Thirty-six transport planes were shot down by Allied fighters, three others were destroyed on the ground and at least another 20 transport-type planes were damaged on the ground.

Allied fighters also hounded road and seaborne traffic at the head of the Gulf of Sirte, causing considerable damage, while Axis air forces made only feeble resistance.

W. P. B. ORDERS REDUCTION IN STORAGE BUTTER

Stocks Must be Reduced 22 P. C. and Amount Held November 1st.

NO RATIONING

Ottawa, Nov. 19 — (CP) — The Prices Board today ordered that all stocks of butter held in storage must be reduced by the end of the month by 25 per cent from stocks held at the Nov. 1 level and at the same time foods administrator J. G. Taggart said there would be no consumer rationing of butter during the current season of low production.

The order planned to meet what the board described as current but "spotty" production shortages, will bite on the market within the month about 11,000,000 pounds of butter — or about half a normal month's consumption.

Need Less Consumption

Mr. Taggart said Canadians need curtail their current consumption of butter by only one ounce per person per week to meet a temporary shortage during the period of "deficiency" production — November to April.

"The situation simply does not call for such a difficult, costly and complicated operation as coupon rationing," he added.

"There are about half a million sources or potential sources of butter supply in Canada. In fact, every farmer who milks a cow is a potential supplier — and to apply coupon rationing to such circumstances would entail tremendous operation and great inconvenience, not alone to producers and potential suppliers but to consumers as well.

TOLL MIRACULOUSLY LIGHT

London, Nov. 19 — (CP) — The Gulf of Mexico and Caribbean British Honduras Nov. 8 is not likely to exceed 24 and injuries were "miraculously light," said a report to the Colonial office issued today.

All casualties were among natives, the report said. On islets off the Yucatan peninsula, coast, 90 per cent of the houses and 80 per cent of the coconut palms were destroyed. Banana and cacao beds of the area were lost or damaged.

AMERICAN HUNTERS OBTAIN TWO DEER

Despite gasoline rationing, rubber restrictions and other impediments toward free tourist travel, there were at least two hunting cars who came to Ontario for their annual visit waiting in the line-up during the deer hunting season. This fact was established Wednesday afternoon when a large sedan bearing New York licence plates was observed with two fine deer strapped to the fenders.

Evidence of the hunter's marksmanship was further attested to that both animals were felled with single clean shots, one through the shoulders and the other in the neck. No deer hunting licenses to Americans were issued at the local office according to Mr. Gebhardt Frisch, so this particular Americans must have secured his licence at his port of entry into Ontario.

WINNER OF PIG DONATES AMOUNT TO WAR FUND

The British War Victims' Fund is still rolling merrily along as the result of a draw for a dressed pig at the Wheels Theatre on Wednesday evening. Jack Major, Albert Front Street, local plumber was the lucky ticket holder and promptly turned around and sold the pig back to the donors for $25, which was added to the fund. Jack Clark and Charles Hepworth donated the pig and sold tickets for the draw, while the generosity of Mr. Holley considerably added to the amount turned over to the fund.

EPIDEMIC OF BIKE THEFTS SOLVED

City police are of the opinion they have in the net the whole wheel epidemic of bicycle stealing that has caused considerable annoyance to all concerned, Wednesday afternoon Ronald Waite, 18 North Front st., apprehended a eight-year-old lad riding his bicycle, after stealing it from Front St., Waite corrected the bike thief to the police station where he was turned over to authorities. Upon questioning the juvenile culprit openly admitted he had been responsible for the taking of at least a dozen bicycles from which he used for joyriding and then abandoned. The lad's parents were informed of the incidents and warned to keep the child under strict surveillance or he would be placed in an institution.

YOUNG CHILD RETURNED TO HOME

Wandering away from his home without the knowledge of his parents, five-year-old John Smith, Colborne St., was found by police on Wednesday Ave. early Wednesday evening. Kindly police officers responded to a call by Hillcrest Ave. resident and returned the little fellow safely to his home.

GARAGE OPERATORS HOLD MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Hamilton and Prince Edward Branch of the Garage Operators' Association was held in the Orange Church hall at Shannonville on Wednesday with approximately 40 members from the district present. Members of the Belleville and district unit catered to the meeting supplying the members a chicken dinner.

President Kenneth Vivian occupied the chair for the brief business meeting. Owing to the recent meeting of the association provincial council in Belleville there was little business to discuss but a few of the points brought up at the council were discussed, especially the early closing of service garages. Leo Biggs acted as pianist during a period of community singing at which Tom Lynch and "Toots" Holway acted as song leaders.

Women Marksmen Enjoy Evening On the Ranges

Crack mark shots of the city had better look to their laurels. Every Tuesday evening, zooming up in the form of the female of the species, what the fairer lady they are doing a fine job.

Last night at the Armories, members of the Belleville company of the Canadian Women's Service Force had, their first experience of rifle shooting in the Armories rifle ranges.

Major Maloney, officer commanding, Captain Hayden, and Lieutenant Florence Walden took the time with the rifle and with the other ranks of the units and Avgvl Ligas Infantry Instructors, Sergeant Majors Don Ridley and Walter Harden were lead in the art of rifle shooting shown at the initial "shoot."

Several bulls-eyes were scored by the lady snipers, and the performance as a whole reflected credit on the "shooting eyes" of the fair soldiers of the city.

Kiwanis Club To Hold Bingo

The Kiwanis Club is preparing for its annual Chicken Bingo, which will be held this year in the Deacon Shier Company Store on Front Street on Friday and Saturday nights of this week. The auxiliare committee of the club of which Jim Cowan is chairman and a number of the girls will assist and a number of fine birds will go to the winners of the bingo games. Arrangement has been one of the most active projects of the club this year with the exception of the war effort. The relationship between wives and civil dwellers has been greatly strengthened by the activity of the Kiwanis Club.

In the spring 2,500 chicks were distributed to ten schools in Hastings and Prince Edward County, each of the children in each school receiving 25 chicks also a brooder house and a quantity of chick mash. The chickens were raised by the children and each child was given the pounds of poultry. Also the birds were collected. The remainder has been prepared for the bingo, and the money obtained from this will be used to finance further other projects of the club. The agriculture committee has worked very hard all during the season, inspecting the birds at various times and instructing the children on the care of their poultry.

At the luncheon on Tuesday, Kiwanian James Cowan reported on the year's activities of the committee and asked for assistance in putting the bingo over. The meeting also heard a comprehensive statement of the finances of the club and the use being made of the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street.

Development of Central Conservative Steering Committee To Be Discussed

Ottawa, Nov. 13—(CP)—Development of a central conservative steering committee to bring closer liaison between the rank and file of the party and elected members of the House of Commons probably will be discussed at the National Conservative Advisory Council meeting Dec. 9, 10 and 11, it was learned today.

The scope of this continuing executive body, and its relationship with conservative organizations, would be decided by the convention.

The proposal will probably be considered by the preconvention committee on party organization meeting in Winnipeg on Dec. 7 under chairmanship of Gordon Graydon conservative member of parliament for Peel. This committee, reviewing the relationship between various party organizations, Dominion and provincial, young people's and women's, may consider what representation on the executive group would be provided by provincial associations and who should be called as ex-officio members.

The ex-officio members probably would include conservative members of the senate, house of commons and provincial cabinets. The convention would also have to decide on the relationship of the Young Conservative group to the Dominion Conservative Association.

Never Party Organization

Mr. Graydon's committee of about 30 members also will study "all aspects of party organization, the relations of Dominion and provincial organizations and the uniformity of provincial associations' constitutions," a party spokesman said.

Although there is no nation-wide conservative women's association at present, prominent conservatives said it is probable that such an organization will be proposed at the convention, and its establishment will be reviewed by the party organization group.

The organization of the Young Conservatives of Canada, now active on a few university campuses and the spheres of authority of existing and proposed groups also will be examined.

Blackout Test at Peterborough Meets With Complete Success

Wednesday evening's test blackout in the city of Peterborough for the second time successfully met with the exception of a few industrial plants and a number of stores, which secured special permit to continue operation, not a light was visible. Civilians and officials of the city alike co-operated in every manner in making the test a success.

Members of the local committee to view the blackout were Mr. Seldon were Jack Hodgson, Controller Hamilton, Darrell Servis, and Mr. Horace Wright, who has taken an active interest in local civilian defence work. Mr. Wright and Mr. Hodgson were stationed at the central control office during the blackout and assisted in the giving and receiving of orders to and from the various air raid wardens.

The defence committee arranged for a surprise flight of a specially built shack near the river bank to test the efficiency of the fighting force and the men came through with flying colours. Decontamination of gas victims was also tested and with the exception of a few industrial plants and a number of stores, which secured special permit to continue operation, not a light was visible. Civilians and officials of the city alike co-operated in every manner in making the test a success.

The test blackout along the same program as that staged in Peterboro is being carried out in this city as soon as the organization is complete, according to Mr. Seldon.

Obituary

MRS. CATHERINE MEAGHER (Special to The Ontario)

Mrs. Catherine Meagher, widow of James Meagher, died after a brief illness at the home of her son, Mr. Denis Meagher, at Read, on Wednesday, Nov. 12th.

The late Mrs. Meagher had reached an advanced age, being in her 94th year. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Denis Hanley and was born at Read where all her life was passed. Possessing many fine traits of character, she held a high place in the regard of her many friends. Triumphant her long and useful life she was highly esteemed, respected and beloved. Her religion Mrs. Meagher was a devout member of St. Charles' Church at Read and when age and health permitted she took an active part in the work of the parish.

Surviving her are three daughters, Rev. Mother Mary Geraldine, Troy, N.Y.; Rev. Mother St. James of Glen Falls, N.Y., and Mrs. Agnes Shannon, Plainfield; three sons, Mr. William J. Meagher, Toronto; Rev. J. J. Meagher, Bloomfield and Mr. Denis Meagher, Read.

Another daughter, Rev. Sister Mary Ines, died some time ago.

Funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE MRS. RICHARD SPRY (Cordova Mines)

The funeral of Mrs. Richard Spry, late residence, Cordova Mines, Ontario, took place Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 12th, from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street. A brief service was conducted in the chapel by the Rev. R. B. Sumner of the Tabernacle United Church, after which the funeral cortege proceeded to the United Church in Marmora, where service was conducted by the Rev. Fletcher.

Interment took place in Marmora Cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Daniel Shannon, William Lynn, Nathan Mumby, Thomas Warren, Julius Bedore and Joseph Scott.

Police Allege Roofing Nails Placed on Roads

Provincial Police were called to the vicinity of Glen north of Stirling, on Wednesday where residents were complaining that roofing nails had been placed on a number of roads resulting in the puncturing of motor vehicle tires.

Traffic Officer J. H. Hatch investigated and recovered five roofing nails that had been removed from one tire. Other similar incidents of wilful damage to tires have been reported. Subsequent investigations resulted in the officer apprehending Earl McMullen, R.R. No. 3 Harold, who will be charged, the officer revealed today. Charges will be laid when the case is not stated, but will be preferred through the office of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

POLICE BLOTTER

Sneak thieves entered the kitchen at the Quinte Cafe, Bridge St. and stole two bottles of wine some time late Wednesday. Entrance was gained by breaking a screen door.

Ernest S. Woodcock, 15 Pinnacle St., reported he had run over a dog and killed it with his auto-mobile. The accident occurred at the intersection of St. Paul and Dundas St. Wednesday evening when the dog ran beneath the wheels of Mr. Woodcock's car.

Gilbert Simmons, 13 Bowell St., reported his 1937 Chevrolet coach, bearing Ontario licence number 827-M-8, stolen from in front of the Stewart Warner estimate plant Wednesday afternoon. Police recovered the car shortly after learning vehicle before learning that the motor car had been seized and was impounded.

MEN OF ARMORED

Thought They Were Torpedoed

A. Brigade Headquarters Lehmann, an intelligence clerk, told this story:—

"The general alarm woke me about 11 p.m. while sleeping deep in the ship's hold. I was just trying to pull on my shoes when a real shout went through the ship. We thought we'd been torpedoed.

"Practically everyone thought we had been torpedoed. Men yelled and shouted excitedly 'we're torpedoed.' There was a general movement to get the emergency stairs towards the deck and when the squadron leader, Lieut. the C.O. told us to go back to quarters, adding 'don't worry, it's only a case of hilocaus.' So that is a kind of slogan for our squadron.

"Back at quarters I got properly dressed and then got into my battle dress, thinking that certainly subs were after us. The ship's Doctor (Lieut. Carperiser) inspected the hold for damage and said there was no danger of sinking but we seemed unable to believe him.

"The Black Watch went off then and we went cold the forward deck, where it was dark. We heavy unit cleared the moon. We sat around on the deck some with batches, and didn't know what was going to happen. The casualties with a couple of merchant seamen carrying timbers were brought aboard. That's the bulkhead of Hogan, Godin and myself volunteered.

FLEEING AXIS ARMY

Aerial operations over Libya, another raid upon the airdrome of Tunis in co-operation with the eastbound Allied army of Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson and destruction of a German convoy of seventy aircraft escorted by a dozen Axis planes yesterday, also were announced. Allied losses were six.

Tripoli radio broadcast reported the arrival of Allied supply ships at Tripoli, and presumably also from Egypt and indicated that the Royal Air Force bombers attacked the retreating Axis army.

"An 8,000-ton tanker sailing with a load of fuel oil for Tripolitania on the night of November 17-18 was attacked and damaged by aircraft," the communique said. "Two direct hits amidships were scored which rendered the vessel unmanageable and reported to be burning furiously.

Again the Allied bombers attacked the Tunis airdrome and they were reported to have caused explosions and fires at that base for German-Italian infiltration of Tunisia.

Meanwhile, Imperial Headquarters announced:

"Seven German transport aircraft have been destroyed on the ground and eighteen damaged in the Benghasi grounds in the Benghasi area," it was said.

The action was coupled with a heavy bombing attack at dusk yesterday which started large fires in the Benghasi docks area. Two ships were reported damaged in the harbor entrance.

East of Benghasi, a Heinkel and Junkers 88 were declared destroyed in a raid on the Barce Airdrome, 70 miles east of Benghasi the previous day.

Enemy shipping and aerial activity was dismissed as on a small scale. Wednesday, however, the communique announced that "a German bomber was destroyed over Sicily." Earlier, Rome had reported enlistment or flight in the Tunisian-Libyan theatre.

LARGE SCALE ARMY MANOEUVRES

As a climax to the largest army manoeuvres ever held by the Canadian troops of the Atlantic Command, the force defending an industrial area, outflanks the enemy (upper photo) by crossing a river in collapsible reconnaissance boats during a dawn attack. A wave of these boats can be carried in a truck. They hold seven to nine men with weapons. Three infantry weapons, (left to right); the 3inch, the Lee Enfield rifle and the mortar are shown in the lower picture of troops about to make a landing during the manoeuvres somewhere in Nova Scotia. —(Canadian Army Photos).

1,000 H.P. Added To Electrical Supply of City

With the completion of the expansion work at the Belleville substation, electrical power in the city will be served by an additional 1,000 horsepower, it was announced by Manager O. H. Scott at Tuesday afternoon's meeting of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

Total horsepower now available to Belleville hydro users will be 8,000 horsepower and the increase will considerably relieve the power shortage felt in the city through the former inability of sub-station transformers to handle additional loads. Transformer equipment at sub-station was working at near or over capacity for the past several months, it was stated by Mr. Scott.

The work of increasing the station capacity was ordered last July, and was started on October 8th, and completed with only one or two short Sunday stoppages of power when switching was necessary.

Issues Statement

Chairman George Reid made a statement to the commission in reference to the authority of the commission to set water rates and pointed out that the tax payers in Belleville had never been called upon to contribute one cent toward the deficiency debt of the Waterworks department.

"Belleville water users have paid the entire interest charges and principal on the debt" stated Mr. Reid. "In addition the city has been given all the power used by the various departments without charge and a substantial grant has been made each year from the waterworks funds".

Says Rebates Common Practice

Complementary to the statement in reference to the authority of the commission to set water rates in the city Mr. Reid submitted to the commissioners' reports of waterworks departments in other centres in Ontario showing that water rebates of from one or two months water service free of charge, was common practice.

Mr. Reid showed that in London, Ont., water customers hac been allowed free water for a period of two months in 1941, this amounting to $31,266, and that Woodstock had lowered their rates for 1942 effecting a reduction of $11,000 in rates.

Brockville, Perth, Kitchener had given rebates of two or three months free water, while the same practice had been authorized in Preston, St. Thomas and Galt, both for 1941 and for 1942.

Graveyard of Rommel's Hope To Conquer North Africa Terrible Sight to See

(By DON WHITEHEAD)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

En Route to the Western Desert Front, Libya, Nov. 19 (AP) — The graveyard of Rommel's hopes to conquer North Africa is a terrible sight to see. Even this scene of death and destruction on the desert, however, is not as awesome as that of Britain's victorious 8th Army giving chase to the retreating enemy who is not many miles ahead.

The roads to Poland, Belgium, France and Greece must have looked like those I saw today—except that this time it was the Germans who were on the run.

The Italian radio said Wednesday that Axis armies in North Africa were "advancing" to new positions. It was not funny, it was a rather pathetic thing to hear after seeing the tremendous number of British troops, tanks, guns and supplies moving up to the front in a line unbroken for miles and miles.

Looks Like Long Snake

Transports moving along the coast road looked like a great brown snake writhing across the desert floor through the littered wreckage of twisted, burned enemy tanks, planes and trucks. As far as I could see dust swirled and billowed over the army on the move.

The sight made you feel warm inside with the knowledge that this time the Allies were going for the knockout and that there was stuff going up to do the job.

I came into the desert looking for the advance R.A.F. unit to which I am to report. But as yet, I am unable to catch up with it. It is always just ahead. Planes move into airdromes right behind the enemy withdrawal. That is how fast the advance is going right now.

Had Only Vague Idea

I left Cairo with only a vague idea of where I was headed. In fact, no one could say definitely where the advance units were. They had moved since the last reports.

The plane that brought me up was a Blenheim with a glass-enclosed front and so I had a grandstand seat over the battle area where Rommel's defence was broken. The pilot was lean, lanky R.A.F. Flight Sergeant Peter Bartlett, of Nottingham, Eng., a flying fool if I ever rode with one. I am glad he is on our side.

We piled roll, typewriter and duffle bag into the plane and then started in a carton of canned beer and groceries.

"It is a good idea to take some food along," I was told, "because we are moving fast and sometimes even battle rations may be slim. Take beer because the Germans have cried the wells."

Canned Goods Come High

This is expensive because canned goods come high in this country with pork and beans at 40 cents a can, chocolate bars at 40 cents each, soup 36 cents and beer at 40 cents.

I climbed into the nose of the ship and the wife-beater kid headed across the green-checked fields of the Nile Valley toward the brown desert sand dunes. The desert floor is criss-crossed with tracks of trucks and tanks in a crazy-quilt pattern.

We were flying about an hour when Pete turned the nose of the Blenheim down.

I thought we were going to flop into the sand. I looked back to see if anything was wrong. Pete grinned. Then he levelled off and skimmed over the desert in a ride I will remember as long as I live.

MORE RADICAL CONSERVATIVE POLICY FORESEEN

Prominent Conservative Sees Possible Platform Placing Party Between Liberals and C.C.F.

RESOLUTIONS STUDIED

Ottawa, Nov. 18 — (CP) — A prominent Conservative Tuesday voiced the belief that his party may emerge from the national convention at Winnipeg Dec. 9, 10 and 11 with a much more radical policy than that which it has previously followed.

He said the convention's deliberations might result in the formulation of a platform which will place the party "somewhere between the present Liberal government in Ottawa and the C. C. F." and that his views were based upon the resolutions regarding future policy now being received from Conservative organizations throughout Canada.

A party spokesman said the resolutions show that the official report of the Port Hope, Ont., Conservative Laymen's Conference, held in September, has been carefully studied by constituency and other groups.

"It is very clear the demand is for a progressive policy," he said.

Measures now before the pre-convention resolutions policy committee urge that war veterans and old-age pensioners be given preferential land than heretofore, and that they receive cost-of-living bonuses.

In addition, the resolutions call for the establishment of parity prices for agricultural products, and that no man or woman be discharged from the armed forces except into gainful employment.

Flying Officer George Pepper

"Worst has happened to George, Nov. 17. Letter following"—this was the brief cable from England sent by the wife of Flying Officer George T. Pepper, D.F.C., to Belleville and which brought sad tidings to his home in this city, to his parents and their family and to a wide company of friends of the dauntless young airman. He was born here and had grown up in this city and his service in the Royal Air Force had been such as to win him honor. He some months ago won his Flying Cross for sending a flaming Junkers 88 to earth while his teammate and observer Flying Officer Joseph Toone, then a Flight Sergeant, won the D.F.M. Later these two were again mentioned prominently for their courage in attacking a score of enemy bombers and knocking three of them down. Official word received much love and care, But she holds no speedy record, she claims no wide renown, Yet you who dedicate to her, you do well to stand and stare, Salute her now for what she is—the pride of London Town!

Flying Officer Pepper won in whatever sphere he entered. Everyone recalls the quiet and modest young man who early won fame in the motorcycle world, his technical and his racing skill being such as to attract him to England where he added to his laurels, becoming an instructor. But war broke out he felt he must give his knowledge to the cause of Britain and though desiring to enter the air force he became superintendent of a Spitfire manufacturing plant where his skill was recognized. He was attracted naturally to the Royal Air Force, in due time receiving his commission and then entering that career of distinction which has forever won him a name in Canadian military aviation for he was considered one of the greatest of night fighters.

His personality was intensely rich in the inner life as well as in the outer life. Initiative, resolution, thoroughness, and honor, these were some of his qualities. Others were his quiet, kindly ways, his gentle courage and the unassuming manner in which he bore his honors.

A product of this community, George had come to fill no small place in the wide world through sheer ability until he like he has been playing his brave part in the greatest of all struggles—that of the war for freedom and justice. In this he held his own with honor. He did not seek praise or glory, he aimed only to do his best and honors came to him.

George has been to the city of this generation and will be to the generations to come, who will learn his story, a model of a noble young man born in a democratic country and with all the blessings and virtues which are possible to a youth so richly born.

His wings were the emblem of his aspiring and soaring spirit which has served nobly to the end. He has followed the gleam.

—Greta Briggs, in the Port of London Monthly.

At His Old School

It was a proud day at Harrow when the schoolboys this week welcomed Prime Minister Winston Churchill back to his old school, which he has honored in his long career especially in this greatest period of history.

"We are marching forward, stronger every month, with more knowledge, confidence and power," said Mr. Churchill.

What inspiring words to bring to the boys of Harrow who are growing up and are at the most impressionable time of their lives! The memory of that speech will live throughout their years because the man who directed Britain through the blitz period and whose speeches have roused and cheered the world of free men came and lived for a short time was among them. What thoughts of so directing their lives to the service of their country and humanity must have come into the hearts of these young admirers! Mr. Churchill has surely left influences on these boys.

"We have got great armies, powerful weapons and a strong air force now, many and we are moving forward and success is attending our arms," he said.

What proud feelings he must have stirred in these boys of England as he described the coming days after victory for the future is always so glamorous for the young! "The day will come when we shall have reached that broader, brighter light which, when once it has shone, will never be quenched."

THE PRIDE OF LONDON TOWN

With cargo under hatches, she is ready, due to sail;
A small and grimy steamer, used to trading up and down;
You note her dented funnel and the rust upon her rail,
Her name, which sounds a challenge, is The Pride of London Town.
Her captain speaks the forthright tongue of Yorkshire moors and dales,
Macdonald of the engine-room was born in Inverness,
The Mate he is a Ramsgate man, and Cookie comes from Wales,
But all are sons of Britain, so in danger and in stress,
Their purpose never slackens, and their faith is never lost.
They nurse their old ship grimly through each angry storm that blows;
Gaunt Heinkels, like huge vultures, have attacked her to their cost;
Old Cookie nicks the carving knife for every one of those!
Her worn but patient engines have received much love and care,
But she holds no speedy record, she claims no wide renown,
Yet you who dedicate to her, you do well to stand and stare,
Salute her now for what she is—the pride of London Town!

ON PASSING THE AMMUNITION

The controversy over who said or didn't say "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition" has caused Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, Richmond, Va., editor and Civil War historian, to dust off a similar remark born in the war between the states and to comment that war stories tend to repeat themselves, says the Minneapolis Star Journal.

The 1861 version was first attributed to Capt. (later General) W. N. Pendleton, West Point graduate who left his Episcopal pulpit at Lexington, Va., to enter the army. As his Rockgridge Artillery went into action in a fight at Falling Waters, Va., Captain Pendleton was credited by a newspaper reporter with loading and aiming a gun and then giving this order:

"May the Lord have mercy on their poor souls—Fire!"

Subsequently, the report goes, the scene was changed to Manassas and the remark became "Give 'em hell, boys—and may God have mercy on their souls."

The Falling Waters version seems to us much better and the more artificial Manassas rendition, but that is beside the point. Also beside the point is whether Chaplain William A. Maguire or Chaplain Howell Forgy aired the 1942 version.

The point is that all four remarks typify our refusal to embrace the fatalism which characterizes some religions and some peoples. Free men believe in the provence, which is as old as human aspiration to individual dignity, that "God helps those who help themselves."

MILITARY GENIUS

The Times has scored a coup in securing two up-to-date articles by General Wavell, evidently written in the intervals of his tremendous task in India, on the qualities that make a great military leader, writes the London correspondent of The Ottawa Journal.

Wavell, who shares Ian Hamilton's literary gift, advances the certainly novel theory that tactics is more important than strategy. He likens tactics to the playing of the cards, as against the bidding, at three-no bridge, a comparison which may cause bridge experts to wonder whether the general is really a good bridge player. Wavell's team of great commanders—Hannibal, Scipio, Alexander, Caesar, Belisarius, Frederick, Cromwell, Marlborough, Napoleon, Wellington, Lee, Moltke, Foch and Ludendorff.

It is rather intriguing to find that Belisarius, who was born about 505 A.D. and was one of the most famous generals of the later Roman Empire, is dismissed by the British Encyclopaedia as "the idol of the soldiers, a good tactician, gut not a great strategist." Incidentally, Byron libels Belisarius in one of the most ingenious rhymes ever he attempted. Students may find some analogy between Belisarius and Wavell himself in that, during five campaigns, he held at bay "with inadequate forces" the invading Goths—"until he was removed from his command."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

NOV. 19th., 1922.

The Chamber of Commerce Renewal of Membership Campaign came to a close officially last evening, but the work of some canvassers is far from finished and they will complete their work within a few days. The returns made last night showed a total of 223 memberships, which will make easy the objective of 200.

In a bowling match last evening the Springer Lock team defeated the U-Go-Loos team by 32 pins. The following composed the teams Springers—L. Yeomans, F. Morrell, W. Wheeler and B. Fye; U-Go-I-Go—A. Chourard, W. Hicks, J. Carre and C. Besserud. The high scores were made by W. Hicks and T. Morrell.

Dr. A. D. Proctor has resumed practice in the city.

Dr. G. T. Russell, dentist, has opened an office in this city.

Whitehall Notebook

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—Buckingham Palace is affected by fuel restrictions equally with the home of His Majesty's humblest subject, but the King has this advantage over the commoners—his fuel stock has been increased by two bundles of faggots.

These came to the King through his remembrancer at the law courts who received them from a tenant of London as annual rent for lands held from the Crown. At the same time, the Sheriffs of Middlesex transferred six horseshoes and 61 nails in payment for the site of a new non-existent forge near St. Clement Danes Church.

Such medieval rentals are a happy reminder in time of war of Britain's gallantry. Some of the King claimed all the rights which come under the authority of the Crown, faggots and horseshoes would appear unconsequential, some of the dues served him.

There are, for instance, a bowl of burning incense kept by the Lord of the Manor of Addington, a snowball from the owner of the Pendell estate in Scotland, and a garland of flowers, a Buckinghamshire landowner, a—

Rear Admiral Sir Arthur Bromley, who has met more Americans than any other Englishman, has a fulltime job as secretary of the Imperial Academy for the Dominions and Colonial offices.

Scarcely a troop convoy reaches this country but Admiral Bromley, a white-shouldered veteran of the First Great War, is at the pier to meet it. He can speak a few words of welcome.

Meeting all sorts from the Dominions and the colonies is only part of his job. He has, for example, to find Humphrey Mitchell, Canadian Labor Minister, arrived in Britain on his recent visit.

Admiral Bromley met the minister as the aircraft from Montreal to Canada by bomber and flew on with him to London. Another hour later he was ushering members of parliament and the Speaker of the House of Commons to hear Field Marshal Smuts' address.

The South African Prime Minister's speech was in the way, started something new in the way of applause as far as this staid country is concerned. It was the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," which certainly never had been sung before in the historic hall where Pitt and Disraeli once spoke.

Welsh members of parliament, successful in their campaign for the right to use their own language in the law courts of Wales, are asking now for a Secretary of State of their own.

"Why," asked one member, "should we be denied this 'privilege which the Scots enjoy?"

Welshmen have the support of the Liberal party in their demands for a Welsh Secretary and a Welsh office. A resolution proposed by Lord Davis urging the government to establish such an office was unanimously agreed upon at a quarterly meeting of the party council.

Many people are under the impression Scotland has had its own Secretary of State since the union of parliaments in 1707, but this office was abolished after the Jacobite rebellion in 1745 and, although a minister for Scotland was appointed in 1886, his status was raised to that of Secretary of State only a few years ago.

The Welsh debate gained a better press in Britain than many more important parliamentary discussions possibly because it was one of the few debates of the war in which every speaker had something nice to say.

Even Aneurin Bevan, Ebbw Vale's fiery labor member, was in good humor, for Monmouthshire, in which his constituency is located, comes under the jurisdiction of the new bill.

English still is the only recognized language of parliament, but the Welsh recently turned a deaf ear to a few lines of Welsh some members spoke during the debate. Of Wales' 36 M.P.'s, 32 speak Welsh as their mother tongue.

A London columnist uncovered this variety of views on what the post-war world should offer as expressed during the last four months in the speeches of prominent men:

Anthony Eden: "A land where splendid hearts may go."

Herbert Morrison: "Big, peaceful, decisive social transformation."

Sir Stafford Cripps: "A cleaner, happier world."

R. S. Hudson: "A merrie England of village communities and pastoral hobbies."

Lord Simon: "A new order for international currency."

Ernest Bevin: "The nation must be led into the path of permanent recovery."

Hugh Dalton: "Open wide the gates of opportunity."

Sir Walter Womersley: "No match-selling for ex-servicemen."

Clement Attlee: "Social security for all."

The Archbishop of Canterbury: "Moderate society for man."

Arthur Greenwood: "Peace" is going to be a great adventure."

Lord Portal: "Permanent work for all by peace."

Sir William Jowitt: "Preserve green belts, lark district and youth hostels."

Capt. Harold Balfour: "Opportunity, gaiety, variety, quick movement, travel for all and Christian tolerance."

Appointment as Judge on the North Wales County Court circuit of Ernest Evans, Liberal M.P. for the University of Wales, has created a vacancy in parliament. Mrs. Clement Attlee, husband of Labor-Liberal member for Montgomery, may be a candidate in the by-election.

Another by-election is pending in the Hamilton division of Lanarkshire, vacant through the death of Duncan Graham. The labor candidate may be Sir Patrick Dollan, former Lord Provost of Glasgow.

Election of Mme. Pierre Casgrain as member of the Canadian parliament for Charlevoix-Saguenay was reported in British newspapers nearly six weeks before the big election which won't be held until Nov. 30. It was a cable error, but because of it Mme. Casgrain received a number of cables of congratulations.

MEET NEW ZEALAND

Here are only a few of the interesting facts found in "Meet New Zealand," a booklet prepared by the government of New Zealand for distribution among American soldiers and sailors in that country.

New Zealand is a narrow country divided into North Island, South Island, Stewart Island and a few groups of smaller islands.

Its total area is 103,043—about equal to Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and Rhode Island.

Its population, 98 percent British ancestory, is 1,641,000—slightly greater than the city of Detroit.

Auckland, largest city, has a population of 222,900; Wellington, the capital, 162,800.

The New Zealand educational system is so effective that there is practically no illiteracy in the country.

The Maori, pre-European inhabitants, number 90,000. They serve in their own military unit, the famous Maori Battalion, noted for its feats in Libya, Greece and Crete.

Borings for oil have been made on the east coast of North Island, but without much result so far.

New Zealand is a self-governing dominion in the British Empire and pays no taxes to Britain.

The rule or the road follows the old English custom — "vehicles keep to the left instead of to the right as in America.

There are 1,850,071 dairy cows in New Zealand, and the country has the highest "daily average" in the world.

Like Australia, New Zealand is a great sheep country, the total number of sheep being 31,062,000.

The gold-digging days ended in New Zealand.

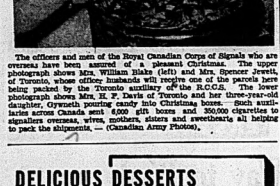
The New Zealand sixpence piece bears a picture of a bula, beautiful staring-like bird now extinct. Name "bula," pronounced "BOO-ya," is Maori for sound made by the bird.

The florin, or two-shilling piece bears a picture of the kiwi, the kiwi bird emblem of New Zealand.

New Zealanders call movies "Pikes."

If the United States had as many men in its armed forces as New Zealand has, we would have an army of 13,000,000 and be home guard of 4,000,000 part-time soldiers.

Wool-chopping is a national sport in New Zealand.



ANZAC day, April 25, the day units of the Australian and New Zealand Army corps landed at Gallipoli in 1915, is observed as a solemn holiday.

FEDOR VON BOCK JUST GLORIES IN SLAUGHTER

Deposed Nazi Commander Believes Wars Are Not Only Inevitable, But Essential; Well Known As 'Killer'

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—The appalling sacrifice of manpower in Hitler's desperate attempt to conquer the Caucasus before winter finishes entirely is entirely consistent with the military philosophy of the cold-blooded Prussian, Fedor von Bock, until recently Marshal Timoshenko's opponent in the greater battle of the Don. Field Marshal von Bock, said to have been recalled by Hitler, believes that all soldiers should die in battle, with the exception of a few who would survive to lead in the next war. In an order of the day at the start of the campaign against Poland, Bock wrote:

"The soldier's life is only what it is worth to his country, and like a coin, acquires value only when it is spent."

American girl art students in Dresden and Berlin back in the Hohenzollern regime used to return home admiring German neatness and efficiency, but seething with rage at the arrogance of the Prussian officers who shouldered them off the sidewalks. Bock is of this caste and tradition's survival, by Berlin a couple of years ago, an American girl toured with a minister who respectfully asked General von Bock for his autograph. Frozen by the stare which was all she received from him, she remarked later: "I just saw death on two legs."

Bock was given the Ukraine command in January of the present year. This caused considerable surprise, as Bock had failed in the campaign against Moscow last year and was supposed to have been one of the German regular army leaders tossed into the discard when Hitler took over "intuitive" command of the Russian campaign late last winter. He was retired, suffering from a "stomach illness," along with Field Marshal Walter von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the German armies until the Fuehrer's intuitions asserted themselves.

Looks Down On Rommel

Fedor von Bock was reared under the harsh military discipline that was once imposed on Frederick the Great, but, unlike Frederick, young Bock thrived on the rigors and severities. He was of the old, stiff-necked Prussian Junker class world apart from the clever Nazi thug, Rommel, now commanding in Africa.

"His schooling," writes William Bayles in the American Mercury, "consisted of blood-and-thunder tales of war told by old soldiers, and death-and-glory lectures by his father; by the time he entered the Potsdam Cadet Academy, he was already a veteran. To his classmates, Bock was a queer fellow who refused to join in their drinking parties and spent his spare moments visiting the tomb of Frederick the Great. The Kaiser once visited the academy and remarked, 'He will go far, but let us hope that he never leaves Prussia. No one else would understand him.'"

Bock disliked the routine staff work assigned to him in 1914, and finally, in 1917, the Kaiser sent him to the front as a major in command of infantry. "Bock," the writer continues, "immediately distinguished himself by leading a series of mad assaults against the French which gained him high praise. In another bit in two months reduced his battalion to a handful of men." He was given the Four le Merite and sent back to the general staff by Ludendorf. Did Not Shine

Bock did not shine in the post-war Reichswehr, mostly because Germany was surfeited with blood and glory, and he was sent to East Prussia, as a garrison commander. At a time when the world was attempting to disarm Germany, he shocked the post-war politicians by proclaiming publicly that wars are not only inevitable but essential as population regulators. He also advanced the fantastic theory that if land is to bring forth fertile crops and a thriving humanity, it must be drenched periodically in blood.

"Had Bock been more diplomatic and less austere, he could undoubtedly have commanded the German army that Hitler began to build. But he had sworn an oath of allegiance to the Kaiser and did not believe the ex-paperhanger was the proper person to sit in the chair of the great Bismarck. Nor did he approve of the mistake the Nazi dictator made with Info' office. When Herman Goering rushed up to him at a Berlin reception and, with undue familiarity, declared that because both had the Pour le Merite decorations, they should be buddies, Bock eyed him coldly and replied: 'Excuse me, but the iron cross on our collar doesn't make us either military or social equals.'

"Hitler's admiration for Bock grew. He gave him quick promotion, and in the first of the Nazi military campaigns, the conquest of Austria in 1938, Der Bieeber' ('The Killer'—his nickname to millions of soldiers) commanded the invading German army. His organization of that unopposed campaign was admirable. The tanks and lorries piled up or bogged down crossing the Alps with the result that the main units of the German forces did not arrive in Vienna in time for the grandiose parade before Austria's conquerors.

"A year later, Bock led one of the armies that invaded Czechoslovakia. Because of the resignation of the two generals who sneered the second Nazi rape of a small nation got up early one morning to meet the general as he entered the little Sudeten town of Eger. Industrious local Nazis had routed out the whole population and the main street was lined with silent people. A large field car swept into the street and in it we were surprised to see not only Bock but also his 18-year-old son, dressed in a sailor suit and looking evil grin and unpleasant as his father.

"Later, when we had an opportunity to talk with him, we asked why he had brought his son on such a potentially dangerous journey. 'I wanted to impress upon him the beauty and exhilaration that lie in the soldier's profession,' he explained.

"In Poland, where he commanded had his first opportunity to send his men to death and glory. He led the northern army group, Bock feeling the blitzkrieg encirclement method of the other generals, he buried his divisions against the Polish defenses at Kutno without regard for losses. Later, in Berlin, he denounced Nazi propagandists who were attempting to pare down the German casualties. 'Casualties,' he snorted, 'certainly we had casualties—thousands of them. Poland is littered with our honored dead. How otherwise could we establish our eternal right to that territory?'"

Madoc

St. Peter's W. M. S.

Madoc—The November meeting was held at the home of Mrs. E. West with a good attendance.

After the singing a hymn Mrs. E. West then led in prayer.

A hymn was sung and Mrs. McCaffray took charge of the business. A letter was read asking members to give hospitality to women who are serving in the king's forces when they are on leave.

A letter of sympathy was to be written to Mrs. I. L. Moore of Belleville on the death of her son. Nineteen visits were made to sick and shut-ins during month.

Miss Mackenzie had charge of topic which was an introduction to the study book "Canadians all". She showed the different classes of non-Anglo Saxon people in Canada. The future topics will deal with the work among these people.

Mrs. W. Millar read an article showing the Prime Minister's regard for the Bible.

The meeting closed with the singing of hymn and prayer by Mrs. McCaffray.

A social half hour was spent. The hostess serving refreshments.

J., Nov. 19 — (AP)—The Newark Public Library has announced all books or other publications containing formulas for making poison gas, explosives or special writing fluids which could be used for hidden messages had been locked up for the duration. Only members of the armed forces or scientists engaged in war research will be given access to them.

HILLS OF OLD

In former times the word "hills" was applied to mountains as well as lower elevations.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R.C.A.F., Somewhere In England, Nov. 18 —(CP)— When Dick Stone of Winnipeg, a squadron leader in the Canadian Halifax squadron, enters the mess now, fellow pilots greet him with the cry "Yoda him, cowboy."

It happened like this. Dick was leading his Halifax rather earlier than expected and looked for a landing light. Obligingly, a light bobbed up and began to wave encouragingly.

"But the light veered off to the left, then to the right, until it appeared to be dodging all over the drome," an officer said. "He had no alternative but to follow it. Then it went out altogether."

A scared member of the ground staff appeared. "S-S-Sorry, sir," he said, "S-but I wasn't expecting you."

The mystery was solved in short order. The young man had been given the job of rounding up cows which had strayed on the airfield from a neighboring field.

Two pilots of an R.C.A.F. squadron shot up a freight train and a gun post in occupied France have been congratulated by the air officer commanding their group.

The spitfire pilots, Po. Lt. W. Powell of (1320) 60th Street, Edmonton and Sgt. Pilot W. H. Tape of 1202 2nd Avenue, Lethbridge, Alta., found a freight train on a siding south of Dieppe and scored hits on the locomotive.

Coming out on Sgt. Tape saw an enemy gun post on the cliff. German soldiers ran to their positions as the aircraft approached and hits were seen as the Canadian gunners opened up with their cannons. Flak didn't touch either aircraft.

Sgt. Frank Doran of Toronto is reported to be the only Canadian airgunner qualified to wear a bomb disposal badge on his sleeve. A bespectacled man, he arrived in Britain 2½ years ago and recently completed a course in bomb disposal.

Not all photographers wield the job Sgt. Pilot Eddie Thomas of Nanaimo, B.C. has. He's with the R.A.F. and takes snapshots of Nazland in a single-seater fighter. Wings Abroad, the R.C.A.F. newspaper over here, reported that the "German attitude towards our collecting this type of tourist information doesn't seem to be very enlightened or co-operative."

Some branches of the R.A.F. are changing from blue to khaki. Army-type battle-dress with an R.A.F. overcoat is the new heavy duty dress. The Air Ministry says the new style is more suitable for some jobs in certain areas. Airmen in khaki have to give up their blue service dress in exchange for battle-dress.

POLICE OF CAPITOL

There are four police departments operating in the District of Columbia, Washington area.

WE ALL CAN'T SERVE IN THE ARMED FORCES OR DRIVE AN AMBULANCE, OR MAKE AMMUNITION BECAUSE OF SOME DEFICIENT REASON OR OTHER. SO WE HAVE TO STAY HOME AND LOOK AFTER OUR FAMILIES—KEEP EVERY MEMBER OF IT FIT AND HAPPY AND ABLE TO DO HIS WORK EFFICIENTLY—AND THAT DOESN'T LEAVE US ANY TOO MUCH TIME EVEN FOR VOLUNTEER WAR WORK.

BUT WE ARE NOT WORRIED ABOUT BEING CALLED A SHIRKER. THERE ARE MANY WAYS IN WHICH WE CAN HELP THE WAR EFFORT AS EFFECTIVELY IN OUR SPHERE AS OTHER PEOPLE IN THEIR'S. WE FEEL WE ARE FAITHFUL AND GOOD CANADIANS....

Because —We walk whenever and wherever possible. We save gasoline and tires for our own car—it decreases by just that much the increasingly heavy load on street cars and buses—it gives us the healthy outdoor exercise that most of us have trouble finding time for these busy days.

Because —We buy War Savings Stamps regularly, taking advantage of the fact that many a week will give us part of the change in stamps, and having found that only a regular purchase schedule strictly adhered to, adds up at month's end to the allotment our family has set for itself.

Because —We are doing the Christmas shopping now, instead of waiting till the last minute. This makes the Christmas situation easier for stores who have merchandizing problems in some lines, for sales staffs smaller due to the demand for war workers, and for all transportation and postal services.

Because —We buy only necessities — for ourselves, for our family, for our home. We've re-planned our living to cut out unnecessary frills. We take good care of the things we have so that they will not need to be replaced—and when we must buy, we buy "good" things that will last longer.

Trenton and District

Trenton (Special)—Public school teachers in their weekly bowling on Monday ended the series: Miss Ella Crotz's team three points against Mr. Chesterton's team, and Mr. Chadwick's team all four points from Mr. Wildman's.

Miss Hazel Bennett was the winner of the 111 points which is the lucky number for ladies, giving her the privilege of having one free or prize changed from the Le DeLuxe Cleaners. This prize is donated each week by the DeLuxe and the lucky number for the week is 186.

Missing Man Arrested

Two men escaped from the Ontario Hospital at Rockwood on Tuesday afternoon. One was arrested on Tuesday night by Trenton police and they are still searching for the other, who is thought to be still in this neighborhood.

Gen. Brown on Visit

The Director General of the Reserve Forces of Canada paid a visit to Trenton on Tuesday and was a guest of the town of Trenton at a luncheon given in the Hotel Gilbert. General Brown was accompanied by Brigadier L. Austin Bell, O.M.G. (C), officer Commanding Military District No. 3 Kingston, along with several other dignitaries from the city.

Air Commodore F. S. McGill represented the Trenton Main Station of the R.C.A.F. and Group Captain Keddie, C.A.M.D. The'town was represented by Mayor H. R. Cory, the council and several other town officials. The Officer Commanding Col. R. C. Doman and other officers of the 1st Reserve Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment were present at the luncheon.

General Brown was introduced to the guests by Col. R. C. Doman and gave a most inspiring address on the valuable service being rendered by the Reserve Forces of Canada throughout the county.

Police Court

J. B. Garvin of Kingston was the presiding Magistrate at Trenton police court on Tuesday afternoon with S. Gordon Robertson, acting for the Crown. Earl Clare and James McCarvey both of Picton appeared charged with being intoxicated and were fined $10 and costs, default 10 days. Both were committed as they could not raise the necessary $13. McCarvey was also charged with stealing a number cost from William Lambert who had been on a drinking party with McCarvey and Clare. The Magistrate dismissed the case as McCarvey swore he picked it up and intended returning it to him.

Hazen Hastings, charged with being found in the Officers' Mess by night at the R.C.A.F. station, with intent to commit an indictable offence was remanded to three months in the county jail. Magistrate stressed the point that sentences had to be a deterrent to others as well as punishment for the offence. According to the witnesses there had been an epidemic of stealing from the mess and which was kept and Downs was apprehended.

Michael Downs, a disturbance, fined $2 and $3.50 cost.

William Delfos on a charge of breach of the dominion stampeded and placed on probation for two years, on condition he contributed pay his wife $14 per week, for the maintenance of his wife and family.

Arthur LaCroix, William Lambert, Hazen Hastings, Jimmy Green, Harry Corby, all fined $10 and costs for being intoxicated.

Hastings for his and costs for disorderly conduct and two men for breach of the parking by-law paid $1.00 each.

SENSE OF HUMOR

The word "humor" did not acquire its modern meaning until little more than a century ago.

WEDDINGS

CASEY—BRADSHAW

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Bradshaw, Fourth Thurlow, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon, at two-thirty when their youngest daughter, Stella Bernice, became the bride of Horace William Casey, son of Mr. and Mrs William R. Casey, Trenton.

The ceremony which was performed by Rev. W. J. Harris, Campbellton, in the presence of relatives and friends of the bride and groom, took place under an arch of evergreen and bridesmaid's bouquet with a large white bell. Wedding music was played by Mrs. George McIlwain.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a lovely floor length gown of pale blue silk crepe with hand embroidered bodice and Mary Stuart head-dress and shoulder length veil in the same shade. She carried a bouquet of red Briarcliffe roses with pink satin streamers.

Miss Eva Casey, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and wore pink embroidered organdy over taffeta, with matching hat and matching tulle net. She carried a pretty nosegay of pink carnations and white baby breath.

Mr. Arthur Bradshaw, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served Mrs. Bradshaw, mother of the bride, wearing green wool crepe, with a corsage of carnations and Mrs. Casey, mother of the groom in Australian wine and corsage of carnations, received with the bridal couple. The ushtresses were the bride's sister, Miss Hazel Walker, Mrs. Russel Pitts and Mrs. Harold Pound.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold necklace, to the bridesmaid a topaz pendant to the pianist, English china cup and saucer to the matron, Evening in Paris perfume, and to the groomsman, a gold collar pin and tie clip.

Mr. and Mrs. Casey left on a wedding trip to Ottawa and other Eastern points, the bride wearing a dress of French wool crepe with gold-nail head trim, black coat with Russian squirrel collar and matching brown accessories.

Out of town guests present from Belleville, Trenton, Toronto, Tweed and Picton.

Annual Bazaar Held With Marked Success By Belleville Chapter

With ideal, almost Springlike weather prevailing, the annual bazaar arranged by Belleville Chapter, I.O.D.E., in the Lodge Hall, was carried out with splendid success, with over 1,000 visitors during the day. Colorful decorations, cleverly planned booths, and the tea room where guests spent a social half hour after visiting the booths contributed to the success of the day. Mrs. G. McEwan, P.W.M., convener of the arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Hollis and the guests were received by Mrs. Wesley Mallett, Mrs. R. Baragar and Mrs. D. McGlashon, P.W.M.'s.

The booths reflected the artistry of the members in the original decorations. The fancy work booth, striking the Victory note with red and white decorations and a large V, was in charge of Mrs. D. Elridge as convener and Mrs. M. Flanagan, assisted by Mrs. Mrs. S. Hogle, Mrs. E. Adams, Mrs. Wesley Mallett, Mrs. R. Baragar and Mrs. D. McGlashon, P.W.M.'s.

Invictae Mission Circle Holds Monthly Supper Meeting

On Tuesday evening, November 17th, the senior girls of Bridge Street United Church held the monthly supper meeting of their mission circle. After the supper, per the meeting took place in the church parlours. Although only five girls were present and the meeting commenced with the singing of a hymn, "Jesus Calls Us O'er The Tumult", the president, Mary Finkle, planist. Several new members were accepted in the circle and the minutes of the last meeting were read by the assistant secretary.

Miss Jean Proctor led the short worship service assisted by Jean Barnum and Betty Truman. Miss Lois Hilyard played a piano solo and sold on the piano and Mary Lu Lester gave a reading entitled "The Giant and His Garden", a tale which pointed a very practical ability became something more than a fable with a moral or a fairytale into a script of immortality. Miss Kolo Yalaha, a new member whom members welcomed to the circle, gave an equally inspired recitation from the works of Pauline Johnson, the great Indian poetess.

Plans for the Christmas meeting were made and a new executive was nominated for next year. A committee was elected to look after the social and culinary aspects of the Fellowship Hour following the church service Sunday eve, when the members of the circle will be hostesses to, it is expected, a large number of service men and young people.

The meeting closed with the hymn "This is My Father's World" and the Benediction after which the group dispersed leaving the unfortunate few to struggle with the dishes!

Mark Golden Wedding With Family Dinner

Picton, Nov. 19. (Special)—Marking the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. J. Clayton Hyatt, "Lakeview Lodge", were guests of honor at a family dinner held at Dickens' Coffee Shop, in Belleville. They are residents of West Point, Prince Edward County, and have spent practically all their lives here. Marking the occasion, they were presented with a golden clock by the family and were also the recipients of many gifts and messages of congratulation from friends.

Mr. Hyatt was born 73 years ago on the Hyatt Homestead at West Point and Mrs. Hyatt was born in Nevada, California, but came here when a child of seven, her father Daniel McDonald then owning the Sandbanks Resort.

There is a family of four, Mrs. C. C. Mullins, Mrs. Garfield Mayne, Mrs. Elwood Munroe and Kenneth Hyatt, all of West Lake.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt are enjoying excellent health and each season Mr. Hyatt has gone north for deer hunting and this year, as usual, got his deer. Both are well known to hundreds of residents of Ontario and the United States, they having conducted a tourist business for many years.

CONTRIBUTED READING

At the monthly meeting of the Khyr Gemm Home and School Club on Monday evening, a reading by Mrs. Morley Ward on "Gladstory Pleasure", written by Irvin S. Cobb, John Barrymore and other Hollywood actors, delighted the members. The reading outlined out in an amusing way that eating habits have changed greatly from the days of early ancestors.

Try apple cider to moisten your apple betty. It brings out the full flavor of the apples.

Save Time And Energy At Every Turn By Eliminating Unnecessary Steps

Application of the maxim, "Make your head save your feet", was never more important than right now.

Extra demands on the homemaker because of wartime shortages, necessitate curtailment of time. In addition to community war work, put a tax on her ingenuity that she can't hope to meet only if she plans her day with a view to saving time and energy at every turn.

Applicable in every home are many of the methods employed in business and industry to increase output while keeping workers fit and happy. Some of these methods summarized by Consumer Information Service, Ottawa, follow:

Elimination of every unnecessary movement of the body practiced throughout the day cuts down fatigue and greatly increases the amount of work that can be accomplished. Stooping and reaching beyond arm's length are recognized as particularly tiring motions and, therefore, to be avoided.

Working units conveniently arranged, materials within easy reach, shelves and working surfaces at comfortable height are factors in saving time and energy. Good tools such as sharp knives, choppers, and scissors, are also important.

Setting the stage in order of use and replacing them as used, as in baking, makes for speed and smoothness.

Comfortable clothing and shoes, and a restful position while working are important in conserving energy, and good lighting greatly reduces the tendency for eyestrain, causing fatigue. The comfort of the whole body, efficiency experts declare, depends on the comfort of the eyes. This does not mean bright light, but light that is clear and steady, and away from polished surfaces that reflect glare.

Change of temperature and changing the air in a room by opening doors or windows frequently for a short time is stimulating and refreshing.

Change of work, especially something that brings into play different sets of muscles, is recommended as being as restful as stopping work. Another discovery of efficiency experts is that slow motions do not necessarily cause less fatigue than quick ones, and may cause more.

Efficient management, like that in business and industry, can be reduced almost to an exact science.

A plan recommended is to put the whole plan in writing, numbering the motions used. Then, experiment in cutting down, put down the best practices in writing and follow it.

Drawers and doors that stick, lids that have lost their hooks, and a hundred and one little things around in the house that could be quickly repaired, when let go are sources of waste time and energy that could be used in constructive work.

HEALTH CHATS

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN
President, Chicago Board of Health.

Germ Commonest Cause Of Conjunctivitis

There are common germs always present on the skin.

They do no harm, but occasionally they can cause a lot of trouble.

The staphylococcus normally is present on the skin, and in the throat. However, this germ can cause infections of many parts of the body, and in the opinion of Dr. James H. Allen of Iowa, it is a most frequent cause for inflammation of the eye, particularly conjunctivitis or inflammation of the lining membrane over the eyelids and eyeball.

This condition occurs most often in infants. In fact, it is responsible for 90 per cent of the eye infections which occur in new-born babies. This infection usually starts a short time after birth with swelling of the eyelids and a great deal of discharge from the eye. The eye may become severely inflamed. In a general rule the condition subsides from seven to ten days after the infection appears without any treatment.

According to Dr. Allen, one-third of all cases of chronic conjunctivitis in grownups is due to the staphylococcus. When an attack occurs there is redness and swelling of the eyelids. The eyesight is blurred There is a scaliness of the eyelids and a great deal of discharge from the eye. The eye may become severely inflamed. The lid margins appear red, scaly and thickened. Sometimes the cornea of the eye is affected.

Tabernacle Church Evening Auxiliary Regular Meeting

The Evening Auxiliary of the Tabernacle United Church met at the home of Mrs. A. Kitchen, on Wednesday evening, Wednesday evening. The meeting was opened with the singing of "God Save the King". Miss Ethel Horton then conducted the Devotional period.

Mrs. J. Fisher read a very clear and interesting report of the General Annual Meeting of the Presbyterial Rally which was held at Fairfield, October 14. Mrs. R. Johnson was in charge of the Study Book, the topic being "Personal Securities". She was assisted by Miss Hazel Gentle, Mrs. Marjorie Smith gave the Welsh Tweet reading. Nomination of officers for the coming year was then carried on.

Mrs. A. Gault, visitor at the Auxiliary gave a very humorous reading entitled "The Treasurer's Report". Contests were then conducted by Mrs. Johnson, all of which were thoroughly enjoyed.

Rawdon

Rawdon — On Friday evening almost one hundred people gathered at Mount Pleasant hall to honor Don Johnson on the occasion of his recent marriage and to welcome his bride formerly Miss Mary Hollinger of Foxboro.

Rev. T. F. Townsend was master of ceremonies and also led in a round of community singing with Mrs. Merle Spencer at the piano.

Mr. Harvey Couch contributed a guitar solo. Mrs. Kenneth Weaver read a poem "The Old Way and the New." Misses Vivian and Ruth Welburn sang a patriotic number. Mrs. Muriel Silke read a poem entitled "The October Couple." Miss Joan Heald read a humorous selection "A Lovely quiet ride." Don and Mary were given seals of honor and Mr. Eric Summers read an address of appreciation and welcome and Mr. Frank Spencer made the presentation of a matpson studio couch.

Both Don and Mary expressed their thanks for the lovely gifts and a delightful evening which held a reception Tuesday evening in honor of their only son Don and his bride. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Jos Hollinger and Harold, Foxboro; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. R. Hollinger and Marie, Fourth of Thurlow; Douglas McAdam R.C.A.F., Moncton; Mr. and Mrs. Margaret Dunham, Healey Falls; Keith and Joyce Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson and Miss Marion Johnson. During the evening several young folks arrived and tendered the newlyweds a rousing charivari.

Mary served wedding cake and Don furnished the wherewithal to buy confectionery.

Mrs. Wm. Telford, Bridgenorth, spent last week with her daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Pauley spent a few days recently with Mrs. J. Thornton, Carleton Place.

Wellman's Women's Institute were entertained at the home of Mrs. Ed. Todd for their November meeting.

JOHN BULL IS REAL EXAMPLE OF IMPROVISER

British National Trait is Now Being Developed to a High Degree

MANY SHORTAGES

Man Fed Family of Five Everything but Fish from One Acre

(By Walter P. Laysmith, Writing from an English Town, in New York Times)

The Englishman has the reputation of being a born improvisor and master of compromise, particularly in war and in diplomacy. How he is improving and compromising as never before. In replenishing a rapidly emptying store-cupboard, in keeping up three meals a day, in finding substitutes for wood, metal, paper, wire-setting and discovering grounds "within the permitted marginal purposes"—to quote the official phrase—for purchasing gasoline, the truly ingenious English are "getting away with it."

Spur of No Breakfast

To arouse the Englishman's powers of improvisation his wife had to serve him with bacon and no egg for breakfast or one egg and no bacon. But taking away an Englishman's breakfast is like robbing a Highlander of his kilt. The Englishman would make his last stand against a "continental" breakfast of coffee and rolls. To provide breakfast, therefore, he has put his fowls in his backyard and hired a corner in a communal pigyard. There is a dust-bin just down the road marked "Pig-Food Only," and he has found that an occasional gift egg to a neighbor will take the discord out of an orchestra of a dozen cockerels, whatever may be the anti-livestock clause in his lease—and a few grits also in a daily bucketful of scraps.

This correspondent has just visited a country home where the early morning tea is made from strawberry leaves, the breakfast coffee from dandelion (taraxacum) roots, cigarettes and pipe-tobacco from rosemary and other garden herbs that are a family secret, the pre-lunch "sherry" from parsnips, the red wine from elderberries and the white wine from cowslips.

The Brew Is Gone

A farmer may have a firkin, or nine imperial gallons, of beer, occasionally, but it is not worth the effort. Time was when during harvest and haymaking each man was sent off in the morning with his own gallon cask of home-brewed beer and each would return with half a gallon. The cartmen slung their little caskets between the shafts of their carts, under the collar, and in some old harness rooms the casks and straps are there to this day.

There is an acre of good rich soil for everybody in England. Mine is —if not a cow. Tom Wibberley, an agricultural expert, acquired an acre just north of London and made an "all-in" farm to keep his family of five and all their furniture in every kind of food except fish. Mr. Wibberley had the advantage of being the son of the late Professor T. Wibberley of Queen's University, Belfast, but his theories of continuous cropping and author of many works on the subject, he succeeded in running on his one-acre plot a cow, four pigs, twelve laying pullets, thirty head of fat and thirty table cockerels. He grew all their food and his information supplied his family with an abundance of vegetables and fruit all the year round.

It was argued that if 1,000,000 persons acquired an allotment each acre apiece on line of the Wibberley experiment there would be an end of the U-boat menace because the professional farmers could look after the remainder of the population.

4 British Bombers Win Battle By Sinking U-Boat

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press Staff Writer

U. S. Air Force Headquarters, Algeria, Nov. 15 — (Delayed) — (AP) —British planes figured in a strange submarine-airplane battle in the Mediterranean in which a U-boat was knocked out after she had damaged four attacking bombers, it was disclosed today.

A group of five Hudson bombers of the R. A. F. Coastal Command, led by Wing Commander Beamwood of Teddington, England, located the German submarine and spotswood's plane swept in to drop depth charges within 10 feet of the conning tower.

Unable or unwilling to submerge, the German crewmen fired on Spotswood's plane, smashing one of his gasoline tanks and his four of the five bombers as they swept over in attack, although none of the airliners was hurt.

Allied Destroyer Joins Scrap

The Allied destroyer then tied up to join the scrap just as the U-boat crew abandoned ship. Spitfires arrived-in time to help spot the German crew struggling in the water and direct the destroyer to them to save them from drowning.

The German captain and crew were captured and turned over to the destroyer's armored patrol school. The hydraulic landing gear of one of the Hudsons was put out of action and an engine knocked out by the submarine's fire, but the plane landed in and the crew managed to lower the gear by pouring canteens of water into the hydraulic apparatus.

'Key to Final Victory is Put In Allies' Hand'

Chungking, Nov. 19 — (AP)—The Chinese press greeted the United States naval victory in the Solomons Islands as a turning point in the Battle of the Pacific. The Central Daily News said "The key to final victory has been put in the hands of the Allies both in the East and in the West."

"The Solomons victory is much more important than any offensive against the Japanese mainland because Japan is essentially a naval power," the Central Daily News said. "No matter how triumphant her army is on land she will be finished once her navy is destroyed."

Allies Acquire Merchant Shipping In N. Africa Move

London, Nov. 19 — (CP) — The Ministry of Economic Warfare announced Wed., that the Allies had acquired between 200,000 and 300,000 tons of merchant shipping as a result of their entry into North Africa.

CHATTERTON, W. I.

The November meeting of the Chatterton W. I. was held in the Sidney Baptist Church on Nov. 14.

Guests at this meeting were the Pine Grove W. I., who were in charge of the meeting. The president welcomed the visitors and Mrs. John Frederick, President of the Pine Grove W. I., took charge and opened this part of the meeting with community singing.

Mrs. Irene Coulter sang a solo and accompanied herself on the guitar. Mrs. Rogers gave a paper on Education and based her talk on learning knowledge, wisdom, understanding, health and education. Mrs. Hanman gave the paper on Home as an Educational Institution and Mrs. Loft gave a reading. Youth is Tough. Mrs. Campbell gave a paper on Public Schools. A poem was read by Mrs. G. Frederick. A paper on The Church was given by Mrs. J. Frederick and High Schools and Other Sources of Learning was given by Mrs. Marshall. A reading was given by Mrs. Meecher. "A Quotation from Tennyson."

Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Hamblin sang a duet and the current events were given by Mrs. Hanman. Miss Irene Coulter then favored with another solo.

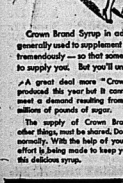
Mrs. Leonard Frost of the Chatterton W. I. then made a few remarks and thanked the ladies of the Pine Grove Institute for the splendid program.

Mrs. Fred Campbell led in a quiz contest which was much enjoyed. The hostess served lunch.

Allied Convoy Losses In N. Africa Move Remarkably Low

London, Nov. 19 — (CP) — An authoritative source said Wednesday that losses in the Allied convoys used in the expedition in French North Africa were remarkably small despite the enemy's known concentration of 50 submarines against that operation alone.

His statement was made in predicting further important naval operations in the Mediterranean.



Except for one ship, all vessels in the Allied convoy which carried troops and material before they were damaged, the informant said.

Prime Minister Churchill announced last Sunday that 21 enemy submarines had been sunk off North Africa. Others have been reported damaged.

British submarines, he continued, are giving the same attention to Axis efforts to reinforce the continguents in Tunisia as they did to Marshal Rommel's earlier efforts to get supplies across the Mediterranean to his forces in Egypt. He predicted it would be difficult for a supply standpoint for the Axis to maintain a foothold in Africa.

Bengasi, he said, has been "immobilized" as a supply point, and Tripoli, the chief Axis base in Libya, "no doubt will be dealt with pretty thoroughly by our strong air forces which are daily acquiring bases closer and closer to that point."

CANADA'S HOUSOLDIERS

Keep in line with timely economy.

Crown Brand Syrup in addition to its other uses, is being so generally used to supplement sugar, that the demand has increased tremendously — so that sometimes your grocer may not be able to supply you. But you'll understand why.

A great deal more "Crown Brand" is being produced this year but it cannot be expected to meet a demand resulting from a war shortage of millions of pounds of sugar.

The supply of Crown Brand Syrup, like other things, must be shared. Don't hoard — buy normally. With the help of your grocer, every effort is being made to keep you supplied with this delicious syrup.

Why SOME ITEMS are Occasionally Missing from the Loblaw Shelves

APPLE JUICE IN CANS

• Because The tin conservation programme decreed that NO Apple Juice or Apple Sauce be packed in tin this season.

HALLOWE'I SAIR DATES

Come from Iraq and Iran, which are close to the' Egyptian and Russian War Fronts. Shipping and boat-facilities are not available to transport them at this time. It is expected a small quantity of California Fresh Dates will be available in the near future.

CANNED BEETS AND CARROTS

• Because The tin conservation program decrees that NO apple Juice or Apple Sauce be packed in tin this season.

JELLY POWDERS

Australia is our main source of supply for "Gelatin" and supplies are not available in sufficient quantity for manufacturers to continue production as formerly. Hence, manufacturers are restricted to the use of only 70 per cent of the sugar they used during the same period last year.

COCOANUT

• Because This product comes from the West Indies. Shipping space is now used for more essential products.

6-oz. 'BABY' SIZE CAN OF MILK

• Because Only the 16-oz. and larger sizes are permitted to be packed to conserve the use of tin.

JAMS, JELLIES AND MARMALADE

The requirements for the Armed Forces must be taken care of before Civilian needs. This, together with sugar restrictions, has made it impossible for manufacturers to produce enough, and, as a result, stores are "occasionally" short on some varieties.

COLUMN OF THREE'S

Insofar as the Indians of Canada are concerned, Brigadier F. Logie Armstrong, C. B. E. officer commanding Military District No. 3, will henceforth be known as "Kee-che-ke-mong", or to other words, "Leader of Chiefs and of the Braves".

This is a result of a gathering of high-ranking military officers of Canada's Active Army held at the Indian Training Reserve at the Mississagua Tribe of the Hurons at Peterborough, when the District Officer Commanding was inducted as an honorary chief of the tribe."

The induction ceremony was carried out in a colorful manner in the presence of more than 300 members of the tribe, ten percent of whom are at present serving in Canada's Active Army. The ceremony was carried out by Chief Dan Whetung who attended his father as head of the tribe, and he was assisted by Lt.-Col. E. C. Keeler, M. C., V. D., officer commanding Canadian Army Basic Training Centre No. 23, Peterborough. Colonel Keeler is an honorary chief of the Tribe, having been christened Chief Wind-I-ag-mon than a year ago.

On arrival at the Reserve the Brigadier and the visiting officers were greeted by Chief Whetung and the majority of his Tribe. The ceremony which included the D. O. C. as an Honorary Chief with the name "Kee-che-ke-mong." was immediately proceeded with. The Indian Chief in his address of welcome was with great pleasure that he welcomed Brigadier Armstrong as an honorary member of the tribe, His reservation, said the Chief, had a record they were proud of, in that more than ten percent of his "warrior" had enlisted to help defend the Dominion in any part of the world.

With the education now available to the Indians in this country the "young bloods" had realized their freedom was at stake and were now ready to give their all for the "Great White Father" who reigns the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Following dinner, Brigadier Armstrong and the visiting officers listened to addresses of welcome to the city of Peterborough by Mayor James Hamilton and a number of prominent citizens. The gratitude of the officers was expressed in a brief address by the D. O. C. and Colonel Keeler, officer commanding the Peterborough Training Centre where the conference was held during the day. Other speakers heard were Lt.-Col. M. Isbester, A.A., and Q.M.G. district headquarters, also Lt.-Col. L. P. Grant, G. S. O. 1 also of district headquarters.

THE STORY OF THE CHEVRON

Chevrons, worn by non-commissioned officers of the Canadian Army, have been a mark of rank since 1803. The origin of the stripes, however, goes back into the far distant past.

N. C. O.'s who wear the chevrons have probably unaware that the early Chief of State in event of the Sachem's permanent incapacity. He directed that within a month Chevron was the symbol of long and Chief of State in event of the Sachem's permanent incapacity. He directed that within a month Council of the Cabinet should meet to choose a permanent successor.

A Vichy communique on the action, as reported by the Berlin Radio, said Petain was sure the State will continue to represent French sovereignty and the continued existence of the country, and added that Laval will have the Marshal constantly informed of his endeavors.

Of most immediate concern to the Allies was the course Laval plans to steer in the matter of possible military aid to the Axis.

Have Not Heeded Demands

Thus far he and Petain have not heeded the demands of the radio-ally pro-German party of Jacques Doriot that France declare war at once upon Britain and the United States because of their occupation the French North Africa.

There have been unconfirmed reports that Laval already has been negotiating with the Germans for a peace treaty to replace the Nazi-Soviet pact of 1940, preliminary to bringing France into the war against the Soviet.

If he sought to do this, it is obvious that now it would be managed, since the 1940 constitution never really left the hands of the Vichy government—provides that the Chief of State himself hasn't the power to declare war without "the previous assent of the legislative assemblies." These assemblies never have been created.

Deputy Leader Flies

First results in Vichy of Laval's advancement were the quickly-accomplished naming of Vice-Admiral G. A. J. P. Auphan as Secretary of State for the Navy, and Robert Gibrat, Secretary of State for Communications.

Admiral Jean Mario Abrial successeded Admiral Darlan, who was a supporter of Darlan. Jean Bichelonne combined Gibrat's duties with his General post of Secretary of State for Industrial Production.

To another Vichy decree reported by the Berlin radio, Pierre Caillaux was named Secretary of State for National Economics while retaining his previous position as finance minister.

Admiral Abrial is a former governor-general of Algeria and it is assumed he is expected to use whatever influence he may retain in the part of North Africa not yet in Allied control in an effort to offset the efforts of Darlan and Fighting French to line up the African French with the Allies.

Greatest Commando of All Was Sir Francis Drake

Declaring him to be the "Greatest Commando of them All," Walter Monfried tells of his daring expeditions in an article in the Milwaukee Journal, which is reproduced as follows:

It was near midnight as Winston Churchill was preparing to turn in for the night. Before leaving his plane was scheduled to start, he decided to pay a last visit to Scotland Yard for a few words of farewell. The two chiefs talked, lingered on, and as Churchill strode out of Stalin's office he beamed with cheer and confidence. Then he uttered a prayer—the prayer which Sir Francis Drake used to offer before battle:

"O Lord God, when Thou givest to Thy servants to endeavor any great matter, grant us also to know that it is not the beginning but the continuing of the same, until it be thoroughly finished, which yieldeth the true glory."

The genius of the British race is in those iron words—"not the beginning but the continuing, until it be thoroughly finished." Mr. Churchill does well to call up the restless spirit of Francis Drake, because old Britain has need of the more resolute warrior, a more daring raider than the Devonshire sea-dog.

A hit and run raider of concentration camps, Sir Francis Drake today he would be leading commando expeditions, because he surely was the greatest commando of them all, even though the word was not known in his day.

Drake roved the seven seas to harass the foe on the high seas and pillage their treasures. He did much to defeat the Invincible Spanish Armada, but the greatest single feat of his turbulent career was a "commando" raid on Cadiz.

It was the spring of 1587, and the year's reading instrument was the greatest empires of the world was at hand. King Philip of Spain was getting ready to subjugate the who challenged his supremacy and locked his fate. Spanish-English kingdom preparations went on ceaselessly for the invasion of England.

The Queen's boldest seaman, Sir Francis Drake, was ordered to impeach the joining together of the king of Spain's fleets. He was ordered to follow them in case they should come forward towards England. Then he was to harass the ships within the havens of the enemy.

power so that he may "speedily destroy any hour and in all places" with France's problems.

Petain Statement

Petain informed France:—

"The Marshal of France and Chief of State, by virtue of the Constitutional law of July 10, 1940, enters this day into the exercise of (Laval) outside of Constitutional laws has just been taken his simple signature to make laws and issue decrees".

Cancelling a previous decree which had designated Admiral Jean Darlan, now co-operating with the Allies in Africa, as his successor, Petain instead has taken over as Chief of State in event of the Marshall's permanent incapacity. He directed that within a month Council of the Cabinet should meet to choose a permanent successor.

A Vichy communique on the action, as reported by the Berlin Radio, said Petain was sure the State will continue to represent French sovereignty and the continued existence of the country, and added that Laval will have the Marshal constantly informed of his endeavors.

Of most immediate concern to the Allies was the course Laval plans to steer in the matter of possible military aid to the Axis.

Marshal Rommel With His Army In Sorry Plight

By KEREN L. SIMPSON

Crumbling fast of the Allied mid-cracker attack in Africa appear to have plunged the German command in truly unenviable plight.

General Alexander, British commander of the eastern leg of the pincers, says Rommel's fate is sealed unless he has been heavily reinforced. There is no indication he has been reinforced in any notable degree, or planes he so urgently needs. Neither do shocks to most hits and in a last stand at the El Agheila narrows or attempts escape by a sea evacuation from the Gulf of Sidra to Egypt as soon to be accomplished.

As he spoke, the position reached by his own advance guard went far to confirm his judgment of the plight of his rival, whichever course he follows. British forces, shelter ed by Allied air power in unchallenged control of the skies, were within eighty miles of Benghazi.

Already Under Fire

That is no more than a day's march. The bold handful of the Libyan "pump" is already rounded from the east; the march southward of the Eighth Army cuts off the Axis Sirte bogan.

The waters of that wide and deep indentation in the African coastline are under constant watch and ward for sea escape. Yet they are already under fire from the guns of warships and bombers.

It is roughly 600 air miles from the Indianola Allied advance position on the Libyan bulge across the mouth of the gulf to Cape Bon, Tunisia's northern portal in Tunisia. It is less than 500 to Tripoli and hardly more than 300 to Sicily. The deadly menace in that for Rommel unless he can somehow extricate the huge Allied convoy of the skies in Central North Africa and the Central Mediterranean.

Menace of Malta.

Even more menacing now is brave Malta, with a 300-mile radius, an hour's jaunt for heavy bombers, and with the Axis southward to Tunisia in the northwest to El Agheila in the southeast. It would cover all Tunisia except its extreme southeastern corner, and virtually all of Western Tripolitania including Tripoli to a depth of 100 miles or last from the Mediterranean coast. Malta seems destined to wreak terrible punishment on Axis convoys nights and days of Axis bombing.

Most of that 300-mile radius overlapping design on any map and the grim and hourly increasing air attack on Axis re-stocked Libyan army in Africa sticks up like a sore thumb. It is the latest reports of frantic Axis efforts to muster a thousand planes in Sicily are wholly credible.

Creamery Trucks To Be Curtailed

Toronto, Nov. 19—(CP)—The use of trucks by creameries will be almost entirely discontinued except for the collection of raw materials from farms, it was stated by Dr. H. H. Davidson, representative of the Administrator of Services, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, before the Ontario Dairy Industries convention today.

The order, originally scheduled for Oct. 31, but postponed because of administrative difficulties to Nov. 30, is designed to help relieve trucking to Hills more than the essential uses, and to entirely eliminate the use of trucks beyond a limit of 36 miles, except by permit.

"Duplication of collection routes is probably the most wasteful practice in the industry," he said.

Estimating the war to last another three years, and the manufacture of trucks delayed for 18 months after its end, Mr. Davidson pointed out that it was essential to take every step possible to keep the present trucks on the road for the greatest possible time. He commended the producers for their efforts to-do-so, instancing how horse drawn vehicles wherever possible, and in the fact that ice cream producers had already reduced mileage "by as much as 50 per cent." Ice cream was a good had been their contribution, he said, that was "of a nature hitherto unheard of in a competitive field".

OBSTRUCTIONISM

1. Lack of a "clear directive" from the government on manpower policy.

2. Refusal to accept proposals which he advocates.

3. Failure of Mr. Mitchell to assist him.

4. Lack of necessary authority to carry out a Selective Service program.

5. Failure of the War Services Department to assume responsibility for bringing the military call-up to a selective basis.

6. Hindrances in efforts to obtain the co-operation of Labor and industrial management.

Did Not Answer

Mr. Mitchell in his reply accepting the resignation said he preferred not to answer several of Mr. Little's statements because they arose from misconceptions and are scarcely worthy of reply.

The minister said the "very far reaching" proposals made by Mr. Little had reached him only a day before Mr. Little left for Ottawa for legislation. Mr. Mitchell said he had "done everything in my power" to support the director of Selective Service and had made $500,000 available for the department for the present year. Vast expansion of employment offices had been decided on as part of the program.

"Former Department of National Selective Service" would receive his first attention, Mr. Mitchell said and he would shortly to make an announcement on the subject.

Transfer of the call-up for compulsory military service from National War Services Department to Selective Service was scheduled for Dec. 1. Whether it will be delayed by a reorganization in Selective Service was not immediately apparent.

Dr. Ryree Stewart May Remain

Changes In Air Force Command

Yesterday Mr. Mitchell's office indicated a statement might be expected during the afternoon. Mr. Mitchell attended a Cabinet War Committee meeting during the afternoon and it was not until late in the evening that his issued his statement and made public his reply to Mr. Little. For a time it was thought likely that Mr. Little might confer with Mr. Mitchell before the Minister's acceptance of the resignation who made public but Mr. Little did not appear at the Minister's office in the Confederation Building.

Mr. Mitchell spent most of the evening in conference with Mr. Ian Mackenzie, Deputy, Mr. MacNamara, and left immediately after the statement had been given to newspapermen. He declined to make any comment beyond the prepared statement.

While newspapermen were waiting for Mr. Mitchell's statement Mr. Little's letter had been made public.

Mr. Little described the situation as "very ambiguous and divided authority, which has led progressively from confusion to friction and obstructionism".

He said Mr. Mitchell had failed to provide assistance and his actions had been "inconsistent with your words". This makes my position as director of National Selective Service untenable, Mr. Little said.

Mitchell Replies

While "political demands" were being heaped on Selective Service by Labour and Capital for England's assistance a British consultant was available in Ottawa.

Mr. Mitchell in his reply said the fact that Mr. Little's resignation has been tendered at the present time, 16, before there had been any opportunity to test the readiness of Service director's lengthy proposals was "clear evidence that you have decided in advance to resign regardless of the decision of the government respecting your proposals".

It was obvious that as Labor Minister responsible to parliament in both he and the Selective Service Minister should be most eager for the success of Selective Service, the Minister said. He expressed his appreciation to Mr. Little for his readiness on several occasions "in the time of crisis."

Mr. Little, 43-year-old paper executive, came to Ottawa in February, 1941, as director of the Bureau of Technical Personnel. He was made director of National Selective Service when the branch was organized last March.

He is General Manager of the Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Mills Ltd., and President and General Manager of the Gaspesia Sulphite Co. Ltd. He served in both government position without salary.

RUSSIANS TAKE

terday, occupied several invader strongpoints and killed 600, the Soviet midnight communique said.

Trying to Secure Winter Quarters

For the past week the Germans had been attacking again and again on a narrow front in this area trying to break through to the Volga and secure winter quarters but although they paid with thousands of lives they gained only a few yards.

The Russians reported the Germans beaten back in an attack in the northern Stalingrad area while northwest of the city Soviet troops smashed their positions.

In renewed thrusts in the Mozdok area yesterday, in the north Caucasus, the Germans attacked behind a spearhead of 50 tanks but lost 17 of these and were thrown back, the Russians said. They reported fighting still was continuing there last night with the lines holding.

Southeast of Nalchik, Red Army troops in a community held by the Germans, killed 200 and burned three tanks, Moscow's midnight broadcast said.

Northeast of Tuapse a Soviet unit dislodged the Germans from a fortified position, the communique reported.

Russians estimated the Axis lost from 1,000 to 1,500 men a day for three weeks in an effort to take Stalingrad but Gen. F. Beelen declared he regrouped and renewed their limited attacks a week ago, in bid for winter quarters.

4 MORE INMATES OF OREGON STATE HOSPITAL DIE

Sup't. Says Frozen Eggs Served Scrambled Contained Poison Possibly as Result of Chemical Action

DEAD TOTAL 36

Salem, Ore., Nov. 19 — (AP) — Four more inmates of Oregon State Hospital for the insane died today bringing to 36 the total fatalities in connection with what Superintendent J. C. Ross said was probably wholesale food poisoning.

Four hundred additional patients were ill, many of them violently, but Dr. Ross said they were "most of them "have a chance for recovery."

Within 18 minutes after yesterday's noon meal, 200 were stricken, planted of violent cramps. One died shortly after 1 p.m. and 10 P. M. five hours after the meal, 19 had died.

Dr. Evans said he believed frozen eggs served scrambled at the meal contained a poison possibly as the result of chemical action. Powdered eggs, the superintendent said, were obtained from the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation two or three months ago.

All the Deaths Described

He described the reaction of the victims as evidence that they:

"They had nausea, vomited blood, and showed evidence of an acute gastro-intestinal disturbance, paralysis and violent cramps in the legs preceded death.

"Those who were not strong passed out immediately and died."

All the deaths of men and four women, occurred in four wards. Intense pain in the side ill, Dr. Ross said, but an attendant there tasted the eggs before they were served and ejected only a small amount to be eaten.

The superintendent said one-third of the two-ton shipment of eggs had been served previously without ill effects.

French Equatorial Africa Source Of Strength to Allies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(Associated Press War Analyst)

Cairo, Nov. 19 —(AP)— Major offensives like the Allied drives to destroy the Axis in North Africa draw their striking power from many sources and present operations are getting great strength from a strategic development which has been achieved so quietly that many of its features still remain secret.

In the heart of Africa there is a big area known as French Equatorial Africa. It is Fighting French territory. Chad is in the north and reaches southward to include Oubangui-Shari, the French Cameroons, the Middle Congo and Gabon, Brazzaville, down on the Congo, is the capital of this huge area which pokes its head into the Gulf of Equator.

Gen. Mangin once remarked that he who holds Chad holds Africa. A map will explain the significance of his statement but you've got to see the recent works of man in this still largely wild country to understand it in full.

I've just come my way across this zone and have discovered what Mangin meant.

If French Equatorial Africa had been controlled by Vichy as was adjoining French West Africa, there would have been a huge barrier dividing Allied territory through the whole area al——from the Nigerian border to Khartoum. That in itself would have created a grave handicap.

Chad Is Military Key

Chad, which lies against Italian Libya, is the military key to this part of Africa.

Fighting French leaders foresaw Hitler's plan to use north Africa as gain domination of the Mediterranean and, after the fall of France, moved to obtain control of Chad.

This key position was under the governorship of Gen. Eboue, a huge negro who was one of the most capable administrators in the empire. He elected to stand with the fighting French and as a result all French equatorial Africa joined the Allies.

This was done before any effort was made to raise a fighting French army for this region, which is at the rear of the battle-front. Since then an army and military resources have been developed and we shall hear much more of them before this conflict is finished.

French equatorial Afrika now provides a base for an Allied bridge right across Africa.

During the last two years the fighting French and the other Allies have joined hands in piecing together almost-incredible chain of developments from the Atlantic coast clear across Africa to the middle east.

The Allies have performed the historic feat of a complete line of air and water communication through the heart of the no-man's land. It is a magnificent pioneering feat.

Stream of Supplies

Thus, day and night, there stream across this vast area Allied personnel needed on Allied fronts from North Africa clear to far-off China. Here we follow one of the difficult but straight and narrow paths to victory.

That's not the whole story, however. There have been great industrial developments both in fighting French territory and in other Allied countries.

Ancient caravan towns have been modernized and become thunderous centres of Allied activities. Flocks of Nomads, tending their primitive locations of native huts, have become international cities in which French, British, Americans, Belgians, Dutch and what-not brush shoulders in the big cafes.

Along with manufacturing there has been a notable increase in celestial and terrestrial observation.

Naturally, all this spells enlightenment, but it also spells commercial and social; for this hitherto largely-undeveloped part of the world is destined to play a great role in post-war years.

Civilians are being guided on its seven-league boots to make this development a reality.

They say it's an ill wind that blows nobody good, and on that basis it's true that the Hitlerian horror, which has brought tragedy to most of mankind, is literally the black head of primitive Africa.

Mail Service Improved

Mail service has likewise been achieved which might otherwise have required a generation.

W. P. B. ORDERS

"Accordingly the board is taking steps which, together with a 25% reduction in civilian consumers, equivalent to two table-spoons of fats per person per week, can and will meet the situation if consumers co-operate, as we confidently expect.

There is temporarily a small surplus of butter which is in certain of the larger markets, and as a result some retailers are offering butter at cut prices to establishments.

The previous board order stipulated that stocks of butter held in storage warehouses and creameries at Nov. 1 must be limited to 75 per cent of the amount held at the date last year.

Today's statement said production at the season of the year is always very considerably lower than in the summer months, when production is at its peak.

November to April, inclusive, are what are know as deficiency months, in which consumption exceeds production, while in the other months of the year the reverse is true, creating the flush season, production exceeds consumption.

The board statement added "this fall, because of generally increased Income throughout Canada, there has been an abnormal demand from consumers for butter, and a large amount, in the total, has disappeared from the market in the form of small accumulations, by individual consumers."

Two Months' Stocks

It added that the decision that rationing is unnecessary is based in the first place, upon the fact that while admittedly storage stocks are less than last year, there are still substantial stocks amounting actually to two months' average consumption.

Also, since the introduction of the subsidy, butter production has exceeded the production of the corresponding period of 1941. Furthermore, the board continued, there is every indication that production will be substantially higher during the next six months than it was during the same six months of the previous season.

"To a considerable extent, therefore, it may be anticipated that increased production will offset lower cold storage stocks.

"However, even with increased production, it is recognized that the total supplies will probably fall short if the existing rate of consumption continues.

"It is difficult to predict the extent of this prohibition with accuracy, but the best-informed opinion suggests that on an annual basis the deficiency will be not less than five per cent."

The order announced today by the foods administrator is designed to relieve the situation of gyppy in certain retail markets.

It also requires that all holders of butter in storage of 100 pounds report their storage stocks at the end of this month, regardless of whether such stocks are held for the dealer's own account or for the account of any other person.

Holders of butter will also be required to report the stocks which they held in storage at Nov. 1 of this year. Reports of storage stocks of butter may be required by the food administrator from anyone who at the end of any month subsequent to November holds for his own or any other's account any quantity in excess of 5,000 pounds.

The Board is launching a campaign to reduce butter consumption as a part of which specific suggestions will be made regarding ways of making the necessary savings.

AWARDED D. F. C.

London, Nov. 19 — (CP) — Wilfred H. McNeil, Shediac, N. B., a pilot officer with the Royal Canadian Air Force, has received the Distinguished Flying Cross for successfully attacking a heavily-escorted enemy merchant ship, it was announced today. The vessel had to be run ashore and its cargo unloaded, the citation said. His plane was damaged by anti-aircraft fire but he flew it to his base.

Manufacture of linseed oil, meal and coke will be begun in New Brunswick this month with the domestic production of flaxseed and help meet a demand for the oil.

JAPANESE NEED THREE WEEKS TO REORGANIZE

Delay Will Give U. S. Forces Opportunity to Replace Losses

CAN EXPAND POSTS

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 19 — (AP) — It will take the Japanese at least three weeks and possibly much longer to pull themselves together for another try at Guadalcanal, United States naval experts said today after a detailed analysis of Japanese losses in ships, men and equipment suffered in the Nov. 13-15 rout.

In the meantime, the delay will give United States forces an opportunity to replace their relatively small losses and build up their strength for what the Secretary Frank Knox already has labelled round 3 (coming up) of the Battle for the Solomons.

Conduct Operations

The last report of land fighting on Guadalcanal, covering activities of Nov. 19, said United States troops were conducting offensive operations on both their Eastern and Western flanks.

The effect on future operations of the blow dealt the Japanese at sea, as naval men here estimate it, must be measured not only in ships sunk but also in men and material lost. Eleven warships and eight transports were sunk and four cargo vessels which the Japanese had beached were destroyed after the battle, a Navy communique announced.

Navy estimates put the total number of Japanese killed in the battle at 20,000 to 40,000 men.

"Those familiar with the problems of collecting and equipping such a force as the Japanese lost say it requires weeks at the most carefully co-ordinated effort in the homeland arsenal as well as at the bases from which the attack is launched. The Japanese might be able to get together in three weeks enough ships and fully-equipped men to form another expedition but that would depend on their having great resources at their naval base on Truk Island, about 1,200 miles northeast of Guadalcanal.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)—In all the controversy over the R.C.A.F. ruling no air force football team may play after Dec. 1 and consequent derailment of the Grey Cup championship special, one familiar voice has been missing—that of Joe Ryan, long-time manager of Winnipeg Blue Bombers now employed at Ottawa.

But football is in Joe's blood and he dropped in on Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick with the comment: "It is a great shame that the air force must be indicted at this stage after a contribution to sport in general which seems forgotten by some writers in the heat of an argument centring solely around a final. I know that out in Winnipeg the R.C.A.F. has been most co-operative in helping keep the game alive.

"I have an idea that if Canadian Rugby Union officials had dropped down to Ottawa and discussed the situation all this controversy might have been avoided. I'd say that it might all be ironed out satisfactorily even at this stage....It seems to me there has been a misunderstanding leading to the decision made by R.C.A.F. authorities."

Quip of the Week Club:

Goalie Jim Henry of Ottawa Commandos was suffering with a severe toothache when Commandos beat Montreal Royals 9-1 in the Quebec Senior League last Saturday. Young Jean Paul Renaud, Royals' goalkeeper, observed: "A toothache at one end of the rink and a headache at the other."

The Expert Says:

Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Gaynon says Annis Stukus' feat in scoring all Toronto Oakwoods points as they beat the mighty Toronto Hurricanes 15-6 in the Ontario Rugby Football Union should be consirered when experts vote on the year's greatest individual sport performance. "But so often surroundings determine such questions, only members of championship teams being considered..It's a safe guess the Stukus accomplishment will be sidetracked."

Incidentally:

Tiny Thompson, former Boston and Detroit hockey goalkeeper, has been commissioned pilot officer at No. 4 training command headquarters, R.C.A.F., Calgary .... Bernie Thornton, former Toronto and Winnipeg football star, is stationed with the army at Simcoe, Ont., and has attended Hamilton Wildcats drills this week. Wonder if he'll show up in a Hamilton uniform for the O.R.F.U. game with Toronto Navy Saturday.

Nurses' League:

The second week of play saw the teams in the Probationer Nurses' Basketball League playing better as teams. The passing was much improved, and the girls were moving into position faster. Before long this will be a nice league to see. Considering the fact that some of the girls taking part had never played basketball before this Fall, and that those who had were not acquainted with the men's style of game which they are now playing, the brand of ball they are playing is good. Several of the girls are quite fast and shifty, and later on, a team from this league will play an exhibition game against the team the Y has entered in the District Girls' Basketball League which is now being formed. In the first game the Reds beat the Golds 10-5, and in the second game the Purples beat the Blues 8-3.

The teams:

Reds: Sharland, 2; Young, 4; Deneau, 4; Smeltzer; Nicholson, VanAlstyne. Total 10.

Golds: J. Anderson, 1; Jones; Henderson; Holden, 4; Embury. Total 5.

Purples Cormier, 2; Young, 2; Forster, 4; R. Anderson; Sills. Total 8.

Blues: Grills, 2; Kilatrick; Hanna; Reid; Hutchinson. Total 2.

Referee—Shortt.

Boys' House League:

Two closely contested games marked the second week of the Boys' House League. Over-anxiousness made the games a little rough, and the scores a little low, but what was missing in skill and fineness were more than made up for in enthusiasm and action. The first game saw Wonnacott's Wanglers win their second straight, taking the battle from Snell's Snipers 16-11, and the second game went to Rollins' Riders by 7-5 over Flander's Fliers. The second game was much the rougher of the two, three players needing only one more personal foul to banish them from the game. The boys are learning to watch their checks and judge the passes better, and defensively they are playing better basketball than they are on the offensive.

The teams:

Wanglers: Wonnacott, 6; Mifflin, 4; Kellett; Watkin, 6; Vaughan, Shiels. Total 16.

Snipers: Snell, 6; Garrow, 2; Walmsley, 2; Gilbert, 1; Woodley. Total 11.

Riders: Rollins; Legate, 5; Cameron; Rapino, 2; Burke; Kuntze. Total 7.

Fliers: Flander; Carefoot, 3; Watson; Dawkins, 2; Connell; Albert. Total 5.

Referee: Short; scorer, A. Wattkin.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Nov. 19 — (AP) — National Hockey League officials are talking (one of the best things they do) about reducing the player limit to 13 men . . . this is important mainly because hockey is the first sport to feel the real wallop of the war. What happens to it now may happen to the others later . . . the change may or may not equalize the strength of the teams, as Art Ross claims, but it surely would cause some changes in the way they play the game ... the managers could either reduce their defence strength, keep three forward lines in action and go in for heavy scoring, or they could cut out the third line and return to the slower game of a decade ago, when a hockey team was 12 men ... come to think of it, the Bruins have done all right with only 13 men in their last few games ... can you imagine the effects if other sports start cutting — football squads two deep, 16-man baseball squads, etc ... but it's one way of spreading out the available manpower.

Scrap Collection

Although bowl talk is taboo at Boston College, word is that the B. C. seniors would prefer the Orange Bowl to the Sugar ditto because they've visited New Orleans three times but never have seen Miami ... Eboher Wrona, Michigan woman's speed skating champion, recently was awarded a $1,000 war bond by the Saginaw, Mich., defence plant where she works, for figuring out how to save 470 manhours a month in manufacturing machine guns ... still cutting the corners close, eh? ... Pete Reiser, the Dodgers' outfielder, is undergoing treatment in St. Louis for the after-effects of that bump on the head he got last summer .... Jim Hendy and Clem White, hockey drumbeaters at Madison Square Garden, have donated the "Hendy-White Trophy" — a large black comb — to be awarded the player who finishes the season with his hair least disarranged.

Tip from Ted

Gordon Cobbledick of the Cleveland Plain Dealer reports that the reason Ted Williams got so few long hits off Indian pitchers late last season was that Ted, himself, gave Lou Boudreau a hint on how he could be stopped ... "Once a pitcher shows me his fast ball I can hit anything he throws," Ted remarked during the All-star game. "I time everything by the hard one. Until I see it I'm liable to have trouble with his other stuff." .... Boudreau promptly ordered his pitchers to throw nothing but curves and slow stuff to Ted until they had two strikes on him.

Service Dept.

The army has ordered 16,200 pairs of boxing gloves from the Renlee outfit here, and the navy has ordered 3,000 pairs — which should give our side quite a punch ...

Quebec League Games End in Tie

Montreal, Nov. 19—(CP)—Two Quebec Senior Hockey League games ended in stalemates here last night as Canadiens and Montreal Army fought to 2-2 tie after the Quebec Aces-Montreal R. C. A. F. curtain-raiser ended in a 4-4 a draw.

The single point allowed army to move into a second-place tie with Ottawa Commandos, three points behind Cornwall Army, while R. C. A. F. remainded in the cellar but pulled Montreal Royals down with them.

Army had to come from behind twice to gain an even break in the nightcap, with the second goal coming less than three minutes before the final whistle.

MEDICOS, ORDNANCE WINS

Ottawa, Nov. 19—(CP)—Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps downed Corps of Military Staff Clerks 6-4 in the first game of a National Defence Hockey League doubleheader here last night.

Sgt. Ted Saunders scored two for the Medicos.

In the second game, Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps edged out Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, 6-5.

Lieut. F. Chappel led the R. C. O. C. marksmen with two goals.

SPORTSWOMAN REUNITED WITH BROTHER

Members of a well-known Canadian military family, brother and sister, Captain Jean I. Rayment, C.W.A.C., and Lieut.-Col. J. Bernd Dreibler, Canadian headquarters in Newfoundland, had a brief reunion recently in Ottawa, Mrs. Rayment, whose husband, C. Hugo Rayment, resides in Victoria, B.C., is a crack rifle shot, a member of the Ajax Skating Club and a prominent badminton player.

Stan Laurel is the sad faced soldier boy who just won't listen to pal Oliver Hardy's explanation. The two comedies can be seen in Belle, Century-Fox's "Great Guns" now at the Capitol, with the added western "Forbidden Trails."

Two for two, as served by Robert Young to Jeanette MacDonald, the screen's newest romantic twosome in the musical spy drama, "Cairo," now on the Belle screen.

Opening next at the McCarthy Theatre, "Strictly in the Groove," Universal's fun-filled musical romp with Ozzie Nelson, his orchestra, Ozzie and Harriet Nelson and a host of headline funmakers, including Leon Errol, Shemp Howard, Franklyn Farnum and other favorites. Charles Starrett in "Thunder Over the Prairie" will be the second feature.

CASUAL COMMENT

By K.J.C.

DID YOU KNOW ... George "Soup" Campbell's champion Belleville Cubs received $150 from the Ontario City Council in recognition of their victory and consequent title "A" Softball Championship of Ontario. ... The money will be used to provide suitable remembrances gifts for the 15 players on the squad.

There was a day when the Belleville Cubs would have won a local senior championship baseball team $800, but times have changed. ... Ask Col. H. E. Beal, of the Pacific Coast Defence Command in California, or Lieut. Bill Hewitt, the annual Rose Bowl football game-star Pasadena, Cal., on New Year's Day. ... Watch Boston College or Georgia Tech. as potential Rose Bowl contestants from the east for the big grid event on January 1. ... Gem's Gems: 5 I.T.B. hoopsters are still seeking exhibition basketball games with the Kingston or Peterboro squads. ... It's congratulations to Jack Hastie and Betty Shorey, who centre-aisled it recently. ... Bill is well known for his hockey prowess, while Mrs. Hastie formerly led basketball and bowling teams.

A BAY OF QUINTE HOCKEY game out of Belleville's Memorial Arena when Scribe Fred Craig released an encouraging statement that reads: "Although the definite decision has been made in the matter, there is a possibility that Peterboro's senior "B" hockey team may function this winter with the Lindsay rink as their home ice. The club has had a very flattering offer from the Lindsay Kiwanis Club who operate the Lindsay arena and it may be that last year's senior "B"-champs will take advantage of the opportunity to stage their home games to Lindsay, with little possibility of its being in any wise detrimental that transportation by rail would be available for the benefit of Peterboro fans who would like to see the games. The Petes would be assured of a good following from here. There are hundreds of munitions workers at the Arsenal who would be glad of the chance to see some good hockey. No decision will be made, of course, until the players of the Peterboro club have been called together and given an opportunity to discuss the whole situation. There is considerable local talent for an effective defence of the championship won last season it would be fool-hardy to think the Petes did not function during the coming winter."

REMEMBER WHEN baseball fans stood at church pews in the Church of Saints Peter and Paul in San Francisco three years ago today when Joe DiMaggio, star outfielder, Joe DiMaggio, was married to Dorothy Arnold, of Hollywood and the movies? DiMaggio had helped the Yankees win their fourth consecutive world series victory only a few weeks earlier.

IT'S RASSLIN' AGAIN tonight at the Hung Arena and a merry time can be assured, wherever Pedro Martigues is advertised to appear in any ring. However, the "Mad Mexicano" hasn't any push over in Bert Connelly, as the former westerner has a slight advantage in avoirdupois over Senor Pedro and should certainly be able always results when the Mexicano doesn't have matters his own way. Skipper Tunney's prelims are also top-ranking tonight.

THE WON AND LOST records of the Cleveland Indians of 1941 and of the Chicago Cubs of 1932. Each year they won 75 games and lost 79. One year they had Bob Feller, the next they didn't. One year Feller won 25 games while being 21, the next he was pitching for the Norfolk naval station.

By these figures one might say: "All other things being equal, Feller wasn't worth the $20,000 he was supposed to be drawing." Of course, all other things were not equal. The Indians under Lou Boudreau were a better spirited club by far, not a machine, but a lor club, than they were under Roger Peckinpaugh.

If you insist on figures, remember some that reflect Feller's worth to the Cleveland club: With Feller, the Indians' attendance was approximately 850,000 for 1941; without Feller, the 1942 figure was 450,000, a reduction of 300,000, or about 35 per cent. That's what Bob meant to the Indians.

THIS AND THAT ... It was said, had the gang's all been there, at the Quinte Hotel last evening when the local council of the Knights of Columbus banqueted the champion St. Michael's Academy football team ... Many years Kingston Collegiate noted cut Reginolds College 7-6 in an Intermediate contest as seen in Kingston in years . . . Now is the time . . .

2 R.C.A.F. Fliers Killed in Crash

Listowel, Ont., Nov. 19—(CP)—Two unidentified R.C.A.F. fliers being trained at No. 7 S.F.T.S. here instantly killed Wednesday morning in a crash of the trainer plane west of here of their Harvard training machines.

The aircraft on falling first struck a hill where one wing was torn from the plane and then hit the ground, crashed through a wire fence, overturned and finally crumpled up against a tree.

Wreckage of the plane was scattered about for half a mile.

Officials at the Port Albert flying centre were summoned but on arrival said the plane was not theirs and thought it was from Camp Borden.

The scene of the crash was on the farm of Grayson Richmond, Wesleyville, Ashfield township, and Robert Morley of Mitchell, was first to reach the wreck.

PROVIDENCE REDS STILL TRAILING HERSHEY BEARS

Reds Take New Haven in Overtime but Bears Whip Washington

FAST CONTESTS

(By The Canadian Press)

Providence Reds are wondering what it takes to get along in the American Hockey League.

The Reds racked up their third defeat in succession last night by whipping the Eagles 7-6 in overtime at New Haven, but still trail the pace-setting Hershey Bears, by three points.

Then the current King-Pins of the Eastern Division, defeated the Lions of Washington 5-3 for their second triumph in eight days over the Division's tail-enders. The Bears have won four and tied one in their last five contests.

The Reds De Marco pulled the fat out of the fire in the overtime with two of his three goals after the high-scoring Rhode Islanders had thrown away a 6-1 lead for two periods. The Eagles scored three goals in the third session.

The Bears and Lions concentrated all their scoring into the second period but Winger Harry Frost's two goals proved to be the margin of victory. Goalies Bibeault and John Flagarski scored the other shutout periods, while Washington's Gay O'Dell, Jamieson and Gauthier took care of the home team's goals.

The Reds get another chance to pull up to the Bears' level when they journey into the Eagles again, this time on Providence ice.

Western Division leaders Buffalo Bisons, journey to Indianapolis to meet the second-place Capitals who trail them by four points.

St. Mikes Grid Squad Honored At Banquet

Members of the St. Michael's College football team, champions of the junior interscholastic series of the O.R.F.U., were honored at a banquet tendered by the local council of the Knights of Columbus at the Quinte Hotel last evening.

Impromptu speeches lauding Coach Jack Doran and the titlists were the order of the evening, as present paying tribute to the fine sportsmanship and playing of the champions on the sports field.

Rev. Monsignor J. J. Nicholson introduced the various speakers and guests individually, including Coach Doran and his team. Later credit will be presented to the members of the executive who sponsored the guests and team on behalf of the local council of the Knights of Columbus while Father J. J. O'Donnell and Wesleyroe Keeler spoke briefly on the accomplishments of the team.

In responding Coach Doran thanked the members of the Knights of Columbus for the fine hospitality extended during the gathering that the St. Mikes "Irish" would carry their green and white colors for interscholastic hockey in Belleville this winter he introduced each member of his championship squad individually. Captain Jerry Mooney expressed the thanks of the team.

AT THE BELLE

"Cairo"

Jeanette MacDonald, the screen's first lady of song, deserts the honeysuits and crinoline and goes completely modern in the M-G-M dramatic adventure musical, "Cairo," which opened yesterday at the Belle theatre.

The tuneful, romantic drama, which has Egypt for a background, is a sailor on Hollywood spy stories. All the cliches of this type of drama are lampooned.

Robert Young is teamed with Miss MacDonald for the first time in "Cairo." The picture is also enlivened mutually in the comedy department by the presence of Ethel Waters, famed "blues" singer, who plays a featured role.

The story is simple and expertly told under the deft handling of W. S. Van Dyke II, who has directed many of Miss MacDonald's hit musicals in the past. It concerns a famous American movie star, played by Miss MacDonald, who is stranded in the Egyptian metropolis. Young, in the role of a naive, small town newspaper reporter, is sent to cover the war in Europe and turns up in Cairo. He discovers Miss MacDonald and is said to believe she is the head of a spy ring. And she, puzzled by his antics, thinks he's an espionage agent. When Young obtained a job as her butler, the situation is ripe for comedy and the stars make the most of it. They finally learn the truth about each other and assist in capturing the real spy gang.

But it is in the music department that "Cairo" really pleases. Miss MacDonald, who never looked lovelier, sings two intriguing numbers. "The Waltz is Over" and the title song, "Cairo." The latter melody is heard in a production specially when the star entertains at a native fiesta in the desert. Miss Waters sings "Dead Won't Bud" and "A Woman Without a Man" — both definite contenders for hit honors.

Miss MacDonald and Young fill their roles perfectly and turn in smooth, spirited performances. Reginald Owen heads a supporting cast that includes Edmund Gwenn, Claude Allister, Lynne Carver, Giannelli, Mona Barrie, Lionel Atwill, Grant Mitchell, Lynne Carver and Dooley Wilson.

The Further Prophecies of Nostradamus, the master seer of the 15th Century whose uncanny predictions of World events down the centuries have proved of unusual interest to people with "Blitz Wolf," 1942's most timely color cartoon will be presented on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Rough Riders"

Three of the most famous names in western pictures are united once again, in the latest of the Rough Riders series, "Forbidden Trails," now showing at the Capitol Theatre with Buck Jones, Tim McCoy, Raymond Hatton and "Silver." All three of the actors are veterans of western melodrama and have long been favorites of fingers the world over. The first of their joint starring collaboration in the series was "Arizona Bound," and since that mutal film the group has become America's outstanding western trio.

"Laurel and Hardy"

A special privilege, one never before given to any star in the history of 20th Century-Fox, has been accorded to Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in the making of "Great Guns."

They also co-star and co-author of the picture. The camera must run until they call "cut."

The result is a film that is the boys, while doing a scene, occasionally come forth with a spontaneous bit of "business" which is not in the script. They have learned that if they do not catch the first time, it is not worth trying again.

"Great Guns," which is currently playing at the Capitol Theatre, features Sheila Ryan, Dick Nelson and Edmund MacDonald.

A funny cartoon and the serial "Perils of Nyoka" complete the bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

Ma was doing the bridge problem and pop was sitting back and listening. After a while, a doubtful tribute, ma said, "Well in the world are you allending for me to said, and pop said, I'm allurting to a superthous jerk to be playing with." Ma was president of the Company and he's supposed to be a sharp organization, but he's not, he's just a shark on a pair of low legs. He's making a record of inspection among the branch offices and today he fanned six with his royal presence, the big moment got bubble. Well, he didn't oversee me. He was a deflated windbag when I got through telling him a few plain facts, pop said.

But William, my goodness, there's no need to be so touchies for land sakes, ma said. I meant I know you're absolutely essential and irreplaceable, but after all you dont bear a charmed life? I mean, a vice president, she said, and pop said, it's the first time I ever heard a thing to nothing, and I as much as told him so. "Now listen," I told him, "I'm here with a bunch of Model T suggestions that weren't even good when they were new!" That's what I told him, he said.

Now William, really, mean, really, ma said, you must be nicer to him. Who's there's a possibility he may not of heard me, I really said it under my breath after he had gone, and I'll tell you what else I told the poor sap.

Never mind, I dont want to hear your crazy silly thing, and there's absolutely nothing to laugh at and if you have to be a comic, find what's good for you you'll take me right to the movies, ma said.

Which he did still laughing.

CHAPTER 20
Stone Investigates

Fleming Stone went to see Chadwick and to him the situation was not troublesome.

"Made of old materials," Chadwick said. "How could the old man find a lawyer who would draw up such a will?"

"I doubt a lawyer drew it up, Stone; returned. "But it must be legally sound, as the city fathers and Rhoda's Corners are already planning to use the money. They know Merrick is in prison, and doubtless they hope for his electrocution. It is my aim and purpose to defeat their hopes.

"Just how?"

"You must have some legal knowledge that can outwit a parcel of money-grabbers."

"And why shouldn't they? The improvement of a little backwoods hinterlander, is in itself a laudable ambition."

"Said laudable ambition will be thwarted. If I can bring it about. And I feel pretty sure that I am going to help."

"In the face of your optimism, I can't help hoping a bit. How does Brand take this?"

"Standing. You know, he is furious over the arrest. He is not so much apprehensive as angry. He is belligerent and now, he is furious because he cannot start off for Michigan and see about this Jason Webb comedy set. Somebody must represent Herrick out there in the state, and it seems indicated that Mr. Bliss is the proper one. He's going to close the business office temporarily, we hope, and do what he can in his partner's interests."

"That's good. It's the right way. You are needed here and so am I. I hope to find a flaw in the Apollo proceedings. I doubt they had competent evidence to arrest Brand. I can't let Catherine's boy go to the chair for a crime he did not commit. You don't think he killed the lady?"

"I do not. I'm going to see Mr. McCleod now, will he see me, do you think?"

"Oh, yes, he's Scotch but very much the gentleman. His sister is a Tartar, but probably you won't see her. What's your errand?"

"I want to see what he's like and learn what he can or will tell me about Merrick."

"His talkative enough, if he likes you. Haven't thought much of to him."

"And I want to see the place. Then I'm to see Herrick tonight, and Miss Bliss. I'll start with the first now, and we'll get busy on the boy's release."

"You inspire me with your cheerful hope, but I'm not so confident. I can't help a feeling against that Murray chap. He's a bad egg, but get hold of Mr. McCleods and let me know your findings."

"Why the sister? Is she implicated?"

"No, nor Hugh either. But I want you to see her as a unlikely specimen of womankind. She has her good points, very much so. She's devoted to her old father, and she has bossed Hugh until he married."

"I think I shall like her."

Stone went and the lawyer sat wondering why he was going to the house. The detective had no reason for going except that he did see the scene of the crime. He couldn't get the hang of the arrangement of the rooms, and he had a mental picture. But his sympathy for the husband was increased when he learned of the dictatorial sister.

Mr. McCleod was undergoing a massage treatment that his sister had wished on him for the shock, which she feared was still affecting his nerves.

Learning of the detective's arrival, Miss McCleod went down to see him. She seemed a mild gentlewoman beside the mental picture Stone had of her and she greeted him with a subdued cordiality that he thoroughly approved of.

"Sir Herbert will see you in a few moments," she said. "I am glad to have you to repeat for a little, I want to speak to you sertously about Hugh."

"Please do."

"Your interest in my sister-in-law's death is to consider someone other than Mr. Herrick as the criminal. I want to say, you to give up such ideas. Brand Herrick killed Mrs. McCleod. It would be a grave miscarriage of justice for you to imagine him wrongfully accused and to suggest any other person could have been her murderer."

Fleming Stone looked at her directly. The directness of that glance had often brought confusion to the object of his attention.

Not so in this instance. Emmy McCleod sat back at him without the quiver of an eyelash.

"Miss McCleod," he said, reverently, "you have some definite reason for your opinion of Mr. Herrick. May I ask what it is?"

Emmy had every intention and, indeed, every desire to give him a withering retort. But his voice was so gentle and the manner so sympathetic that she couldn't respond angrily.

She took refuge in an exceedingly dignified attitude and said, primly, the tones.

"I was present," she said, "when Mr. Herrick was questioned as to his movements that night. The story he told that was needed to convince me he committed the dreadful deed."

"You have it clearly in your mind, Miss McCleod. Stone looked straight at her. "Just the exact order in which those four persons men entered and left the room where the lady was. I am glad of that. I feel I will ask you to tell it to me, for I am in charge of this case, and it is difficult to get a straightforward account of that episode."

Emmy made several unnecessary motions that proved her uncertainty if not embarrassment.

"Please tell me," Stone's pleasant voice repeated. "It will be positive proof, whereas now we are in doubt. If you will give me a short account of the young men's recitals and your own decision thereon, I will not trespass further."

"I will do nothing of the sort, Mr. Stone. Since you have chosen to intrude on this saddened house-hold, you shall exhibit an unwelcome busybody. And I will ask you to get out of it on your visit."

"To you, yes, Miss McCleod. I will excuse you and await your brother. And I thank you for the welcome information you have given me—"

"I gave you no information!" the angry lady cried.

"Not knowingly, perhaps, but I gathered much that you will reason to tell me. Good day."

Stone rose, and actually bowed her from the room. She gave him a venomous look and went haughtily away.

After a few moments, McCleod came in, apparently ignorant of his sister's interview with Stone.

"Sorry to have kept you waiting, sir," Stone told Hugh of his own presence with the case, and asked for a brief description of the questioning of the four young men suspected.

"I know, Mr. McCleod, that if, as I have reason to think, the murderer was not Mr. Herrick, but one of the four young men present with him, you will be glad to have Mr. Herrick freed and the other man arrested. That is why I am asking you to tell me of the attitude, rather than the words of those other three men, who, with Herrick, went to Captain Raynor's questions."

"I am sorry, Mr. Stone, but you are asking too much of a sick man. I am under the doctor's care, and to detail the conversation you ask would be a great drain on my nerves. You can get it all from the stenographic reports in the hands of the police, and I advise you to pursue that course."

"Very well, Mr. McCleod. I will do so. I will not detain you, but I am anxious to see the room where the crime took place."

To Stone's surprise, considering Stone's personality, that the rugged Scotchman let the case drop. Dickson, the valet, down to see the urban visitor.

"Dickson," said Dickson," Stone said, affably, and the valet knew at once that here was a man who commanded respect, deference and liking.

"Mr. Stone?" he said, looking into the gray eyes. "Mr. McCleod told me take you to the room you wish to see. Will you come with me?"

Stone followed him up the marble staircase, with something of the feeling he had when following guides through ancestral castles abroad. There was nothing ancestral-looking about this lofty room, however, but Stone thought he had never seen one where an air of luxury had been given such good taste.

Dickson took him to the guest room: It had been restored to its former state of guest room order, and Stone looked with interest at the chaise lounge, with its chenille cover and the discontinuous satin upholstery.

"This couch stood right here, when Mrs. McCleod was found?" he asked.

"Yes, sir; the blessed lady!"

"You mean Mrs. Herrick killed her. You wouldn't think it to look at him. Do you know him, Dickson?"

"Yes, sir, as I know all the men who came here."

Fleming Stone was sensitive to the faintest quiver in a voice, or the slightest trembling of an eyelid, and he saw evidence of embarrassment or self-consciousness.

He lowered his tone and spoke accusingly.

"Did you have any reason to suspect Mrs. Herrick guilty and ready to doubt his guilt?"

"Mr. Stone, it is not my place to have an opinion on the matter, but I honestly believe, sir, that no one to think it could not have been Mr. Herrick who killed Mrs. McCleod."

"Yes? And you gave this reason to Captain Raynor?"

"No, sir. He did not ask me."

"You would tell it to me, Dickson and I will advise you."

Dickson looked up and saw men gentleness and friendliness in Stone's eyes, that he could not re-

"I'm glad to tell you, sir. It is only that I saw Mrs. McCleod and Mr. Herrick together just before they went upstairs."

"Where were they?"

"In a little hall, downstairs, sir. It is where the library door comes down. Mrs. McCleod and Mr. Herrick came from the dance room there."

"Did they see you?"

"I don't think they did't. She laughed and put her finger to her lips, for me to make no sound. Then she urged him into the elevator—"

"Used lipstick?"

"Yes, sir. He did not want to go, but she coaxed him. I'm telling you all that you may decide on me. He was trying to get away from her, and she urged him to stay by her. Well, then, sir, they went upstairs together, in the little elevator. He was just trying to get away from her—he was annoyed at her attentions, but not angry! He didn't kill her, he only wanted her to leave him alone!"

Stirling and District

Nine Hunters Secure Quota

Stirling, (Special)— Good hunting has been reported, but tempered by a group of Stirling hunters who returned to their homes after spending fourteen days deer hunting, in the Chalk Lake area and six, grouse in the display of their hunt. Nine was the number of nimble footed deer they brought back with them, three does and six buck, two of the latter crowning two hundred pounds in weight. The party from this neighborhood further which is unusual to say the least, included Messrs. William Hall and Charles Andrews, Jack Armstrong and William Curran all of Stirling, Malcolm King of Frankford, Gordon Ross, Port Hope, William Tower, Tuttff Ontario, and Maurice Adams, Deseronto.

Numbering nine in the party each was successful in securing a deer and all were back in Stirling before the season ended with storage and processing, which is the topic of conversation for many days to come. The buck deer bagged by this party up-ped the scales at 180 and 200 lbs. respectively. Not given to boasting the boys simply said upon their return "We had fun" and the season which is putting it a bit mild. Nine hunters and nine deer is more than fair luck in the eyes of many hunters, who didn't do so well.

Toronto Youth Given a Year

Ross Bowers, 21-year-old Toronto youth, was sentenced to serve one year in the Ontario Reformatory after pleading guilty to five charges of breaking, entering, theft and jail breaking before Magistrate C. L. Lloyd here today.

Bowers escaped jail at Bancroft some time ago while awaiting trial on a theft charge. The counts preferred against him today were similar, one of breaking into a garage owned by Peter Kelly, Bancroft, and stealing cash. Charges of escaping jail, endangering life of a Canadian National train by placing a gasoline jigger on the tracks near Bancroft, entering the Bancroft C.N.R. touthouse and also of stealing a truck, were withdrawn by consent.

Appearing for the accused, Attorney S. Gordon Robertson presented a letter from Dr. McGregor, Provincial Psychiatrist, which he said might be helpful in the mitigation of sentence. Dr. McGregor had examined the accused at the request of Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan K.C.
